STATEMENT BY COUNSEL IN THE MARCI MURDER TRIAL

Attorney Koletsky Declares That the Special Committee of The New Haven County Bar Association Did Not Read the Law—Cites 37 Cardinal Points Favorable to the Defense, Which He Claims the Committee Ignored—Charges That the Committee is in Contempt of Court.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 1—Charges that the special committee of the New Haven County Bar association, which recently reported on an investigation related to assume the role of a committee of "metaphysicians and sophists" that its members "out-heroed Herod" and other general criticism are included in a remonstrance to the committee report, made by Attorney Samuel Koletsky, defense counsel in the Marci murder trial.

The remonstrance, which is a document of some 5,000 words, was sent to Attorney Philip Pond, president of the bar association tonight and also made public Mr. Koletsky. Publicity given the committee report is mentioned by Mr. Koletsky, who says "a similar privilege should be given and remonstrance allowed those who were chosen as the target of their relief vision and hysteria."

Caustic criticism of the committee of "lawyers and their attorney" runs through the document. The allegations and recommendations of the bar committee report are categorically denied by Mr. Koletsky and in addition the 37 cardinal points favorable to the defense side, which he claims the committee ignored.

The committee report which was submitted on October 2 was "filed" at the bar meeting. The committee was made up of Attorneys Walter J. Walsh, Frederick H. Wiggin, Louis M. Rosenbluth, Harold H. Drew and George N. Clark, with Harris Shelton acting as attorney.

Calling attention to the fact that the committee report was made without advance notice to Miss Macri or her lawyer Mr. Koletsky charges that despite the requestion of the bar that the committee report be not printed, the committee "burst forth in public print."

The bar will be "startled to learn that the five lawyer committee and their attorney did not read the law, the evidence and the sworn testimony of Koletsky says. He asks whether the jury under the direction of a judge is to be supplanted by "ex-parte proceedings held in a lawyer's office."

A charge that Coroner Eli Mix called up one of the jurors at the Hotel Taft while they were locked up, to ask about a verdict, is one of the 37 points which Mr. Koletsky said the committee ignored. Evidence that Assistant State's Attorney Clarence E. Barton and Pasquale G. Nicolari entered the jury room first, that Coroner Mix authorized the first photograph of the girl, Mr. Koletsky was instrumental in "stamping out" publication of songs about the case, the deliberate withholding of a finding by Coroner Mix," the "disrespectful attitude of State's Attorney Alling toward the eleven jurors," that Alling "usurped the powers of sheriff," in refusing visitors to the girl are included in the points characterized by Mr. Koletsky as being favorable to the defense and which he claims the committee failed to report on.

Mr. Koletsky charges that it was the bar committee investigation that was a "scheme" and not the presence of women in the court room "to comfort and cheer the girl." He recalls reference to the report that he was once a newspaper reporter, saying that it is something he is proud of.

Mr. Koletsky states that the suggestion that too much time was used in the trial will not cause him to neglect the interests of his client by hurrying the second trial.

The attorney for Miss Macri charges that the committee is in contempt of court "for the law positively states that everything that occurs in the actual presence of the court is for the court and the court exclusively and not for any committee." Criticism of points in the trial approved by the court amounts to contempt, Mr. Koletsky claims.

That nothing was found in the investigation to justify it, is the charge of Mr. Koletsky, who says that because of this the report was made by the committee in an "attempt to clear its own skirts."

DEGRESS ARRESTED FOR MURDER OF WHITE MAN

SOUTH NORWALK, Conn., Nov. 1—Emma Darnell, alias Ethel Slade, negress of 28 Raymond street, South Norwalk, was arrested in Stamford today and brought back to this place to face a charge of murder of Alvin Waite, 50, a white man, of Water street. The body of Waite was found in his room this morning with two wounds in the neck, face and head.

Waite lived alone in two rooms in a Water street house which is inhabited by negroes. The murder is said to have taken place about 1 o'clock this morning. A policeman reporting that section of the city was notified by neighbors that there had been trouble at the Waite house last night. The policeman found the door to Waite's room locked, and forcing it open found Waite dead in his chair. The authorities were informed later that the Darnell woman had been in Waite's room last night and search was made for her. She was trailed to Stamford where she was found with a friend and was placed under arrest. According to the stamford police, she was under the influence of liquor and efforts to question her were unsuccessful. She was brought back to South Norwalk to face the murder charge pending further investigation by the police.

The police in their investigation have found no definite motive for the murder. Waite has a record here, having been arrested several times for intoxication and breach of the peace. He is survived by two sons who are watchmen at the South Norwalk docks.

BARBERS URGED TO IGNORE RULING OF STATE BOARD

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 1—A resolution urging all master barbers and barbettes of the state to ignore the ruling of the state board of hair dressers and cosmeticians that all beauty parlors attached to barber shops must have separate entrances, was adopted at a joint meeting of the Master Barbers' association and the State Barbers' Protective association held here today.

The barbers voted to adhere to the rules and regulations laid down by the state board of examiners of barbers, following a long discussion during which they were addressed by Ira M. Ornburn, president and treasurer of the Ornburn Press, Inc.; Anthony Marino, vice president of the Barbers' International union and Joseph Arena, member of the state board of examiners and barbers.

A state master barbers' association was formed at the meeting.

Mr. Ornburn said that the law establishing a state board of hair dressers and cosmeticians did not contain any clause which made it necessary for the barbers to separate their barber shops and beauty parlors. He said that ruling was made by the new state board.

S. O. S. CALL PERCEIVED FROM DISABLED BRITISH STEAMER

NEW YORK, Nov. 1—(AP)—The Independent Wireless Telegram company today reported the receipt of an "S. O. S." call from the British steamer Mompark, which stated she was disabled through the loss of her rudder in latitude 37-23 north and longitude 72-15 west.

A later message said the British steamer Kioto had taken the Mompark in tow.

THIRD ANNIVERSARY OF THE MARCH ON ROME

ROME, Nov. 1—(AP)—The celebration of the third anniversary of the march on Rome was carried out throughout the nation without a single untoward incident, "proving irrefutably the power of Fascism," Premier Mussolini declared in an official message today.

MAKE UP OF NEXT HOUSE OF CANADIAN PARLIAMENT

OTTAWA, Nov. 1—The conservatives will hold the greatest number of seats in the next house of parliament already they have elected 116 members, the liberals 103, progressives 23 and labor 2 and independent 6. Three constituencies are still in doubt.

Premier MacKenzie King will meet his cabinet tomorrow afternoon to discuss his course of action. It is expected that he will decide to remain in office and meet parliament.

The conservatives are adopting an attitude of watchful waiting until the liberal premier announces his intentions they decline to make any official pronouncement.

At the same time the feeling among conservatives is that Premier King would have no justification for such a course. They take the ground that the defeat of so many members of his cabinet, coupled with the majorities reported against the government candidates in evidence that the government has lost the support of the country and should resign.

OBITUARY.

Carl Stoeckel

NORFOLK, Nov. 1—(A. P.)—By the death of Carl Stoeckel at his home "the White House" early today, Litchfield county loses one of its principal benefactors and the cause of music one of its most liberal patrons. He was the founder of the Litchfield county choral union with 700 members in Norfolk, Canaan, Salisbury, Torrington and Winsted, and also of the Litchfield county university club, composed of college graduates, more than 200 in number.

Although Mr. Stoeckel is known to have been in failing health for several months, his death came unexpectedly, occurring between 3 and 4 o'clock this morning.

Concerts of the Litchfield county choral union, held annually until a few years ago at the "Music Shed" on the grounds at "White House," were unique in that no tickets were sold, admittance being by invitation.

Besides his wife, Mr. Stoeckel is survived by a brother, R. B. Stoeckel, state motor vehicle commissioner, and a sister, Miss Irene L. Stoeckel, both of Norfolk.

The funeral will be private, probably tomorrow afternoon at "White House" and burial will be in the Norfolk cemetery.

Henry P. Stagg

STRATFORD, Nov. 1 (AP)—Henry P. Stagg, former state representative from Stratford, town clerk for a period of 30 years and widely known in G. A. R. circles throughout the state, died suddenly early this morning at his home at 725 East Broadway. He had appeared to be in excellent health until the last, and although he was in his 90th year, he was out Saturday afternoon raking up the leaves in his yard, as active as many men 50 years his junior is years. He retired Saturday night apparently in good health, but during the early hours of this morning was fatally stricken with a heart attack, dying within a few minutes.

Royal Elliott Clark

BRIDGEPORT, Nov. 1—Royal Elliott Clark, former college and National league baseball player, representative of the Travelers' Insurance company in this city, died at his home 1010 Laurel avenue, this afternoon at the age of fifty one. He had been ill for several weeks but the end came unexpectedly today.

PARIS, Oct. 31. (AP)—The French losses in Syria since the beginning of the Druze tribesmen's insurrection are 385 killed or missing, and of these a little less than half were french soldiers, the premier's office announced today in refuting press statements saying that 6,000 had been killed.

IDA M. TARBELL HAS WRITTEN LIFE OF ELBERT H. GARY

NEW YORK, Nov. 1—(A. P.)—Ida M. Tarbell, author of the "Life of Abraham Lincoln" and "History of the Standard Oil company" has invaded the territory of steel in her latest work just published and copyrighted by D. Appleton and Company, "The Life of Elbert H. Gary; the Story of Steel." She portrays the life of the head of the steel industry in this country and intimately pictures his quarrels and disagreements with other financiers over his labor and stock market policies.

At the time of the formation of the big steel trust that was later subjected to many governments suits and investigations, Miss Tarbell writes of J. Pierpont Morgan's part in acquiring the steel plants offered to him by Charles Schwab. Morgan submitted the proposition made to him by Schwab to Mr. Gary. Mr. Gary returned it with notations of his own and when the deal was going through Morgan told Gary, "Now there's one thing I want understood: If I go into this you are to go with me, not only as my lawyer, but as my friend—that is you are to stand by me."

In attempting to gain the Rockefeller ores for the new combine Gary found that Morgan's dislike of Rockefeller stood in the way. Chided by Gary Morgan went to Rockefeller and parleyed with him for the ore lands. The Rockefeller offer was $5,000,000 more than Gary's outside figure but Morgan said that the price should not stand in the way and directed Gary to write out an acceptance.

She interestingly portrays the long conference between Morgan and John W. Gates who was determined to get a record price for his wife's holdings. Mr. Gray took up the parley where Morgan had walked out angry. He eventually forced Gates to sell by having Morgan enter the room and announce that unless Gates sold his wire plants Morgan's interests would build one of their own and force Gates and his associates to the wall.

"Morgan was as tickled as a kid going home from a football game," Gary says in describing the victory.

MITCHELL COURTMARTIAL WILL RESUME TODAY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1—(A. P.)—Opposing counsel tonight had taken full advantage of the week-end recess to work out their prosecution and defense plans and were ready for resumption tomorrow of their legal struggle before the court of generals in the case of Colonel William Mitchell, army air service critic of the war and navy departments.

The prosecution officers, headed by Colonel Seligman Moreland, had completed preliminary examinations of several witnesses summoned by them to appear against Colonel Mitchell to support the charges of conduct prejudicial to good order and military discipline. These included three Texas newspapermen who disseminated the statements the defendant made public in San Antonio, charging the two executive department with incompetency, criminal neglect and almost treasonable administration of aviator affairs, which gave rise to the court martial proceedings.

Colonel Moreland also had been able as a result of the court's recess from Friday afternoon until tomorrow morning, to work out much of the statement he will make before the court, probably at tomorrow's sessions, which will forecast briefly the points on which he will see conviction of the accused officer.

So far as the defense's preparations were concerned, Representative Frank R. Reid of Illinois, civilian counsel for Colonel Mitchell, said he was "thoroughly prepared." He, too, had made preliminary examinations of the newspaper writers from Texas, who were turned over to him by the prosecution for that purpose. As regards the future court stratagems that Colonel Mitchell and his counsel will employ, Mr. Reid had little to say.

"This case has been so abnormal, irregular and extraordinary," he asserted, "that I cannot anticipate future developments. We are thoroughly prepared, however, to meet the issues as they are presented and to prove the truth of the statements issued by Colonel Mitchell."

The defense attorney still was undecided whether he will yield to advisers who have urged him to seek a subpoena for President Coolidge, or ask a deposition by him which would disclose the name of the official who ordered the arrest of Colonel Mitchell. Mr. Reid is aware that such a plea would be certain to be rejected by Colonel Moreland, or the court, in whose power such affairs as the calling of the witnesses are placed under the court's martial manual regulation.

RUSSIA MOURNS DEATH OF GENERAL FRUNSE

MOSCOW, Nov. 1. (AP)—An imposing funeral will be held on Tuesday for General Frunse, the commissar for war, who died yesterday after an operation for intestinal ulcer. The day has been declared one of mourning throughout the Soviet federation, and government institutions, shops, theatres and factories will be closed.

At midnight last night the body was transfered to the trade union hall formerly a palatial club of Moscow's nobility, where the body of Lenin lay in state. As at the time of Lelin's death, 60 hours will be allowed the population to pay homage to General Frunse. Members of the government, Communist party officials and military commanders will act as guards of honor.

Theatrical performances were forbidden last night. The stores already are displaying draperies of crepe and the flags over the foreign mission are at half mast.

The Communist party organ, in an official communique, deplores the loss of one of its leading members, referring to General Frunse as the greatest organizer of the revolutionary red army.

Hope For Success of Peking Conference

American, British and Japanese Groups Are Prepared to Enlarge the Scope of Discussions.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(AP)—With the Peking customs conference safely through its first week had showing no signs of a break, Washington officials are generally hopeful of the outcome, provided the new Chinese civil war does not interfere.

Great significance is attached here to the fact that the American, British and Japanese groups were fully prepared to enlarge the scope of the discussions as outlined by the Washington conference resolution under which they are being conducted, to the extent of considering the tariff autonomy question when it was raised by the Chinese.

The state department has made public its lengthy reports on the first plenary session of the conference last Monday, when the autonomy proposal came up, but since that time) committee No. 1, to which this subject was referred, has held one meeting and will convene again Tuesday, making it clear that nothing of a nature to indicate a breaking off of the discussion developed. There are intimations from unofficial quarters, however, that the Chinese suggestion that autonomy be restored by 1929 found no support among the other delegates.

Feeling that considerable time must elapse before a central authority can be built up in China sufficiently strong to justify surrender by the powers of their existing treaty rights as to tariffs was expressed by Chairman Hioki of the Japanese delegation in his opening statement a week ago. He insisted that China herself did not contemplate any immediate action to that end, and submitted proposals for ad interim tariff agreements which went to committee No. 2 on "progressional measures to be taken during the interim period," pending restoration of full autonomy.

Expressing the readiness of his group to discuss the matter "in the friendliest way," the Japanese spokesman told the Chinese delegates that "inauguration of a regime of tariff autonomy in China implies the existence of an adequately strong and unified government and presupposes a complete removal of all restrictions which might impede the intercourse of trade between China and the other powers." He added that the growth of nationalism so manifestly asserting itself" in China was an indication that the Chinese people would succeed "in accomplishing reforms toward these ends, as much desirable for their own welfare as for the common good of all nations."

The British chairman's declaration of readiness to discuss autonomy "at this conference or, if that cannot be arranged, at a later date, also was coupled with the stipulation that establishment of a union independent, orderly and prosperous in China" was essential and lay in the hands of the Chinese themselves.

His attitude foreshadowed rejection of any suggestion that autonomy could be granted within three years, short of unimaginable strides toward a new era of centralized power in that country.

Elie Minister MacMurray, voicing the American desire that nothing should be allowed to prevent constructive action by the conference for the mutual benefit, was guarded. He limited himself to expressing willingness to consider any "reasonable plan" China might present with a view to realizing Chinese hopes and aspirations in regard to the tariff.

In view of these declarations, it appears unlikely that committee No. 1 has yet got beyond general expressions of opinion as to the time required to establish a sufficiently strong Chinese central government. Officials here, nevertheless, are encouraged by the progress of the Peking conference and the lack of any sign of a possible break.

Meanwhile, the three-cornered contest among the leading Chinese militarists may undermine the whole conference structure if reports in Peking that Feng Yu-Hsiang had turned against Chang Tso-Lin should be confirmed. Such a development would wrest the provisional government control from Chang's hands in the opinion of observers here, and cause delay of the customs conference until the civil war decided the issue as to which chieftain, Geng or Chang's old enemy, Wu Pei-Fu, was to dominate the next civil regime in Peking.

REVISION OF REVENUE LAW WILL BEGIN TODAY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1. (AP)—After two weeks of consultation with representatives of taxpayers and prominent economists the house ways and means committee will start work this week on actual revision of the revenue law.

The public hearings will be continued tomorrow and Tuesday and on Wednesday the committee will go into executive session to apportion the reductions and eliminations which are to take off the federal tax burden.

Income tax payers will receive the major share of the relief, Secretary Mellon already having proposed a reduction of $140,000,000 in these levies. Most of the remainder of the available surplus for reduction will apply to special taxes on various forms of business and to the inheritance tax.

No preliminary bill has been prepared and leaders of both parties on the committee have declared they want to see a measure worked out in committee on a non-partisan basis.

The committee has asked Lincoln C. Andrews, assistant secretary of the treasury, to appear tomorrow for testimony on the alcohol tax. Retail druggists and proprietary dealers have urged a cut in this rate, declaring the present tax provides extra profits for bootleggers but hampers legitimate business, while the United Drug manufacturers adiation has opposed any change, conting a reduction would increase the production of harmful concotions to be sold as medicine.

STONE IN THE ROAD CAUSE OF POLICEMAN'S DEATH

LACONIA, N. H., Nov. 1—(A. P.)—Charged with placing rocks in the road, with the resultant death of a motorcyclist, Everett J. Clow, 19, and Harold Johnson, 20, were under arrest here today. Nelson Chick, a former policeman, died this morning of injuries received when his motorcycle crashed into one of the stones last night.

Must Use Substitutes For Anthracite Coal

Statement Issued by Governor Trumbull — Keeping Watch For Profiteering by Fuel Dealers.

HARTFORD, Nov. 1.—(AP) — A shortage of anthracite coal in Connecticut at the approach of winter caused Governor Trumbull to issue a statement saying that it will necessary for many people of the state to resort to the use of substitutes.

Steps have been taken by the formation of a committee representing the larger coal merchants of the state to supply fuel to any section of the state which may become seriously affected by a shortage of fuel. The governor intimated in giving out the statement, that a sharp watch for profiteering by fuel dealers will be kept, and if necessary, the names of merchants found to be charging excessively for fuel will be published by the state.

Notwithstanding the anthracite shortage due to the suspension of mining operations, September 1, "there need be no suffering for lack of fuel in Connecticut this winter if the public will co-operate and use the available substitutes recommended," says the governor's statement, which is predicated on a report to him by an executive committee representing the coal merchants of th state, the Manufacturers' association of Connecticut and the Connecticut chamber of commerce.

Approximately 80 per cent of the normal year's supply of anthracite coal is in the state, which means that the 20 per cent shortage from the normal demand for this kind of fuel will have to be made up. Low volatile, semi-bituminous coal is recommended primarily and the governor has been assured that an ample supply of such fuel is available. It runs from $5 to $6 a ton cheaper than anthracite, gives more heat and by the exclusive use of it families may save about $45 a year each, it is estimated.

So impressed with the efficiency of this substitute is W. W. Gose, of Waterbury, the governor's official representative in the New England governors' joint conference on coal, that he is using low volatile, semi-bituminous coal exclusively in his home. The estimate is that the people of Connecticut could save $25,000,000 a year by the use of this kind of fuel instead of anthracite.

INSIDE HISTORY OF THE WORLD WAR IN PRINT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(AP) — Another posthumous contribution to the history of the world war, revealing colorful details of Colonel's House's mysterious trip to Europe in 1916, is contained in a newly published volume of "The Life and Letters of Walter H. Page," war-time ambassador to London.

The book, compiled by Burton J. Hendrick and published under copyright by Doubleday, Page and company, discloses that Page objected strenuously to House's proposal that the United States should suggest a peace conference on condition that if Germany refused the proposal, the United States would go into the war on the side of the allies. Page thought there was ample moral grounds for an American declaration of war against Germany, but that to go to war on the basis of the House proposal would amount to trickery.

The message brought to London by House, as the emissary of President Wilson, more than a year before the United States actually did go to war, was quoted by Page in one of his memoranda as follows:

"The United States would like Great Britain to do whatever would help the United States to aid the allies."

That was in January, 1916. Five weeks later, after visiting the French, Belgian and German capitals, the Colonel returned to London with his plan for an American peace conference proposal, with a virtual ultimatum to Germany attached.

BOTH PARTIES IN NEW YORK CONFIDENT OF VICTORY

NEW YORK, Nov. 1—(A. P.)—Their active campaigning at an end, republican and democratic candidates for the post of chief executive of America's largest city rested tonight, content with making public brief statements expressing confidence that popular support would be theirs at the polls on Tuesday.

For both the tired campaigners there will be a brief epilogue tomorrow night in the form of radio addresses from local stations. Frank D. Waterman republ. an standard bearer, will speak at 5 p. m. from station WMCA, and his democratic opponent, Senator James J. Walker, from station WGCP at 8 p. m.

Despite "prediction statements" issued last night by the campaign managers of the respective candidates claiming substantial support for each, the question of pluralities continued a live one tonight. One of the democratic leaders predicted a plurality for Walker of 325,000 and this many of the Walker followers were inclined to accept as being the most nearly correct of the many estimates.

On the other hand, the republican leaders, placing their confidence in reported eleven-hour sighs of vote shifting, held to their estimate of 100,000 plurality for Waterman, made yesterday.

VERTICAL DESCENT FROM ALTITUDE OF 100 FEET

FARNBOROUGH, England, Nov. 1—(A. P.)—Pilot Haig, who was in charge of the De La Cierva helicopter, which fell during a trial yesterday, explains that he was making an unprecedented test, a completely vertical descent in still air from an altitude of more than one hundred feet.

The machine descended perfectly from 150 feet, but on touching the ground two struts in the body broke; no other damage was done, and the inventor declared he was highly satisfied with the result of the test.

NEW YORK CITY TO HAVE BABY CARRIAGE GARAGE

NEW YORK, Nov. 1—(A. P.)—A baby carriage garage has ben completed by families who live in two tenement houses on West 27th street. The "garage" will be operated as a community affair, each of the families in the two tenement houses paying five cents a week for the privilege. Twelve families who live in the two tenement houses, have from eight to twelve children each.

ITALY HAS THE CAPACITY TO PAY WAR DEBT TO THE U. S.

Declaration Made by Count Guiseppe Di Musurata, Finance Minister, Who Arrived in New York Yesterday With Five Members of the Italian Debt Mission—Asserts That the Object of the Mission Will Be Attained With Satisfaction to Both Parties

NEW YORK, Nov. 1—Another important phase in the efforts of the United States to fund its war credits opened today with the arrival here of Count Guiseppe Volpi di Musurata, Italian finance minister, and five members of the Italian debt mission on the liner Duilio.

While a crowd of 2,000 anti-Fascisti waited near the pier, the envoys were landed secretly at the battery and escorted by a force of 72 secret service men, mounted police and members of the special bomb squad, were rushed to the Pennsylvania station where they entrained at once for Washington.

In a brief statement Count Volpi expressed confidence that the object of the mission would be attained with satisfaction to both parties. Italy has the capacity to pay, he said.

A delegation from the state department, headed by Ambassador Henry P. Fletcher, who is here from Rome on vacation, met the visitors at Quarantine. All unofficial guests, including newspaper men regularly assigned to report ship arrivals were barred from the boat when it started on the 8-mile trip down the bay.

Joseph A. Palma, local head of the federal secret service, was in charge of the guard at the battery. It was the first occasion since war times that Palma had been assigned to protect visiting diplomats.

The iron outer gates of the U. S. barge office were locked and all visitors were kept out by armed coast guardsmen. Even Palma was refused admission until after the envoys arrived, despite the fact that W. J. Flynn, chief of the secret service at Washington, was aboard the cutter.

The five other members of the commission are Dino Grandi, undersecretary of state for foreign affairs; Count Lello Bonnin Langare, senator of the realm and former ambassador to France; Drs. Alberto Pirelli and Mario Alberti, honorary ministers plenipotentiary, and Commendatore Dino Buti.

Giacomo de Martino, Italian ambassador to the United States is also a member of the commission.

Count Volpi is not only minister of finance and president of the debt commission but also is minister of state and senator of the realm of Italy. Before he was 30 years old he was a director of numerous important industrial and banking firms in Italy. His diplomatic and political career began long before he was appointed minister plenipotentiary for the peace negotiations between Italy and Turkey in 1912. In 1913, Count Volpi was vice-president of the Balkan finance conference, interrupted in 1914 by the outbreak of the European war. In 1919 he was a member of the economic council in Paris and delegate of the peace conference. Two years later he took over the government of the Italian colony of Tripolitania where he remained until June of the present year. On his departure he was nominated governor Tripolitania for life.

He was appointed minister of finance on July 15, last.

Through an interpreter Count Volpi said the delegation had placed no limit on its stay "but will remain as long as the discussion of the debt settlement requires."

He declined to discuss the negotiations in advance of the meetings with members of the American war debt funding commission.

"Italy requires this important discussion in a spirit full of loyalty and sincere determination," the count declared. "The fact that capacity to pay is the acknowledged basis of the negotiations, represents undoubtedly a good promise for a successful conclusion."

ITALY'S FUTURE AT STAKE IN THE NEGOTIATIONS

ROME, Nov. 1—Italy's economic and financial future is at stake in the negotiations beginning at Washington tomorrow for the settlement of Italy's war debt to the United States. The success of the Fascist government program for the restoration of national economic and financial strength and stability depends in great measure upon the ability of Count Volpi, head of the Italian delegation, to carry out his plan successfully.

This is the consensus of opinion in the Italian press, both for and against the government, on the eve of the initial meeting of the Italian and American negotiators. The newspapers agree that a satisfactory settlement of the American debt question would be the forerunner of a similar result in the later negotiations with England.

CONFERENCE ON ITALY'S DEBT TO OPEN TODAY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(AP)—The Italian government's debt funding commission arrived in Washington late today, prepared to re-open tomorrow the conference on a settlement of that nation's obligations to the United States, which have been in abeyance several months.

No ceremony attended the arrival of the mission, headed by Count Volpi, the finance minister, and few functions are planned for tomorrow in advance of its first scheduled joint session with the American debt commission, except formal visits to the state department, the treasury, and probably the white house.

The finance minister's intention is to start talking business as quickly as possible. The first meeting has been set for 4 o'clock and it is probable that the two commissions at that time will attempt to map out a course of procedure for the further conferences. In this connection it was suggested today that a committee would be named by each commission and that the real negotiations would take place between the two small groups.

UNIDENTIFIED MAN FOUND DEAD ON R. R. IN HARTFORD

HARTFORD, Nov. 1—An unidentified man, thought to be a Russian, was found dead on the railroad tracks just north of the Park street bridge about 7 o'clock this morning by Policeman Francis Hyland. Assistant Medical Examiner Howe said the man died as a result of injuries sustained when he was struck by a train, probably four or five hours before he had been found. Permission was given for the removal of the body to the undertaking rooms of Smith & Son, 78 Asylum avenue.

When found, the man wore an ulster of green mixture, a brown suit with a black stripe, white shirt with a black bow tie, and black low shoes and socks. It is believed that he was 35 or 40 years old.

SEARCHING FOR MISSING SPORTSMAN AND PUBLISHER

ROUND LAKE, N. Y., Nov. 1—The search for John M. Francis, Troy Times publisher and sportsman went on unabated today while a crowd of 5,000 motorists attracted to the scene by the mystery of the disappearance a week ago, watched from the casino a mile away.

Following superstition, thirty loaves of bread and mercury were cast upon the waters today in the hope that at leastone of the loaves with its alleged lodestone would come to rest above the spot where the body is believed to be resting on the bottom of the lake.

FANCY FOOTWEAR IS CAUSING "ANKLE AGONY"

LONDON, Nov. 1—(A. P.)—"Ankle agony," a new complaint among women, is said to be due to a combination of the damp weather, fancy footwear, spiderweb stockings and short skirts. Physicians have recommended thick-soled shoes, woolen hosiery and longer skirts as the best remedy.

In these fall days of abbreviated dresses, when feet are brought prominently into view, many young women have discovered that their ankles were swollen or enlarged, and wondered why. Unless attended to, the ankles became inflamed and caused much pain.

SENSATIONAL RECORD FOR SOFT COAL PRODUCTION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—A new sensational record for soft coal production was established during the week ending October 24, government observers announced tonight, and the output during the first two days ending Oct. 31 was running at an uneven higher rate.

The total for the seven days ending Oct. 24 was 12,104,000 tons, and the indicated production for the week of Oct. 31 was nearly 13,000,000 tons.

Anthracite production, due to the cessation of work by the miners, was placed at only 12,000 tons.

EXPLORER MACMILLAN CARRIED THE YALE FLAG

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 1—Donald B. McMillan, noted arctic explorer, in an interview granted to a representative of the Yale Daily News, states that he has carried the Yale flag 5,000 miles on his expeditions to the far north.

Discussing his recent trip, he says that he discovered the only sure proof known of the occupation of the Norsemen on the continent of North America before the voyage of Columbus. His proof, he says, is the discovery of the remains of a big Norse settlement, he intends to return and investigate this spot, he says.

"I am certain," he said, "that this old ruin, is the bona fide remains of that bold people. There are many facts and traditions which tend to conform the theory of early Norse settlement.

"The old tower in Newport which was supposed to be an ancient Norse ruin was in reality erected by an English governor. The relics which were found in Minnesota and claimed to have been evidence of ancient settlements are, moreover, a modern forgery."

SHEIK WAS DRESSED IN MOVING PICTURE OUTFIT

LONDON, Nov. 1—(A. P.)—Sheiks are now wearing American horn-rimmed spectacles. Some of them ride in itinerant motors and some are arrayed in Oxford "bags" and many-toned English socks.

This is the sad story of American influence in Tunis, which Cecil Roberts, the novelist, brings back from a trip to Africa in search of romance. It was a bitter disappointment to Mr. Roberts, who went to Tunis in search of material for a new novel, and found that the only sheik who was dressed as a sheik should be, had been equipped by an American moving-picture outfit.

$75,000 FIRE DAMAGE IN PRINT SHOP IN PHILA.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 1—(A. P.)—Fire, originating in the print shop of the Holy Ghost Apostolic college at Cornwells, near here, early today caused damage estimated at $75,000. The print shop and a dormitory, in which five priests, six brothers and 14 students were sleeping, were destroyed. All the occupants escaped without injury. In the High school were 196 students, who aided the firemen in extinguishing the flames.

THREE YOUNG MEN KILLED IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Nov. 1—(A. P.)—When a large touring car crashed through a guard rail on the Susquehanna river bridge at Carey avenue, this city, and struck a passing street car today three young were killed and four today three men were killed and Anthony Balgis and William Bakus of Plymouth, and John Narkun, Anthracite. Anthony Narkun, Plymouth, is in a hospital in a serious condition.

WILLIMANTIC

While he was being sought by Officer Arthur Hurley who had received a complaint that the man was driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor, Louis G. Bourassa of 59 Ives street, this city, drove himself into the custody of the law about one o'clock Saturday morning, when he banged his Ford car into a telephone pole on Broad street. Lieutenant of Police Frank McLean had seen the zig-zagging Ford come down Union street and turn into Broad street and was hastening in that direction when he heard the crash. Bourassa denied that he was drunk; and when the charge was read to him by Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Frank P. Fenton in police court, Saturday morning, he pleaded not guilty and the court recessed for half an hour while he sought a witness. Finally an elderly man, also an Ives street resident, appeared for the defendant, but the court did not accept his testimony in full. Judge Foss then found the accused guilty and imposed a fine of $100 and costs, amounting to $108.15 which was paid.

The case of Israel Glasser of 29 Garland street, Chelsea, Mass., charged with reckless driving, he the result of a collision of his automobile with a team and the injuring of the driver, Sedomion Chuss, of 468 Ash street, August 18, was nolled, on the grounds that the matter was one for civil action. Glasser's attorney explained the case and Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Frank P. Fenton made a recommendation for a nolle which was accepted by Judge Frank H. Foss, August 28, a Studebaker car driven by Glasser struck the right rear wheel of the Chuss team, on West Main street. The wagon was damaged and Chuss was thrown to the ground and slightly injured. Patrolman F. Rudolph Laramee investigated the accident and the parties involved informed him that they had agreed to settle, so no arrests were made at that time. Later, Chuss stated that Glasser had failed to report to Willimantic and make the agreed settlement. The 2nd hand man said in the accident his skull was injured and lleamenta in one leg were torn and he could not work for five weeks. Prosecuting Attorney Harry S. Gaucher then made out a warrant for Glasser. The latter testified that he notified his insurance company, has received an acknowledgment of his letter and believed that the matter had been attended to by the company.

Through a misunderstanding arising as to the location of a chimney fire, which was reported by telephone Saturday morning, about eight o'clock, the chemical wagon of Engine Company No. 1 made a run to the corner of Jackson and Union streets without being able to locate the fire. Fifteen minutes or so later a second appeal for the fire apparatus came from Eugene E. Hickey, giving the information that the chimney of the building at 162 Jackson street, containing tenements and a confectionery store conducted by the United Textile Workers of America, was ablaze. When the firemen arrived several of the shingles had caught afire. Twelve gallons of chemicals were used. The building is owned by Mrs. L. M. Cline.

SUPT. B. C. BLISS RESIGNS—BUTTER-MAKER 19 YEARS

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Nov. 1.—B. C. Bliss, for 19 years, superintendent and butter-maker, at the plant of the Jewett City Creamery Co., East Main street, tendered his resignation Saturday. The resignation was accepted by W. C. Terry the president, and his associate board of directors. Stanley Winroth, will be the new supervising official, with Ernest Bachand butter-maker. Both will take over the actual operations of the plant this Monday morning. The retiring butter maker has a record which few can equal. When a young man he served his apprenticeship as a butter maker, and for close to 50 years in New York state, Vermont, western Massachusetts and Connecticut, he has steadily followed the trade. The success he gained, and the achievements he has been able to accomplish, during his long years of service as a standard creamery man, are chronicled in many publications of the journals of the trade.

He possessed to a marked degree the finer points of test and temper, as necessary to the attaining of excellence in butter manufacture. Under his management the local plant is second to no other in the state. His exhibit at the state fair, in Meriden, a few years ago, won the first prize, for A 1 fine creamery butter, over two dozen competitors.

Ernest Bachand takes over the butter-making, with the fine equipment of nearly two years of instruction and actual operating tutelage, under the eye of Mr. Bliss.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

November arrived here Sunday morning on schedule time. There isn't anything unusual about that. November has a habit of getting in on time. But there's another angle to the arrival this year. Some time since, back in September, if memory serves, the Cloud Digger, who is a weather prophet, said, in effect, "Watch out for November!" He allowed it promised through the signs that generations of ancient mariners have sworn by to be about the coldest November that anyone now living could remember.

It is not always that all people are completely impressed by the Cloud Digger's long range weather forecasts, shooting six months of predictions in advance. But they had better watch out this time.

According to certain thermometers in Danielson that are not in league with the Cloud Digger 10 make good his forecasts, it was just 12 degrees above zero in this borough at 7:30 Sunday morning. If that isn't rubbing it in for so early in the season, this community is willing to sit back and await returns from Greeneville Junction, Me., or Medicine Hat, where a thermometer that does not register at least 22 below zero on a hot summer afternoon is immediately thrown into the ash can, if they use ash cans up in that country, where there is one house to each 2,000,000 acres of land.

The Cloud Digger has scored a touchdown this fall, as to his predictions about November. He looks pretty good on the advance edge of the cold weather season. It would not be at all proper to try to discredit his whole six months of prophecy by growling that "he guessed right once." It is possible that he has hit the whole season right. In any event, there's a clipping for reference at hand, and the public will hear more about the long weather prophecy as the season rolls on, and death by freezing does not stop further communication on the subject to The Bulletin.

Saturday morning from his home in the Maxhenny district the funeral of Moses Choquette was held, with services at St. James' church at 10:30 o'clock. Rev. Joseph Deschaux, M. S., Rev. James McCarthy, M. S., and Rev. F. X. Richards, M. S., were officers of the solemn mass of requiem. There were many relatives and friends at the funeral service. Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery. The bearers were John M. Bessette, Salem Choquette, Joseph N. Lavallee, Arthur Viens, Cleophas, Beavale, Henry Allerie. The committal service was conducted by Rev. Fr. Deschaux, Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Saturday morning the funeral of Mrs. Hermaine Thomas was held from her home on the west side with funeral service at St. James' church at 8:45. The officers of the solemn mass of requiem were Rev. F. X. Richards, M. S., celebrant, Rev. James McCarthy, M. S., deacon, and Rev. Joseph Deschaux, M. S., sub-deacon. A delegation of members of the St. Anne society, of which Mrs. Thomas was a member, attended the service in a body. Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery, where the committal service was by Rev. Fr. McCarthy. Louis E. Kennedy was the funeral director.

At Moosup Saturday morning, the funeral of Ludger Levesque was held from his home with services at All Hallows church at 9 o'clock. The officers of the solemn mass of requiem were Rev. Joseph E. McCarthy, the pastor, Rev. Oscar Normand and Rev. J. C. Mathieu, of Wauregan. Burial was in All Hallows' cemetery. The bearers were Joseph Robitaille, Alexander Beauvin, M. C. Dore, John Brousseau, Maxim Gelinas and Treffle Brunette. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

The usual jam of traffic at the junction of Water and Franklin streets after the 9:45 mass at St. James' church was efficiently handled Sunday morning by Chief McFarland. The location at the time mentioned on Sunday mornings has been a danger spot for weeks, so many cars get away from there at the same time and mix with heavy traffic on two trunk line highways, this traffic centering at this point.

William S. Brown, of the Shepard Hill farm near Wauregan, was elated at the week end because of a tuberculin test, such as given repeatedly at this farm, showed the entire herd of 51 head clean and free of disease. Mr. Brown has a world's record cow, as to milk production at this farm, and details are now being prepared for publication.

The traffic guide that was set in the intersection of Reynolds and Broad streets the past week, to reduce the possibility of accidents at this point, where there is heavy traffic, has been removed. It was not satisfactory in type. Likely it will be replaced by another.

In observance of the feast of All Souls, there will be several special masses at St. James' church this (Monday) morning that will be attended by many hundreds of parishioners. On Sunday the feast of All Saints was observed at the church and the sermons of the day were in keeping with the spirit of the feast.

Young people—and some not so young—had a glorious celebration of Hallowe'en. They observed every tradition of this particular event and had a great time in carrying out their rather weird programs, though there were plenty of laughs mingled with the gloom.

After a downward plunge to 12 above zero, the mercury rush up to 62 degrees Sunday afternoon, for one of the most beautiful days of the autumn season.

A deposit in the commercial department of the Windham County National bank, Danielson, is an excellent means of paying one's bills and obtaining the best form of receipt. —Adv.

Brown adherents who saw the Brown-Dartmouth football game at Providence Saturday afternoon were prideful of the excellent do-or-die defence of the great Brown team against the practically perfect and highly efficient Dartmouth eleven. Brown lost, but Brown made good with a vengeance!

I. W. DAVIS TEMP. RECEIVER FOR PHOENIX BLDG. CO.

DANIELSON, Nov. 1.—Irving W. Davis, through action in the superior court, has been appointed temporary receiver of the Phoenix Building company. The property held by this company includes the Phoenix block, one of the largest and most centrally located business buildings in Danielson, and Phoenix Hall, another two story brick building in Center street, occupied for business purposes on the lower floor, while the upper floor is known as the Majestic theatre, now under lease to the S-A Amusement company, operating the Orpheum theatre here, the Bradley theatre at Putnam and other theatres in Connecticut.

The petition for the temporary receivership was brought about by Attorney Arthur G. Ell and Mrs. John A. Paine, as minority stockholders. It is altered as ground for the receivership that the property has been inefficiently managed and that there have been violations of the charter of the company. What these alleged violations are have not been made known for publication.

Friday, November 20, has been set as the date for a hearing in the superior court of Windham county, on the matter of confirming Mr. Davis, a son-in-law of Mrs. Paine, as permanent receiver of the company.

Heirs of E. W. Scott are the majority stockholders in the Phoenix building company. The buildings referred to probably have a sale value today of between $75,000 and $100,000 and are among the most valuable in Danielson.

ANNUAL SERVICE HELD AT OLD TRINITY, BROOKLYN

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 1.—Gathered in the ancient and modest structure that antedates all places of worship in eastern Connecticut, many observed All Saints day Sunday at Old Trinity church, Church street, Brooklyn. The service was conducted by Rev. Leonard Richards, rector of St. Alban's church, Danielson.

"As the choir sang or the preacher dwelt upon the significance of the day brilliant sunshine streamed down through leafless trees that in summer cast their restful shade on the last resting places of those who built this temple of worship to God. For Old Trinity rises within a churchyard and in that church yard one may spend hours of contemplation and consider life and what it means.

Graduates of English universities who were early pastors of the parish rest beneath the brownstone tablets now in many instances, moss-grown and of such age that even the inscriptions cut deep into the stones are partly obliterated by the passing years.

"In Nomine Sanctissimae Trinitatis" Trinity church, Brooklyn, Formerly Mortlake district, Town of Pomfret, Connecticut colony, built in 1773," is written in the bronze of a tablet affixed to the well preserved exterior of the oldest Episcopal church in Connecticut where a regular service is now held but once each year—on All Saints' day.

"Here in this manor of Kingswood" continues the text of a tablet by Colonel Godfrey Malbone 1724-1786, of Queen's college, Oxford, a son of Colonel Godfrey Malbone, senior warden of Trinity church, Newport, R. I., originally from Princess Anne county, Virginia, who was the father of Mrs. Shrimpton Hutchinson of King's Chapel, Boston, the grandfather of Mrs. Daniel Putnam, son of an ancestor of many later members of this parish, this church was modelled and founded after both Trinity church, Newport, and King's chapel, Boston."

The roll of rectors lists: Rev. Daniel Fogg, A. M. (Harvard), first rector, whose letters give only record of election of Bishop Seabury, 1772-1815; Joseph Russell, faithful lay reader who kept the church open, 1815-1818; Rev. George S. White, 1818-1820; Rev. Samuel B. Hull, 1823-1825; Rev. Asbel Steel, 1825-1826; Rev. Thomas R. Peck, 1827-1828; Rev. Ezra B. Kellogg 1828-1835; Rev. Josiah M. Bartlett, 1835-1837; Rev. Riverius Camp, S. T. D. (Trinity) 1837-1873, a rectorship of 37 years; Rev. Samuel Fermor Jarvis, D. D. (Trinity), 1874-1909; Rev. Isaac Peck 1910-1911; Rev. Frederick Sanford, 1911-1913; Rev. Alvin P. Knell, 1913—. Later rectors of St. Albans church in Danielson have since served as rectors of Old Trinity.

Old Trinity church is kept in good repair. About it there is the spell of poetry and spirituality. One might be impressed in passing through the gate fronting the church and churchyard that here was a setting that might have inspired such an elegy as Gray's —is a Country Churchyard. All Saints' day has long since been the day when worshippers gather there. It seems a fitting time at such a fitting place.

The committee in charge of the masquerade with Mr. and Mrs. Merrill were Lucy Carpenter, Margery Benoit, Billy Jones and Arthur Doss.

NAGGING, INTERFERENCE, ALLEGED BY NURSE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 1.—Miss Cecelia Lessard, public health nurse under the supervision of the Putnam Red Cross, has tendered her resignation. She has made the following public statement:

"You have asked me about my resignation. I am very glad to give you the facts just as they are.

"At a recent meeting of the Red Cross it was suggested by certain people of importance that I should resign. Those people seem to think that the nursing service is a failure. If such is the case, who is to blame? Not the nurse.

"Five years ago, March 5, 1920, I came to Putnam a total stranger to this community. I did not find the cooperation that I expected. I had to fight my own battles alone, unaided and often almost discouraged by the unsound, unbalanced and stupid program which I had to carry out.

"There was far too much meddlesome suggestion by too many people who were unfitted to supervise. Why should a large association like the Red Cross be dictated to by one or two people?

"I am not intolerant of criticism if it is done intelligently. I would rather be criticised than ignored. I have a very uncertain social position in this town, if any at all. I have not the time to seek the companionship of people who do not understand or have knowledge of affairs which occupy most of my mind. But aside from the loneliness, which is often acute and sufficient to dampen my ardor for my work, there have been conditions which were very unpleasant and intolerable.

"There has been questions about the use of my car; my poor little Ford! Is the nurse using it for her own pleasure? Is she burning the association's gasoline on joy rides? All of the mothers and babies' lives saved by my follow-up work is not mentioned, but I am being criticised for the number of calls I make each day and the gallons of gas it requires for my automobile.

"Is it any wonder I became indifferent? My enthusiasm and ambition were smothered by the general disregard and unconcern for those things which I regard as very important for the community.

"Let the Red Cross and the public assume a different attitude toward the nurse and the people of the community will come together with mutual sympathy and purpose and mutual understanding and then will be done worth while public health work.

"Very truly yours,

CECELIA LESSARD"

Miss Lessard was graduated from St. Joseph's hospital in 1918 and took a post-graduate course in the Victorian Order of Nurses in Montreal in 1920-21 an order of nurses founded by Queen Victoria, the year of her Golden Jubilee for the care of poor people in their homes. This course included lectures at McGill University, social service, industrial nursing, prenatal maternity and infant welfare. Miss Lessard has been public health nurse in Putnam for the past five years.

WESTERLY

Filed for record in the office of the Westerly town clerk are the following real estate transfers: Oct. 30, John Aldrich to Joseph Ruisi and wife, Libonia, a certain lot or parcel of land with dwelling house and improvements on the east side of Newton avenue, formerly known as Rock street, and between Park avenue and Granite street.

New England Granite Works to Richard J. Butler a certain tract or parcel of land with buildings and improvements on the south side of the Bradford road; another lot or parcel of land on the south side of Oak street; another lot or parcel of land on the east side of Tower street; another lot or parcel of land with buildings and improvements on the north side of Leeward avenue and bounded northwesterly by Tower street, it being the intent to convey all the lands and buildings of the New England Granite works.

The snow which fell in the first snow storm of the winter in Westerly Friday disappeared where the sun's rays fell on it Saturday morning. Sunday there were many sheltered places where patches of snow still appeared.

Hallowe'en, the younger generation appeared on the streets in various kinds of grotesque costume and masked. Types ranged from two boys who appeared in burlap to resemble an elephant, or horse, with the caudal appendage most active, to young man dressed in short skirts as a girl and smoking cigarettes. Automobiles passed in which young and old occupants could be easily attired as policemen, firemen, and clowns.

The quarters on High street, occupied by Westerly chapter of the American Red Cross and the Westerly District Nursing association, known as the old Dr. J. H. Ward Morgan house and part of the property of Wilcox park until sold to its present owner, David Novogrod, are reported as to be vacated in a short time when rooms in the Newton House Flats will be occupied. Alterations are being made and modern conveniences are in process of being installed there.

Improvements to the foundations of the Briggs building, constructed in 1882, at the corner of the Pawcatuck river bridge and Main street, have been under way for several weeks and when completed will lend stability to this business block which has shown a tendency to bulge and sag for several years. The exterior of the iron clated building of which Max Novogrosdki of Westerly is one of the owners, has recently received a fresh coat of paint.

In carrying out the improvements several freight car loads of heavy railroad ties have been placed under the center of the building in shallow water at low tide to form a crib work and then the center of the structure has been raised with heavy jacks and some of the heavy pine timber beams cut off and removed. Friday morning at 10 o'clock, the work began of pouring a re-inforced cement girder, for which a form was built on top of the crib work extending parallel to Main street from the bridge to the south end of the block, was carried on uninterruptedly until 10 o'clock at night when the top surface was smoothed off as the cement dried. It was estimated in this cement girder, which is reported as being able to support a steam train, 25 cubic yards of cement were used, and before the beam hardened bolts were set to it on which cross steel girders will be fastened with the Main street end anchored in the foundation wall which has recently been footed and reinforced with a cement base. A second cement girder is to be placed in position, both being firmly anchored to the iron posts in the river bed and cross beams if iron girders with bear the weight of the floor joists and the building.

In one hard pine joice under the the building where water has been allowed to run, the wooden joise had so rotted away that almost a six inch saw had to be taken out to bring the section into true. Engaged in the work are the contractors who are putting in the new bridge at Wickford for the Rhode Island State Board of Public Roads, and on which they used stone taken from the foundation wall of the old Main street bridge in Pawcatuck.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Gourley McLaren have returned to Westerly from a visit to New York where they observed the anniversary of their wedding at the Hotel Pennsylvania.

Dr. Michael H. Scanlon and son Jack have returned, having attended the Illinois-University of Pennsylvania football game at Philadelphia Saturday.

A Hallowe'en social is to be held this (Monday) evening in the vestry of the Pawcatuck Congregational church for the Sunday school. Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock a Hallowe'en party was held for the Primary class and Cradle Roll. Mrs. Herbert Hoadley in charge. Friday evening at 7:00 o'clock Mrs. James MacFarland surprised a Hallowe'en party for the junior children of the Sunday school.

Miss Lou E. Bacon, deaconess of the Fall River, Mass., Girls' Industrial House, is to be in Westerly at Grace Methodist Episcopal church for a two weeks' series of service. She will be present the coming week on Monday at the "Faith Supper" of the Sunday School board; on Tuesday evening the women of the church are to meet her in the afternoon at the parsonage and be present at an evening service, at which she will speak.

Many Westerly and Pawcatuck relatives and friends attended the wedding, when Miss Thelma Chase Pierce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin A. Pierce, of this city, and Howard Watterman Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Taylor of Westerly, were married at the home of the bride's parents on Linwood avenue Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock by Rev. G. Edgar Tobin, rector of Christ Episcopal church. The ceremony was performed in the living room under an arch of autumn leaves. The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her gown was cut velvet and georgette. She wore a veil of point lace and carried a shower bouquet of bride roses and lilies of the valley. She was attended by Miss Hazel Barrett, as maid-of-honor. The latter wore peach georgette and carried sweetheart roses and violets. The flower and ribbon girls were Miss Bessie Irene Taylor, sister of the bridegroom and Miss Madeline Murray. The ring bearers were Miss Barbara Wells and Miss Virginia Brunnckow. Anthony Ruisi of Westerly was best man and the ushers were Frederick Morri and Alcott G. Mills. The bride's mother wore a gown of rose orchid cut velvet and georgette, and the bride-groom's mother wore a gown of wood flint cut velvet and georgette. After a trip to Canada, Mr. and Mrs. Taylor will be at home at 208 Linwood avnue. Mr. Taylor was a graduate of Westerly High school, class of 1918, entered the Rhode Island School of Design, in Providence, and is now engaged as a draughtsman in Providence.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Maxson, who have made their home in Hope Valley and Wakefield, have returned to Pawcatuck to take up their residence at 266 West Broad street.

George E. Phillips of Providence and Pleasant View Beach was the host Saturday evening to a Hallowe'en party at his summer cottage, next to the Wigwam Hotel. There were sixteen guests.

Mrs. Kate Parker Scott, and sons of Westerly, were automobile visitors in Manchester Sunday and attended the dedication exercises of the recently built New South Methodist Episcopal church of which Rev. Joseph Cooper is the pastor. Rev. Mr. Cooper was an assistant here when Rev. Mr. Dockine was the pastor of Grace Methodist church.

The Prince and Princess, Edward Joseph Lobkowicz and his wife, formerly Miss Anita Lilmot of Watch Hill, were in Westerly over the week end on an automobile trip from Greenwich Conn., where they are occupying the home of Mrs. Thomas B. Felder. They came to visit the summer home of the bride's parents, "Norman Hall," at Watch Hill.

CHARLES HILL INJURED—TAKEN TO NORWICH HOSP.

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Nov. 1—Charles Hill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert D. Hill of the West Side, was taken to the Backus hospital in Norwich Saturday night for treatment for an injury to his eye. Young Hill and three companions were bound for Norwich in an automobile Saturday evening and for some reason the machine was stopped. When Hill was getting out of the car his foot or ght on the running board and he was thrown to the ground. His eye came in contact with a stone in the road and he was rendered unconscious for nearly two hours. The accident happened at about 9 o'clock and he was taken directly to the Norwich hospital.

It was stated today that the injury is not serious and he is expected to return home within a short time.

UNION

The annual meeting of the Benevolent association was held at the town hall Tuesday, Oct. 27. The members did sewing for a future sale, before the covered-dish dinner was served. In the afternoon the business meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. H. A. Coolidge. The following officers were re-elected: Mrs. H. A. Coolidge, president; Mrs. Mabel Horton and Mrs. Susie Kostur, vice presidents; Mrs. Mary L. Horton, secretary and treasurer. The Sunshine committee was also re-elected. The usual amount to finance the Christmas Tree was voted; Mrs. Raymond Hathaway and Mrs. Nelson Horton were appointed a purchasing committee to expend the appropriation.

The L. B. A. has done much hard work in various ways during the past year and the things accomplished are very encouraging. The outlook for the coming year is also hopeful.

The state has been trucking gravel from Mashapaug, for some days, in preparation for oiling the trunk line again. The road seems to be "all done but finishing" and is a fine piece of work.

The schools here were closed Friday, Oct. 23 for the State Teachers' convention. Miss Gladys Young of Rock Meadow school attended the convention in Norwich and returned to her home in South Woodstock for the week end. Miss Helen Millard, Miss Elizabeth Hand and Miss Mary Agard attended the convention held in Hartford.

The date for the next regular meeting of Mashapaug Lake grange is Wednesday evening, Nov. 4.

Friday, Oct. 30, the local schools were closed for visiting day.

Little Barbara Bradway returned, last Sunday, after spending a week in Brookfield, Mass., with her aunt, Mrs. Mattie Barrett.

The following were guests Sunday at Ralph Bradway's, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Pratt and son, Raymond, of Hopkinton, Mass., and Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Bradway of Staffordville.

Miss Anna Szych, of Stafford High school, spent Friday and the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Szych. Miss Julia Heck, a student at the same school, was also at her home for the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Skopek and children of Staffordville spent the week-end with Mrs. Skopek's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Konkal.

Mr. and Mrs. George Bradway had for week-end guests, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bradway of Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Goodhall's youngest child has been ill the past week with throat or lung trouble.

Charles Warnerka who was confined to the house for a few days with an attack of grip, is out at work again.

FRANKLIN

A very enjoyable Hallowe'en party was given by Miss Edna Lamb Friday evening. The costumes were novel and original, the first prize going to Miss Helen Iskowski, who was dressed as a witch. Music and games gave pleasure during the evening. Sandwiches, cake, cookies and cocoa were served.

Mrs. Fred Swift has been visiting friends in Willimantic.

Misses Elizabeth Maynie and Anna Janousack and Mrs. John Jayosack have been visiting friends in New York.

Miss Lydia Johnson has returned home after spending some time at the home of Frederick Johnson.

Clifford Robinson gashed his finger while sawing wood. He has been unable to work for two weeks.

James Kahn and Huntington Robinson attended the Older Boys' conference held at Hartford.

Mrs. Kate Johnson and Mrs. Lena Stiles have been visiting friends in New Haven.

Huntington Robinson attended the air-meet at Brainard field, Hartford.

The Ladies' Aid society met Thursday at the Community house. Mrs. Charles Davis and Mrs. Duerr were hostesses. Two quilts were tied and plans were made for the annual sale.

LEBANON

From Norwich Mrs. E. Allen Bidwell, Mrs. James Lewis Smith, Miss Carrie E. Rogers of Washington, and Miss Ella A. Fanning motored to Lebanon Saturday in Mrs. Bidwell's car and were luncheon guests of Mrs. Minnie Hunting Smith, at her home, "Redwood." FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE

Has Helped These Seven Boys and Girls to Keep Strong and Healthy

How to keep the family healthy is one of the greatest problems facing every mother. So many irritating coughs and colds threaten more serious illness that constant, watchful care is needed.

Mrs. Edward Sheridan of 41 Sault au Matliot St., Quebec City, has every reason to be proud of being able to keep her family of seven children in such robust health. She says:—"I have used Father John's Medicine for years and always have a bottle in the house. My children had Bronchitis for a long time and I used Father John's Medicine. It proved to be wonderful, so I thought my testimonial would help some other sufferer."

For seventy years mothers have used Father John's Medicine and have found that it nourishes, strengthens and builds up the body that Coughs and Colds are driven out in the natural way. It is a real food tonic containing cod liver oil and other valuable ingredients in a blend which is particularly palatable to children and easily digested by them.

As Father John's Medicine contains no alcohol or dangerous drugs it is safe for anyone.

Don't dope YOUR COUGH

It is not wise to use remedies which depend upon "dope" such as narcotics, chloroform, cannabis or tar products. They may stop your cough temporarily by numbing the tissues, as most cough mixtures do, but this is not enough.

The inflamed air passages must be soothed naturally, the germ-laden mucus loosened and expelled in order to effect a lasting recovery.

PERTUSSIN assists Nature to accomplish these results in a remarkably short time—and it is absolutely harmless.

Don't put off hearing The New Orthophonic

Victrola

PEOPLE have never heard anything like it. You have never. There has never been anything like it. There is nothing to compare with it. That is why you should hear it.

It is here. It is an entirely new instrument. New in principle, new in construction, new patents, new cabinets.

John Philip Sousa

JOHN PHILIP SOUSA, the March King, heard the new Orthophonic Victrola play a march. He was enthusiastic. "Why gentlemen," he said, "That's a band!" It was the highest tribute he could have paid.

MME. ERNESTINE SCHUMANN-HEINK said, "It is marvelous—it is grand!" Paul Whiteman, King of Jazz, said, "This instrument reproduces not only artistic music, in which it is possible clearly to distinguish every instrument, but it has made it possible for the listener to discern the individuality of each member of the orchestra.

Schumann-Heink

Fritz Kreisler

KREISLER, WERRENRATH, JOURNET, and many others of the huge family of famous Victor artists have hailed the new Orthophonic Victrola as the greatest musical instrument since the invention of the first Victor.

You will agree with them. Demonstrations all this week. Come in—you are invited.

Buyers use it---
So should sellers

WHEN the purchasing agent for a factory, or the buyer for a store, wants materials or goods to replenish his stock in a hurry, he moves quickly—and telephones.

He describes what he needs, gets prices, finds out about delivery, and gives his order—all in one toll telephone conversation.

Nowadays, many sellers aren't waiting for their customers to make known their wants. They are anticipating them.

Manufacturers, jobbers, wholesalers, are calling out-of-town customers regularly by toll telephone, finding out what is needed, mentioning special items, winning customers' good-will—and making profits on their increased sales.

That's what wise sellers are doing.

POETRY

The Deceit of Sin

(A poem inspired by reading Dean Inge's sermon on "The Great Sin of Self Satisfaction.")

One may escape the nameless sins
That fill the world with woe,
Yet prayerful searchings prove
The heart is not as white as snow.
Self-satisfaction is a sin,
Than which no sin is worse,
A creeping leprosy within,
A subtle, blighting curse!
For such an inner state, no man
Is wise enough to show
The victim of this gripping sin
How deadly it may grow!
It needs a shock or vision clear
On some Damascus way,
Which Jesus Christ alone can give,
And thus for men we pray!
A deadly danger lurks therein,
No human eye can see
Until the wonder-working Christ
Reveals, then bids it flee!

—Rev. William Wood

Ballade of a Miser

I'm very reckless with my worldly store
So much so that I'm called improvident
From early days thrift seemed to me a bore;
And trees incline, you know, as twigs are bent
But though unto the value of a cent
I'm ignorant, and lucre loosely sling,
In one indulgence I am abstinent—
I never throw away a piece of string.

I started hoarding strings at less than four,
And with them made my pockets opulent.
Strings seemed to twine around my very core—
My vade mecum they, and ligament.
Who knows but in some crisis subsequent
A wad of string may happy fortune bring?
Sneer if you must, and wildly voice dissent—
I never throw away a piece of string.

The more one has of strings he wants the more;
And though, like children, they won't pay the rent,
That strip of string you pick up from the floor
May save the beans for you in some event.
"Twill hold your lid on or tie down your tent;
Twill make an errand to your memory cling.
My jeans I search when needs are exigent—
I never throw away a piece of string.

The more one has of strings he wants
Envoi

For cast-off string I'm ever on the scent,
What others scorn as such a worthless thing.
Though when I croak my last dime may be spent,
I NEVER throw away a pice of string.

Black ants were found to be responsible for the filling of many boxes with fine wood particles which impaired the mechanism of the box. One box has had to be cleaned out four times.

Charles Hinds, of Utica, N. Y., paid $132,000 for a stamp a few years ago, probably the highest price ever paid for a single postage stamp in the world. The stamp which brought this vast sum is known as the "Boscawen stamp," and so far as anybody knows is the only one of its kind in existence. It is a 5 cent stamp and was issued by the postmaster of Boscawen, N. H., in 1845, two years before the national government adopted the stamp system in the postoffice department.—Boston Globe.

A bar of soap led to the recovery of $20,000 worth of rare stamps at Buffalo, N. Y. William Seeley had put his grip, supposedly containing the rare stamps in a safety deposit vault. The next day when he opened it he was surprised to find an old pair of shoes, some old clothes, and a cake of soap marked with the name of a Battle Creek, Mich., hotel but no stamps. Through the soap he finally traced the ownership of the bag and received his stamps. The two bags were identical and probably were interchanged on a train.

Find Sand in the Arctic

Was the Alaska tundra once a desert with masses of fruitful trees? This question is debatable at Nome, Alaska, since George Horn and John Deiora, prospectors, returned from the interior with samples of sand and bark of strange trees found at the bottom of a shaft they sunk in quest of gold.

The men ascended the Kobuk river and traveled 40 miles south. Here in numerous holes they found deep sand in layers similar to the drift of great storms, buried trunks of trees and long, wide blades of grass like bamboo, sorghum or papyrus. The size of the vegetation indicates a former tropical climate. Further investigation is planned for early summer in 1926.

OBJECT LESSON FOR SAFETY

The motor vehicle department is convinced that the safety of the public in this constantly increasing stream of traffic which even now chokes the main thoroughfares is the danger point, must lie largely in the education of the public to a true realization of the extent to which the danger has grown," says a motor vehicle department bulletin in which plans was revealed for producing motion pictures before schools and public meetings in order to teach children and adults to absorb the lesson of safety without requiring them to go through personal experiences. If the plan as tried out in Hartford proves successful it will be applied to the state in general.

Much education is gained through object lessons. The motion pictures of traffic scenes cannot fail to make a lasting impression and cause children to recognize dangerous situations in the future from having actual scenes pointed out to them. But with the plan of having children write essays on the subject the matter should be more fully impressed upon them, and there's a great need of having the children refrain from acts that too frequently lead to their injury or death. The record of fatalities to children playing in the streets is a deplorable one. The number varies according to the size of the community but there are very few cities which entirely escape them. Last year in Chicago there were 201 children killed by autos in the street. Connecticut has too many deaths of this character. It is not enough to say that the children were to blame, that their parents have not drilled the importance of personal safety into them as they should have. These may be all true enough, but there is sufficient reason why additional steps should be taken to convince the children of the need of looking to their own safety and to the safety of others and thus prevent this frightful toll. May the experiment of the motor vehicle department accomplish even more than is anticipated.

APPLE WEEK

Once more Apple week is with us and we have a chance to devote a little of additional thought to the importance of this fruit in connection with the demands for such a product and the desire for increased production in this part of the country.

There is much to be said for the old adage, "An apple a day keeps the doctor away," when we stop to think of the ease to which this fruit can be applied in our daily menu, but there is good reason why Apple week should be made to demonstrate the need of having Connecticut and New England supply the requirements of their people in this respect. Apple week may have served to create a greater interest in the production of apples in this part of the country during the past few years; if it has there is reason for satisfaction, but in spite of such a diminution it is apparent that there is opportunity for greater apple production.

Connecticut apples, of New England apples are as good as the country produces if they are properly cultivated. But as it is difficult to get such fruit except during the apple harvest season. Just now apples are to be had, either may be sand picked or they may be the windfalls which were brought down by the month's blows. But what is needed is a crop of apples that will make it unnecessary to draw on other parts of the country for the fruit which can be grown here, and which interest could anything in the way of stability to the production of other sections.

There are plenty of instances which show that it can be done and if apple culture should be undertaken on an increased scale there would be no question about getting a market. Certainly there is no reason why producers near their market could not dispose of their goods, if those which are hundreds and thousands of miles away are able to do so. Apple week may well be employed to develop a greater interest in such fruit but the importance of increasing its cultivation here in the state should not be overlooked.

FRANCE IN SYRIA

The situation in Syria is most unfortunate. It is not to be expected that Frenchmen will endorse the manner in which General Sarrail has been directing affairs in that mandated territory and particularly the bombardment of Damascus. That is apparently the last of his acts in that region except his retirement.

France has been obliged to deal with disturbing conditions in that quarter and it had entrusted the task to the judgment of the well known military leader, but when Damascus was bombarded without warning being given to the civilians and the representatives of other nations there was negligence which no military leader should want to shoulder, and it is a situation which cannot be overlooked.

There is no doubt France recognizes this without having its attention called to it by the league of nations, or being questioned by other countries. It is to be expected that France will repudiate any such act and emphasize it by an immediate change of policy as well as the recall of the responsible leader. It comes at an unfortunate time for France when it is facing various other big problems but the promptness with which it acts in its determination to apply a remedy will serve to indicate that it does not sanction what has taken place.

It can be easily understood when it is intimated that France would willingly give up its mandate in Syria if it would not be a blow at its prestige. It is not the easiest place in which to be put. Conditions there are bound to make it a hard task to assume. It is a job that calls for the exercise of the best kind of judgment in dealing with the mixed and uncertain conditions. That, if we are to judge from the reports, is what was lacking under General Sarrail. His removal will not complete the adjustment there, but it will go a long way in changing immediate conditions. But whoever is named to the post, whether a civilian or a soldier, will find that General Sarrail has made the place much harder for anyone to fill.

CUTTING AND STEALING BOOKS

An act which is greatly to be deplored is that of cutting books and magazines in libraries. Not satisfied with being provided with the chance to read and enjoy periodicals and books there seem to be those who are so ungrateful and selfish that they are not only willing to break the law by mutilating such property but care nothing about the effect this may have upon records or the pleasure of others.

As the result of the campaign to raise funds for the saving of "Old Ironsides," the free public library at Worcester reports the mutilation and theft of hundreds of reference books and history volume concerning the old frigate and charges these acts to the children from public and private schools of Worcester and Worcester county. The seriousness of these acts can be appreciated from the claim that it will be impossible to replace many of the books.

When the school children, or anyone else, cut or steal such property they display the lack of proper training and show an absolute disregard for the advantages which have been provided for them. If it is the act of other than children it can be attributed to nothing short of vandalism, for while school children must certainly should know better anyone older than that cannot expect to escape under any such excuse.

It is unfortunate in this day and generation that there are so many who interpret the word "free" in connection with any public institution as giving them the right to do absolutely as they please even when it comes to such a thing as theft and destruction. Worcester should not be satisfied until it finds as many as possible of those who were guilty of such acts.

DUKE UNIVERSITY

From all corners of the country, and especially the educational circles, eyes will be turned upon Duke university in North Carolina. This isn't exactly a new institution although it has only recently acquired that name.

James B. Duke gave it a substantial endowment when it agreed to accept his name. It recognized the advantage which the funds would give it for development and it was wise in accepting. Last month, by the provisions of his will, the university was further enriched, so that at the present time it has a productive fund of $80,000,000 which is claimed to be the largest of any institution of its kind in the country. It has gone to the top quickly and now it remains to be seen how well the funds are employed for the carrying out of the objects of the donor.

It has been frequently said that those who come into the possession of great wealth through hard, personal effort display a greater appreciation of it and are disposed to make better use of than those who have it thrust upon them. It is probably too early for any such judgment to be displayed in connection with Duke university. That it has had its huge fund thrust upon it is evident but there is opportunity for great work to be done in such an institution in North Carolina and with the fund placed in the hands of conscientious trustees there's reason to expect that it will be employed to the best advantage.

But because it has suddenly been showered with great wealth, in contrast to the struggle which most colleges and universities have to make to get it, there will be keen regard for the manner in which the Duke millions are put to work in the educational field. There will be a chance to see whether the concentration or a wider distribution is preferable.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Buns will have a lovely gloss if rubbed with evaporated milk before baking.

Place the cinnamon buns about 1-8 inch apart in the pan if you prefer them to be crusty.

Go over the grass rugs occasionally with soapy, warm water on a heavy cloth and the porch will always look clean and fresh.

When making apple pies in a hurry, chop the apples fine. They will bake more quickly.

Soak onions over night in cold water and they will lose much of their strong flavor and are more easily digested.

Use turpentine for washing sinks which have become dull and dirty.

Jelly that will not jell may be used in sweetening apple sauce and pies, thus imparting an unusual flavor.

Pastry can be made without butter if one wine glass of salad oil is used to a pound of flour. The oil should be mixed with water and stirred into the paste.

Try making Indian pudding in your double boiler when you have no oven to cook in. It tastes just as good, although you have no crust. Cook about one hour.

A little sweet oil applied to bronzes after they are dusted, followed by a brisk rubbing with a chamois skin, will bring out their rich tones.

To keep windows clean and clear for weeks, smear glycerine all over and polish lightly but thoroughly with a perfectly dry cloth, after cleaning well in the ordinary manner.

Blood stains may be removed by soaking the material in cold water to which a teaspoon of turpentine has been added. If the stains have stood any length of time, rub common soap on them in the first water.

If you wish to have mealy potatoes, boil them in the usual way, and when cooked remove at once from the pot. Place on a dish which has previously been heated and covered with a cloth (old napkin) crumpled up, then cover the potatoes with another cloth. Even waxy or wet potatoes steamed in this manner will become mealy and will keep in perfect condition for hours.

PRACTICAL AND DAINTY

The nicest covering for pantry shelves is white oilcloth or the shelf oil cloth with a tiny dainty edge. It can be wiped off when dusty and presents such a clean appearance when the doors are opened. It pays for itself, too, in the long run as it lasts indefinitely.

WHEN PIE-MAKING

Before starting to roll out pastry or get into the flour box spread a newspaper in front of the table upon which you are working. Then any flour or pastry that may fall from the table falls upon the paper and is readily rolled up for the trash without getting the kitchen linoleum soiled a bit.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

A brisk, five-minute finger massage for the scalp keeps the hair from getting oily and sticky in the head.

Sterilize the toothbrushes every so often by dipping them in boiling water.

The conditions that predispose to early fading of the hair are ill-health, worry, exposure to the weather, lack of regular care of the scalp and heredity. Daily massage and brushing will do much to ward off gray hairs.

It is not too much to say that prompt isolation of a sick child is a matter of life or death to others in a great many cases. If the disease proves to be simply a common cold no harm is done by giving the child this little rest in bed; if it proves one of the serious infectious diseases untold good has been accomplished by this wise forethought on the part of the mother.

A light massage of about three minutes' duration should be administered daily. Faithfulness in this will be rewarded by the wonderful rapidity with which the scalp responds. No amount of electricity or chemical action of hair lotions is as salutary as bringing the blood to the surface of the scalp by means of the finger tips.

NEW IDEAS IN CURTAINS

The old idea that white and only white curtains should be used in the bedrooms is losing in favor. Soft shades of yellow, amber, green, peach can be used with almost any color scheme in a bedroom.

Theatrical gauze can be used to a very good advantage as a material to serve for a combination drape and curtain on a window. It can be bought in all colors. It is a material which will allow plenty of light to come through.

THE ELUSIVE COCOANUT

The cocoanut is a baffling object to the new cook and it might be well to tell her how to go about coaxing it out of its shell. To open a cocoanut, bore a hole in the eye and empty the milk. Then place the nut in the oven and the heat will crack the shell so that meat can be removed readily.

CREPE DE CHINE POPULAR

Crepe de chine, crepe satin and handkerchief linen are sponsored in many of the two and three-piece models destined for daytime wear. Lace and net in a variety of interesting designs provide the main trimming for these garments, while the more tailored models emphasize the use of fine hand embroidery and drawn work. Many show borders of contrasting colors, and a few have edges of real filet and Irish picot.

TRAVELER'S AID

An excellent arrangement to carry when traveling for any length of time is a very large bag made of leather that can be used as a laundry bag. It is large enough to hang upon the closet door and is fitted out on the outside as a shoebag with places for eight shoes. The laundry is inserted upon the side but can be removed from the bottom of the bag.

FOR THE BREAKFAST ROOM

Ideal for the breakfast room in a country house or in a small city apartment is a table and four chairs of unpainted maple.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Metal fabrics are featured for evening wear, some are finely pleated, others are embroidered and jeweled.

Delightfully feminine are curtains of delicately colored net with small ruffles on the curtains themselves and also upon the valance.

Necklaces of chiffon velvet are extremely becoming, particularly when they are beautifully embroidered in Japanese designs.

The shoulder scarf is featured on many of the newest Paris frocks, tied loosely with bows that droop from each shoulder.

Circular godets, flared flounces and inverted pleats constitute the three important style leads shown in the new coats for fall wear.

Very smart are new envelope and pouch bags of leather in the fashionable colors. They are finished at the top with a wide band of etched silver.

Uneven lies the hem that's on the gown. Skirts of dinner and dance frocks are running to uneven hemlines, the unevenness due to drapes or to flares upon the skirt.

The V-shaped neckline is again being sponsored for the evening gown.

Some of the new gowns are cut with both front and real V-neckline, the rear being deeper than the front.

A lap-robe, foot-warmer and pillow for the motor are as smart as they are useful when they combine dark gray cloth and imitation moleskin. The piping are of bright yellow.

Adapted to the appearance of a small girl's room is a lampshade made of heavy white linen with tiny appliqued figures cut out of calico and stitched on with black thread.

A black crepe de chine afternoon frock has a wide collar of the material accordeon pleated and tied under the chin with a crepe bow with long ends that reach almost to the hemline.

Those who have pieces of Paisley will be interested to know that some of the smartest envelope purses in Paris at present are made of Paisley shawls. Usually there is some embroidery done in silver thread or silver beads which casts the Paisley into relief.

TWO PIECE MODELS LEAD

Business in dress departments continues to show considerable activity, judging from the large amount of orders that are coming in for both silk and wool dresses. Two-piece models still maintain their popularity in every style of garment, from the simple sports type of tweed or novelty woolen to the dressier jumper frock featuring a metallic blouse and a flared skirt of satin or velvet. With the holiday season approaching, calls are increasing for party and dinner dresses of metallic cloths and laces, georgette, chiffon, and velvet.—Dry Goods Economist.

BRUSSELS CARPET OUT

The curtain has fallen upon the Brussels carpet. The largest American producer of this line in the past has announced to the trade that his stock has been exhausted. Last spring this manufacturer discontinued manufacturing body Brussels and since that time his looms have been turning out Wilton rugs.

COOKING HINTS

When you wish to warm up a cooked cereal which has become cold and consequently stiff and lumpy when stirred, beat with an egg-beater and it will quickly become smooth.

When using walnuts in cooking, crush them with a rolling-pin. It saves much time and is as satisfactory as cutting with a knife.

In cleaning raisins pour boiling water over the raisins a few at a time. When cool enough to handle, drain and rub each raisin between the thumb and finger till the seeds come out clean, then cut or chop the raisins.

Use letter macaroni colored with vegetable dyes to spell names out for decorations on children's birthday cakes.

Eggs may be fried that delicious white-and-gold color, which is the despair of inexperienced cooks, if the frying-pan is kept covered during the process. Have your frying fat piping hot, break the eggs carefully into it and cover tightly. The rest does itself.

WASHING FROCKS MADE FROM JERSEY

The knitted jersey type of fabric so much in vogue today for sport clothes can be washed successfully if a few precautions are observed.

Remove any trimming that may not wash well. Shake well to remove surface dust. Wash in plenty of lukewarm water and a mild soap.

Prepare the suds before putting in the garment so that there will be no danger of streaking such as is sometimes caused by rubbing soap directly on a fabric.

Rinse in clear warm water. Squeeze out excess moisture but do not wring hard.

At no time lift the garment up out of the water without supporting it underneath with the hands, as the weight of the water-soaked wool is likely to stretch it.

Do not hang up to dry but spread out flat on a cloth, arranging to fit the original measurement, which should be taken before.

Press hems and seams on the wrong side; the rest of the garment will not need ironing.

EGG SHELLS

Do not throw away egg shells if you have your laundry done at home. Place them in a muslin bag and put in the boiler on wash day see how they will whiten the clothes.

DRIED CHEESE

Don't let the cheese become rancid. When it is dry put it through the meat grinder and then place in a covered jar to be brought out when the dish calls for grated cheese.

CUFF PROTECTORS

If the young man of the house seems to be particularly hard on trouser cuffs try sewing a small strip of leather on the inside of the cuff. In these collegiate days the very long trousers soon show signs of wear.

UNIQUE CLOTHES BRUSH

An amusing little clothes-brush is shaped like an elongated dog and is covered with blue, rose, gray or green brush.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Twenty-one is the age at which most girls in England are wed.

Practically all the carpets that come from Persia are woven by women.

Unless she weighs over 200 pounds a Tunisian girl has little chance of marriage.

Extreme novelty in style of woman's shoes is blamed for the depression in shoe industry.

The tenth congress of the International Woman Suffrage Alliance will be held in Paris next year.

The latest fad among the smart women in Paris is that of stenciling the shoulders to match the gowns.

Paris and London have begun exchanging telephone girls in relays for periods of two weeks in each city.

As superintendent of the United States army nurse corps, Miss Julia C. Stimson is America's only woman major.

STUFFED TOYS

The smallest boy or girl in the house will be overjoyed to receive a stuffed doll. Some of these are character dolls and some are in the shape of amusing animals taken from the rhymes that children love.

LACQUER TABLE

A fascinating little gate-legged table that will have many uses is made of wood painted a Chinese yellow with lacquer figures upon it.

RECIPES

Concordia Patties: Broil one pound of hamburg steak, season with salt and pepper, and run through the meat chopper. Peel one-fourth pound of mushrooms and chop them coarsely, then add one-half a teaspoon of salt, and cook for five minutes in two tablespoons of butter, stirring frequently. Add the meat and two cupfuls of highly seasoned tomato sauce, which has been thickened with one tablespoonful of butter and one tablespoon of flour blended together. Tomato soup thinned may be used. Make a rich baking powder dough, roll a quarter of an inch thick, cut in rounds or ovals with a scalloped cutter, and bake in pairs, brushing the lower halves with melted butter. Brush the tops with butter when removed from the oven. Lay on a hot serving dish, fill with the meat mixture, pour more around them, and garnish with parsley.

Sliced and Baked Bananas: Very ripe bananas should be chosen. Those with almost black skins being preferable. Before slicing for the older children and adults scrape delicately with a silver spoon or back of a silver knife to remove the "stringent principle. For the runabout the banana is best baked in the skin. This renders the starchy part more digestible. Do not, however, add sugar or butter, to the baked banana, as is sometimes done.

From Small Beginnings

William R. Grace, Mayor of New York

In a South American port a number of sailors of different nationalities did as sailors so often do and fell into pummeling one another with their fists. On one side were English sailors; on the other American. A young Irishman happened to see the fight. That was enough for him. His coat was off, and he went at the Englishmen hammer and tongs with such results that they had to beat a retreat. That young Irishman, so ready to fight, was William R. Grace, who made himself into a wealthy man and who twice became mayor of New York city.

Although he was only a youth at the time, young Grace had seen a large part of the world and had experienced hard knocks. He had been to school very little, but he had studied a great deal of human character. In Ireland, where he had been born, he had been eager for freedom from restraint. Like a young colt, he wanted to test his own strength. At 14 he packed up a little bundle, slipped away from home, and found his way as an emigrant to the United States. Being large and strong for his years, he found all sorts of work to do, but no work that interested him very long. No one saw in the Irish boy of that time, turning from one job to another, anything of the future mayor of the great city, in a printing office he picked up knowledge of English composition, and fell in touch with various newspapers that gave him a degree of information. After a time, wearying of the hard struggle, he made his way back to Ireland and to his people.

The young man was not long contented in quiet surroundings. Ireland offered him few opportunities, so he set out for Peru, where he found work in a shipping house. He made himself so useful that he gained promotion became a partner, and finally chief owner. Putting into business the same adventurous, fighting spirit that he had shown as a boy, he built up a great commercial house whose ships sailed on every sea, whose offices were in all great ports, and whose wealth was remarkably great. When the business had grown great it was natural to establish offices in New York city. As a resident of New York, Mr. Grace showed himself no public-spirited that 15 years after he had opened his New York office he was elected mayor. His story is the story of a vigorous life.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

When the Metropolitan Opera company opens its season tonight in New York city, it will mark the beginning of the seventeenth year that Giulio Gatti-Casazza has served as director of the famous organization. His administration of the Metropolitan Opera House is by far the longest in history. In 1908 he came to New York from Milan, where for ten years he had been the general manager of the famous Scala Opera. During his 16 years at the Metropolitan, Mr. Gatti-Casazza has produced more than 150 operas, nearly half a hundred of which were never before given in America. During his administration he has also produced a dozen or more new American works and revived more than 50 of the older operas. Under the terms of his original contract, which was for a period of three years, he received for his services $30,000 a year, and this salary is understood to have been increased with each renewal of the contract.

Stories That Recall Others

The Right Breed

The past summer Ellen lived on a farm for the first time. The rest of her four years have been spent in a city flat. Naturally she was much interested in the farm animals, especially the cows. So when some Holsteins which her father had just purchased came slowly down the lane one evening, Ellen watched them almost breathlessly. As the last one passed she jumped and exclaimed ecstatically, "Oh, mama! Every last one of those new cows has a cross word puzzle on her!"

An Old Shoe

A small sedan was driven down the main street a day or two ago with an old shoe conspicuously riding on top. Every one snickered as the car went past. Wonder who just got married? every one asked his neighbor. One carload decided to follow the sedan and find out, supposing, of course, that it contained a young couple and was probably covered with signs saying "Look at us, we are just married" and the like, but lo and behold, the car had no signs on it and the driver was the sole occupant. He was no less than a sedate and well known resident thoroughly unconscious of his decoration.

Hot Meals on Airship

On airplanes now traveling regularly between Paris and London hot meals are served to the passengers. The planes in use will carry and provide comfort for 30 passengers at one time. Another plane under construction will be a copy of a modern Pullman car with berths and dressing rooms.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

LOCARNO

Acting on the age-old European tradition that a peaceful town is the place to produce a peace treaty, delegates of the major powers preparing the security pact adjourned to Locarno, Switzerland.

"Lucerne, where they planned to meet, has already lent its name to a treaty," says a bulletin of the National Geographic society from its headquarters in Washington, D. C., "and that detail may have had as much weight in moving to Locarno as the desire for Alpine seclusion.

"Europe has long pigeonholed its treaties with the names of small towns like Lausanne, Sevres, Ghent, Bon Stephano and Brest-Litovsk, much to the relief of the American student. Exhausted by the task of meeting and remembering Henrys I to VIII and Louis I to XVIII, it is a rare relief to come upon a dry treaty with the musical name of Algeciras. Treaties by other names than 'Paris 1736,' 'London 1871' are certainly sweeter as witness: St. Germain, Aix-la-Chapelle, Mudania and courtly Versailles.

"The diplomats were not disappointed in the promise of the harmonious name of Locarno. This Swiss city blends the beauty of the snow-capped Alps and the blue of Italian lakes.

"Swiss by boundary line, Locarno is Italian in language and landscape. Switzerland has long been favorite treaty-making ground largely because of its steadfast neutrality, its capacity to provide a city neutral by language must also figure. France and Germany are the main parties to the present questions, so by going over the mountains the conferees easily escape both French and German Switzerland and haul themselves in Italian Switzerland.

"Lake Maggiore, sister to Lake Como, is next to the largest of Italian lakes. It stretches 37 miles from the plains of the Po Valley into the heart of the Alps. Most of Maggiore lies in Italy but the upper part, called Lake Locarno, is in Switzerland. Locarno itself is the head of the lake. Though tiny, it is the mother city of many small villages and villas. Numerous beautiful Alpine valleys pay tribute of trade to it also.

"Travelers usually see Locarno in spring or autumn. In spring the whole countryside is pervaded with a delicious perfumed dampness, primroses line the embankments and wayside hedges with their saffron embroidery, and the oranges and lemons, trained against white walls, hang ripe for picking. Peasants call to one another from their sloping fields of trellised vineyards. A woman clinks along the cobbled ways in wooden sandals and a boy sings a scrap of song to the time of his stick, whacking on the unfeeling sides of a donkey. As though to intensify this springtime gladness the church bells rank on the slightest provocation.

"But the best negotiators found Locarno with autumn on the air. The atmosphere was clear, as Locarno's own church bells across the water. Summer greens were scorched into rich reds and yellows. There is only one railroad and there has been only one telegraph line.

"But the negotiators reckoned without the enterprise of the Swiss telegraph service which threw a force of linemen into the breach. Locarno's one telegraph line grew to ten. The last vestige of isolation vanished with the announcement that the Marconi concern would install a radio station.

"Still there is no history to be pursued and absorbed in Locarno. Nature reigns and only one contribution by mankind is worth seeing. This is the chapel of the Madonno del Sasso. As if in recognition of its position as Locarno's lone building of public interest, the chapel has been given a pinnacle of rock on which to perch. The chapel's lines suggest a delightful haphazard mixture from the high foundations rising like parapets to the loggia and little tower. Its walls are a rich Italian yellow with here and there bits of red or blue frescoing, under the red brown tile roof.

"In such a scene as this the Pact of Locarno was born."

CHILD TRAINING

Those Important First Years.

Helen Gregg Green

Dropping in at Gloria's I found her in tears.

"Why, my dear, what is the matter?" I asked.

"It's Albert!" she answered between sobs. "He's—he cut his initials on the handsome new victrola Greenwood school has just purchased."

I was amazed.

"Oh, Gloria, surely not Albert — a boy of ten — and with you for a mother. Why, it must be a mistake."

"No-o-o! I am so humiliated. The principal has just called. I don't know what possesses the child. A week ago the physical director phoned his father, complaining that a crowd of the boys were defacing the new gymnasium—drawing pictures and writing names on the wall. And Albert was one of them!"

There was little I could say to comfort her. I left her still grieving.

And then I began wondering why I had said, "A lad with you for a brother," for I easily recalled some of Albert's pranks when he was a mere toddler.

One evening I had called at Gloria's to see her new wall-paper. In two conspicuous places Albert had made huge curly-cues, with a crayon.

"Why, Gloria, did you let Albert do that?" I asked.

"Let him?" complacently. "I left the room and he just did it."

Albert beamed his delight.

"What could I do?" she smiled. Then in a whisper, "Cute?"

"Yes, very cute!" I thought.

"Oh, my dear," she continued with a gleam of pride in her eyes, "he's a terror! The other day Grandma Grace brought a couple of hats for me to see. While I was looking at them Albert sawed two of the legs of our mahogany dining room table. And you see that mahogany chair, he has simply ruined it, yanked the whole back out of it, somehow."

Albert edged closer to Gloria.

"But he's Mother's boy, isn't he, Bertie?"

And now Albert's mother thinks it strange that he should write his name on the gymnasium wall, and carve his initials on an expensive new victrola the teachers and parents in Albert's school worked so hard to buy.

Sociologists say, "Give me the first seven years of a child's life and you may have the rest," which warns us plainly enough that we must do our character molding during the first seven years.

We cannot expect children naturally to "turn into" the kind of youngsters we desire them to be. We must guide and mold them while their minds are still plastic and impressionable.

Peter Finds Two Travelers

Who travels much, 'tis very plain,
Can hardly fail to knowledge gain.
—Danny Meadow Mouse.

Peter Rabbit was quite upset when he discovered Danny and Nanny Meadow Mouse had left home. You see it looked as if they had left home for good. He had something of the same feeling he had the time he discovered that they had left home when they went down to the Sunny South in the great Manbird, as they called the aeroplane. He wondered if they could have started for the Sunny South in the same way again. Then he remembered that if the great Manbird had been around he would have seen it. Had it not been for what Saramy Jay had said about Danny a long way from home. Peter would have thought that Danny and Nanny might have been caught by one of their enemies. As it was, he decided that they must have moved of their own accord. But why they should have moved he couldn't understand. Of course, right away he was very curious about it. He looked everywhere he could think of for them, and he asked everyone if they had seen Danny and Nanny. But his search was all in vain and finally he gave it up.

Then, very early one morning, Peter saw Blacky the Crow sitting on a fence post down near the lower end of the Long Lane watching very sharply something below. Two or three times Blacky flew down to the ground and then flew back again to the post. Peter's curiosity sent him, over there, hippety-hippety-hoppa fast as his legs could go. He was too wise to go right up close to Blacky. When he got near enough he saw that Blacky was trying to catch some one. So at a safe distance Peter sat down to watch. By and by Farmer Brown's boy appeared in the distance. Blacky didn't wait for him to get close. As soon as he saw he was headed down the Long Lane he took to his wings. "Caw caw, caw!" he shouted and away he flew.

At once Peter scampered over to that post on which Blacky had been sitting. At first he saw no one. Then a squeaky little voice, which was very familiar cried: "Hello, Peter Rabbit! Where has that black rascal gone?"

You would have laughed to have seen the expression on Peter's face as he discovered Danny Meadow Mouse peeping out from beneath an old board on the ground. "Why, Danny Meadow Mouse!" he cried. "What under the sun are you doing here?"

"Trying to find out where that black rascal has gone," squeaked Danny.

"Oh, he's headed for the Green Forest," said Peter. "You needn't worry about him any more. Was he trying to catch you?"

He was curious to know what Blacky was doing.

"Of course," replied Danny. "Who did you suppose he was trying to catch?"

"I hadn't the least idea," replied Peter, "but I didn't think it was you. Where's Nanny?"

"Here," squeaked another voice, and Nanny Meadow Mouse poked her head out beside Danny.

"Well, well, well!" cried Peter. "Do tell me what you are doing way over here."

"We're traveling," said Danny. "Not having any Manbird to travel in this year we're traveling on our feet."

"But where are you traveling and what for?" cried Peter.

"We are prepairin' for winter," spoke up Nanny.

This was too much for Peter. "Preparing for winter!" said he. "How under the sun are you preparing for winter by traveling?" I should think that if you want to prepare for winter you would be laying up a stock of food, the way you always have done."

Danny Mouse chuckled. Then Nanny Mouse chuckled. Then they both chuckled together until Peter thought he was being laughed at. "What's the joke?" he demanded. "It isn't polite to laugh in the presence of others and not tell them what you are laughing at."

"Excuse me, Peter," said Danny. "The joke is that all our supplies are laid up for us, but nobody knows it. Somebody has done all the work for us."

Peter looked all around. "I don't see any supplies," said he.

The fat sides of Danny and Nanny Meadow Mouse shook with laughter. "We haven't got there yet," said Danny.

LAFAYETTE'S DEPARTURE ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO

Lafayette, the illustrious friend and guest of our country, took his departure from the seat of government on Wednesday on his return to his native land. The ceremonies at the president's house were noteworthy. An address bidding the guest farewell was made by President Adams and the general replied, says Poulson's Advertiser, quoting Washington papers of September 9, 1825.

As the last sentence was pronounced Lafayette advanced, and while the tears poured over his venerable cheek he took the president in his arms; as he had done before beginning his response. He retired a few paces, but, overcome by his feelings, again returned and, uttering in broken accents "God bless you," fell once more on the neck of Mr. Adams. It was a scene at once solemn and moving, as the sighs and stealing tears of many who witnessed it bore testimony. Having recovered his self-possession, the general stretched out his hands and was in a moment surrounded by the greetings of the whole assembly who pressed upon him, each eager to seize, perhaps for the last time, that beloved hand which was opened so freely for our aid when aid was so precious and which grasped with firm and undeviating hold the steel which so bravely helped to achieve our deliverance.

The moment of departure at last arrived, and having once more pressed the hand of Mr. Adams, the general entered his barouche, accompanied by the secretaries of state of the treasury and of the navy. The cavalcade of military bodies and corporate authorities which was formed amid throats of artillery, the animating sounds of military bands, etc., proceeded to the bank of the Potomac to board the Mount Vernon, a steamship which was to carry him down the river to the Brandywine. As the vessel moved off, and for a short time after, the deepest silence was observed by the whole of the vast multitude that lined the shore and remained gazing after the retiring vessel until she had passed Greenleaf's Point.

Mosquito A Cosmopolite

More than 700 varieties of mosquitoes have been captured and classified. Of these only 300 are found in the United States, contrary to the supposition that America is especially pestered from them. The mosquito works in all parts of the world, at the poles and in deserts, in many European countries only the males are equipped with biting organs; in America the female of the species is the more deadly.

According to the Zoological Bulletin, mosquitoes prey not only on human beings, but upon butterflies, small fishes, turtles and birds. On the other hand, mosquitoes are attacked by dragon flies, aquatic bugs and beetles, bats and night birds, such as the nighthawk and the whippoorwill.

It has been found that when a female mosquito cannot find blood it feeds on fruits, watermelons, juicy plants and such vegetable substances and will even drink water. Students have kept mosquitoes alive for weeks in jars by feeding them with such foods. The adult male mosquito does not survive the winter, but the hardy females can live on ice.

The powers of multiplication of the female mosquito are astonishing. The common variety lays from 200 to 400 eggs, about one-sixteenth of an inch in length. The young develop completely in from eleven to eighteen days, and even faster in hot weather, so that several generations may be hatched in a single year.

The Anti-Mosquito Association of Long Island has captured as many as 8,000 mosquitoes in a cellar in Brooklyn.

Much Platinum in Columbia

Although before the revolution Russia was the greatest platinum producing country in the world, Columbia is now one of the greatest producing centers. Before Russia lost its place as head of the list, Columbia was second. In the Transvaal, South Africa, there are also great platinum deposits. The present contribution of the United States is less than 1,000 ounces a year, most of this coming from California. Science has succeeded in producing platinum from scrap ores that appear to contain only traces of other metals.

BACKUS HOSPITAL
Nurses' Home Opening

The new Nurses Home of The William W. Backus Hospital will be open to the public on Wednesday, November 4th from 3 to 5 and from 8 to 10 p. m.

The Executive Committee take this opportunity to express their appreciation of the gifts, over seven thousand in number, which have made this building possible. It is hoped that a large number of the donors will be present on the opening day. Any general Hospital is practically a public institution and the quality and extent of its service is determined largely by the community which it undertakes to serve.

Mrs. Jane Murray Service, wife of John Service, died Friday evening at her home, 43 Twelfth street. Mrs. Service was born in Scotland, August 14, 1841, and came to this country at the age of 18 years. She was married to John Service on November 27, 1865, and has lived here for the remainder of her life. She was a member of the Greeneville Congregational church where for many years she was a regular attendant. Her chief interest centered in her home life where she found her greatest pleasure. She is survived by her husband and one daughter, Mrs. Fred A. Fox of this city, also one son, William A. Service and one granddaughter, Marjorie Service of Waterbury.

Mrs. John A. Scott

Following an illness of about a year, more serious during recent weeks, the death of Mrs. John A. Scott, occurred Saturday evening at 8:30 o'clock at her home at No. 65 Prospect street, where she had been most tenderly cared for by members of her family.

Born in West Gardiner, Maine, in 1869, the daughter of Uriah and Cyrene Morrison, she spent her girlhood in Maine and in 1899 at Dover, New Hampshire, she was united in marriage with John A. Scott. They came to Norwich in 1906, and have resided here ever since.

Shortly after arriving in Norwich, Mrs. Scott became affiliated with the Greeneville Congregational church and took an active interest in church affairs as long as health permitted her to do so, serving as a member of the Ladies' Aid society. She was a member of Euphemiam Circle, King's Daughters and was affiliated with Sachem Chapter, No. 57, Order of the Eastern Star.

A woman of kindly and pleasing disposition, Mrs. Scott leaves a host of friends in this city to mourn her loss, and their sympathy is extended to the family in their bereavement.

Surviving besides her husband, is one son, Herbert W. Scott, of Lynn, Mass., three sisters, Miss Angie C. Morrison of New York city, Mrs. W. S. Harrington of West Somerville, Mass., Miss Hazel of Roslindale, Mass., and one brother, Adelbert F. Morrison of Chicago, Ill.

Michael J. Foley

Following an illness of two weeks the death of Michael J. Foley of No. 36 Oak street, this city, occurred Saturday at the home of his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Murtha of Melrose, Mass. Mr. Foley had been visiting his daughter and was taken ill about two weeks ago. Word was sent to Norwich of his illness and Mrs. Foley left for Melrose, tenderly caring for her husband until the end.

Mr. Foley was born in Norwich, September 24, 1866, the son of Michael J. and Hannah Hassey Foley, and had made his home in Norwich all his life. He attended the local parochial school and was a graduate of the Norwich Free Academy. For many years he was a clerk in the clothing store of Murphy & McGarry and more recently with the F. A. Wells Co., but he gave up active work about a year ago.

He was a member of St. Patrick's parish, of Court Sachem, No. 63, Foresters of American and of Thames lodge, No. 826, New England Order of Protection, of which for many years he was secretary and a most active worker for the progress of the lodge. His chief interest in life was his family, and in their loss of a loved one they have the sympathy of their many friends in Norwich.

Mr. Foley was united in marriage August 25, 1891 with Anne E. Garvey by Rev. Peter P. Shahan at St. Patrick's church. Mr. Foley leaves his wife; four daughters, Mrs. George L. Powers of Norwich; Mrs. Frank P. Murthe of Melrose, Mass.; and the Misses Marguerite and Laura Foley of Norwich; one son, Max H. Foley of New York; five grandchildren and one brother, John G. Foley of Lakeland, Fla.

MOOSE HAD 38 IN CLASS FOR INITIATION

Norwich Lodge No. 950, L. O. O. M., held a Hallowe'en initiation Saturday evening when a class of 38 candidates was initiated at the Moose home. The initiatory work was carried on by the officers of the lodge, A. Kaminsky, past dictator, R. A. Krohn, dictator, B. Wunderlich, vice dictator, J. T. F. Burns, prelate, George Geopfert, secretary and Charles Wright, treasurer.

A fine entertainment programme arranged by the committee in charge, kept the members amused for a solid two hours, and there were refreshments to wind up the evening. The committee in charge comprised J. T. F. Burns, F. Hunter, C. Korn, C. Pierson, G. Ezell, J. P. Baumgartner, J. Kirchner, H. Swartzburg, George Geopfert, C. O. Wright, H. Keeley.

NEW WESLEYAN GUILD FORMED AT TRINITY CH.

The annual autumn service was held at Trinity Methodist Church Sunday evening, with an interesting program and good attendance.

A new organization at this church is the Wesleyan Guild, the new women's organization, formed in the hope of dimplifying the women's organization machinery of the church.

The departments and officers are: President, Mrs. Albert Boardman; vice president, Mrs. Andrew Crowe; secretary, Mrs. John A. Ferguson; treasurer, Miss Edith A. Fellows. Departments: membership, Leader, Mrs. Emma Worthington; phrograms, Mrs. M. E. Gester; fellowship, Mrs. E. J. Jones; missions, Mrs. J. H. Graham; domestic, Mrs. Alvin D. Lewis; ways and means, Mrs. E. INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

Miss Alice Stephens, who left for a visit to relatives in Pomona, Calif., the middle of September, after her arrival from Europe, has returned to "Pinehurst," her home on Washington street.

Mrs. Foster Wilson, of Broadway entertained the Monday Afternoon Auction Bridge club at a special Hallowe'en luncheon Saturday, after which the members played cards. The prize was won by Mrs. Charles B. Chapman.

The children of Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Woodman, Alice, Walter and Charles, with Ruth Ayling, Charles A. Colt and Philip Berker led the Hallowe'en revelry in Huntington Place, Saturday evening, ending up with a visit to the home of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Birge.

HIGH ST. WOMAN FATALLY BURNED WHEN LAMP UPSETS AT HER HOME

Kate Catherine Howard, colored, wife of George F. Harris, sustained fatal burns Saturday night about 8 o'clock at their home, 12 High street. At the Backus hospital where her death occurred about 3 o'clock Sunday morning, she told that she had set her clothing on fire by upsetting a lamp. The accident to Mrs. Harris was discovered when a neighbor of the unfortunate woman went to the West Side fire station a few minutes after 8 o'clock and told the firemen that he could smell smoke in his house but could not find any sign of fire. One of the firemen immediately went into the house which is nearby the fire station, to investigate the cause of the smoke and found the woman in flames on the floor. There was a lamp nearby, but it was not lighted at the time, but the chimney was off.

The firemen hurriedly notified police headquarters by telephone and a hurry call for the ambulance was sent in. Central fire headquarters was also notified and Squad A went to the scene. There was little the firemen could do as the woman was terribly burned, practically all of her clothing being burned off her body. There was no sign of fire other than around the woman, who was semi-conscious. The firemen remained on the scene until the arrival of the ambulance and helped place Mrs. Harris into the ambulance and she was rushed to the Backus hospital where she lingered until Sunday morning when death ended her sufferings.

Mrs. Harris was alone in the house at the time her clothing caught fire. Her husband had left a short time previous to purchase provisions for Sunday.

Mrs. Harris was born about 50 years ago in Richmond, Va., her maiden name being Howard. Besides her husband she is survived by a brother and several sisters.

GIFTS AS HE STARTS FOR MISSION FIELD

On the eve of his departure for the mission field in South Africa, gifts were made on Sunday at the United Congregational church to Rev. Arthur Cary Adams of East Great Plain who will sail from New York today (Monday).

At the morning church service a purse of gold was presented to him on behalf of the church by Herbert B. Cary, chairman of the committee in charge of securing the contributions, and at the session of the church school a handsome traveling bag was presented to him. This presentation was made by Herbert W. Gallup, chairman of the committee in charge. Both were accompanied with expressions of the warmest interest in the work that Rev. Mr. Adams will do and the assurance that the prayers of the church and school will be with him.

REV. ARTHUR CARY ADAMS

CELEBRATED THEIR SILVER WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Clark C. Hommell of 23 Mulberry street entertained many relatives and friends at their home Saturday evening for their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. Many beautiful gifts were received including silverware, delicate glassware, and choice linens. The house was ingeniously decorated with the dominating autumnal colors and the festive spirit of Hallowe'en further enlivened a delightful affair. Piano and vocal selections supplemented by the dancing of the young folks increased the merriment and proved a most enjoyable form of entertainment.

The congratulations and best wishes of all those present and, of others who were unable to attend were showered upon the happy couple, and many friends expressed the desire that they might be participants of another such joyous occasion at some future anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Hommell.

Many guests were present, both residents of Norwich and also friends from New Haven, Waterbury, New London and Providence. Mr. and Mrs. Hommell were married in Montville, Oct. 31, 1900. For the last 12 years they have lived in Norwich.

LOYAL CIRCLE OF THE K. D. HAD HALLOWE'EN SOCIAL

Loyal Circle of the King's Daughters held a Hallowe'en social Friday evening at the home of Mrs. E. T. Phillips, on Cedar street, under direction of the leader, Mrs. George C. Zimmerman. There were very effective decorations and a special supper of sandwiches, served in miniature pumpkin moonshines, doughnuts, cheese, olives, pumpkin pie, sweet cider and apples. Afterwards a number of games were played.

The supper committee included, with Mrs. Zimmerman, Mrs. Richard Tracy, Mrs. Samuel Wilson, Mrs. Arad Manning, Mrs. George W. Carter, Mrs. J. N. Weymouth, Mrs. William F. Bailey, Miss Mabel Hodgekinson and Miss Clara Christoph.

Junior Guild Adopts Constitution

The members of the Junior Guild of the United Congregational church held their second meeting in the church school room on Friday evening. A constitution was drawn up and accepted, and the report of the program committee was also accepted. It was decided to give a public pancake supper. The Misses Betty and Kathryn Zumbro entertained the group by stories of "Life in India" and further illustrated their talk by Indian pictures shown through a baloptican which was operated by the Misses Lucus. The evening closed with records of Indian music played on a victrola very kindly loaned by the Hanover-Curland Co.

C. L. CLASS MEMBERS MET AT BALTIC HALLOWE'EN

The C. L. Class of Trinity Methodist Church held a Hallowe'en party for class members and their friends, Saturday evening, at The Elm, the Baltic boarding-house, the hostesses being Mrs. Charles Busch and Miss Bertha L. Hahn. The thirty attending were in costume. There were games and music, Miss Eunice Taft being pianist.

Later there was a supper of Waldorf salad, fruit jello, buttered buns, nut cake, salted peanuts and coffee. The decorations were orange and black and there were novelty favors.

SUBURBAN DAY PLAN WENT OVER BIG, SATURDAY

Weather conditions favored the Norwich merchants who had combined for the fall surburban day. It was cold but bright, the previous day's snow was a warning that winter is really here, while appealing bargains just cause the money out of purses. Trade started in well and kept up briskly till closing time.

"The law's delay" seldom applies to the presentation of the lawyer's bills.

HELD MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR DEPARTED MEMBERS

The memory of the fourteen members of the Central Baptist church, who have died during the past year, was honored by Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., at the service at the church Sunday evening, the text being taken from Revelations 14. 13; "And I heard a voice from heaven saying, Write, Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth: yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labours; for their works follow with them."

For many years, said Rev. Dr. Pitt, the Protestant church has not held services for the dead, but it seems fitting that we do so. Last night the pagan celebration was held and our doorbells were rung, but today the Christian service is held.

During the past year fourteen have been removed from our church through death, eleven from the church membership and three from the congregation. In mentioning their names we are impressed by the variety, their ages and experiences in life. One called was but a child, another a youth, many of middle ages, while several were old in life and experience. One of the members called, Mrs. Albert D. Smith, had been a member of the church for 67 years and had been a member of our congregation for 75 years while another had been a member for less than one year.

The names of our dead are Mrs. Louis Almind, William B. L. Cranston, Mrs. Charles Fox, Mrs. Christian J. Hoefer, Mrs. Elizabeth S. Manning, Robert B. Otis, Mrs. Mary Robbins, Miss Mary Rutherford, Henry S. Sleeper, Mrs. Albert D. Smith, Mrs. Herbert H. Williams, and from the congregation, Mrs. Mary Corbin, Capt. James Lennen and Ella Shields.

In remembering the names of the dead Rev. Dr. Pitt paid a brief but fitting tribute to each and also quoted a verse of scripture which best fitted the the lives he was describing.

Following the tributes in memory of departed members Rev. Dr. Pitt quoted a writing which best set forth the Baptist belief of the hereafter, in which the writer said that he watched the sunset but saw no mystery beyond, Because he knew that Japan and China lay in that direction. There was another land, near Rev. Dr. Pitt, a land never seen, the land of immortality and the blessed country of the soul. A land where one realizes that there is a chance to do better than in this world.

It is our belief, he said, that in this life we receive both good and evil but in the next life it shall be different. There is no waiting, he said, no such thing as purgatory, for in the words of Christ himself, "Today, shalt thou be with me in paradise," we know that the change is immediate. Christ told us this when he said, "I go to prepare a place for you—in My Father's house are many mansions." When the place is prepared Christ calls us to Him and we go immediately. Remember His words to the thief on the cross "This day, art thou with me in paradise," and this to a thief.

Paul finally came to this belief after fighting his way up through other beliefs. He stopped thinking of death as a sleep of time, and came to the knowledge that death means a departure from this life to be with Christ.

We cannot be away from God for wherever we are He is with us, in this life or the life beyond the grave.

Many people make a mistake in thinking of their dead, they remember the many things they could have done or should have done while the loved one was among them and forget that their duty is to the living. Despite the fact that we have not done all we could in the past, the future is before us and we may do good during our remaining days, remembering the word, "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth that they may rest from their labours; for their works follow them."

CHRIST CHURCH MEMORIAL FOR ITS FIRST RECTOR

A memorial service was held Sunday morning at Christ church for the first rector of the church, Rev. John Tyler, who preached his first sermon in the church that stood on the site of the present edifice on All Saints' Day, Nov. 1, 1768. He continued as rector of the church for 54 years and is buried under the altar of the present church.

He graduated from Yale college in 1765, and went to England, where he was ordained by the Bishop of London. He was sent out as a missionary to the colonies by the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, and took up his rectorship in Norwich. He built the house now standing, known as No. 62 Church St., which is the residence of one of his descendants, William Tyler Olcott. During the Revolutionary war services were held in this house.

Rev. Mr. Tyler died Jan. 30, 1823 in the 81st year of his age.

Miss Calkins in her History of Norwich thus refers to him:—"He was an interesting preacher; his voice sweet and solemn, and his eloquence persuasive. The benevolence of his heart was manifested in daily acts of courtesy and charity to those around him and he studied medicine in order to benefit the poor."

It was most fitting that a memorial service dedicated to the memory of this beloved rector of the church should have been held, especially as this year All Saint's day coincided in date with All Saints' day in 1768.

The rector Rev. C. Montgomery Budding, reminded the congregation on Sunday of Rev. John Tyler's devoted rectorship of the church and emphasized the noble example of his life as an inspiration to those of this day and generation.

The Memorial flowers on the altar for Rev. John Tyler were given by his descendants, Miss Julia Brewer, Mrs. William A. Norton, Mrs. Willis Austin, Mrs. Lucius Briggs, Grosvenor Ely and William Tyler Olcott, all of this city.

Hallowe'en Dance Opened Series

A large crowd enjoyed the Hallowe'en dance Saturday evening at the Wauregan hotel. The hall was prettily decorated in Hallowe'en colors by Hawkins, O'Atri's Wauregan hotel orchestra furnished the dance programme. This was the opening number of a series of dances to be held at the hotel this fall and winter.

HENRY J. LAFONTAINE BEGINS ENGAGEMENT

Henry J. LaFontaine began his duties as organist of St. Patrick's Church Sunday, Nov. 1st. At the 10:-30 mass, which was read by Rev. John J. Reilly and at which Rev. Myles P. Galvin preached, the chorus choir of twenty voices sang Loew's Mass, Kyrie, Gloria, Sanctus and Agnus Dei. At the offertory, Roderick F. Sullivan sang Dr. Jules Jordan's beautiful setting of "Ave Maria." Before the service, Mr. LaFontaine played selections from Nevin's Suite, and as a recessional he gave Gounod's Marche Recessionale.

HENRY J. LAFONTAINE

Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament followed the mass, given by Monsignor May. At this time Frank R. Murdy sang "O Salutaris," by Bohm.

The new organist, who made a very favorable first impression, assisted in the chorus singing. He has had voice training with Benjamin Knox, of Providence, also piano coaching from Aurelio Giorni, of New York, in addition to the instructors previously noted.

TAG DAY ADDS $500 FOR ST. JOSEPH'S SCHOOL

Tag day for the St Joseph's school fund drive, which was held Saturday, added $500, to the amount of $10,000 which had been raised during the week. Another addition to the fund will be received from the special Sunday afternoon entertainment which was held at the Palace theatre with a well-filled house to enjoy the excellent programme of music, vocal and instrumental. The Palace theatre management is donating the entire proceeds to the school fund.

Further work by the teams in canvassing their territory will be done by the teams today (Monday) and in the evening at 6.15 all the team captains and members and campaign workers are to be the guests of Rev. S. A. Isiek at supper at the Wauregan house when results are to be announced.

However, the full returns from the drive will no the known tonight as there are further contributions of substantial amounts expected from a number of the manufacturing industries, but these amounts may not be known for several days yet.

WEDDINGS
Hargreaves-Shaw

In St. Andrew's Episcopal church Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock, Miss Dorothy Mellas Shaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Shaw of 10 Russell road, and Frank Hargreaves, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hargreaves of Occum, were united in marriage by Rev. William Smith of Wethersfield, a former pastor of the church. The church was tastefully decorated and many relatives and friends of the couple were in attendance. The wedding march was played by Alfred Brooks.

The couple were attended by Herman Krauss of Isbon, as best man, and Miss Lois Shaw, sister of the bride, as bridesmaid.

The bride was prettily gowned in white canton crepe, her tulle veil being caught with orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. The maid of honor wore a gown of poudre blue, trimmed with gold lace, and she also wore a hat to match. Her bouquet was of yellow chrysanthemums.

Following the ceremony a reception was held and wedding dinner served at the home of the parents of the bride. The bride received many beautiful and useful gifts, including cut glass, china, silverware and purses of money. The gift of the groom to the best man was a gold watch chain with pen knife while the bride presented her maid of honor a ruby ring.

Later in the afternoon the bride and groom left on a wedding trip to New York and New Jersey and upon their return are to reside at No. 10 Russell road, to be at home to their friends after November 10th.

Lyman-Hagberg

In the presence of relatives and friends and at the home of her parents, Major and Mrs. Charles Hagberg of 40 Hobart avenue, Miss Mabel E. Hagberg and John Richard Lyman of East Great Plain, son of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Lyman of Philadelphia, Pa., were united in marriage at 6 o'clock Saturday evening by Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the Central Baptist church.

Miss Alcine Appelberg was maid of honor and Edward Lyman of Philadelphia, brother of the groom, was best man. The bride was given in marriage by her father and the wedding march was played by Miss Elizabeth Peckham, her cousin.

The bride, was charmingly gowned in white satin-faced crepe, embroidered with pearls, and her tulle veil was caught up with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of white rosebuds. The maid of honor was gowned in orchid georgette and her arm bouquet was of yellow chrysanthemums.

Following the wedding a reception was held and a buffet luncheon was served. The bride received many beautiful gifts from relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyman left during the evening on a wedding trip through the Adirondacks and upon their return will reside on Gifford street.

NEW HAMPSHIRE ONLY TEAM UNDEFEATED IN NEW ENGLAND

STORRS, Conn., Nov. 1.—(AP)—Results of yesterday's games played by teams in the New England conference, which includes all New England state colleges with the exception of Vermont, shows three victories and two defeats for the five conference teams.

Massachusetts Aggies, ranked as one of the two best conference teams, was tumbled from the ranks of the undefeated by Amherst, taking a 27-0 licking. New Hampshire downed Tufts 9-6 at Durham, strengthening its grip for first honors in the conference. To date, the Granite Staters are undefeated, though their record has been marred by a tie contest with Springfield.

Connecticut Aggies decisively turned back Manhattan College from New York at Storrs with a 19-0 score, while Maine whipped Colby at Waterville by a score of 27-6. Rhode Island, the fifth member of the conference, lost to Worcester Tech at Worcester by a 26-18 score.

The Massachusetts Aggies-Amherst game furnished one surprise of the day, for although Amherst was favored to win, it was not foreseen that the Sabrinas would be victorious by so wide a margin as four touchdowns, at the same time keeping the Bay State aggrarians scoreless.

Despite this setback, however the Massachusetts Aggies will rank with New Hampshire as being the best in the New England conference. Amherst is not a conference member, and therefore the game will not affect the conference standing. To date, Massachusetts has defeated Bates, Norwich, Connecticut Aggies and Worcester Tech.

Led by the brilliant Eddie O'Connor, New Hampshire was forced to the limit to defeat Tufts 9-6 at Durham yesterday. O'Connor made all his team's points yesterday, scoring a touchdown and a goal from the field.

The Granite Staters failed to show the scoring power expected of them against Tufts, and on the basis of their performances yesterday, they can be conceded any appreciable edge in the approaching New Hampshire-Connecticut Aggie contest scheduled for Manchester, N. H., next Sunday.

This contest will play an important part in deciding whether top honors in the conference should be awarded to New Hampshire or the Massachusetts Aggies. Connecticut Aggies have already been tripped by the Bay State farmers and consequently they are not in the race, but if they succeed in downing New Hampshire, the Massachusetts team will have a clear claim to first honors. If New Hampshire can overwhelm Connecticut, however, then the Granite Staters will have a clearer claim for honors.

WEST IS CELEBRATING ITS INTERSECTIONAL VICTORIES

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—(AP)—The middle west tonight was celebrating the intersectional triumphs of three of its greatest football teams, with two of them spectacular victories. "Red" Grange over the east one of the greatest exhibitions of his career when Illinois humbled Pennsylvania 24 to 2, and Michigan tore the Navy to pieces for the remarkable score of 54 to 0. Notre Dame rounded out the day with a 13 to 6 victory over Georgia Tech.

In the mud of Franklin Field, Grange carried the ball 32 times for runs up to 55 yards and scored three of Illinois' four touchdowns, paving the way for the fourth.

The Wolverines showed as great a surprise in overwhelming the Navy. Benny Friedman, the Walter Johnson of the Michigan team in throwing forward passes, ran his string of consecutive goal kicks from eleven up to sixteen before his leg got tired and he missed two.

The annual Wisconsin-Minnesota contest ended in a tie for the third consecutive year when the Badgers opened a desperate rush in the last period to tie the score 12 to 12.

The Indiana-Northwestern game was full of closing thrills with the Hoosiers apparently winning a tie by their long march down the field under the leadership of Salmi, only to have Lewis kick a 25 yard field gold for Northwestern's 17 to 14 victory in the closing minute.

Iowa saved Nick Kutsch, the galloping cowboy of Sioux City, leading big ten point scorer for the coming Wisconsin and Minnesota games and defeated Wabash 28 to 7 largely with reserves.

Ohio State, however, had to use first string men almost to the final whistle to assure a 17 to 0 victory over Wooster.

HAS SOLVED MYSTERY OF "MOODUS NOISES"

MIDDLETOWN, NOV., 1—The "Moodus noises," strange rumblings of the earth which have occurred in the town of Moodus off and on for many years, was solved tonight by Professor William North Rice, well know geologist and professor emeritus at Wesleyan university. The latest noise occurred Thursday night when residents reported that dishes had rattled and pictures had moved on the walls.

Many explanations for these noises have been given in the past but none has proven satisfactory. Professor Rice said tonight that they were slight earthquakes. He explained that the mountains in this part of the country are comparatively old, and that the earth tremors are slight while in the west the mountains are comparatively young and are productive of false movements and more serious disturbances.

He could not explain why the earth shocks were felt at Moodus any more than they should be at Middletown or others parts of this section of the state.

Piles Disappear
No Cutting or Salves Needed

External treatments seldom cure Piles.

Nor do surgical operations.

The cause is inside—bad circulation.

The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send a fresh current through stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safe method. Ointments and cutting won't do it.

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., a specialist, set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in 1000 cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at Lee & Osgood Co., who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.

ACADEMY'S CRASHING ATTACK UPSETS CHAPMAN AND LOCAL ELEVEN WINS

Saturday afternoon at Morgan park, New London, before a big crowd of football fans, the Academy entirely outclassed Chapman Technical school of that city and won by the score of 34 to 13. Throughout practically the entire game the ball was in Chapman's territory, and the team lined down the river had to fight to the utmost to keep the local boys from scoring more than they did. The Academy's two touchdowns came within six minutes of play in the first quarter. The first one came after the N. F. A. team had marched down the field from their own thirty-five yard line to Chapman's two-yard line from where E. Brewer carried it over and Norm Courbois booted the goal for the point after touchdown. The second touchdown was made when, after an exchange of punts, the Academy beat Pheno Tombari around end for a beautiful run of thirty-five yards, through a broken field that brought the ball to Chapman's two-yard line. C. Brewer plunged through the line for the second touchdown and Norm Courbois again kicked a pretty goal.

Chapmans' initial touchdown was made in the second quarter on a fluke when Johnny Brown ran seventy five yards for a score. Their second touch-down was made by Kannenberg after Miller had intercepted an Academy forward pass. It took Chapman Tech four downs to make the five yards that separated them from the Academy's goal line.

The Academy team played a nice brand of football through the entire four quarters of the game. In the backfield Tombari made some pretty end runs while the Brewer brothers, Radio Ed and Clarence, were the stars of the game. These two came through with gains that netted the N. F. A. considerable ground. Courbois as quarter-back showed some nice football strategy that kept his opponents puzzled at all times. On the line Polsky, Marks and Stefano were the outstanding features with the remainder of their teammates playing a hard, steady game. Connell, who substituted for Polsky, when the latter was taken from the game due to an injury showed up fine. Ken (Tiny) Connals, only weighs two hundred and three pounds, and is about six feet tall. When he hit the opposing line they seemed to shrivel up and fade away. The center of the Academy line (center and guards) in the Chapman Tech game averaged about one hundred and ninety-five pounds to a man with tackles and ends only a little behind them in the matter of tipping the scales at a healthy rate. The local team made most of their gains through the line.

For Chapman Tech, Brown was the brightest star. He made several long runs that netted big gains for the New London team and, besides scoring one touchdown himself he brought the ball within easy scoring distance for the second. His failure to kick the goal after the first touchdown however, practically lost the game for Tech.

The following is the game by quarters:

First Quarter

Johnny Brown kicked off to Courbois who ran the ball forward ten yards before being downed. On the first play Radio Ed Brewer made three yards and Clarence Brewer on the following play also gained three yards through left tackle. Pheno Tombari went around the right end for three and a half yards. Chapman Tech was penalized five yards on the next play for being off side, making it first down. Academy's ball. C. Brewer went around left end for a three yard gain and Tombari on the second play made one yard around right end. C. Brewer was again sent around left end. This time for a pretty run that netted six yards for the N. F. A. Norm Courbois squeezed through the center of the line for a gain of a yard and a half and another first down. Clarence Brewer on an off tackle run around the left side of the line made four yards. Pheno Tombari went off right tackle for seven yards and a third first down for Norwich inside of two and a half minutes of play. C. Brewer tried an off tackle run that was stopped after a gain of two yard. Eddie Brewer was given the ball and he plunged through the center of the line for a pretty gain of eight yards. Norm Courbois again demonstrated some nice football strategy and this time went through center for another first down and a gain of seven yards. Pheno Tombari on a short run off left tackle brought the ball two yards nearer to Chapman's goal line. On the next play Radio Ed Brewer carried the ball across the line the Academy's first touchdown of the game. Courbois went back to the twenty yard line and easily kicked the goal for the point after touchdown.

Pheno Tombari on the kickoff sent the ball sailing lazily down the field to Aquillo who caught it on his own twenty-five yard line and was downed after gaining five yards. On their first chance to rush the ball a Chapman back fumbled and Academy's E. F. A. center fell on it. Academy's ball, first down. Tombari went around right end for a one yard gain. E. Brewer who on the next play carried the ball hit the center of the line for a four yard gain. Clarence Brewer went off left tackle for another four yard gain. Courbois tried to drop-kick the goal, but the ball fell short and Miller who caught it was downed in his tracks. Chapman Tech's ball, first down. M. Brown punted on the first play, but the ball was blocked by a Norwich player who failed to hold on to it and Knox of Chapman fell upon it, making it Chapman's ball again, first down. Brown again went back to punt and again the same play occurred. A Norwich player knocked the ball down and a Chapman man fell on it, making another first down for the New London team. Morris Brown made only half a yard on a run off right tackle. Capt. Kannenberg tried the same place and was only able to gain a yard more than Brown. M. Brown went back to his own ten yard line and punted to Courbois who ran the ball forward fifteen yards before being tackled and stopped. Academy's ball, first down. Pheno Tombari on the first play got away for the prettiest long run of the game making a run of thirty-five yards through a field strewn with Chapman players. Radio Ed Brewer went over the two yards before the goal on a line plunge that scored the second Academy touchdown of the game. Courbois again sent the ball between the cross-bars for the point after touchdowns on a neat drop-kick.

Pheno Tombari kicked off and Morris Brown caught the ball on Chapman's twelve-yard line where he was downed in his tracks by C. Brewer.

Kannenberg on a plunge through center gained a yard and a half. M. Brown was thrown before he had a chance to start running as the whistle ended the quarter.

Second Quarter

M. Brown punted to Courbois who ran the ball forward five yards before being downed by Kannenberg. Pheno Tombari went around right end for a one yard gain. Ed Brewer hit the center of the line and got only one more. C. Brewer on the next play lost three yards, Tombari was sent back and he punted to Everett who gained but eight yards before being stopped. M. Brown went around right end, gained twenty-five yards before being tackled by Courbois. Kannenberg failed to gain on the first play and on the following the N. F. A. was penalized five yards for offside. Chapman Tech fumbled the ball on the next play and Morris Brown, who recovered it was thrown for a two-yard loss. Chapman tried a forward pass that C. Brewer knocked down. Academy ball, first down. Courbous failed to gain on the first play and on the second Pheno Tombari gained two yards and a half through right tackle. Tombari went back and attempted to punt, but his kick was blocked and the ball bounded high into the air. Radio Ed Brewer came up from the best of Chapman men and caught the ball, making it first down and the ball still in Academy's possession. Norm Courbois went through center for four yards. C. Brewer went around left tackle for five more. Radio Ed hit center for three yards and first down. Ed Brewer went off left guard for a gain of only half a yard. C. Brewer went through center for five yards and then went around left end for one more. Tombari punted and the ball went off-side on Chapman Tech's twenty-five yard line. Miller plugged the middle of the line for a one yard gain. On the next play M. Brown sailed his way through left tackle and ran seventy-five yards for Chapman's first touchdown. He missed the goal by a fairly distance on the try after touchdown. Morris Brown kicked off to Sargent who gained eight yards before being downed Tombari went off left tackle for three yards. C. Brewer made two yards on a line plunge. Eddie Brewer plunged through center, picked himself up and ran nine yards before being downed. First down, Academy. Pheno Tombari went around right end for a gain of three yards. The Academy then attempted a forward pass that a Chapman player broke up. Tombari again went around right end and gained seven yards. C. Brewer on a center rush gained two and a half yards as the whistle blew ending the half. Score N. F. A. 14, Chapman Tech 6.

Third Quarter

Morris Brown kicked off to Eddie who was downed in his tracks. Pheno Tombari on a run around the right side of the line gained one and a half yards. C. Brewer gained the same distance through right tackle. On the next play his brother Ed plowed through the line for a consistent twelve yard run. Clarence Brewer went around right end for five yards and his brother on center rush gained four more. Tombari went through right tackle for a first down. Academy ball, first down. Eddie Brewer plunged through center making it first down. Norm Courbois again kicked a pretty goal. Pheno Tombari gained two yards through left tackle and Eddie Brewer on the next play made three yards and lost down. Radio Ed again took the ball and this time made five yards, never punching between center and tackle made a little over a yard. Eddie Brewer on an off center run made a yard and a half. Pheno Tombari on an off tackle run made three yards and first down. Eddie Brewer plunging through center. Eddie Brewer plunging through left guard made six yards. The Academy were off side and were penalized five yards. Tombari tried to shoot a forward to C. Brewer but the pass was intercepted. Chapman's ball, first down. Kannenberg went off left tackle for a gain of four yards. Miller hit center for another gain of four yards. Morris Brown went around left end for a long run that netted thirty yards to Chapman Tech. Kannenberg on the first play was thrown for a loss of one yard and Brown on the next play only gained two yards. Tombari blocked a forward pass and Chapman on their last play punted. C. Brewer and Pheno Tombari on the first two plays failed to gain. Radio Ed Brewer plunged through the center of the line for four yards. Tombari talked to Knox who was only able to gain three yards before an Academy man downed him. Brown made two yards on an end run around the left side of the line but Kannenberg on the next play met a stonewall and failed to gain an inch.

Fourth Quarter

Brown wanted to Courbois who ran the ball forward fifteen yards before being downed by Kannenberg. Pheno Tombari went around right end for a one yard gain. Ed Brewer hit the center of the line and got only one more. C. Brewer on the next play lost three yards, Tombari was sent back and he punted to Everett who gained but eight yards before being stopped. M. Brown went around right end, gained twenty-five yards before being tackled by Courbois. Kannenberg failed to gain on the first play and on the following the N. F. A. was penalized five yards for offside. Chapman Tech fumbled the ball on the next play and Morris Brown, who recovered it was thrown for a two-yard loss. Chapman tried a forward pass that C. Brewer knocked down. Academy ball, first down. Courbois failed to gain on the first play and on the second Pheno Tombari gained two yards and a half through right tackle. Tombari went back and attempted to punt, but his kick was blocked and the ball bounded high into the air. Radio Ed Brewer came up from the best of Chapman men and caught the ball, making it first down and the ball still in Academy's possession. Norm Courbois went through center for four yards. C. Brewer went around left tackle for five more. Radio Ed hit center for three yards and first down. Ed Brewer went off left guard for a gain of only half a yard. C. Brewer went through center for five yards and then went around left end for one more. Tombari punted and the ball went off-side on Chapman Tech's twenty-five yard line. Miller plugged the middle of the line for a one yard gain. On the next play M. Brown sailed his way through left tackle and ran seventy-five yards for Chapman's first touchdown. He missed the goal by a fairly distance on the try after touchdown. Morris Brown kicked off to Sargent who gained eight yards before being downed Tombari went off left tackle for three yards. C. Brewer made two yards on a line plunge. Eddie Brewer plunged through center, picked himself up and ran nine yards before being downed. First down, Academy. Pheno Tombari went around right end for a gain of three yards. The Academy then attempted a forward pass that a Chapman player broke up. Tombari again went around right end and gained seven yards. C. Brewer on a center rush gained two and a half yards as the whistle blew ending the half. Score N. F. A. 14, Chapman Tech 6.

WINDHAM TURNS BACK STRONG WILBY TEAM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 1.—Windham High school gridiron team overcame what was generally believed the last obstacle to closing a third consecutive season with the remarkable record of being undefeated. Saturday afternoon at Recreation Park here when Wilby High school of Waterbury was brought to grief on the local field by a score of 19 to 6. The outfit over which Windham triumphed has been heralded as the strongest and huskiest to ever represent the Waterbury school, but Windham cast all fears of spotting its clean record in the opening quarter when Rychling, left halfback sailed around the end from the three yard line for the initial touchdown. The goal kick was blocked. Thus was Waterbury in its first appearance in this city assured of a trying contest and several hundred fans received the assurance with cheers.

The second quarter, opening with the score 6 to 0 in Windham's favor was a feature period of the tussle. Captain Jack Nichols, right halfback started things moving with a 30-yard plunge through a network of interference which brought Windham well into the opponent territory. An aerial strategy failed, however, and Wilby gained possession of the ball. Progress slowed down as Wilby hammered the local ranks and suffered heavily, as it did throughout the entire encounter, from penalties for off-side and delay. Then Sawicki made the recovery of the pigskin for the Crimson and Blue and with but a few minutes to play Tommy Meikle, ace quarterback, broke loose for a 32-yard run to the goal line. He failed to kick the goal and the first half ended with Windham ahead, 12 to 0.

The last half opened with a sensation when two plays after the kick-off by Wilby, Captain Nichols whipped over 50 yards of ground and Windham's ball kissed the ground over the goal line for the third time. Meikle made the goal and with the score now 19 to 0 the game was put on ice and Wilby's only hope was to fight and not be returned scoreless. The Waterbury demonstration was poor, however for several minutes. Several forward passes were incompleted and in some instances possession of the ball was retained by bull-luck.

With but a few minutes left to play Wilby closed in on Windham's territory and Connelly, right halfback, surmounted the remaining few yards for Wilby's lone score. Wilby failed to kick the goal. Windham made a last desperate effort to come through for an additional six points and the promise looked bright with the Crimson and Blue on the 20-yard line, but a penalty for delaying the play placed Windham into the two-yard line and the game ended with the score 19 to 6.

On the whole, however, Wilby proved a formidable opponent and goes on record as being the first team to cross Windham's goal line on the home field for the first time since 1922. As stated previously Wilby was hampered by penalties and this further served as an asset to Windham. Wilby's backfield displayed tenacity and power in a series of line plunges. In weight the outfits compared favorably. What Windham lacked in height she made up in directness. In addition to Windham's entire backfield some of the outstanding feathre players during the encounter were Tomasco, Sawicki and Cohen.

The Lineups

TRYON STILL HOLDS LEAD IN SCORING

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—(By the Associated Press)—For the sixth consecutive week, Eddie Tryon, the Colgate captain, leads the east in the matter of individual scoring on the intersectional gridiron. Against the Michigan Aggies, Saturday, the Maroon leader was held to two points in kicks after touchdown but he is still 13 points ahead of his nearest rival, Lane of Dartmouth, who has scored 78 points.

Lane leads the east in the matter of touchdowns scored with 13, one more than Tryon, but the Colgate ace has the edge owing to his kicking ability. Tryon is followed with Graham of Fordham in kicking goals after touchdowns with 18.

"RED" GRANGE PROVES BEYOND DOUBT THAT HE IS FOOTBALL'S GREATEST BACK

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Any hesitation that the east may have in placing the laurel wreath upon the sorrel-thatched head of Red Grange or any skepticism as to the greatness of this artful dodger of the gridiron has vanished in the wake of the meteoric swatch he cut through the mud of Franklin field, where he led the Illinois attack that crushed Pennsylvania and simultaneously shattered any national championship hopes entertained by the red and blue.

Grange, averaging more than a first down—about eleven yards—for every one of the thirty-two times he handled the ball, fully lived up to the most extravagant claims previously made for him and established beyond question his place among the greatest of all time. Seasoned critics, veterans who had seen in their prime such stars as Willie Heston, Jim Thorpe, New Mahan, Ted Coy, Charley Barrett George Gipp and Eddie Kaw, were a unit in proclaiming Grange the greatest ground-gainer, the most elusive runner for them all, and when all the evidence for the Illinois has been weighed, there isn't much to dispute these claims.

The circumstances of Grange's achievements made them loom all the greater, for he triumphed over obstacles at every turn. Before the most critical eyes he has ever faced, he smashed forward on a boggy field that was expected to slow him up and ripped to pieces a defense that was regarded as the strongest in the east, one that had been especially drilled to check his charges.

Grange had remarkable support, too, in fact the all-around brilliance of the Illinois team, outplaying Penn at every turn was almost as amazing to eastern critics, as Red himself, for as the Illini played yesterday, it was difficult to understand how they had been beaten three straight times in the middle west. They looked unbeatable, as a combination as well as through Grange's individual brilliance.

Grange's marvelous work was the overshadowing feature of a day of gridiron strife unprecedented so far this season for its startling upsets in the east, where the smoke of battle cleared from scenes that scrambled title hopes in ruthless fashion and forced an entire re-alignment of calculations.

Penn's defeat, her first after five straight victories and after successive triumphs over Brown, Yale and Chicago, was no more sensational than Yale's smashing defeat of the army, which had conquered Notre Dame, gone into the bowl unbeaten and with high hopes of pinning the bulldog to earth.

Another previous unbeaten eastern army fell a victim to blood-thirsty wolverines in the west, where Michigan popped up the navy by the staggering margin of 24-0 and helped square a few intersectional accounts.

These were the most astonishing developments of the conflict that left only three undefeated elevens in the top flight of the eastern list. Two of these, Dartmouth and Syracuse had all they could do to take the measure of Brown and Penn state, respectively, where they had been overwhelming favorites beforehand, while Cornell, though seeing its goal line crossed for the first time, demonstrated far more superiority over Columbia than the score of 17-14 indicated.

Another elimination is in prospect for this situation, for Cornell and Dartmouth meet next Saturday at Hanover in a tussle which, so far as championship claims are concerned, will eclipse the first of the "big three" tilts between Harvard and Princeton at Palmer stadium. Pointing for this traditional game, both the Crimson and Tiger yesterday displayed further weaknesses against William and Mary and Swarthmore, both, scored on and had pressed to win, approach the hard pressed to win, approach the season's climax with scant prospect of measuring up to the standard of play which has cleaned up against these old rivals for two years in a row and now seems headed for a comeback that may force the blue back into championship consideration despite a narrow defeat by Penn.

Syracuse now boasts the only uncrossed goal line in the east, for Cornell, Bucknell and New York university all passed from this category in yesterday's fray. Bucknell and N. Y. U. went down before the attacking power of Holy Cross and Fordham, the latter two outfits at the same time maintaining their undefeated records, along with Washington and Jefferson, Penn Military college, which added Rutgers to its victims, and Boston college.

WINDHAM HAS WONDERFUL THREE-SEASON RECORD

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 1.—With the victory over Wilby High school of Waterbury at Recreation Park in Willimantic last Saturday the Windham High school gridders have to their credit a triumphant record which is considered remarkable in football circles. Since 1923 the Crimson and Blue has not tasted defeat and with the defeat of the formidable, Wilby eleven the concern existing as to the possibility of closing the 1925 season without the stigma of defeat stands practically assured, although pessimists voice the reminder that the season is not yet closed. Windham will meet South Manchester High next Saturday. The local eleven has engaged in six games to date this year, four resulting in deadlocks and two in victory, Middletown High two weeks ago and Wilby last Saturday. The undefeated record comes in for additional comment in the fact that since 1923 Windham has registered to date a total of 591 points against their opponents' 47 during that period. The Windham High school football record since 1923:

Sept. 28—6, Westerly 6.	1923

ACADEMY TO PUT IN WEEK OF HARD PRACTICE

Coach Whitney is starting his men off today on a hard week's work in preparation for the Academy's game with Bulkeley Saturday in New London. The team is to have the hardest week's work of the season this next four days and are expected to be in the very best of condition when they enter the field of battle Saturday. The team from down the river is out to make up for the defeats they suffered at the hands of the Academy last spring in baseball while the local team expects to go through the remainder of the season without losing a game.

Colonials Beat Coast Guard

The New London Colonials used a forward pass to advantage in the second quarter of the game with the Coast Guard team at Morgan Park, Sunday and as a result emerged a 6 to 0 winner over the guards. A forward pass, St. Germain to King, resulted in a pretty run by King for a touchdown.

EPIDEMIC OF PESSIMISM APPEARS TO HAVE HIT FOOTBALL COACHES

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Fandom paused on the crest of a seething football sea tonight to record new triumphs for pessimism as a factor of growing power in shaping the season's sport results.

Time was when modesty, steeled to quiet courage, had been the lion on the field of play. That period began to pass out more than a decade ago, giving place to the advent of outspoken confidence with the advent of the confident Jole Ray on the track, the candid Benny Kauff on the diamond, the positive young Richards at the net. With them entered the ballyhoo of pugilism and a demand from the growing athletic audience for a breezy, intimate interview.

It remained for a cloudy coaching countenance from Ithaca to frame a new order of things. For Gil Dobie has apparently ushered in an era of pessimism, and his spirit has spread with alarming rapity and direful results in the last few weeks.

Football accepted the frank predictions of Dobie with grins. Gil could predict defeat for Cornell and be disbelieved with reason better than any coach in the game. For Dobie teams usually won, and won by such impressive margins that it would seem even the glum Ithaca coach himself must smile his way out of gloomy retreat.

Then came Knute Rockne and Notre Dame with a bolt of Dobie blackness. Rockne, with a champion team and a great record behind him, dispatched to the East a message that Notre Dame would be humbled by Army. But Rockne, unlike Dobie, was not a false prophet. Notre Dame was not only beaten; the titleholders of 1924 were routed.

Dobie's dark banner had claimed a follower in frankness, but apparently not in successful manipulation of pessimism as a psychological vehicle to victory. Sportdom, refusing to believe and cherishing faith in Rockne's magic, looked for a Notre Dame victory and went away disappointed.

Then came shot or bolt of pessimism—shaft, which tonight had split the eastern gridiron dope pail in half and spilled a stream of jolting figures which turned the Atlantic gridiron campaign into a dope swamp.

The new disciple of gloom, Coach John J. McEwan of Army, has reaped of the seed of sorrow as Rockne reaped. "I think Yale has an excellent chance to beat us," was the mildest forecast of the West Point mentor. And Yale fulfilled his prediction. The cadets were stampeded even as they had routed Notre Dame two weeks before.

The wave of pessimism last week extended even to pugilism, gripping a one-sided heavyweight fight between Harry Wills and Floyd Johnson in Newark, N. J., at a cost of several thousand dollars to some 10,000 spectators who paid to see the forecast of metropolitan fistic critics fulfilled in a one round knockout victory for the Negro.

Column upon column of pessimism was written by experts who could see nothing but quick and decisive defeat for Johnson, but New Jersey proved willing to pay to refirst-hand evidence. The western heavyweight, admitted by all close students of the ring game to have passed from a contending position before the compelling fists of Jess Willard and Jack Renault, proved an even easier victim for Wills than the forecasts of the metropolitan press had pictured. Two minutes and two seconds were enough to send the westerner back to his ploughs.

Jim Thorpe may not have come directly under the gloom spell last week, but the great Sac and Fox Indian at least succeeded in stunning the athletic world by retiring from the football arena at the height of the season —vanquished by Dan Cupid and Father Time after 15 brilliant campaigns as an amateur and professional star.

Thorpe's passing calls back memorable achievements by the Carlisle hero that would fill a book—stories of sensational runs, of marvellous punts and drop-kicks, and of terrific line charges on the football field which earned him All-American distinction in 1911 and 1913. It recalls an even greater record as an all-around track athlete, including winning of the Olympic pentathlon and decathlon, titles he later lost on charges of professionalism. It brings back, too, tales of powess at lacrosse and on the diamond, although in the latter field Thorpe's greatest had been dimmed by his marvellous performances as a football player.

The powerful Indian knew only one master. John McGraw was forced to restrain Thorpe from bruising members of the New York Giants in friendly bouts by forbidding him to joust with the other players, but Glenn Warner, Jim's old Carlisle coach, compelled the Indian's respect by conquering him in hand-to-hand combat.

Their bout followed a game in 1912 between Carlisle and W. and J. News came back to Warner that Thorpe had broken training. No one dared cope with the Indian, who was terrorizing the section, until Warner went forth and grappled with his backfield star. A clean knockout by Warner finished the fight and completely subdued the Carlisle star.

AGGIE FRESHMEN LOSE TO SPRINGFIELD YEARLINGS

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Conn., Oct. 31.—Eastern Connecticut boys played on the Connecticut Aggie freshman team that lost a close and hard-fought battle to the Springfield college freshmen here this afternoon. The score was 7-6, and the issue was decided when Cunningham, of Springfield, made good his attempt for the extra point after the touchdown. Connecticut had scored first, but the Aggie attempt for the extra point went wide of the posts.

Eastern Connecticut boys who got into the game include quarterback Williams from Willimantic; right guard Gilmart from Norwich; right end Hewitt from New London, and fullback Allard from Plainfield.

The Summary:

Springfield F.		Conn. F.
Hooper	Left End	Wilson
Jenkins	Left Tackle	Crombie

CONN. AGGIES ROMP THROUGH LIGHT MANHATTAN TEAM FOR 19 TO 0 VICTORY

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Conn., Oct. 31.—Displaying a powerful running attack, the Connecticut Aggies swept through the Manhattan eleven for a 19-0 victory here this afternoon, it was the last home game of the season for Coach Dole's men, and the team's victory was an impressive one. The Aggies outplayed the New Yorkers in all except the second period, when the Manhattan team penetrated to the Connecticut six yard line by using a brilliant forward passing attack, though their drive was stopped at that point.

Connecticut's rushing and kicking was far superior to that displayed by the New Yorkers, though in forward passing the Metropolitan eleven gave as pretty an exhibition as has been seen in some time, and it far exceeded the efforts of the Storrs team.

Quarterback Cohalan did most of the throwing for his team, and his bullet-like heaves went straight and true to the arms of either Captain Dunne or Hayes for, substantial gains time and time again. Manhattan lacked a powerful running attack to combine with its passing game, however, and when the Aggies finally checked the aerial game, their whole offense was stopped. Captain Dunne of Manhattan got away for two good gains, but his work in this respect was not consistent, as the Connecticut forward wall kept him in check most of the time.

The game was marred by constant wrangling on the part of the New Yorkers, who questioned many of Referee Kehoe's decisions. At one time they drew a penalty for a too prolonged discussion of one decision.

Connecticut won the toss, and elected to receive, taking the east end of the field. Cohalan booted the ball into the arms of Quarterback Schofield, who taking it on his own fifteen yard line, made a pretty runback to the fifty yard stripe.

Connecticut got right down to business from the start, and started a drive that carried them straight into the New Yorkers' territory. Alternating Filmer, Makofski and Moreland, Schofield sent them through the Manhattan line for substantial gains and a first down. Makofski followed with a plunge through Manhattan's center for three yards, and Moreland went off tackle for seventeen yards and another first down. Schofield then took the ball around left end for a pretty run that carried him to the Manhattan seven yard stripe, where the New Yorkers took time out. On resuming play, Aggies began right where they left off, and on the fourth down, three minutes after the kickoff, Makofski plunged across the goal line for the first score of the game. Moreland dropkicked the extra point.

Manhattan elected to receive and Acting Captain Nanfeldt booted the ball over the goal line for a touchback. Three attempts at Connecticut's line netted the New Yorkers no gain, and they punted to Moreland, who was downed in his tracks.

Schofield was spilled by Sheriden on the next play as he was about to catch a forward pass, and Referee Kehoe ruled it was Connecticut's ball and a first down at the point where the foul was committed. Smith, Manhattan's right end, threw Moreland for an eight yard loss on the next play. Two bucks failed to gain, and it was fourth down, eighteen yards to go. From a punt formation, Moreland was given the signal to pass to Schofield. The latter was covered, and instead of throwing the ball, Moreland ran, covering thirty-five yards before he was brought down. Makofski ripped through the New York right side of the line for five yards, Schofield followed with four more, and Moreland made it first down. On the next play Manhattan was off side, drawing a five yard penalty. Moreland went through left guard for six yards and a touchdown on the next play. A forward pass was tried in an attempt to make the point after the touchdown, but Manhattan batter down. The quarter ended following Nanfeldt's kicking off to Manhattan and a couple of futile attempts at the Storrs line.

The New Yorkers looked good in the second quarter, and it looked as though they would score through the skillful use of their overhead game. Hayes the Waterbury boy playing fullback for Manhattan, started things when he tore around Connecticut's left end for eighteen yards. Then the Cohalan to Dunne or Hays combination got started, and using short bullet-like passes Manhattan soon worked well into the Storrs team's territory. The New Yorkers went straight to the Aggies' six yard stripe, where they lost the ball on downs by a matter of inches. Connecticut punted the ball out to the forty yard line and out of danger. THIEVES STEALING LIMOUSINE FOILED AT NEW LONDON RESIDENCE

NEW LONDON, Nov. 1.—A bold attempt was made Saturday evening to steal a Locomobile limousine from the garage of Henry E. Russell, 1,001 Ocean avenue, the thieves being scared away after they had succeeded in removing the car from the garage to the driveway of the Russell home.

Shortly before 8 o'clock Mrs. Russell was attracted to a window by an unusual noise and peering into the yard observed three men backing the automobile from the garage. Mrs. Russell hastened to a telephone and communicated her discovery to the police. Patrolman Edward Daniels was dispatched in the police car to the Russell home and upon his arrival there the Russell automobile was found in the driveway, where he thieves had abandoned it. Patrolman Daniels made an investigation and determined that entrance to the garage had been gained by forcing the door with a blunt instrument; it was probably the noise of opening the garage door that was heard by Mrs. Russell and brought the detection of the thieves while they were at work.

When Patrolman Daniels was speeding to the Russell residence the police car, in passing through Bank street, collided with an automobile owned and operated by Arthur Elgart, 53 Jordan street. Elgart reported the accident at the police station, but when Patrolman Daniels returned from the Russell residence he declared that Elgart was responsible for the accident, as the latter was starting his machine from the curb and failed to give a signal that he was about to guide the automobile into the line of traffic, with the result that the police car side-swiped the Elgart automobile. The latter machine was slightly damaged, having a disfigured fender.

The police have solved the mystery surrounding the burglarizing of the gymnasium located in the Bacon block, 20 State street, of which Joseph H. Connelly is the proprietor. As a result of the recovery of the greater part of the athletic equipment that was stolen, it is highly improbable that the guilty youths will be punished. Following the break, which resulted in boxing gloves, punching bag, dumb bells and wall exercise weights and Indian clubs being stolen, Sergeant John Cavanaugh was assigned to the case.

It was anticipated when the identity of the guilty parties was revealed that the thieves would be recognized as frequenters and users of the gymnasium. This proved to be correct, for Sergeant Cavanaugh immediately got practically all of the plunder in an Atlantic street house and a Colchester avenue residence. The plunder was taken to the police station, but it is understood that Connelly will not press a charge against the young men accused of committing the burglary.

The funeral of Glenville W. Phillips, well-known local musician, whose death occurred Friday evening at his residence, 105 Montauk avenue, took place this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the First Church of Christ and was attended by many mourners, including a delegation of the musicians' union, members of which organization acted as bearers. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Homeyn Danforth, pastor of the church. The floral tributes were beautiful. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Patrolman Brexton Hill has leased the former Charles R. Stoll residence, Bank street, and will take possession Nov. 15

An automobile of the commercial type, owned by the Troy Laundry, Bank street, was wrecked late Saturday night when it was operated away from its parking place by either George Sullivan, 25, of 49 Warren street or George Kelly, 22, of 46 West Main street. Both young men, who were found with the wrecked automobile and also admitted being passengers in the machine, were taken into custody, charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor although each denied operating the car. This morning Kelly's father, Thomas Kelly, qualified as surety on the bonds of $150 each for the bondsman's son and Sullivan, for his appearance in the police court Monday morning. Kelly gave his occupation as a plumber and Sullivan stated his occupation to be that of a painter. The latter was never a printer, but did work for a short time as an apprentice. He was arrested a few weeks ago on a charge of intoxication, but was not penalized, being allowed his liberty after having received a severe reprimand from the court.

The automobile was parked on Bank street shortly after 11 o'clock by William J. Tracey, 65 Denison avenue, an employe of the Troy Laundry, presumably going to a pool room. While Tracey played pool it is alleged that either Sullivan or Kelly decided on the idea of using the automobile for a ride, and that both entered the car and drove away with it. While passing through Ocean avenue, near Lawrence hospital the car collided with a telephone pole and was disabled. The accident was witnessed by W. White, 11 Front street, who informed Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Patrolman Edward Daniels, who were sent to the location of the accident that there were no other occupants of the machine and that Sullivan and Kelly alighted from the car when the crash occurred. Tracey later appeared at the police station and made it known that the wrecked car was in his charge until it was driven from its parking place while he played pool.

Frederick Edwards, 32 Walbach street, reported to the police Saturday night that a storage battery had been stolen from his automobile while the car was parked in front of his residence.

Henry Tiede, of Groton, and Master William Brutzman, Blackhall street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were dismissed Saturday.

The funeral of Miss Katherine C. Barker was held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at her residence, Broad street extension, Waterford, the services being conducted by Rev. Charles F. Spaulding, pastor of the Methodist church. The bearers were Alton T. Miner, Stephen A. Prentis, James N. Sterry and William W. Gordon, the last named of Hazardville. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery. Miss Barker and her sister, the late Miss Minnie Barker, were for many years cottagers at Willimantic Camp grounds.

Mrs. Eunice J. Smith, widow of John Smith, died Saturday at Hillside home, where she had been a patient many years. Mrs. Smith, who was of advanced years, is survived by several nephews and nieces.

An automobile owned and driven by Wilfred B. Hoggatt, 345 Broad street, and a machine owned and operated by William Shropowitz, 551 Bank street, were in collision Saturday evening on Huntington street corner of Church street. Both cars were damaged and each driver claimed the other was responsible for the crash. Neither driver suffered injury.

Eugene Sullivan, 26, of 76 Harrison street, was taken into custody early this morning by Patrolman Patrick Sheehan charged with breach of the peace. He furnished a bond of $50 for his appearance in the police court Monday morning. Sullivan was on Main street, shortly after 2 o'clock and engaged in a row with the officer, with the result that when Sullivan refused to go to his home he was placed under arrest. He has been in the police court on numerous occasions.

Coast Guard sailors evidently were imbued with the idea of celebrating Hallowe'en by indulging in strong drink Saturday night, and as a result two of the bluejackets stationed at the state pier were taken into custody late Saturday night. One is Antone Thomas, 23, who went to the Capitol theatre during the final performance and was so noisy that he had to be taken from the seating space. When taken to the lobby Thomas was so abusive that Patrolman William Stanice, who was on duty at the motion picture house caused Thomas to be landed in a cell at the police station.

The other sailor was Henry Martinez, attached to the destroyer McCall. He was placed under arrest by Patrolman William Riordan on Bank street when Martinez was boisterous from too liberal use of strong drink. Thomas and Martinez will be presented in the police court Monday morning.

A three-handed battle between negresses occurred on Douglass street late this afternoon when Viola Mayo, 25, of 20 High street; Sallie Hamilton, alias Hesters, 27, of 25 Douglass street, and Amanda McKee, 45, of 115 Main street, engaged in battle. The trio occasioned so much attention as to bring the police to the scene of the conflict, Patrolman William Riordan and James McKenna taking the three women into custody. They were released later when Edward W. Jones qualified as surety on the bonds of the accused. Both the Mayo and Hamilton women are married, the former being a laundress and the latter a housekeeper, while the McKee woman is a widow and is employed as a cook. All three have police court records.

Lieutenant of Police James C. Sullivan recently promoted to that office from Desk Sergeant to take the place of former Lieutenant Benjamin Beebe, the latter retired a year ago, began his new duties this evening as head of the night force. Patrolman William T. Babcock, who was also promoted to desk sergeant because of the advancement of Lieut. Sullivan, commenced his new duties today. Desk Sergeant James D. Gaffney, who has been acting lieutenant a year and Patrolman Timothy C. Sullivan, who has been acting desk sergeant during the same period, resumed their former duties, Gaffney going back to desk sergeant duties and Sullivan being assigned to a patrol.

Police Sergeant Patrick Murphy was absent from duty tonight, having been summoned to New York bearing of the death Saturday of a relative.

J. L. Saunders, 250 Montauk avenue, complained to the police this evening that while his automobile was parked in the yard of his home Saturday night a thief visited the auto and stole a claxon horn

Fred W. Johnson and his brother, Victor, were taken into custody at Montville this afternoon by State Police Officer Bernard Kenerson, Groton barracks, charged with breach of the peace. The pair are prisoners at the New London police station tonight awaiting their being arraigned before Justice of the Peace Oscar Church in Montville tomorrow. The brothers had been drinking and one was armed with a shotgun and apparently had the gun in his possession to use in case he encountered an acquaintance. Johnson entertained the idea that the acquaintance had done the former an injustice. At least that was the impression deduced from Johnson's conversation with Officer Kenerson.

WM. J. EBERSOLE KILLED BY TRAIN NEAR WATERFORD

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 1—William J. Ebersole, 39, employed by the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad as a special agent under Captain Edward Kelley, in charge of the local force, was killed early this morning when struck by a train between Millstone and Waterford. He is survived by his wife and five children. Ebersole had been employed in the police department of the railroad only since Oct. 2. Prior to that time he was a chief petty officer stationed at the submarine base and received an honorable discharge about six weeks ago.

Ebersole was assigned to work in the vicinity of the Waterford station the past few nights in an endeavor to detect the culprit who has frequently caused railroad ties to be placed upon the rails at that point. He went to Waterford during the early evening and it is believed that he stepped from one set of tracks to avoid being struck by an approaching train and did not hear or observe the approach of another train on the opposite rails. Two trains, one a passenger, are known to have passed at the point where Ebersole's body was found and it is believed that one of these trains ran down the special agent.

The body was found about 7 o'clock by a track walker, who communicated his find to the towerman at Waterford station. It was identified as that of the special agent without difficulty. The man had a fractured skull and a fractured leg. Ebersole's hat and his lunch box were found a considerable distance from where the body was discovered. Dr. Ross E. Black, acting medical examiner of the town of Waterford, after conducting an investigation and deciding that death had been caused by accident, gave permission for the removal of the body to an undertaking establishment.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

"Accept our invitation to secure amazing bargains at our Friendship Sale of furniture and receive, as a gift, your carfare to and from your residence"—was the unique offer made to the public within a radius of 50 miles, Friday, by the management of the Hurlbut-Bosse Corp., of Willimantic. The Friendship Sale will continue until November 14 and the exchanges of quality values as compared to the prices indicate that the sale is everything that the name "Friendship" implies.

The feature of a reimbursement of carfare to out-of-town customers is an original one locally and is attracting wide attention. At any time during the fifteen day sale the public is invited to come to Willimantic, visit the Hurlbut-Bosse Corp., store at 814 Main street, select needs and notify the clerk as to the place of residence. The cost of traveling will then be returned to the customer. Delivery of merchandise will be made anywhere and promptly in the company's fleet of trucks.

LYCEUM THEATER

A company in which the ensemble work is perfectly proportioned as that of the famous companies sent on tour by Lester Wallack, Daniel Frohman, Charles Frohman and Augustin Daly will present Seventh Heaven, John Golden's drama of love and thrill which will be the attraction at Lyceum, New London, Thursday, Friday, Saturday, Nov. 5, 6, 7, with a matinee Saturday.

The company was chosen and directed by Mr. Golden personally, who believes that any organization which he sends on tour should carry either the original New York production or an exact duplicate of it and a company artistically the equal of any company chosen for Broadway. The company is one of the strongest ever sent on tour by the manager, and because of the importance of this play, Mr. Golden was not content to choose his leading players from the usual channels. Instead he induced Ann Forrest, who became famous in motion pictures as Nora of "A Winter Comedy" to assume the role of Diane and to affix her signature to a contract for a series of stage productions under his management. Her success in Seventh Heaven last season was truly remarkable. For the romantic, colorful role of Chico, the street-waster, Mr. Golden went to the Theater Guild, Paris, for Louis D'Arclay, who had made his first appearance with Madame Rejane's repertoire company.

Seventh Heaven was written by Austin Strong. Its scenes are laid in the Paris slum known as The Hole in the Sock. Its characters are Parisians of that district and its theme is human courage.

HEAR ORTHOPHONIC VICTROLA TODAY AT PLAUT-CADDEN'S

The people of Norwich will today have their first opportunity to hear the much discussed Orthophonic Victrola, which acoustical engineers declare represents an advance of 100 per cent in the efficiency of musical reproduction. Helping Europe

More than $300,000,000 annually is sent by immigrants in the United States to countries abroad. When it is considered that many other millions are left in Europe by American tourists, it is evident that these countries derive a rather large income from America over and above what they receive for the goods the export or from loans. Italy receives by far the most of these remittances, or about $10,000,000. About $80,000,000, it is estimated, goes to Germany, some $30,000,000 to Poland, and $25,000,000 to Russia.

Palace Theatre

Produced on an elaborate scale with a cast of recognized stars, the Allan Dwan-Paramount production, "Night Life of New York," which opened at the Palace theatre yesterday, is just about the most colorful and entertaining metropolitan story that has yet reached the screen.

Featured in the leading roles of the production, which was adapted by Paul Schofield from an original story by Edgar Selwyn, are Rod La Rocque, Dorothy Gish, Ernest Torrence and George Beckathorne.

The picture brings Torrence to the screen in the role of an unusually successful westerner who is dead set against New York city because of a series of set-backs he suffered there—in affairs of both business and the heart. Rod La Rocque, playing his son Ronald Bentley, just because he has been forbidden ever to go there, is of course to hit the "big town." He's absolutely useless in business, and after an affair with an actress in town, the father begins to think that it might be a good idea after all to let him have a taste of the white lights district and make him as sick of the place that he'll never want to go there again.

So it is that we next find Ronald more or less firmly established in one of Gotham's leading hotels. His first adventure is a flirtation with the pretty telephone operator in his hotel. He takes to her thinneditely because of the way she sasses him back when he gets fresh over the phone.

Ben Bentley, Sr., had foreseen all possibilities of his son's falling for some chorus girl and has it all fixed with Carrie Reed, the actress Ronald had met back home, to "frame" the boy. There's a nice little check in it for her.

Subsequent events bring it about that young Bentley is involved in a jewel theft. The father thinks it's all part of his little plot against the boy but just-loots it to town when he's informed differently. Meg (Dorothy Gish), the telephone operator, tells him the whole story after she had gotten a confession out of her younger brother. He did it in order to get enough money to go west to recover his health, she says. The boy is promised clemency if he will hand over his jewels for has accomplice comes in and thinking the other man is trying to double-cross him, he kills him. Ronald is released and the thief arrested.

Young Bentley has had enough of New York and goes back to Cinc City —Meg with him, while the father, who is now all taken up with Ronald's actress-friend, Carrie, remains behind to "do the town." As he says himself, "For thirty years I've done New York an injustice. Now I'm going to make up for it."

George Beckathorne has the role of Meg's brother. Arthur Housman is the other crook, and Helen Lee Worthing plays Carrie. Riley Hatch also has a prominent role in the supporting cast.

"Night Life of New York" is a story of New York taken entirely "on the spot" and includes actual scenes at the famous El Fey club, the Hotel Commodore, etc.

EAST THOMPSON

Mrs. Elizabeth Bixby took a number of W. C. T. U. members to the convention held at Middletown.

Miss Ann Hoyle is boarding with Mr. and Mrs. Elisha Perry in South Woodstock for the winter.

Mrs. Abbie C. Buell has returned to Petersham, Mass., to spent the winter with her son, Charles and his family. The change was made on account of the change in the pastorate of Rev. J. R. Miller who is to move to Moodus. Mr. Miller expects to leave here the second week in November.

Mrs. H. Soper spent the day Tuesday with her sister, Mrs. Ellen Botham in Webster, Mass.

Miss Clara Huntington a missionary in India spoke at the missionary meeting in Grosvenordale Wednesday.

Miss Huntington who has been on a visit with friends and relatives in this vcinity for several weeks will soon leave for the west to spend some time with her mother, who is in feeble health before returning to India.

FRANCE PROTECTING CAVE MAN HOMES

France has taken steps to protect the prehistoric art of the cave man from damage by modern vandals, Dr. C. E. Resser, geologist of the United States National Museum, who has just returned from the Dordogne cave region of southern France, reports that the government now requires that the caves be locked to prevent unauthorized visits of sightseers who have formerly frequently written or carved their names and initials on the paintings and drawings made probably 20,000 years ago by primitive artists as part of religious rites.

In the pricipal cave man shrine, containing colored animal pictures, the low narrow galleries in which the cave artist worked by the dim light of his stone lamp, electric lights have now been installed to avoid the damage from the smoking candles.

Rope Bridges in Far East

In Kashmir the rivers are crossed by rope bridges made from hazel twigs and suspended from stout poles. Y-shaped branches, six feet apart, join a lower rope and the two hand ropes. Asia Magazine tells us.

Twisted bamboo is used for the rope bridges of western China. Momentum carries the traveler, who holds on to a slide, well past the apex of the rope; for the rest of the way he must use brawn.

"The Aviator's Eye"

The mechanical eye of the aviator's camera is adding materially to our knowledge of prehistoric man. Primitive disturbances of the soil may have disappeared so completely as to leave no trace whatever on the surface, and yet are plainly visible from airship. The so-called "Avenue" leading from the famous monuments of Stonehenge, near Salisbury, England, has now been traced as far as the River Avon by means of aerial photographs and later verifications made by pedestrians.

German Badge Trade Up

Hindenburg's return and the recent order permitting the wearing of old army uniforms have stimulated the trade in badges, insignia and decorations, which for several years had languished in Germany. A uniform without decorations is almost a contradiction in terms. Moreover, in the old days it was necessary to produce documentary evidence of one's right to wear certain decoration. Today, these orders being no longer official, any one may invest in the black eagle, the iron cross, or any other sign of distinction.

Auto Has 2,500 Parts

The untrained mechanine who would take an automobile apart and hope to put it together again would have a similar difficulty as beset a novice when he investigates a watch. The average automobile of well known make contains between 2,400 and 2,500 separate and distinct parts.

Insane self-love is sometimes called jealousy

SON OF STRESEMANN IS COMPOSER OF NOTE

Wolfgang Stresemann, 21-year-old son of German's ex-chancellor and present minister for foreign affairs, is not only a law student, about to receive his degree, but a composer of distinction. Recently the Summer orchestra at Friedrichsroda performed for the first time young Stresemann's First Symphony in G Major. The music was composed last year when the author was 20 and shows the strong influence of Richard Strauss.

The "I told you so" of his friends adds to the hardiness of the way of the transgressor.

Light-Producing Alloys

Long before the modern process of using chemical preparations fire was kindled by the use of flintstones, which by concussion emit sparks. This method of lighting inflammable materials has been restored by the employment of other metals producting under the action of a shock sparks better than those obtained with the ordinary steel and flint. Metallic uranium will ignite a mixture of fire and firedamp. Scientists have discovered that this mixture must remain a certain length of time in contact with the uranium before igniting. The phenomenon lays in its delay to take fire; this delay of 10 seconds at the temperature of 650 degrees, diminishes in proportion as the temperature increases, for a delay of only one second the temperature must be increased to 1,000 degrees.

The temperature of the sparks from uranium is then above 1,000 degrees. Sparks forced from iron whether by an ordinary steel and flint or by the stroke of a miner's tool will not ignite the mixture of air and firedamp.

Sparks from uranium will readily ignite cotton wicks saturated with alcohol or gasoline. It was decided that this metal could be utilized for making very simple lighters, by placing a piece of uranium in a movable support pressed by a spring against a steel surface covered with points arranged in such a way that the sparks produced would be projected into the gas jet or on the wick to be lighted.

This very ingenious idea which was not applied because of the high price of uranium, was later realized because of the utilization of the substance cerium.

Some years ago Prof. Auer attracted attention to cerium by a patent concerning an alloy of cerique metals with iron; by this alloy small pyrophoric sticks under slight shocks will emit very hot sparks.

A new alloy, the Kunheim alloy, is composed of cerique metals with the addition of iron and magnesia. It ignites more readily than the preceding alloy, and may be utilized for lighting gas jets, while the Auer metal is especially adapted to pocket lighters.

Pays to Take Vacation

Thirty million people fools vacations this year in the United States, the average period being two weeks and the average expenditure being $100. If these figured, compiled by the Washington, D. C., representative of a news syndicate, be correct, and there seems no reason to question the fact, the vacations cost $3,000,000,000. This does not include perennial vacationists of the very affluent class, those whose outings spread from season to season and from resort to resort, but simply the two out of three persons gainfully employed, as listed by Census Bureau estimates, who took their outings in accordance with annual custom.

The time and the money seem to have been well spent, says the Aberdeen (S. D.) World, if work be the chief aim of man's existence, there must be, in any well-ordered life, provision for relaxation. That idea did not always have as wide acceptance as prevails today. A generation or two ago, if two-thirds of this country had quit work in one year to go on vacations, it is likely that vast numbers of the pleasure seekers would have found

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW

NEW YORK, Nov. 1—Heavy speculation in stocks which reached its maximum interest in the motor shares, practically all of which soared to their highest prices in a year, no longer overshadowed all other developments in this week's financial and commodity markets. Both the rail and industrial "averages" attained new record high levels in a wild outburst of bullish enthusiasm, apparently based on the continued ease of the credit situation, reports of expanding business in basic lines of industry, unusually high current earnings of automobile companies and the announcement of a series of increased and extra dividends.

Bond prices held relatively steady although heavy liquidation took place in the United States government issues on the theory that the prospective reduction in income taxes would permit more profitable employment of surplus funds in other securities. Meanwhile government bonds rallied on the announcement of revised debt agreement and St. Paul issues gathered strength on a report that over 5 per cent. of the bondholders had assented to the Kuhn-Loeb-National City plan.

Commodity markets disclosed extreme irregularity. Cotton broke below 19 cents a pound to the lowest level in over 3 years in further imitation of another upward revision of the government crop estimate. Coffee futures mounted to a new high level for the year while raw sugar fell below two cents a pound to the lowest price in nearly four years. Wheat closed about a cent lower after a temporary outburst of strength earlier in the week.

Camphor in Old Tomb

Discoveries made by Kosiov, the explorer, in the excavation of an imperial tomb near Urga, Mongolia, have intensified the interest of archeologists in that part of Asia. The tomb which Kosiov excavated apparently had been tampered with in past centuries, but contained many interesting objects which led to the conclusion that the burial took place 2,000 B. C.

Two pieces of thick carpet were ornamented with pictures of an elk, a winged lynx, a bull, and a leopard. There were traces of varnish and paint on the tomb, and the interior was adorned with silk richly ornamented with the figures of winged riders and reindeer. A corpse was found in a sitting position in the corridor and the fragments of clothing smelled strongly of camphor.

RULES FOR YOUNG WRITERS

1—Write plainly on one side of the paper.

2—Use pen and ink, not pencil.

3—Short and pointed articles will be given preference. Do not use over 150 words.

4—Original stories or letters only will be used.

5—Write your name, age and address plainly at the bottom of the story.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

The Corn Song

Heap high the farmer's wintry board!
Heap high the golden corn!
No rich gift, has autumn poured
From out her lavish horn!

Let other lands, exulting, glean
The apple from the pine
The orange from the glossy green,
The cluster from the vine.

We better love the hardy gift
Our rugged vales bestow
To cheer us when the storm shall drift
Our harvest fields with snow.

Through vales of grass and meads of flowers
Our plows their furrows made,
While on the hills the sun and showers

Of changeful April played.

We dropped the seed o'er hill and plain
Beneath the sun of May
And frightened from our sprouting grain
The robber crows away.

All through the long, bright days of June
Its leaves grew green and fair,
And waved in hot mid-Summer's noon
Its soft and yellow hair.

And now, with autumn's moonlit eves,
Its harvest time has come.
We pluck away the frosted leaves,
And hear the treasure home.

There, when the snows shall round us drift,
And winter winds are cold,
Fair hands the broken grain shall sift
And knead its meal of gold.

Let vapid idlers loll in silk
Around their costly board;
Give us the bowl of samp and milk,
By homespun beauty poured!

Where'er the wide old kitchen hearth
Sends up its smoky curls,
Who will not thank the kindly earth,
And bless our farmer girls!

Then shame on all the proud and vain,
Whose folly laughs to scorn
The blessing of their hardy grain,
Our wealth of golden corn!

Let earth withhold her goodly root,
Let mildew blight the rye,
Give to the worm the orchard's fruit
The wheat field to the fly!

But let the good old crop adorn
The hills our fathers trod;
Still let us, for His golden corn,
Send up our thanks to God!

—Whittier.

Down in the reeds by the river?

And breaking the golden lilies afloat

TAFTVILLE

The A-e-wa-ki-ya Camp Fire girls and their friends enjoyed a Hallowe'en supper party in the parlors of the Taftville Congregational church Friday evening. The rooms were attractively decorated in Hallowe'en colors, the lights being shaded with the same colors. After supper there were games. The affair was in charge of Mrs. Eugene N. Monty, the guardian and Miss Elsie Heap, the assistant guardian.

Saturday morning some of the youngsters of the town enjoyed sliding on the hill near the Congregational church, until the sun cleared away the snow.

Mrs. Thomas Singleton of Providence, R. I. has been a recent visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Hindle on North Third avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Earle M. Wood entertained a number of friends at a Hallowe'en supper Saturday evening at their home on North Third avenue.

Clement Rousseau and wife have returned to New Bedford after spending a few days with his aunts, Mrs. Elisa Dion and Mrs. J. C. Marson.

NORWICH TOWN

In the First Congregational chapel Friday evening the Young People's Christian Endeavor society held a Hallowe'en masquerade attended by 35 or more members and friends. Nearly every one appeared in costume. The half dozen young people who did not were obliged to pay a small admission fee. About 8.15 couples formed for a grand march, in which were witches, ghosts, farmers, coons, a Gypsy queen and several novelty costumes. First prize had given Elton Odgers, dressed as a girl; Miss Louise Avery, representing a Gypsy queen, was given second prize: For the most original costume, Miss Victoria St. Martin received a prize. Her costume was a unique paper dress made of Norwich Bulletins. Ducking for apples as well as several other Hallowe'en stunts proved amusing. Under the direction of the committee Miss Esther Durr, chairman; Reginald Avery and the Misses Rose Durr, Dorothy Waterman and Lucile Browning, fancy cookies, doughnuts and cocoa were served. Festoons of black and orange crepe paper, corn stalks, etc., formed the decorations in the chapel. The lights were dimmed with shades of orange paper. The social was under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor social workers.

Ever Ready Circle of the Kings' Daughters is to hold a meeting Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Frederick Rose, West Town street.

FLED FROM HIS MACHINE AFTER HITTING TWO OTHER AUTOMOBILES

After the machine he was driving had collided with two other machines near Goyette's blacksmith shop in Taftville, late Saturday night, Edward Carey, formerly of this city, now of New London, was arrested by Constable Paquette of Taftville on charges of driving while under the influence of liquor and evading responsibility. Carey, accompanied by two sailors from the submarine base, was on his way to this city, evidently heading for New London, when his machine ran into the other two machines, headed in the opposite direction. One of the machines, a Cadillac, is owned by Edwin Cleveland of 324 School street, Webster, Mass., and driven by Eben Cleveland of 794 School street, that city, and the other machine, a Ford, is owned and driven by Albert Febo, attic.

Immediately after the crash Carey left his machine and started away, as did the two sailors with him. Carey was later found on the road in an intoxicated condition, it is said, by Constable Paquette, who arrested him and lodged him in a cell at police headquarters. Carey remained at the police station overnight and Sunday was released on bonds furnished by a Norwich friend. His case will be taken up in the city court this (Monday) morning.

The Massachusetts machine received a bent bumper, broken left wheel, broken steering wheel and damaged mudguard, while the damage to the Baltic car consisted of a badly bent left mudguard and two smashed hub caps. Carey's machine was also damaged.

WEBSTER-PINNEY WEDDING AT STAFFORD SPRINGS

(Special to The Bulletin)

STAFFORD SPRINGS, Nov. 1. — Miss Dorothy Pinney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Biddle Pinney, of East street, and Donald Gilmore Webster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. Webster of Union street, Springfield, were married Saturday afternoon at the Pinney home, at 6 o'clock, with 200 guests, many representing Springfield, Worcester and Hartford society in attendance at the ceremony.

Rev. Dr. Edmund Burnham of Taunton, Mass., formerly pastor of the Congregational church here, performed the ceremony. Dr. Burnham also officiated at the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Biddle Pinney, the bride's parents, in this town 35 years ago.

The ceremony was performed in the living room which was beautifully decorated with yellow chrysanthemums and autumn foliage, the couple standing in front of the fireplace during the marriage service. Yellow chrysanthemums arranged above the mantel added a brilliant touch to the autumn leaves forming the background.

Miss Elizabeth Pinney, the bride's sister, was maid of honor. Winslow Meadows, of Springfield, was Mr. Webster's best man. The ushers were John Hinkle, Neil Chapin and Harold Goodenow, Jr., of Springfield, and Robert Pinney, brother of the bride, and a student at Yale university.

Emil Heimberger, of the Hotel Bond orchestra, of Hartford, played the wedding march from Lohengrin, as the bridal party entered the living room.

White chiffon and lace with ermine trimmings were effectively combined to fashion the bride's dress, with which she wore a tulle veil caught with a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley.

The maid of honor wore a dress of yellow chiffon, embroidered with yellow and purple pansies. She carried a shower bouquet of pansies, purple and yellow.

Mrs. Charles B. Pinney's dress combined sapphire chiffon velvet and silver. Mrs. Harry G. Webster wore a coral chiffon gown.

After the ceremony a reception was held, when Emil Heimberger played selections, and refreshments were served in the wide cellar of the home which had been changed by the artistry and skill of a decorator from Springfield into a beautiful room, with the walls and ceiling hidden by broad bands of alternating yellow and white bunting, and the glow of warm yellow lights blending softly with the color scheme. Hallowe'en colors predominated in decorating the stairway leading from the den on the living room floor to the basement. A firm from Hartford catered.

Guests were present from Boston, Worcester, Springfield, Hartford and this town. Prominent Springfield guests included Dr. and Mrs. William Goodell, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Meadows, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Burt, Dr. and Mrs. Philip Kilroy, Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Baker, Mr. and Mrs. R. K. Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Marston Leonard, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Johnson, Rev. and Mrs. John McGann; Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Pinney, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Chapin, Dr. and Mrs. Allyn Royce and several members of the Junior league of Springfield.

Mrs. Webster attended Dana Hall, Wellesley, Mass., Guild's and Miss Evans' school in Boston, Miss MacLean's school in Boston, and Miss MacLean's school in Paris, completing her studies abroad last year. Since returning from Paris Mrs. Webster has become actively interested in social affairs in Springfield.

Mr. Webster attended Choate school in Wallingford and Berkshire at Sheffield and has since been associated with his father, Harry G. Webster in real estate business in Springfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Webster left Saturday evening by motor for several weeks' wedding trip, and upon their return will reside at 121 Farmington avenue, Longmeadow, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Pinney entertained the bridal party at luncheon in the Pinney home Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. Webster entertained the bridal party in Springfield at a dinner Friday evening.

Sunday School Convention Speakers

The state Sunday school convention which is to be held in the First Methodist church in Bridgeport, Nov. 18, 19 and 20, marks the 68th anniversary of the Connecticut Council of Religious Education, which was organized in 1857, and incorporated in 1893 as the Connecticut Sunday School association.

The program consists of nine general sessions and seven and one-half hours of conference work. A number of outstanding leaders in the field of religious education will have a part in the program, including Dr. Walter S. Athearn, director of the School of Religion and Social Service, Boston university, Boston, Mass.; Prof. Edward R. Bartlett, principal of the Department of Religious Education, DePauw university, Greencastle, Ind.; Dr. Luther A. Weigle, Sterling professor of Religious Education, Divinity school, Yale university, New Haven; Dr. A. J. William Myers, professor of Pedagogy, Hartford School of Religious Education, Hartford; Miss Elizabeth Edland, specialist in religious dramatics and pageantry, New York city; and Miss Margaret Slattery, Boston, Mass.

If you are unable to find an opportunity go to work and make one.

EVERY-DAY SAINTHOOD FATHER GALVIN'S THEME

In honor of all the saints, known that sanctity which all can attain if out the world were offered in the Catholic churches Sunday, All Saints' day which was also the 22d Sunday after Pentecost. The epistle read in every mass was Apocalypse 7.2-12 and the gospel was Matthew 5:1-12, The Beatitudes. Choosing for his text the assurance of Christ, "Blessed are the clean of heart, for they shall see God," which he had just read, Rev. Myles F. Galvin, at the 9 o'clock mass in St. Patrick's church, preached on that sanctity which all can attain if they but have the will to do so.

God does not expect each one to show the heroism which has made saints canonized, the preacher said, after he had spoken of the vast multitudes whom the church was honoring, myriad souls from every land, of every race and color; but the majority of Christians err in thinking that sanctity is impossible except to those whom God has set aside for special sainthood. He pointed out the fact that those now among the shining multitude uttering the praise and worship, "Holy, holy, holy, Lord God of Hosts" had the same trials and temptations as have Christians today and encouraged the great congregation hearing him by the assurance that the principal thing is to have the motive of and the desire for sanctity—that God who sees in secret will reward in secret. Faithfulness in daily duties, avoiding persons and places which are occasions of sin, seeking ever to be clean of heart, keeping the laws of God, following the straight and narrow way, which the Saviour has enjoined—Christ has mapped out the method of guidance. As the fine lady so it is, Striving for sainthood hereafter, men will naturally make their lives here in accord with God's plan, since may have the reasonable, safe and sound hope that for them there is in store fellowship with those faithful saints who, because of being clean of heart are already seeing God.

Having in mind the thought of aiding their dead, as well as all the souls in Purgatory—the probation state—great crowds were at confession in this church during Saturday and went to the altar for communion Sunday. At the 7:30 mass, the rector, Rt. Rev. Msgr. May administered the sacrament to a large proportion of the congregation, including the members of the Children of Mary society. Monsignor May was assisted by Rev. John J. Reilly. At 9 o'clock again there were many lines of communicants Father Reilly, who read the low mass being assisted by Father Galvin in giving communion. At 10 o'clock the new organist, Henry J. LaFontaine, played for the hymns sung by the junior choir. The vestments and altar hangings were white and the flowers on the three marble altars were white, mauve and pale yellow chrysanthemums, arranged by the members of the Altar society.

Today (Monday), feast of all Souls, the dead will be remembered in masses at 5:30, 7 and 8 o'clock, the last a solemn requiem mass for the souls of all the faithful departed for whom their friends have asked to remember. The three priests heard confessions Sunday afternoon and evening, of those desirous of receiving holy communion today, as an offering to God for their departed friends.

PAYS $5 FINE FOR TRAFFIC LAW VIOLATION

A petty officer from the submarine base got into trouble with the local police about midnight Saturday when he drove his machine to the left of the flashing beacon at Broadway corner as he was heading through Main street towards the West side Officer Patrick Shahan called to him several times to stop and he did so near the Plaut-Cadden store. The officer started towards him and then the naval man decided to drive away. Officer Shahan hailed a passing taxi and put after the machine which he overhauled on the west side.

The navy man was taken to headquarters where he stated that he had no intention of trying to get away from the officer and that he had stopped near the Plaut-Cadden store because he was having trouble with his lights. He thought the officer had called to him about his lights and said he did not know the officer was after him. He admitted that he had gone to the left of the beacon, saying he did so through mistake. He left the usual fine of $5 which will be assessed against him in the city court Monday and departed for New London.

Hallowe'en Celebrator Hurt

Early Saturday evening a small boy by the name of Cephus Robbins who was celebrating Hallowe'en stepped off the sidwalk near Caron's store on Main street directly in front of a machine driven by Henry C. Hening of 128 Asylum street. The boy was knocked down and received a cut on the back of his head which was sewed up by Dr. W. T. Driscoll, two stitches being required. The accident was an unavoidable one as the boy darted out so quickly that Mr. Hening could not stop his machine before it had struck him.

Parked Cars in School Grounds

St. Patrick's church people were prompt to act on the suggestions of their priests and Chief of Police George Linton, and drivers attending the early masses Sunday selected parking space in the school grounds. At the 9 o'clock mass this change proved such a practical relief that, after the space in the school yards was taken, there were only 167 cars, by actual count, parked on Broadway and adjacent streets, outside the church. This ended the dangerous congestion and traffic problems usually a menace on Sunday morning.

REPORTS ON ATTENDING BIG Y. M. C. A. CONVENTION

An unusually fine service was held at the local Young Men's Christian association Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The program included the singing of hymns, with Hugh Kinder at the piano, who also rendered pleasingly a vocal solo. The Silvertone Male Trio of New London, consisting of Charles R. Carlyle and his two sons, David and Dodney, delighted the audience with their appropriate selections which were rendered in splendid harmony. The numbers were O, I Love to Talk With Jesus, Blue Galilee and At Evening Time. There was a unanimous request that the singers come again soon.

The address of the occasion was given by General Secretary Edwin Hill, who at first told briefly of his visit to Washington, D. C., where he recently attended the international convention of the Y. M. C. A. of the United States and Canada. He mentioned the addresses he heard, especially those delivered by President Coolidge, Dr. Parke Cadman and Herbert Hoover, all of which were strong commendations of the work of the Y. M. C. A. in America and all over the world. The speaker took for his topic "The Harmony of Life" and spoke in part as follows: "We read in Ephesians, the fifth chapter, 'Making melody in your heart.' Humanity is, as it were, one great keyboard, like the piano. Every once in a while we are told that our piano needs tuning, and the reason is that some of the keys are out of tune with the others and harmony is impossible; so in humanity, one here and one there is out of tune with others and the result is an awful discord, and this is exactly the trouble with this old world; there are too many that are out of tune with all that is noblest and best, and in some quarters the discord is simply terrible. There is discord among the nations as many of us know; there is also discord within every nation, and America is not free from this. There is not a single community without some discord, and there are far too many homes where harmony is absent, and where discord reigns. In individual lives there is oftime discord; the life does not always tally with the profession, and harmony within the life is therefore impossible. When our piano is out of tune we call in the piano tuner and he being a master of the keys restores harmony once more. We need to ask Christ to tune our lives anew, that we may be contributors to harmony instead of to discord. The Golden Rule, if lived out, would go far to making this old world a world of harmony, but instead of the Golden Rule predominating it is in too many cases the rule of gold. That is we are living in a materialistic age. In every realm "prevention is better than cure" and it is therefore better to prevent discord than to try to restore harmony when it is broken; the Golden Rule is a great preventative. The only one who ever perfectly lived the Golden Rule was the great Son of God, and if we are to practice it we must in some way keep close to the Christ, and follow closely his example. Let us see to it that we scatter harmony instead of discord.

BARBER SUSTAINS INJURIES WHEN HIT BY AUTOMOBILE

Simios Therrien of 35 Cliff street, the well known barber, was struck in Thames square about 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon by an automobile driven by Mrs. Margaret A. Kudlick of 175 Broadway, receiving a cut in the head and a bruise over the eye. He was taken to the Backus hospital by Dr. Max Hertz and Officer John O'Neil and after having the cut sewed up went to his home.

The automobile had the window in the right door broken and the body scratched. The machine is owned by the Dodge Textile company of Providence, R. I., of which J. H. Leonard is president. Mrs. Kudlick was alone in the car at the time of the accident, but Mr. Leonard came to Thames square after she had telephoned to him where he was staying in Norwich.

HALLOWE'EN PARTY FOR HER NINTH BIRTHDAY

Mr. and Mrs. John Schultz of Trading Cove gave a pretty Hallowe'en party at their home Friday evening in honor of the ninth birthday of their daughter, Martha, about 25 relatives and friends being present to celebrate the occasion.

Games were played and vocal and instrumental selections were rendered by the guests. Later in the evening the guests repaired to the dining room, which was beautifully decorated in Hallowe'en colors, and refreshments of sandwiches, cookies and cake were served. The feature was a birthday cake lighted by nine candles, which was cut by Martha. The affair proved most enjoyable and the little hostess received congratulations and expressions of good will from her guests.

MADE 90 ARRESTS IN MONTH OF OCTOBER

The police made 90 arrests in the month of October, in which intoxication, breach of the peace and violation of city ordinance were the leading causes for arrest.

The following was the record, for the month: Intoxication, 37; breach of peace, 15; violating city ordinance, 19; violating motor vehicle laws, 8; theft, resisting officer, non-support, insane, 2 each; burglary, forgery, fugitive from justice, murder, evading fare, one each.

Lebanon Visitors at Y. M. C. A.

Saturday evening a group of boys from Lebanon and two leaders representing the County "Y" work visited the Norwich Y. M. C. A., which has recently taken over the county work for the northern part of New London county. The group was welcomed by President James C. Macpherson of the local association, whose words made the visitors feel at home. Physical Director Fritz led the group in gymnastics and games, after which they enjoyed a swim in the big pool. Before the visitors left for home refreshments were served.

Prof. Garrigus to Judge Sheep

Professor H. L. Garrigus of Storrs is one of three prominent New England stockmen who have been invited by the directors of the International Live Stock exposition to serve as judges at that show in Chicago, November 28th to December 5th.

Professor Garrigus will judge the long wooled grade and cross-bred sheep classes, and also pass upon the lambs entered in the junior feeding contest.

First Birthday Party

A pretty party for the first birthday of Jennie Lewon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lewon of 48 Convent avenue, was given Sunday. The dining room was decorated in pink and white and after a buffet lunch games were played. The little girl received many beautiful gifts. Those present were: Jennie Lewon, Blanche Lewon, Josephine Anuszewicz, Sophia Sudyk, Frances Michalak, Wanda Ostrowska, Antoninia Zabrarowska, Sophia Bilda, Celia Suplicka, Helen Sienko, Annie Zdanowska, and Jennie Sienko.

Defies Age by Using Ordinary Buttermilk to Beautify Complexion

Tell Lee & Osgood Co. Not to Take Anyone's Money Unless This Delightful New Vanishing Cream Shows a Decided Improvement

Buttermilk Cream creates beauty almost like magic. The most wonderful thing about it is the fact that while it turns the dullest, most lifeless complexion to radiant beauty and makes red or rough hands of arms snowy white, yet there is not the slightest sign of its use after application. It actually vanishes from sight and the most heated atmosphere will not produce the least shininess or greasiness of the skin.

No matter whether you are troubled with a poor complexion, wrinkles, puffiness around the eyes, freckles, crows' feet or lines around the mouth, ugly finger nails, or just a simple roughness of the face, hands or arms caused by wind or sun, you will find that any or all of these troubles will quickly disappear with the use of Howard's Buttermilk Cream.

CONNECTICUT COURTS FINED MOTORISTS $156,899

Fines imposed in Connecticut courts for violation of the motor vehicle laws aggregated $156,899.75 for the first nine months of this year, an increase of $10,892.41 over the total of such fines in the state during the corresponding period of last year. These fines, in the 1925 period, resulted from 5,532 prosecutions, whereas those for the same period of 1924 were the result of 5,252 prosecutions. It is a singular coincidence that the average fine for both years up to October, is almost exactly the same, being $27.50 for 1924 and $27.85 for 1925.

Jail sentences were imposed in addition to fines in many instances, but figures as to the imprisonment cases remain to be computed.

If the severity of courts toward violators of the motor vehicle laws may be measured by the size of the average fine, motorists tried in this state are meeting no sterner justice than they did a year ago, if indeed the courts are not a little more lenient. The average fine for the first three-quarters of 1924 was about $1.50 in excess of that for the same nine months of this year. It went harder with motorists who were prosecuted for motor vehicle violations in the first quarter of this year, for the average fine imposed during that period was $34.75, but the average dropped to $24.75 in the following three months, despite the fact that there were twice as many arrests in the second quarter. The fact that the third quarter has brought the average up slightly may be an indication of lightening up in the imposition of penalties.

The department added to this discipline administered by the courts, by suspending the licenses of 6,300 operators in the past nine months, and a policy of publishing the names of operators suspended for driving while under the influence of liquor has been inaugurated as a further disciplinary measure. This offense comes second only to that technically listed as reckless driving, although of course driving while drunk is a form of reckless driving in itself.

POT ROAST SHRIVELED OVER GAS STOVE

Two still alarms for the fire department Sunday afternoon started the month of November. The first at 2.38 was for fire in an awning in the alleyway alongside the Golden Rule grocery at 41 Broadway. It was probably caused by a cigarette thrown from a window in the upper part of the building.

At 3.09 there was a call to 65 Union street, the house owned and occupied by Jerome Bonville, where dense smoke was pouring from the house. When the firemen got in they found that a pot roast had been left on the gas stove, with the gas burning, when the family went to Montville. The shriveling meat had deluged the place with choking smoke and turned all the white paint yellow.

A. O. H. DIVISION HOLDS ELECTION OF OFFICERS

Division No. 1, A. O. H., elected the following officers at its meeting Sunday afternoon in A. O. H. hall: President, Edward J. Sullivan; vice president, Patrick Barry; recording secretary, Michael O'Connor; financial secretary, Thomas P. Connelly; treasurer, M. J. Malone; sentinel, Peter O'Neil, sergeant at arms, James Nagle; standing committee, Jeremiah Shea, John Fenton, John Sweeney, Peter Toomey, Patrick T. Brennan.

A joint installation for these officers and those of the auxiliary will be held later.

Bozrah Whist Players Entertained

The champion whist players and their friends of Bozrah enjoyed a pleasant evening of whist on Hallowe'en eve at the home of Mrs. W. E. Drake of 64 1-3 Asylum street. Beautiful prizes were awarded to those having the highest scores. A feature of the evening program was music and singing by Miss Marion Royce. Lunch was served by Miss Mildred Grandy, Miss Doris Grandy and Mrs. Drake, consisting of fruit, salad, cake, cookies, sandwiches, candy and fruit punch.

Invited for Armistice Sunday

During the Sunday evening service at the Central Baptist church, Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., announced that a special service would be held during the evening. The local post of the American Legion, had been asked to be guests of the church on that evening, announced Rev. Dr. Pitt, and a special sermon in keeping with the occasion, was being prepared.

Gleaners Class Elects

The Gleaners class of Trinity Methodist Sunday school, held their regular monthly meeting Friday evening at the home of their teacher, Mrs. Ernest M. Newbury, 55 Greene avenue. A business session was held in which election of officers took place, resulting as follows: President, Miss Evelyn B. Wheeler; vice president, Miss E. Fay Hill; secretary, Miss Mary D. Boardman; treasurer, Miss Mary L. Phillips; chairman of social committee, Miss Retta I. Greenlaw; chairman of entertainment committee, Miss Grace E. Murphy. Several activities were planned for the winter. This class supports the Gertrude H. Lippett scholarship in Muttra, India. After the business session, games were played and refreshments served. Other members of this wide awake class are, Miss Mary Santler, Miss Henrietta Frink and Miss Josephine Plaskitt.

ASKS ANOTHER VOTE ON RESERVOIR BONDS

A special city meeting that has been called by Mayor Milo R. Waters for this (Monday) evening in the town hall will be called upon to vote again the authorization of the bond issue for building the Deep River reservoir. Attorneys representing bond companies with which the city authorities have been in consultation have asked that this action be taken because the vote which was taken at a previous meeting on the bond issue was by acclamation.

The notice for the meeting also contains a call for a vote authorizing the temporary borrowing of $210,000. As the market for municipal bonds is low at the present time, it is stated that it is inadvisable to attempt to sell such bonds now and the financing of the reservoir work for the present can be better done by borrowing temporarily from the local banks until after the first of the year when the bond market will be better.

PRESENTED PLAY AT POQUETANUCK PARISH HOUSE

A large and appreciative audience assembled at St. James parish house, Poquetanuck, Friday evening, to witness the three act play, Cupid and Cupidettes, as given by the Girl's Friendly Society of Grace church, Yantic, under the direction of Mrs. S. Howard Bishop assisted by Miss Edna Beckley. The cast of characters was as follows: Miss Isabella Lightbody, Mrs. Howard Sterry; Natalie Winslow, Miss Lila Smith; Ern Horner, Miss Violet Irvin; Valetta Claridge, Miss Dorothy Harvey; Margaret Lee, Miss Florence Carpenter; Jean Trainor, Miss Marion Gibbs, Hannah Moody, Miss Lois Manning; Lois Lovett (Spud), Miss Marjorie Harvey; Miss Watts (Wattsy), Miss Rose Matead; Phillina Graydon, Miss Mabel Crigson; Hortense, Miss Gladys Rogers, Sudsy, Miss Stella Kilroy. The cast was admirably selected, each one contributing to the success of the play, which received well merited applause.

Miss Lois Manning and Mrs. Howard Sterry rendered solos between the acts and were repeatedly encored. Miss Dorothy Harvey and Mrs. S. Howard Bishop acted as accompanists. At the close of the play excellent music for dancing was furnished by Mrs. Fred Miller, piano, William B. Mitchell, saxophone. Preceding the play a harvest supper was served by the members of the Woman's Guild of St. James church. The dining-room was attractively decorated with autumn leaves and black and yellow crepe paper. The supper was in charge of Mrs. Charles Weeks, Mrs. George Murphy, Mrs. Alanson Fuller, Mrs. George Beane and Miss Flora Peck, assisted by Mrs. Arthur Smith, Mrs. William Mitchell, Mrs. Lillian Lucas, Mrs. Henry Hart, and Mrs. Henry Sauer, waitresses. Coffee was served by Mrs. George Betting, ice cream by Mrs. Fred Nicolai and Bert Williams. Mrs. Charles Herkness collected. The tickets were in charge of William McKivvey and Mrs. G. E. Carpenter and Mrs. Albert Johnson of Yantic.

RECEIVED INJURIES IN FALL FROM AUTOMOBILE

Charles Hill, a Westerly young man who came here in an automobile Saturday night with several friends to attend a Hallowe'en party, suffered concussion of the brain and a cut over one eye when he fell getting out of the machine on Boswell avenue. He caught his rubber heel on the running board and plunged to the ground, striking on his head.

Dr. Louis T. Cassidy had the young man taken to the Backus hospital where the cut was sewed up and he remains as a patient at the hospital to recover from the concussion.

Plenty of men make it their business to interfere with the business of others.

"DUTCH" ANDERSON'S DEATH INGLORIOUS FOR A GUNMAN

A Detective at Muskegon, Mich., Whom Anderson Had Fatally Wounded, Wrested a Revolver From the Thug and Shot the Gunman Dead—The Detective Had Seized Anderson on Complaint of a Storekeeper Who Declared the Criminal Had Given Him a "Queer" $20 Bill.

MUSKEGON, Mich., Nov. 2.—(AP)—The irrevocable hand of the law has cut the last notch in the son of the notorious George (Dutch) Anderson; and the notch stands for Anderson himself.

Anderson, gunman pal of the "super-criminal," Gerald Chapman, and the man whose face stares from thousands of "wanted" placards in postoffices and jails across the continent, was dropped by a bullet from his own revolver, wrested from him by Detective Charles Hammond.

Death overtook Anderson Saturday night, but it was not until today that he was identified. It was not a clear victory for the law, because Anderson with his last shot mortally wounded Detective Hammond and died with the blood of his last victim oozing, still warm, into the dirt of an alley a few feet from the heart of downtown Muskegon.

Even as he lay in the morgue Saturday night with his identity unknown he was shrouded in a ghoulish glamor not wasted on a thug of lesser record of crime. Police for several hours believed the dead man was Martin Durbin, Chicago's "steel vest" slayer. Identification of Anderson was made positive today, however, when it was found that the fingerprints and Bertillon measurements of the dead man tallied with those of Anderson. A federal operative from Toledo, Ohio, "who knew" Anderson personally, was expected here tonight to complete the identification.

A box of candy, a $20 banknote that was "queer," an astute storekeeper and a straight shooting detective play all roles in the tragic climax of Anderson's life. It was a strange jest of fate that Anderson, who, with Chapman, made a nation gasp four years ago with a daring mail truck holdup in New York city and who has been sought everywhere by the crack sleuths of the secret service, should die in a small Michigan city at the hands of a small city detective.

Anderson sealed his doom late Saturday afternoon when he entered a Muskegon confectionery store and purchased a box of candy. He tendered a $20 bill in payment, received his change and sauntered out. It was the same procedure he had followed in Flint, Lansing, Saginaw and other Michigan cities during the last month always escaping detection.

He tried the trick once too often, however. The storekeeper, skeptical of the bill's genuineness, crossed the street to a bank where the cashier confirmed his suspicions. He called the police and with Detective Hammond walked into the afternoon crowds on Western avenue.

"There's the man," he said, pointing to Anderson. "If he isn't the one who passed the bill he at least was in the store."

Hammond collared Anderson, and started toward the police station with him. When they had gone a short distance Anderson jerked away, pulled a revolver and began firing. The first two shots went wild as Anderson ran into an alley.

Hammond's own weapon was in its holster, buttoned beneath his coat, but he followed his man into the alley in the face of the gunfire. As he grabbed Anderson the latter fired, the bullet penetrating the detective's lungs and liver.

Mortally wounded, Hammond wrestled with Anderson and jerked the weapon from Anderson's hand. He fired one shot. The men fell, almost together.

Patrolman George Johnson, attracted by the shots, ran up, then:

"Get him, he got me," Hammond gasped, whereupon Thompson fired a shot into Anderson's body. It was the shot fired by Hammond, however, that killed the gunman, the bullet striking near the heart.

Hammond, assisted by two officers, walked to police headquarters where he turned in Anderson's revolver. He then was taken to a hospital where he died two hours later. He was 42 years old and the father of five children.

Anderson died five minutes after he was shot without making a statement. His body is being held pending unquestionable identification, after which it will be buried here, unless claimed by relatives.

A reward has been offered for Anderson's capture, dead or alive, in connection with the slaying August 14 of Ben Hance and his wife at Muncie, Ind. Hance was a star witness against Gerald Chapman in Chapman's trial for the murder of a New Britain, Conn., policeman—a trial at which Chapman was found guilty and sentenced to death.

It has been a theory of detectives that the Hances were killed by Anderson to avenge Chapman, who now is awaiting the outcome of his appeal from the death sentence.

In Anderson's clothing was found a card bearing the name James P. Davis, and the address Argonne hotel, Lima, Ohio.

Police learned he had stayed for a time at the Lima hotel where he was known as "Curley" Anderson.

CANDIDATES TO BE VOTED FOR IN BOSTON TODAY

BOSTON, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Ten candidates for mayor, 312 candidates for city council and 16 candidates for school committee, and their supporters brought to a close tonight the most confusing municipal election campaign in many a year in Boston. With blaring band and "whirlwind" tour, by indoor speech and outdoor rally, by radio address, newspaper advertising and the distribution of handbills by airplane, aspirants for office sought to exhort the voter during the final day. Tomorrow morning at 6 o'clock the polls will open and tomorrow night by 8 o'clock, the voter will have rendered his choice.

Although the election is conducted on a non-partisan basis, party affiliation has counted heavily in the appeal of many campaigners. The list of ten mayoralty candidates contains the names of seven democrats and three republicans. The democrats include Theodore Glynn, fire commissioner, who is supported by Mayor James H. Curley, Joseph H. McNeil, banker, and former congressman, supported by a heavy democratic faction; William T. A. Fitzgerald, Suffolk county registrar of probate; Thomas C. O'Brien, district attorney of Suffolk county; John A. Keliher, sheriff of Suffolk county; Daniel H. Coakley disbarred attorney, and Dr. Walter G. McCauley, a dentist.

Virtually all of the republican city organizations and the good government association have thrown their support to Malcolm E. Nichols, who resigned as collector of internal revenue to enter the contest. The other two republicans are Alonzo B. Cook, state auditor, and Charles L. Burrill, a member of the governor's council. Originally 17 candidates tooko the field.

In general, the democrats have urged that the republican machine be kept from city hall, although Glynn has defined the issue as between Curleyism and anti-Curleyism. O'Neil has made an issue of a proposed $35,000,000 highway into Boston. The republican campaign has been directed against alleged gang rule at city hall. Repeated efforts have been made to have the democrats consolidate behind one candidate against the so-called Nichols threat.

Municipal elections will also be held tomorrow in three neighboring cities, Lynn, Cambridge and Somerville.

DISASTERS IN SOUTHERN WATERS DURING STORM

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 2—(A. P.)—Port authorities here are trying to piece together fragmentary information of disaster to a number of ships in southern waters during the storm which prevailed yesterday and last night.

Difficulty of radio communication retarded complete clearing up of the status of ships caught in the storm, but it was indicated that the American freight steamer Algiers was a victim of fire and was abandoned by her crew, of which no trace had been found late tonight.

The British steamer Mount Park or Mount Royal broke a rudder 200 miles off the Virginia Capes and is in tow of another British vessel.

A schooner yet unidentified, but believed to be the Isabelle Parmenter, has been located off Oregon Inlet, capsized and abandoned. The commander of the Parmenter, his family and crew were rescued Saturday night.

OLD AGE PENSIONS ARE RECOMMENDED IN MASS.

BOSTON, Nov. 2.—(AP)—The adoption of old age pensions in Massachusetts was advocated in a report filed today by the majority f a commission appointed by Governor Cox in 1923 to study the problem. Two members of the commission dissented.

The majority report recommended that a division of old age assistance be created in the state department of public welfare with district boards in various sections of the state to provide for the payment of old age assistance not to exceed $7 a week to needy citizens 70 years of age and over who have incomes of less than a dollar a day and whose property does not exceed $3,000 in value.

The report estimated that the cost of this assistance would reach as high as $6,000,000 a year, and recommended that the necessary revenue be raised by an addition apoll tax of $2 to be levied on all men and women in the state over 20 years of age. Another proposed means of revenue was an additional tax of one half of one per cent. on incomes. The majority report was signed by Mrs. William C. Dwight, Holyoke; Charles J. Mahoney, Boston and Royal Robbins, Brookline.

The minority report, signed by Chairman Frank R. Hardinson, Wellesley Hills, and Prof. Allyn A. Young, Cambridge, recommended a bill whereby more liberal treatment would be given to aged citizens by the departments of public welfare of the cities and towns and the state department of public welfare. It proposed that needy citizens of the age of 70 years or over be sent to almshouses only when their physical endition or bad habits made such action necessary.

In the course of its investigation, the commission interviewed 20,000 persons 65 years of age or over living in 10 cities and 23 towns. In February of this year it submitted a report on pensions for public employes in which it recommended that all new employes be placed on a contributory basis.

NEGRESS HELD FOR MURDER IS MAINTAINING SILENCE

SOUTH NORWALK, Nov. 2—Emma Garnet, negress, held here charged with murder in connection with the death of Alfred Waite at his home in Water street yesterday morning, refused, on advice of counsel, to make any statement at an inquest held this afternoon by Coroner John J. Phelan. Waite was found dead in his room with seven stab wounds in his body.

At the conclusion of the inquest, Coroner Phelan announced that he probably would hand down a finding in the case next Saturday.

Grant Warren, negro, who lives in the building where Waite was killed, testified that he had seen Waite and the woman struggling in the hall and saw the woman strike Waite.

Frederick Grab, of 35 Elizabeth St., a short distance from the scene of the murder, said he was attracted by the noise of a quarrel and running into Water street, saw Waite and the woman struggling. He identified Emma Garnet as the woman he had seen.

Roosevelt Mason, negro, testified that he heard loud voices in the hall and also saw the woman strike Waite.

The Waite murder was the second in that section of the city in the past two months, the other being the stabbing of Fidel Correia. Clara Jones, negress, is now awaiting trial in superior court as a result of the stabbing.

French Cabinet Declaration Today

Ministry Realizes the Necessity of Debt Settlement With the United States.

PARIS, Nov. 2—The Painleve cabinet, with M. Caillaux alone absent from the leading role will confront parliament tomorrow in an atmosphere which friends and foes alike agree is laden with electricity. Not since the Viviani ministry met to discuss the war, in August 1914, has the French government been faced by a more momentous situation.

Syria looms like a heavy cloud, destined to obscure the bright sun of Locarno, and France's internal financial problem was never more acute.

The finishing touches were put on the ministerial declaration by the cabinet which met this evening. It would appear that the ministry realizes the most effective remedy for the present financial crisis would be to come to terms with the United States on the matter of war debts. M. Painleve and his colleagues hope in this way to halt the downward trend of the franc, and they feel that a loan would put France's financial house in order.

The great authority and prestige M. Briand enjoys in the new cabinet is seen in the decision to reopen the negotiations with the United States. Only a few days ago Premier Painleve was reconciled to "letting the American debt situation drift."

On broad outline the ministerial declaration first deals with the financial situation of the treasury. It contains an unequivocal phrase declaring the intention of the government "to propose a tax bearing on all forms of wealth." This avoids mention of a capital levy, and no details will be given concerning the methods of such tax collections. It is expected that the financial statement will pacify the socialists.

The declaration will announce sterner repression of agitators, whether from the parties of the right or the left, and closer control of foreigners. In questions pertaining to foreign policy the declaration mentions Syria in the mildest and most conciliatory terms, expressing the intention to restore peace and maintain the prestige of France. But there will be no compromise with Abd-el-Krim in Morocco. The Moorish chieftain must bow before France and accept the "very generous terms offered to him by Spain and France."

The declaration will conclude with a determination to resume at the earliest possible moment the negotiations for the funding of the French debt to the United States.

HUDSON BAY OUTPOST SHORT OF PROVISIONS

BOSTON, Nov. 2—A radio message that may mean life or death in an isolated trapping and hunting post in the far north was injected into the broadcast of Station WBZ of the Westinghouse Electric company, at Springfield, Mass., tonight. Tomorrow night the ether will again be set quivering with the appeal which it is hoped, may penetrate the distant Hudson Bay region, and bring food to the post of the Hudson Bay company on Southampton Island. Wednesday night the message will be repeated. The company's relief ship, laden with provisions, failed to reach the lonely post during the short arctic summer.

A telegram requesting the following broadcast was received at WBZ today:

"The following message is for Hudson Bay Company at Chesterfield Inlet, Repulse Bay, and Wagner Inlet:

"The company's relief ship failed to reach Southampton Island this season. Consequently, that post is insufficiently supplied with provisions. If Chesterfield Inlet or Wagner Inset receive this message, rush special courier to Repulse Bay and have forwarded from there to Southampton two sled-loads of staple food, advising Southampton to draw on Repulse Bay where stocks are plentiful for further requirements. Should Repulse Bay receive this message act on it at once without waiting to hear from Chesterfield or Wagner Inlets."

Signed,

Hudson Bay Company, Montreal, Canada.

More than a year ago the company equipped many of its posts scattered through the arctic with radio receiving sets for the reception of messages which otherwise would take months to deliver and for the entertainment of trappers during the long winter nights. Reception conditions in these barren lands, particularly from WBZ have been excellent, it is noted in the logs kept at these northern stations. Already, on several occasions, the sets have proven priceless to trappers otherwise cut off from the world and have made possible the transmission of "life and death" messages.

The company has only one other means for getting relief to Southampton post, and that is by despatching a courier by dog sled into the north.

PREDICTIONS OF ELECTION RESULTS IN BRIDGEPORT

BRIDGEPORT, Nov. 2.—(AP)—On the eve of an election fight centering around John T. King, party leaders, anticipating a large vote, probably 30,000, were predicting victory apparently with equal confidence. Election of Mayor Behrens by 4,500 is predicted by Republican Town Chairman Alfred W. Burdick and Thomas M. Cullinan's election by 4,000 is expected by democratic Town Chairman John J. McGuinness.

Democratic leaders look for a Cullinan landslide tomorrow, similar to that by which Fred Atwater was elected four years ago, defeating Clifford B. Wilson, republican, by over 4,000. There is admittedly no such great wave of sentiment as marked the campaign of four years ago and the average man on the street is of the opinion it will be a close, hard battle.

NATIONAL FEDERATION OF MUSIC CLUBS IN SESSION

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Plans for a national prize contest for young musical artists and the development of civic opera and junior music clubs were among the subjects discussed at the opening session today of the board of directors of the national federation of music clubs.

The prize contests are to be national in scope and will be for violinists, pianists and vocalists.

The federation represents about 2,000 musical organizations in nearly every state in the nation.

St. Louis is Having Volstead Act Scandal

Twenty-two Give Bonds to Appear in Indianapolis Next Saturday.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Seven of twenty-two St. Louisans named in indictments charging conspiracy to violate the Volstead act today made bond for their appearance at Indianapolis next Saturday for arraignment. Indictments were returned against the twenty two in Indianapolis last Saturday as having conspired in the theft of 893 barrels of whiskey from the Jack Daniel Distillery warehouse here in 1922.

Those who gave bond were Collector of Internal Revenue Hellmich; Nat Goldstein, long identified with republican politics in St. Louis; State Senator Michael Kinney and his brother, W. J. Kinney; and Fred Essen, reputed republican "boss" of St. Louis county; R. E. Walker, former deputy sheriff; and M. Maltin, who gave a hotel address.

U. S. Marshal Hukriede announced tonight that Chief of Detectives Kaiser had agreed to issue orders to the police to arrest on sight any of the other fourteen, if they have not made bond by 9 a. m. tomorrow.

GILPATRICK REAL ESTATE TO BE SOLD BEFORE DEC. 1

HARTFORD, Nov. 2—(A. P.)—Real estate included in the inventory of G. Harold Gilpatric estate will be sold before Dec. 1, if the plans of Arthur E. Howard, jr., trustee of the estate, materialize. There will be a hearing before Referee in Bankruptcy Edward M. Yeomans on November 12 relative to the proposed sale of properties at number 9 Fern street, and on Newington road in Elmwood, and when these are disposed of the trustee will endeavor to realize on other holdings of the former state treasurer. The trustee has already sold the Trumbull street property which was included in the Gilpatric holdings, and which was purchased by William Iudinick. Transfer of this property is to be made before November 15 and the proceeds are expected to figure materially in making up the total of $147,000 estimated as the total value of the Gilpatric estate. Other properties sold include three pieces of property in Putnam, Gilpatric's home town, and the property remaining to be sold including property on Zion street in Hartford, and one half interest in an island at Juniper Point, near South Bay harbor, Maine.

Gilpatric's Hartford holdings came to him through a transfer of notes by John J. Burns, who still lives at the Fern street address. The total amount of notes signed by Burns and found in Gilpatric's effects at the Putnam National bank, is $144,825.

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS IN ENGLAND AND WALES

LONDON, Nov. 2.—(AP)—The Prime Minister and Mrs. Baldwin set an example for the electors today when they went early in the morning to record their votes in Westminster, for municipal councillors. In the London constituencies no less than 300 women candidates were standing for election. In all, 5,000 municipal councillors will be chosen in 400 English and Welsh boroughs to represent the people in local affairs.

Miss Betty Baldwin was busy throughout the day driving her own motor in a north London constituency to bring voters to the booths.

Up to midnight returns were not sufficient to indicate how the elections are going. The most important issue is on the question of socialism. More Voters cast their ballots than last year, when, however, only 36 per cent. of the electors voted. The women voters were particularly prominent.

Results from 80 of the provincial elections show substantial gains for the labor-socialists. They captured 86 seats from their opponents and lost 20, while all other parties gained 44 and lost 90.

PROSECUTION RESTS CASE IN MITCHELL COURTMARTIAL

Court Recessed Until Tomorrow Without Ruling on Motion For the Defense That Four of the Eight Specifications Stricken Out—More Than Seventy Names Have Been Submitted by the Defense With the Request That the Men Be Summoned as Witnesses.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2—(A. P.)—The prosecution rested today in the court martial of Colonel William Mitchell, charged with conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline, and the defense called in wholesale fashion for witnesses.

Colonel Sherman Moreland, trial judge advocate, announced that the prosecution rested its case after he had put seven witnesses on the stand and evidence had been taken to prove that Colonel Mitchell had personally distributed through newspaper men in San Antonio, Texas, statements charging the war and navy departments with competency, criminal neglect and almost treasonable conduct in administration of the national defense.

A motion by the defense to strike out all specifications and charges against Colonel Mitchell and the question of whether to call the witnesses Representative Frank R. Reid of Illinois, his civilian counsel, asked the court to subpoena or otherwise summon were put over for future determination. More than 70 names, including Secretary Davis of the war department, Secretary Wilbur of the navy, Secretary Jardine of agriculture, and Everett Anders, secretary to President Coolidge, numerous members of congress, and army and navy officers were given the court by Mr. Reid with the request that they be subpoenaed.

The defense hailed as an important victory today a statement by Lieutenant Colonel George L. Hicks, chief witness for the prosecution, under cross examination that the charges against the war and navy departments had not, to his knowledge, caused disorder or bad discipline among the Eighth Corps Area troops.

Colonel Hicks, who is acting adjutant general of the eighth corps, testified that he had submitted newspaper accounts of the Mitchell statements to the air officer and obtained written admission of their authenticity. Official correspondence which passed between Colonel Mitchell and Colonel Hicks on the subject were accepted by the court as exhibits.

Apparently taking cognizance of implications to be drawn from the selection of some of the witnesses named in the list submitted by the defense Colonel Moreland made a warning that the prosecution would object to the introduction of testimony it regarded as not pertinent to the charges and specifications at issue but intended to bring out questions of war and navy department air policies.

He said the prosecution would make objections to evidence bearing directly upon the question of conduct and helpful in the determination of the guilt or innocence of the defendant on this charge, but he intimated that testimony as to air policies of the two departments, the condition of the national defense or other controversial subjects mentioned in the Mitchell statements would not be acceptable unless submitted in the form of pleas in mitigation of sentence.

TAX IS RECOMMENDED ON CEREAL BEVERAGES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—(AP)—The taxing power of congress was called upon today by prohibition officials to aid in checking the "tremendous flood of high-powered beer sweeping the country."

Lincoln C. Andrews, assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of prohibition enforcement asked the house ways and means committee to include in the new revenue bill a levy of one cent a gallon on cereal beverages, which would give the government power to inspect breweries manufacturing near-beer.

Describing "high-powered beer" as that which contained an alcohole content of from three to five per cent. Mr. Andrews said the treasury faced a real problem in checking the "increasing and tremendous flood" of this beverage.

In the manufacture of near beer, breweries first make the regular beer and then de-alcoholize it, he explained, but under the present law prohibition officials do not have the power to inspect these plants.

Mr. Andrews suggested, as further means of aiding enforcement, a reduction of the tax of $2.20 a proof gallon on pure alcohol, and the imposition of a levy of one cent a gallon on denatured alcohol.

The committee also heard today a program for general tax revison, submitted on behalf of the American farm bureau federation and received a brief from the New York stock exchange urging repeal of taxes affecting its members.

The federation plan, presented by E. S. Reid of Washington, called for exemption of incomes of $5,000 and less, retention of present surtax rates and of the inheritance tax, and "sharp curtailment of the miscellaneous taxes, particularly on automobiles, trucks and accessories."

SEVEN CHILDREN KILLED WHEN TRAIN HIT BUS

WAYCROSS, Ga., Nov. 2.—(AP)—The collision of the Atlantic Coast Line's fast New York to Florida passenger train, the Everglades, and a loaded school bus at Nahunta, Ga., today resulted in the deaths of seven children and injuries to twenty two others.

Elroy Strickland, who was driving the bus, told railroad officials here that there was a misty rain at the time and that he had all the side curtains up. When the bus approached the the crossing, he said, he asked one of the boys to look to the north to see if a train was approaching. "At the same time," he stated, "I looked toward the south. Just as the bus reached the crossing the train crashed into it."

The terrific impact of the heavy locomotive threw the bus a distance of twenty feet and wrecked its occupants along the right of way. Three of the children were killed instantly.

TWO LIFE TERM PRISONERS AT WETHERSFIELD PARDONED

HARTFORD, Nov. 2—Two men serving life sentences at the Wethersfield state prison were granted unconditional pardons today by the state board of pardons and two others were allowed commutations of one year and two years, respectively each on their sentences. Thirty six applications were refused after thirty seven appeals for pardons or commutations had been withdrawn voluntarily.

Walter Nelson, 41 years old, who has served 19 years of the life sentence given on April 10, 1906 for the killing of Nelson Ducker, an Ansonia bartender, was granted an unconditional pardon.

The other pardon was given to Joseph Toscano, of New London, 54 years old, who has served twenty one years of a life sentence imposed in November 1904 for the murder of Dorenl Menghi, during a quarrel.

CHARGE AGAINST NATIONAL CASH REGISTER SALESMEN

CINCINNATI, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Judge Smith Hickenlooper late today ordered 93 salesmen of the National Cash Register company, Dayton, Ohio, to appear in federal court here to show cause why they should not be held in contempt for violating an injunction issued against the company in 1916 to restrain unfair sales practices. They were ordered to appear December 15.

LISTLESS CLOSE OF THE N. Y. MAYORALTY CAMPAIGN

NEW YORK, Nov. 2—(A. P.)—The most apathetic mayoralty campaign that Father Knickerbocker has probably ever witnessed—and he has seen ninety-seven since 1666—came to a listless close tonight, with the leading candidates, Senator James J. Walker, democrat, and Frank D. Waterman, republican, making their final appeals to the voters over the radio.

Both parties claimed victory at the polls tomorrow, Tammany, which has long held city hall in an iron grip, predicted a democratic tidal wave in all five boroughs, with plurralities ranging from 200,000 to 250,000 for the entire slate. The republicans, who have not elected a mayor since Seth Low, on a fusion ticket, in 1902, claim that Mr. Waterman will win by 100,000. The republicans pin their hope on a "great great swell" of silent voters, which they say has set in during the last few days. Mayor Hylan's plurality, four years ago, was 417,000.

The socialist candidate, Rev. Norman Thomas, hopes that his vote will at least equal that given to magistrate Jacob Panken at the last election. This was about 82,000.

Four other minor parties also have mayoralty candidates in the field: Joseph Brandon, socialist-labor party; Laurence W. Tracy, commonwealth land party; Warren Shaw Fisher, progressives, and Benjamin Gitlow, workers (communist) party. The latter's name has been ruled off the ballot because of his recent conviction for communistic activities, but his name may be pasted on the ballot.

The polls open at 6 a. m. and close 6 p. m. The registrations is about 1,176,000, a falling off since the last mayoralty election, when 1,165,700 votes were cast.

Campaign managers, who profess to be alarmed at the public apathy, made last minute efforts tonight to get out the vote. Veteran observers doubted that a million votes would be cast.

The lack of interest is generally attributed to the reaction that set in after the heated primary battles, when Senator Walker defeated Mayor Hylan for he nomination and Mr. Waterman won a thre cornered contest. Practically all of the verbal fireworks were exploded during those contests.

OLYMPIA MACRI READY FOR SECOND TRIAL TODAY

LITCHFIELD, Nov. 2—Olympia Macri, of New Haven, was back in the Litchfield county jail here tonight ready for her second trial which opens in superior court here tomorrow morning. The girl defendant is charged with the murder of John Bagnano in front of a New Haven theatre last February. She alleges that Bagnatio was the father of her child. The first trial in New Haven last spring ended in a disagreement after the jury had divided eleven to one for acquittal.

It is the second time that Miss Macri has been confined in the Litchfield jail. She was brought here from New Haven early last month at the opening of the fall term of superior court, but was taken back to the New Haven county jail when it was found that her second trial would be delayed, by other cases on the calendar.

FORECASTS BIG HOLIDAY TRADE IN ALL LINES

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(AP)—A big holiday trade in all lines of business is forecast by F. Edson White, president of Armour & Co., with a rapid turning over of capital and re-ordering of supplies, resulting in a spread of activity and prosperity all along the line. He asserted there was a great soundness to business throughout the country at the present time. The farmers are cashing in their corn at $1 a bushel in hogs and cattle and their wheat at $1.40 a bushel. They are all reaping big crops and getting good prices for them. This should largely stimulate all lines of retail trade by turning loose a very large amount of money and increasing the general buying power of the consumer."

TO SEEK A GENERAL REVISION OF TARIFF ACT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.(AP)—General revision of the tariff act will be sought at the coming session of congress by Representative Cordell Hull of Tennessee, former democratic national chairman, a member of the house ways and means committee, in charge of such legislation.

WILLIMANTIC

Willimantic has a serious anthracite coal shortage. It became known this week when three of the four retail coal companies in the city admitted that their supply of hard coal had been entirely used, they have been without the fuel for the past three weeks. The fourth concern has been forcing customers to accept a part of the weight in substitutes. Coal dealers state, however, that they do not foresee any hardships during the winter as an unlimited quantity of ordinary soft coal and substitutes is available. Some of the concerns are receiving shipments of West Virginia coal commonly known as "screened bituminous" in furnace, egg, stove, nut and buckwheat sizes. This coal sells for less money than the Pennsylvania hard coal. It is unquestionably soft coal but many who have been using it say that it gives good heat and little dust when handled properly. It was estimated by a survey taken at the opening of the fall season that about sixty per cent. of the householders in Willimantic had a winter's supply in their bins and about twenty per cent. a partial supply.

Hundreds were attracted Monday to the site of the new community hotel where laborers appeared and after a delay the actual work of constructing the hotel started. The general contractors, Day & Zimmerman of Philadelphia, awarded the contract to Oliver L. Willard of this city. Men began digging on the site which was formerly occupied by the Johnson house and an adjoining mercantile building. About the middle of the afternoon a large steam shovel owned by the Vito Construction company, which has been doing work on the Hampton road was hauled to the lot and started to level out a platform upon which it will sit so that the digging can be started in earnest this (Tuesday) morning. The ground was broken by a force of men under Foreman Charles Nelson for the erection of the north wall, from a point on the east side, next to the Hotel Hooker. The contracts call for both stone and cement foundations. Civil Engineer John F. Collins and assistants staked out the new building during the day. The structure will be five stories, contain five ground floor stores, a lobby, large dining hall, modern coffee room, wide hallways and 68 sleeping rooms, with baths. The frontage of the building along Main street is an even one hundred feet. On the west side of the hotel, next to the Gilman block, there will be a thirty-two foot driveway which will wind around at the rear of the building to the Simpson garage. The work is starting with a rush and according to William P. Jordan, chairman of the building committee, the construction will be carried on as quickly as possible through the winter and spring. It is hoped to have the building completed by June 1st, 1926 and according to indications only an especially severe winter can interfere with this plan. The walls of the building will be of brick with tapestry brick finishings at the front. The floors will be reinforced concrete and the building wholly fireproof.

At the Al-Pierro Tabarin there was a delightful Hallowe'en party and masquerade Saturday afternoon given for dancing pupils and their friends by Mrs. Eileen Raclcot. One hundred and fifty children participated in the grand march. The colorful line was led by little Frances McKenna. First prize was awarded Miss Regina Raclcot for the cutest costume. Miss Marion Sweeney who appeared gowned as a rose, was second prize for the prettiest and Margaret Connelly, attired as a mammy, won third honors. For the boys, Tracy Brown, arranged as a groom, took first prize, Joseph Nubisky as a Colonial Lad was second and Tom Ashton, as Jeff was third. Special mention was given Ruth Yeomans attired as a Holland lassie. During intermission Teresa Dennehy and Irene Nolan gave an exhibition of the Wayburn Charleston and Marie Connelly and Velma Brown danced the Sailors' Hornpipe. The hostess was assisted in carrying out the program and serving luncheon by: Mrs. David P. Ahern, Mrs. William L. Sweeney, Mrs. Walter T. Jones, Mrs. T. J. Connelly, Mrs. Prosper Vecchi, Mrs. William A. Costello, Mrs. Bixby Morrill, Mrs. A. Mowtie, Mrs. Harry Grimley, Mrs. William A. Burnham, Mrs. John A. McKenna, Mrs. Joseph Bergeron and Mrs. Henderson S. Hamilton.

Twenty a week for room rent and not enough rooms to go round gives an inkling into the living expenses as they are in Florida, according to a letter received here from Harry Gray who left Willimantic a few weeks ago for Florida, the get-rich-quick land. Gray is now living with his brother, William Gray, a former resident of Willimantic, now located in South Jacksonville, Fla. Gray is employed by the Miller Press Printing Company at good wages and he plans to remain on the job, as he believes he is making good. The first few days at work were not so joyful, he writes. He was quite ill from the heat and when he drank water it tasted like so much lime. He writes of the brilliant foliage, palms and flowers to be found in and about Jacksonville, the largest city in Florida. Carpenters are earning $10 a day for eight hours and bricklayers get from $16 to $17 a day.

Willimantic's barbers are but passing interested in the controversy existing between the state board of hair dressers and barbers who have been conducting beauty parlors in connection with their shops. No representatives from this city attended the meeting of the Master Barbers' association and the State Barbers' Protective association held in New Haven Sunday when the master barbers were urged to ignore the ruling. There are only two local beauty parlors which are conducted by master barbers and both of these have separate entrances and are in separate rooms from the barber shops.

The engagement of Miss Francis B. Davis to Wright D. Clifford of Randolph, Vt., was announced recently at a Hallowe'en birthday and farewell party given the bride-elect at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey C. Davis at Spring Hill. Some twenty guests, comprising girl friends from the office of Connecticut Agricultural college, where she has been employed, were in attendance. Favors were drawn from a large birthday cake, decorated with pink hearts and candles. Festoons in pastel shades ran to each cover and as these were drawn they brought from the center-piece cards announcing the engagement. After the supper Miss Gwendolyn Althbe, office manager of the extension service presented gifts to the four girls having birthdays and to those going south. Guests from out of town included Miss A. Vantine Anderson of this city and Miss Constance Smith of New London.

A settlement was agreed to following the collision of an Essex touring car driven by Frank Peterick of Greystone street, this city and a Ford sedan operated by Alexander Beaudoin of Voluntown at the intersection of Valley and Walnut streets at 4:40 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The Ford was badly damaged, sustaining among other things, two broken rear wheels. Beaudoin had the right of way, but Peterick refused to settle up at first and was ordered to appear in police court, along with the Voluntown man, by Motorcycle Officer Grant Bombria. An agreement was reached later.

COUNTY DETECTIVE JACKSON NOT AFTER POSTMASTERSHIP

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 2—Reports which appeared in some of the state papers that County Detective William E. Jackson of Windham county was angling for appointment to be postmaster at Willimantic, to succeed Walter R. King, one of the three men who have acquired a large hardware store in this city, proved wholly unfounded Monday. Postmaster King handed in his resignation some weeks ago, when he and A. L. Weatherhead and Nelson A. Daniels purchased an interest in the Jordan Hardware company. It has been definitely established that the only two candidates for the postmastership are Frank M. Smith, member of the Wilson Drug company and William S. Congdon, federal prohibition enforcement officer. County Detective Jackson has not and will not seek the office and at no time considered entering his application for the postmastership. It has been said by local political leaders, however, that in the event that he did seek the position he would be somewhat of a favorite candidate. It is generally known that he is taking a position in the fight for the postmastership, chiefly as a staunch supporter of William Congdon.

W. H. HARRIS, DEAD AT 92, FROM OLD MYSTIC

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 2—William H. Harris, 92, died at the home of William A. Buck at 184 North street Sunday afternoon after ten days illness. He was born in Brooklyn, February 2, 1833, and had been a resident of Old Mystic for about forty-six years. For the past year he had made his home with Mr. Buck. Surviving him is a nephew, Maro F. Harris of Groton.

VOLUNTOWN CAR BUMPED BY A LOCAL MACHINE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 2.—A ford sedan, owned and operated by Alexander Beaudin of Voluntown was badly damaged at 4:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon when bumped into an Essex touring car owned and driven by Frank Patrick, of Greystone street, this city, at the intersection of Valley and Walnut streets. The Ford was going west on Valley street and had the right of way. It was about in the center of the intersection when the cars came together. Damage to the Voluntown machine consisted of two broken rear wheels and demolished left running board and rear fender. The Essex suffered some damage to the right front spring. Motorcycle Officer Grant Bombria investigated the accident as the men could not come to an agreement or fix the blame. They were ordered to appear in police court Monday morning.

You must say "QUICK QUAKER"

To get true Scotch flavor—famous Quaker Oats flavor—in quick cooking oats

THE difference in breakfast oats is flavor. Oats, originally a Scotch dish, must have Scotch flavor.

Quick Quaker has the toasty Scotch flavor that's so wonderful . . . famous Quaker Oats flavor.

No other brand has it. None successfully imitates it. It's due to exclusive Quaker milling of the finest, plumpest oats. Milling methods which took some 50 years to perfect.

Makes all the difference in the world. Quaker Oats spoils folks for ordinary brands of oats. Cooks in 3 to 5 minutes. No kitchen muss busy mornings.

Due to Quaker milling methods, it supplies, too, the "roughage" you need to make laxatives seldom necessary.

BASE HOME ECONOMICS UPON NEEDS OF CHILD LIFE

An investigation to determine the best home-economics curriculum for senior and junior public high schools has been completed in Denver, Colo., and the findings were published. A home-economics curriculum for girls, the study concludes, should be based upon the activities and needs of child, not adult life. A study with the same object in view has been made by the interior department, bureau of education, in two junior high schools of the district of Columbia.

GULDEN'S new SALADRESSING MUSTARD

French Woman Tells

How to Get Thin

Without Diets, Creams, Exercises or Dangerous Drugs

I reduced my own weight 50 pounds in less than five weeks, and at the same time marvelously improved my general health and appearance with a new French discovery called SAN-GRI-NA. To-day I look, act and feel far younger than my real age. From the results in my own case and those of my friends, I am absolutely convinced that any man or woman burdened with rolls of ugly, injurious, unwholesome fat, can take it off easily, quickly and safely with SAN-GRI-NA. Every day science discovers something new. SAN-GRI-NA is one of the latest French discoveries for the reduction of excess fat. It does away with weakening diets, tiresome exercises, torturing garments and absurd and expensive so-called reducing creams. It is used extensively in Paris, where women of every age pride themselves on keeping their figures slender and graceful, and where the man detest a heavy waistline or double chin. No matter how fat you are, or what you have done in the past to reduce you must remember that SAN-GRI-NA has never been offered before to the American public. IT IS GUARANTEED ABSOLUTELY HARMLESS, does not contain any dangerous drugs, and cannot possibly affect your stomach or your health. By simply taking two small tablets before each meal, I lost 50 pounds in two months, and I have not regained a pound since. I eat all I want and enjoy the best of health. You can do the same. Today go to any good drug store, ask for a package of SAN-GRI-NA. Do not accept anything else, as it is the only thing I ever found to reduce after I had tried hundreds of different ways and remedies.

NOTE.—The above appeared in many papers about 2 years ago. Since then SAN-GRI-NA has been investigated by American Physicians, Nurses, Clinics, Beauty Specialists, etc., and is now endorsed and recommended to fat people by Dr. Rudolph, former Health Commissioner, as a most wonderful and harmless way to reduce. Every day letters from grateful users come to us from all over the country. Men and women in all steps of life have reduced 10, 20, 30, or even as high as 50 pounds, saying also that they were able to greatly improve their health and looks. Do not accept a substitute. Insist on SAN-GRI-NA.

If your druggist does not carry SAN-GRI-NA in stock he can get it from his wholesaler or you can send a money order or check for $1.50 direct to the Scientific Research Labs., 1841 Broadway, N. Y. C., and one full sized box SAN-GRI-NA will be mailed you prepaid.

On sale at any good drug or department store. If your druggist does not carry San-Gri-Na in stock he can get it from his wholesaler or you can send a money order or check for $1.50 direct to the Scientific Research Laboratories, 1841 Broadway, N. Y. City.

DANIELSON

Disregarding all warnings, numbers of taxpayers failed of make returns with the assessors before the closing of business last Saturday night and as a result will have ten per cent. added to the lists of their properties last on file in this town. Incidentally, failure to make returns is not always due to negligence. The assessors are well aware of this. There are property owners who prefer to stand a 10 per cent. increase occasionally rather than submit a list on their own account. Possibly it's cheaper that way.

Monday morning, the funeral of John Murray, who died in Hartford, was held from the home of Mr. and Mrs Edward Farrell in Wauregan, with services at Sacred Heart church in that place at 9 o'clock. Rev. J. C. Mathieu was celebrant of the high mass of requiem. Numbers of relatives and friends attended the services. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery at Jewett City, where the committal service was conducted by Rev. J. J. McCabe. The bearers were James Riley, John Goven, James Ward, Arthur Messier, Ernest Porter and Frederick Reynolds. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

There is agitation here in favor of Wednesday afternoon of next week being observed as a half-holiday. It will be Armistice day and while Danielson will have no general observance of the day, a large number from this town will desire to be in Putnam to see the big parade and other features of the Armistice day observance in that city, all centering around the dedication of the new memorial bridge over the Quinebaug river in Pomfret street. Danielson will be represented in that parade by the Service battery, which includes the 102d Field Artillery band, by many local members of the American legion and members of the lodge of Elks at Putnam. It was understood Monday that numbers of business men stand ready to close their stores on the afternoon of November 11, providing the clothing is general.

Incident to press stories telling of how the local branch of the New Haven system is to be used largely for heavy movements of freight off the Pennsylvania system, which is largely represented in the New Haven ownership, it is stated that the branch has been hauling a greater volume of freight for several years than the casual observer has been aware. It is rated a very busy little branch. If the new arrangement becomes effective, however, the increase in the freight traffic will be very marked.

It happened that there was no need of re-locating the mains of the Crystal Water company where they pass across the Assawaga river at Main street, under the new bridge in process of construction. The mains have been in their present position for years and are remaining undisturbed as the present construction goes on.

Monday evening members of the Danielson Farmers' association held the November meeting at Grange hall, in Brooklyn. Frederick V. Waugh, market specialist at Connecticut Agricultural college, and County Agent F. L. Davis of Putnam were the speakers of the evening. Members of the association already are placing their orders for certified seed potatoes, to be delivered in the spring.

From various parts of the town one hears of dog owners, especially hunters, who are complaining about the severity of the law as to dogs going about with tags attached to the collars of the animals. The hunters assert that it is not an uncommon thing for a hunting dog to lose his tag while ranging through the brush, that it may be lost for days before the fact is discovered and in the meantime the owner may be haled to court on account of the dog being without a tag. Riveting of tags to dogs' collars is regarded as the best protection against tag loss, and numbers of dog owners are following this plan.

County Commissioner Urgele LaFrance and Mrs. LaFrance and their daughter, Miss Lucy LaFrance, of Central Village, are to leave within a few days for Miami. Commissioner LaFrance is making the trip that he may have a respite from business cares. His party may remain in the south until spring.

All the wooden forms for the new concrete bridge over the Assawaga river in Main street, will have been completed by the latter part of this week. Pouring of concrete will begin by next week at the latest. Only one day will be required to pour the concrete for the main part of the bridge. The sides, paneling and finishing will require additional time. Indications now are that the new bridge will be ready for opening the latter part of this month.

Two habits that were so frowned upon by state highway patrols that they have been practically abandoned for many months are creeping out again. This refers to parking cars on the wrong side of state highways and parking cars with no lights showing, while a petting party goes on on the side of a state road. Both these practices are a decided menace to the traveling public.

One case of thieving from a store in Danielson has been satisfactorily adjusted with the owner of the store, through the return of the articles taken and other considerations. The matter did not get into the courts, though a complaint relative to it was made to the police and investigated by borough officers.

Warden Walter Anderson said Monday that there have been no developments of special nature during the past few days relative to plans for locating an emergency landing field in or near Danielson for mail planes of the Colonial Air lines, that is to operate between Boston and New York. The service is to be inaugurated during the present month.

The Fortnightly club is to meet today (Tuesday) with Mrs. Walter Musgrave.

Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Longo have gone to Cleveland to visit Mrs. Longo's brother, who is engaged in business in that city.

Lost Thursday evening in Main street or in Masonic hall, a pair of black and gray shell rim glasses. Finder please return to office of Dr. W. A. Mills.—Adv.

Monday was characterized by many as an ideal Indian summer day, in direct contrast with the severe cold of Sunday morning.

A masquerade party and dance was held at the home of Mrs. Elmer Brenn in Brooklyn Saturday evening. Games and dancing were the features of a most pleasant evening. Hallowe'en decorations prevailed throughout the house. At midnight a lunch of sandwiches, doughnuts, pumpkin pie, mince pie, cider and coffee was served. Mrs. Brenn was assisted by Mrs. James Blackford and Mrs. Edward Anderson. There were eight couples present.

Chief John McFarland said Monday that not a single complaint was made to the police relative to any undue license in celebrating Hallowe'en.

While patroling woodland country not distant from Danielson Deputy Game Warden Gurdon E. Withey came upon a foreleg of a deer that evidently had been killed by a hunter and a large portion of the carcass carried away.

Hundreds of parishioners attended the All Souls' day masses at St. James' church Monday.

Clayton Wright plans to spend the winter in Florida, as he has for several years, but said Monday he has not determined just when he will go south.

Money deposited in the savings department of the Danielson Trust company on or before November 5th, will draw interest from November 1st.—Adv.

Irving W. Davis on Monday began his active duties as temporary receiver of the Phoenix Building company, his appointment dating from the past week end, when the matter of a receivership was before the superior court for the county at Willimantic.

There must be something lasting in military discipline. This idea is based on the action of man who has had such training stopping to solemnly salute the soldier on the monument at Davis park. Of course, there was a reason for it.

More of the new concrete roadway is likely to be opened up this week on the Morin avenue-Elmville stretch of trunk line highway. This week, too, will see an important further advance in cement laying, that the work may be finished before winter comes.

A regular meeting of the trustees of the Brooklyn Savings bank was held Monday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Jette have returned from a motor trip to Montreal and other points in the Dominion.

Harvey A. Seloker of Pawtucket was a visitor with friends in Danielson Monday.

Miss Ada Buckley of Thompson was a visitor with Danielson friends Monday.

There was no session of the town court Monday, this indicative of a quiet week end in so far as anything pertaining to arrests is concerned.

Already some residents of Killingly have received their registration plates for 1926 from the motor vehicle department, these car owners desiring to retain their present numbers during the coming year.

There is interest in towns hereabouts, and some of them will be represented in the fifth annual convention of the League of Women Voters to be held in Hartford Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

A most enjoyable Hallowe'en party was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Caffery, on Cottage St., Danielson on Friday evening. The dining room was attractively decorated in orange and black with pumpkin faces staring at the guests at every turn. Mrs. Lenard Morrison was the queen. Games were played during the evening and radio selections were enjoyed. A dainty lunch was served by the hostess. Guests were present from Norwich, Attawaugan, Putnam, Greeneville, Danielson.

When the Connecticut League of Women Voters holds its fifth annual convention at the Hotel Bond, Hartford, Nov. 4 and 5, a number of women from Putnam and nearby towns will be in attendance.

Mrs. Lucy Barrett has been the guest of Mrs. Mary Burt of Grove street.

Miss Germaine Desautels, of North Grosvenordale, a 17-year-old musician, was awarded first prize at a vaudeville tryout in Woonsocket. The prize was a handsome silver cup.

Miss Louise Negus of Webster, Mass., has been the guest of Miss Mary Connell of Putnam Heights. She attended the Hallowe'en dance at the school.

Mrs. Loisette of North Grosvenordale is at the Day Kimball hospital where she underwent an operation.

The junior class of the Tourtellotte Memorial High school has elected the following class officers: President, Daniel Chubbuck; vice-president, Francis Reardon; secretary, Irene Johnson and treasurer, Isabelle Beauregard.

Miss Marion L. Bowen, daughter of Mrs. Stella Bowen of South Main street, was given a kitchen shower at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gifford by the members of her Sunday school class and other friends. A large number of useful and ornamental tin and aluminum gifts were received by Miss Bowen. A lunch of sherbet, fancy cakes and candy was served by the hostess. Games and music were enjoyed by the guests during the evening. The guests were Mrs. Nathan Burton, teacher of the class; Mrs William Johnson, Mrs. Stanley Shaw Mrs. Ellsworth Morse, Miss Hazel Gifford, Miss Dorothy Bone, Miss Florence Devine, Miss Alice Devine Miss Evelyn Shaw and Miss Mildred Torrey. Miss Bowen's approaching marriage with Henry Harkins was recently announced.

Putnam Lodge of Odd Fellows will open their meeting at 7.30 o'clock this (Tuesday) evening instead of 8 o'clock, the usual hour. Later the members of the lodge will go to Danielson, taking with them eight candidates for admission to the Putnam lodge who will be given the second degree by their Danielson brethern.

Charles Kempton and his niece Cora Seekens of Pomfret have returned from a visit with Mr. Kempton's daughter, Mrs. Carrie Jackson at Lodi, Ohio.

Leo Legrandeur, five-year-old son of Emile Legrandeur of Providence street was struck by a nautomobile yesterday driven by a man named Carey of Worcester. The boy was crossing the street near his home and stepped out the way of one machine in front of the Corey car. He was knocked down but the wheels did not pass over him. Dr. George M. Lamarche, who was summoned, said that he was but slightly hurt. The police took the number of Corey's car and allowed him to proceed.

Miss Alice Johnson, who has been spending the summer at West Woodstock is at the home of her brother Eric H. Johnson and family of South Main street, for the winter.

Robert M. Gardner was in Putnam on business last week. Mr. Gardner is president of the Anchor Sawmill company which has offices on both sides of the Atlantic. He has just made his 13th trans-Atlantic voyage.

The seventh grade of Israel Putnam school was awarded the first prize offered to the different grades of the grammar schools of the city for turning in the highest contribution toward "Old Ironsides Week" campaign. It was a large picture of the historical vessel and will be placed on the wall of the classroom.

A Hallowe'en dinner party at Mrs. Ruth Chandler's house, Fremont street was greatly enjoyed by all. The dining room was attractively decorated in black and yellow pumpkin faces and black cats. The menu consisted of blue points cocktails, pigs in blankets, Romaine salad and vegetables, ice cream cake and nuts. Every one voted the evening one of special pleasure.

JEWETT CITY

Sometime during Saturday night burglars broke into R. W. Dearnley's store, gaining entrance through a Slater avenue window. A small sum of money, taken in after the early evening deposit, was left in the registers. This was stolen together with a number of valuable articles of merchandise.

Mr. Dearnley rightly declares that the nature of recent breaks (his store has been entered three times this year) entirely refutes the argument that it was a boys' job. The valuable goods gotten away with by the burglars are not of such nature as would attract youthful thieves.

According to reports, received on Monday the Hallowe'en celebration in all parts of the borough was neither safe and sane, nor was it sensible. During the late evening Saturday a stone weighing a half pound was hurled through the front window of W. C. Jeffers' home on Green avenue. A half dozen aged eggs were smashed against the side of another house in the uptown section of the borough, a garage was entered through a rear window and the air was released from all four tires of an automobile.

This town needs two police officers in the night time. The one patrolman on duty now, cannot be omnipresent. Jewett City is a large town to cover and if he were Sir Conan Doyle's old sleuth, in his palmiest days, an up-to-date burglar learns his beat in advance and can elude him at any time.

On the night of Feb. 13, 1912 Yeggmen entered the Jewett City post office and blew the safe. At that time Patrick H. Driscoll, the one lone officer on duty, was shot and killed by their outside guard.

Officer Driscoll was as fearless as he was vigilant and devoted his every energy and best service to the protection of the town, when its people slept. Yet, he was certain and said so at the hospital, "These men knew where I was all the time, for several hours before the break."

A meeting of the Read-Haskell Cemetery association was held at the Jewett City Savings bank in the directors rooms, Monday afternoon.

The reports of Harry L. Hull, clerk and treasurer, were heard and accepted.

The financial status of this organization is very pleasing, for there is a cash balance on the right side of the ledged of $1,182. Mr. Hull was re-elected clerk, treasurer and superintendent. By vote of the meeting he was also chosen to fill the unexpired term of the late George A. Haskell, as a member of the board of trustees, which now stands: John H. Tracy, Frank E. Robinson and Harry L. Hull. The benefits which have come to this old burying ground by the work and attention of this association are hardly to be reckoned. The late Mr. Haskell, was indefatigable in his interest. From a partly neglected and weed-grown yard, it has come to be comparable with the finest of country cemeteries.

The Red Cross Roll Call committee is to meet in the Red Cross room Wednesday evening. The chairman is Mrs. E. H. Hiscox and the executive board of the local chapter, with Miss Bertha Lewis of Voluntown, Miss Elsie Lord of Pachaug, Mrs. E. B. Cheney of Lisbon and Misses Ethel Rood and May Driscoll are the committee. The roll call officially opens Armistice Day and continues to Thanksgiving. The annual roll call is the only way the Red Cross raises the money with which to respond to the calls it receives for help. It has no tag-days. The drive is not for contributions, but for membership in the local chapter, half of which fee goes to the national headquarters. In he aid which the Red Cross gives to terrible disaster victims, such as after the sinking of the Mackinac, the membership fees given in this district helped city relief.

Before a capacity crowd at Ashland Park Sunday the powerful Greeneville Tigers were forced to bow to a superior Jewett City eleven. The Speedboys winning 12 to 0. The first half was bitterly contested with neither side showing any marked advantage, the ball hovering at mid-field throughout the half. Jewett City came back the stronger after the rest between the halves marching 70 yards on the field, only to lose the ball on Greeneville's ten-yard line where the Tigers put up a gallant stand and took the ball on downs. The Speedboys were not to be denied, however, and immediately after the start of the third quarter Provost received Higgins' punt on the 30-yard line and travel 70 more before being brought down. On the next play Elchelberg, the original flying Dutchman, took the ball on an end run and showed his heels to 21 other players, skirting the wing for 50 yards for a touchdown. On the try for point after touchdown, Nelson blocked the kick. Greeneville received and succeeded in making one first down but then the Jewett City defense, a veritable stone wall, stiffened and Greeneville resorted to forwards. Standing in the middle of the field Wild Bill Marshall, Speedboy demon lineman, intercepted one of Greeneville's passes and eluding three would-be tacklers raced for a touchdown. The try for extra point went wild. The game ended shortly after. Gordon, Gay, Nelson and MacGowan worked great for Greeneville while it would be impossible to pick any one star in the Speedboy lineup, every man carrying his own part out to perfection. Next Sunday the Nutmegs are to play Jewett City.

Monday, there were favorable reports from Thomas Barnett and Lionel Boucher, the two Jewett City young men in Backus hospital, who are convalescing after recent operations for appendicitis. Mr. Barnett may be able to come home Wednesday.

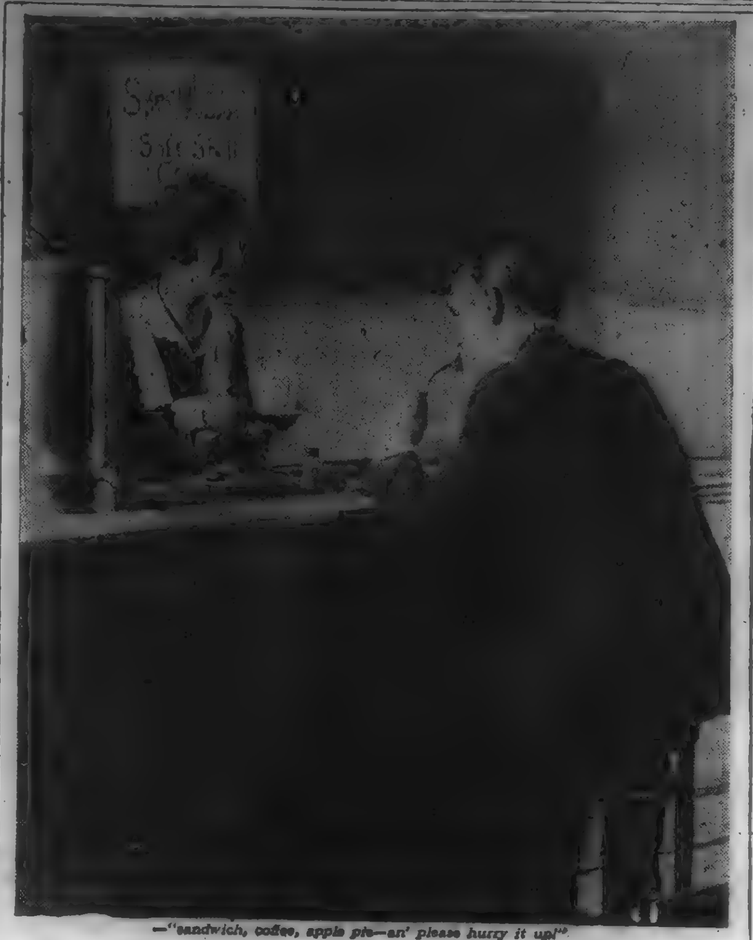
The Town Nurse committee appointed by the selectmen is Dr. G. H. Jemed by the selectmen is Dr. G. H. Jennings, Miss Margaret Driscoll, J. H. McCarthy, Mrs. E. H. Hiscox, Mrs. T. A. Rioux, Arba Browning and Maxcey Seymour.

The Congregational church is to hold a meeting Saturday evening, to vote on new wmembers names.

Some 30 odd years ago, the famous Olympian male quartette, was reckoned maong the leading musical organizations of the village. This quartette was in great demand, and sang somewhere every week with bookings sometimes a month in advance. Their prices were extremely low, in fact they were nothing at all, but their work was good, and Hanover, Baltic and Brooklyn were at one time waiting for their services at prospective entertainments, with the dates pending. Strange as it may seem, considering some of the stage-fright experiences they survived, the entire personnel is alive and well, and in emergency, might do an acceptable job today. They will answer, present!—to the call of Edward E. Burleson, 1st tenor, Benjamin R. Gardner, 2nd tenor; George H. Prior, baritone and Everett H. Hiscox, basso.

Some chap down in New London, this week, gave evidence of having at once a keen perception coupled with a long range memory. The long lost quartet received the other day, from the star of the sea admirer, a six part lithograph cartoon, and it didn't lack a thing. First, there appeared the famous four, true to life, in claw hammer coats and bosom shirts, hammering out of the old time ballad — I've Been Workin' on Thuh R-a-i-Road. Awl Thur Live Long Day. There were also four other well remembered sketches. Then came the "nub"—in picture No. 6—entitled the "Blow Your Horn" section. The redoubtable aggregation was to be seen, back stage, —with these remarks, one for each— "Boys! that was the best we ever done." — "You could hear a pin drop." —"Pretty smooth, I'll say."—"Come on again boys, that's applause enough for an encore."

The body of John Murray of Hartford was brought to St. Mary's cemetery, Lisbon, for burial Monday morning. The funeral was held from the home of his sister, Mrs. Edward J. Farrell, in Wauregan, requiem high mass being sung at the Sacred Heart church by Rev. John C. Matthieu. Rev. J. J. McCabe read the prayers at the cemetery.



—"sandwich, coffee, apple pie—an' please hurry it up!"

Do you gulp lunch?

So many of us do. And then comes indigestion, that nuisance of a trouble that can easily make you miserable all afternoon.

Hurrying through the noon-day meal is a habit hard to break. But there is a way, easy to learn that has helped many to dodge indigestion—simply eating a few Pep-o-mint Life Savers after meals. Try them. They often work wonders this way.

Indigestion is a miserable thing. So many people suffer this way. If they only knew that simple old method our grandfathers used—peppermint.

And now it is available in a new and really convenient form—Pep-o-mint Life Savers; the little candy mints with the hole.

It sounds very simple and old-fashioned. But Pep-o-mint Life Savers really do the trick. Try them after meals when that heavy, logy feeling comes over you—or to relieve that irritating distress of indigestion. Pep-o-mint is displayed at all good stores so you may help yourself; also Wint-o-green, Cinn-o-mon, Lic-o-rice, Cl-o-ve and Vi-o-let. Five cents a package.—Life Savers, Inc., Port Chester, N. Y.

WARDEN SAYS 60 PER CENT OF INMATES DO NOT NEED LOCK

CANON CITY, Colo., Nov. 2—Thomas J. Tynan, who has just completed his sixteenth year as warden of the Colorado state penitentiary, has reached the conclusion that 60 per cent. of the inmates of penal institutions do not need to be locked up.

"Get 'em out in the open," he explains. "Make them build roads, dig in the dirt, farm. Prison conditions aren't normal—and 60 per cent. of the prisoners are."

Here are some of the activities of this warden, whose methods have been adopted by many of the largest prisons in the United States:

Adoption of the group honor system that enabled him to build 4,000 miles of roads through Colorado by means of convict labor. At these camps the men are put entirely on their honor; no armed guards are permitted. Only two civilian overseers are present.

Use of the motion picture machine as a recreational and educational feature inside the prison.

The Wasserman blood test, and systematized treatment for venereal disease.

Encouragement of correspondence school courses for prisoners. This, together with his graded school system, has resulted in a daily school attendance of 300.

Tynan came to the institution without previous experience in prison work. He had been a salesman and a newspaperman.

Because of Colorado's climatic situation, its penal institutions draw a large percentage of tubercular inmates. Tynan has had but one man die of that disease within the walls, while hundreds of "cures" have been effected. Tynan himself came to Colorado in the late 90s for his health.

Tynan says that the average prisoner increases in weight from 30 to 50 pounds during his sentence. The warden attributes this to wholesome food, regular hours and plenty of fresh air.

An example of the product of his educational system is seen in a modern administration building at the prison. This was designed by a youth who entered the prison as an illiterate boy of fourteen, to serve a life term for murder. In prison he trained himself as an architect, designed the building and was paroled. Today he is a resident of Denver, drawing a salary of $400 monthly as an architect with a large firm. He is married and has several children.

From observation and personal contact with 9,000 prisoners Tynan draws these conclusions:

That murderers often "beat back" the best.

That forgers are the worst and most repeated offenders.

That judges are too lenient in sentencing drug addicts. "A sentence of less than two years is useless," he says, "for it takes that long to get the man completely 'off' the stuff."

That the pardon power wielded by state executives is a menace to the honor system. "There should be no pardons, only paroles," he contends.

FILM ACTORS SPEAK PARTS BY RADIO AS PICTURE IS RUN OFF

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 2.—Audiences in a group of theatres may soon watch a long film story and hear the actors speak appropriate lines as the result of a radio experiment demonstrated in 14 houses here and in nearby cities.

Actors in the experiment gathered at the reception room of a local radio broadcasting station in an adjoining room separated from them by a glass partition was a projecting machine with a copy of the film show at the theatres. The machine shot its rays through the glass partition onto a screen tacked on the wall of the room in which the players stood. The actors as they spoke their lines over a radio microphone could see the play unfolded before their eyes—but more important they could see their cues which were carefully titled on the film at frequent intervals. The glass partition prevented the noise of the projecting machine from carrying over the microphone.

On the stages of each of the theatres powerful receiving sets to which loud speakers were connected were set up.

Simultaneously in each of the theatre projection rooms the special operator endeavored to crank his machine from which the usual electrical cranking devices were disconnected, in exact rythm with a metronome that was ticking in unison with one at the broadcasting station.

CAST OFF BOBBED HAIR BRINGS PROFIT FOR CHARITABLE WORK

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 2.—Bobbed hair that formerly was thrown away, the Goodwill Industries now turns into a profit.

This charitable organization in one week received more than 50 pounds of hair in contributions. It was made into wigs and switches, sold and the proceeds devoted to work among the poor.

Cured His Rupture

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 329 M Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

USE OF SUBSTITUTES

As the result of the survey of the coal situation in Connecticut it would appear that the people of this state are not in a serious predicament concerning fuel with 80 per cent. of the normal supply of anthracite in the state. This means that a fifth of the demands must be obtained from such additional orders as may be filled for hard coal and from substitutes, and it becomes apparent that the time for supplying the substitutes is before everything else is exhausted. Supplies of the substitutes will be obtained in keeping with the demands that are made for them.

When Governor Trumbull says that there will be no suffering for lack of fuel in Connecticut this winter if the public will cooperate and use the substitute substances recommended, "there certainly" is good assurance which will keep the public from that "rude awakening" which has been promised to them. The public can certainly recognize the importance of such cooperation, especially since its welfare and comfort is at stake. When it comes to doing something for personal advantage there seems the best of reasons for hearty compliance.

The experience of W. W. Gross, the governor's personal representative at the joint conference of New England governors concerning coal, is in keeping with that of many others. He is in fact doing what the governor of Massachusetts some time ago decided to do—use the low volatile bituminous coal exclusively for home heating purposes. That means an efficient fuel, a fuel even cleaner, better results from it than obtained from anthracite, a fuel which will relieve the feeling of dry persistent of a shortage.

This is one of the several substitutes at hand with the exception in the case of most people that they are not familiar with them, and that now is the opportunity to share of the struggle bird which the hard coal operators and miners have put upon them for the good of more. There is the chance to do something for themselves for which many will be grateful.

LOANS AND DEBTS

Funding of their debts by the European countries which borrowed of this country during and after the war has not progressed as rapidly as the situation would seem to demand. There has been encountered a disposition to let the adjustment drift, regardless of the fact that it is seven years since the signing of the armistice. Certain nations have arranged to settle, but others are delaying, even though such delays mean the piling up of a greater amount of interest.

If these same nations could obtain loans, which they need at the present time, there's no telling how long this policy of drifting might be continued. It is to the United States that the borrowers must look. They are conscious of this fact and they likewise understand that American bankers are willing and ready to make further loans. But when European nations are eager to obtain new loans at a high rate of interest and are not ready to adjust existing debts at a much lower rate of interest it is evident that one should be made dependent upon the other.

Thus, when this government lets it be known that it will not sanction foreign loans to nations which have not adjusted their war loans, and that loans to cities of such countries will not be sanctioned, it must be realized that the reasons for this rest solely with those which have not arranged to pay.

It can be readily understood that it would be grossly unfair to those who are paying, if the same advantages when it comes to borrowing prevailed for all alike. There is no disposition to press the nations beyond their ability to pay, or to require them to pay for a few years, but our attitude does set forth the fact that those who adjust their debts stand in a more favorable light in regard to further loans and that under present conditions means a great deal.

It is for our protection that embargoes are established in other directions and there is no reason why the same method should not be employed where finances are involved.

POSSIBLY A NEW COIN

In the effort to save money by reducing the waste that exists at the present time in connection with the use of paper money the treasury department has not been as successful as it had hoped. But it is not discouraged. If we are to judge by the plans which are under consideration of making a coin of silver and gold that would take the place of a silver dollar or a paper dollar, and yet overcome the undesirable features of the present cartwheel and gilt-nuts the war and tear that exists in connection with the paper money.

What this coin that is being considered will look like, its size, shape or weight, is not known. It is certain that it should be as light as possible if it is going to be popular, for no one wants to be burdened with a large amount of coin because of its weight. The paper money is preferred, when clean, because it is much handier to carry.

When the treasury sought to have the public use more silver dollars, it had in mind the saving of many millions through reducing the cost of printing the paper money. It was worth saving but the people have not indicated a willingness to go to the added bother for the saving that would be effected. Again an endeavor has been made to increase the circulation of two dollar bills with a view to reducing the number of one dollar bills, the life of which amounts to only about seven months and the demand for them taxing the producing capacity of the treasury. In this direction better success has been obtained, since there is no logical reason why one half the number of bills shouldn't at least be employed in cases where one dollar bills were exclusively used.

But changing public habits and replacing what it likes with something about which there is little desire is no small undertaking. The treasury department is actuated by the best of reasons and entitled to hearty cooperation, but even the easiest things for the elimination of waste are sometimes the hard at to get people to adopt. The department by its determination to keep trying is by no means discouraged.

TODAY'S ELECTIONS

Today there are contests at the polls in a dozen states for the election of congressmen, the filling of vacancies and the choice of state and city officials.

The campaign in certain instances has waxed long and warm. Various issues are at stake in the different communities though none can be regarded as being of national importance.

The fight for the governorship in New Jersey has been a hot one, while in several instances the contests have aroused deep local and states interest if nothing more.

Today the voters of both New York and Boston make their selection of mayors and a change is insured in each instance. In the former city the honor lies between two, and as usual the adherents of each are claiming victory. In Boston there is a many cornered fight with ten candidates for mayor, seven of them being democrats. What effect this will have upon the democratic vote remains to be seen. New Haven is another city where the present mayor is not a candidate for re-election, but where strained party relations are adding to the interest as well as in New York and Boston.

And because of the uncertainty and the questions at stake there is a general interest centering in the municipal and state contests. The results in the November contests will be eagerly sought for the bearing they are bound to have upon the local conditions and such revelation as they may make concerning future political possibilities.

ITALY RETURNS

The Italian debt commission has come to this country with confidence that it will be successful in its mission. It is the right attitude for any such group of men to take even though that does not always insure success. Confidence was the long suite of the French commission and yet there was no satisfactory result.

This is the second commission that has come from Italy. The former one, with a different personnel, did not complete its task. It obtained the attention of this government at close range and then returned to dig up facts and figures in regard to the financial condition of Italy. Now that it has returned it is to be supposed that it is fully equipped with the data required and that it is prepared to carry through the negotiations.

With Italy as with the rest of the debtor nations this government has made it evident that it is seeking to obtain only what lies within the capacity of the nation to pay, and yet in most instances the same basis for settlement that was used in the case of Great Britain is being employed.

The financial situation of Italy will of course be taken into consideration quite the same as that of other countries has been, but when the commission comes with the intention of completing negotiations before a return is made there is indicated the right spirit under existing conditions and a determination to obtain for Italy as great benefit as possible through assuring assistance in relieving its many financial problems. Italy is one of the few remaining nations with which debt funding agreements have not been made.

EDITORIAL NOTES

November is with us, and may it be a bit more considerate than October has.

Apple week can be observed now as well as any time. The supply is greater now than it will be later.

The man on the corner says: Notwithstanding the general tendency the fur coat still has its attractions.

There's no presidential election this year but New York and Boston are to furnish interesting contests today for mayors.

France may be disposed to let its debt to this country rest, but it cannot be denied its place in any national financing plan.

Those concerned with the finances of the various universities and colleges are noting how easy the big fund was obtained by Duke university.

"Never again" West Point officials are quoted as saying about bus transportation, for the student body when Yale and West Point clash in the future. And yet busses are supposed to be the coming thing.

Down in Venezuela the importation of radio sets has been stopped because they interfere with those who work. Venezuela is apparently trying to avoid that day where if pleasure interferes with work, work should be abandoned.

AT THE CLUB

The sandy-haired person with spectacles twisted about in his lounge chair and gazed without enthusiasm on the large and amiable member in the doorway.

"Hello," said the sandy-haired person, "enter if you must and close the door upon you gaping caBboy. His earnest endeavors of late to listen in on our private conversation are causing his ears to protrude at such an alarming angle that it worries me."

"Huh," remarked the amiable member.

"Exactly," agreed the sandy-haired person. "They threaten to part company from his head. They look, in fact, as if they might project themselves independently into any location—like thought or a federal tax."

The amiable member steered for the lounge chair nearest his friend, and, removing all strain from the knees of his trousers, prepared to make himself comfortable.

"Here, wait!" warned the sandy-haired person. "If you sit down that way and lean back with that guileless expression on your face you'll look so much like a customer that I'm likely to sell you a bill of goods in an absent moment."

"I should worry," said the amiable member, cheerfully.

"So I see," snapped the sandy-haired person, with sarcasm. "It's me doing all the worrying."

"Come, cheer up," advised the amiable member, solicitiously. "What's on your mind anyway?"

"Need you ask?" inquired the sandy-haired person with bitterness. "My nerves are shattered, that's what. You left our house at 12:14 last night, standard time. I keep the drawing-room clock standard on purpose, for the use of my sister's suitors."

"Wow-w!" exclaimed the amiable member. "I thought the evening was all too short. You surely have the nerve of a—"

"There you go," complained the sandy-haired person wearily. "I've listened to that line of talk so much in the last few years that it's put a crimp in my disposition and is spoiling my appetite. One after another you come, wearing out the upholstery in my library and taking its out to dinner in some fool pink-shaded restaurant or other, when she ought to be at home pouring out my coffee and ministering generally to my wearied spirit when I come home after a long day of toil—"

He paused for breath while his friend grinned.

"Two or three evenings a week, running, some of you are up at our house for supper," complained the sandy-haired person, with a glare. "My legs get so cramped doubling themselves up to make room for three at a gate-legged table built for two that I walk down to the office mornings with a limp. And your five-pound boxes of candy give me a stomachache."

"Huh," remarked the amiable member, briefly.

"Yes, huh!" barked the sandy-haired person, removing his spectacles and blinking like an owl. "You don't suppose I can see it sitting around all the time and never touch it, do you? That's what it's for, I suppose?"

"Not at all," stated the amiable man, firmly. "It was never intended to reach your stomach. Only the heart of the lady to whom it was addressed."

The sandy-haired person considered this for some moments in silence.

"Well," he remarked, finally, "I hope I shall not be driven to extreme measures in your case, as I was with another aspiring suitor last year. I really got so worried about him that I had to think up something, so I told his privately that there was a hereditary criminal strain in his family and that—"

"Why, you confounded liar," boomed the large member shortly, "if you ever—"

"Oh, don't get excited," advised the sandy-haired person calmly. "Such a drastic precaution won't be necessary in your case. He was a good looking cuss, you see—thin and athletic. Here, wait a minute, you're leaving your London paper, starting off in such unseemly haste. See you tonight, I suppose?"

The large man paused in the doorway and looked back with returning cheerfulness.

"You will," he said, "at 7 o'clock, for dinner." And your legs will be so darned cramped tomorrow morning, believe me, that nothing short of a limousine will enable you to reach your heated hole of high finance. If you are too stingy to buy an old electric fan—oh, well—all right—I'll bid you good-day."—Chicago News.

Today's Birthdays

Duke of Brabant, heir apparent to the Belgian throne, born in Brussels, 24 years ago today.

Walter Wellman, noted journalist and explorer, born at Mentor, Ohio, 67 years ago today.

Vilhjalmar Stefinsson, the celebrated explorer, born at Arnes, Manitoba, 46 years ago today.

Scott Ferris, former congressman, who may be a candidate for governor of Oklahoma next year, born at Neosho, Mo., 48 years ago today.

Charles Dick, former United States senator from Ohio, born at Akron, O., 67 years ago today.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Dr. Edwin A. Alderman, who declares that entrance requirements in American colleges are "too wooden and too formal," has been president of the University of Virginia for more than 20 years and is looked upon as one of the most noted educators in the south. He was born in the south, prepared for college in the south, and graduated at the University of North Carolina. As a student he won distinction in many departments, and upon the completion of his education he began to teach, first as superintendent of the city schools of Goldsboro, N. C. As president of the University of Virginia he has duplicated the success which he had previously achieved in the same position at two other colleges, the University of North Carolina, and Tulane University. Dr. Alderman has been a voluminous writer, while his reputation as an orator is scarcely second to that of any American.

1794—William Cullen Bryant, the poet, born at Cummington, Mass. Died in New York City, July 12, 1878.

1830—Dr. John Watson (Ian MacLaren,) celebrated author, born in England. Died at Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, May 6, 1907.

1851—The San Francisco Chamber of Commerce was incorporated.

1890—Gov. Shoup called the first state legislature of Idaho to meet at Boise.

1894—Prince Kung acknowledged the defeat of China in the war with Japan, and requested foreign intervention.

1812—Turkey appealed to the Powers to intervene in the war with the Balkan allies.

1923—Lloyd George concluded his American visit and sailed for home.

1924—Eleven persons killed near Hampton, Va., when a railway train ran into a bus.

Stories That Recall Others

Went Right Along With Love

The importance of punctuation and the surprising statements that would occur without the use of a sufficient quantity of the proper marks were demonstrated in a news story of a wedding. One comma had been left out. It read thus: Mrs. Jones sang At Dawning, Love Came Calling accompanied by Mrs. Smith.

Only One Letter

Mrs. X had gone out to participate in a long expected dinner and left Alma, the nurse girl in charge, assuring her that if the simpler things were ready when Mr. X came home that he would broil the steaks.

When Mr. X came home he was tired after a hard morning and on being told that Mrs. X had said for him to cook the steaks did not feel the urge. "Oh, you can broil them, Alma," he said. "Just put them on and cook them. It's simple. "Then he picked up the paper and started to read. Alma was a little bewildered but decided to try.

After a few minutes Mr. X called out: "You had better turn the steaks over now, Alma."

"Did you say 'turn them over'?" asked Alma, "I don't believe I know how."

"Don't know how to turn them over?" exclaimed Mr. X and started for the kitchen, where, to his amazement, he found the four big, juicy porterhouse steaks boiling briskly in a big kettle of water, and realized that Alma had missed the important little "e" in the word "broil". And what a difference the little letter made!

The school year in Czechoslovakia comprises 29 days, according to the schedule recently fixed by the ministry of education. Sunday is the only day of the week on which the schools are closed.

From Small Beginnings

"Dan" Rice, a Great Circus Clown

To one man is given one gift, and to another, another gift. The boy Dan McLaren from his earliest days had great strength and ability, and an unusual power to amuse others by his antics. These gifts he carried into life and thereby made himself typical in the eyes of children all over the United States, for he became perhaps the most popular circus clown ever known.

"Dan" McLaren was an ordinary New York city boy, accustomed to the life of the streets, made quick by the emergencies of city life, and educated, as it were, by the crowd. The boy on the farm is often far stronger in his muscles than is the city boy, but the boy of the streets can turn handsprings and cartwheels, and stand on his head or walk on his hands in a way that amazes the boy from the farm. Dan McLaren, as a youngster watched the older boys "doing their stunts" and tried his best to imitate them. For a little fellow he was remarkably successful. Nothing daunted him, and he had a suppleness and grace that showed the greatest promise. As he grew older he became proud of his unusual ability, and took pains to develop it in better schools than that of the street. He became a professional acrobat, and finally found employment in a small circus. From this he went to another. His antics to amuse his fellow performers led to his being drafted for service as a clown. Here, at last, he found himself, and the world found an amuser. For years "Dan" Rice as he now called himself, made children, and their elders as well, laugh at his mock misfortunes and foolishness. There was something so kindly about the circus clown that he made himself really loved.

That this love was not based on fun alone was proved when years later Dan Rice, now become a wealthy man through the ownership of his own circus, gave money with a liberal hand to every cause for aiding the poor and the unfortunate. His heart went with every gift, for he followed his money with interest, and did what he could to raise up the fallen. In his days the evils of drink were most pronounced, and he devoted himself especially to teaching young men to avoid drunkenness. In the Civil war he showed himself a loyal and energetic worker for the union. All in all, the clown proved himself a real man, lived to the good old age of 78, and died universally lamented.

LISTENING CHILDREN

Mrs. Nestor Noel

Some children are always listening to what older people are saying. I think this is caused by the air of mystery often spoken in whispers. This excites curiosity. If there were no mystery the children would go on playing their own games and not even want to know what the grown people were saying.

"Let's go and play," they would say, and run away of their own accord.

To say to children, "You're not wanted, is to make them wish to remain. If you hide behind a secret door, the children will at once seek to enter.

We have no mysteries in our home except those delightful ones that go with birthdays and Christmas time. None of us ever say to a child, "Go away. This is not fit for you to hear!" We wouldn't care ourselves to speak of what is unfit for childish ears. A mystery, to my mind, generally implies scandal, and I have no desire to listen to this at any time.

People tell children that it is rude to listen to what is not intended for them, but do they set them a good example? In rural districts, I have heard mothers rebuke their children for this fault, and the minute after, they themselves were listening at the telephone when the call was not for them! The only way to teach small children anything is by example, and this applies as much to listening as to anything else.

I have seen mothers push their children aside and say, "I wish you wouldn't always come where you are not wanted!" These children had followed not with any idea of wrong, but because they wanted to be with their mothers.

A child may listen because he is intelligent and likes to learn about things. It is of no use to say, "Run away, you can't understand." Children understand a great deal more than we think they do. Their reasoning powers are constantly growing and before we realize it, these young people may comprehend better than we. There is certainly no wrong in listening if children do it openly, but of course when they listen hiding behind doors and curtains it becomes a serious fault.

In case of sickness, a small child's symptoms should never be discussed near by in a whisper. A child's hearing is generally very acute. Incalculable harm may be done if he hears himself discussed. If you do not want him to hear what you are saying, be careful to say it in another room, well out of hearing. A word caught here and there often does more harm than a whole sentence. A child has a lively imagination, and may piece the words together in a way never intended.

LIBERIA

Will Liberia, the African negro republic planned by Americans as a reparation for the seizure of its natives as slaves, in turn free the American automobilist from the burden of high tire costs? American interests, fighting the so-called British and Dutch rubber combined, have obtained a long time lease of 1,000,000 acres of land for rubber growing in the west coast republic.

"Before the rubber industry in Liberia can be developed, however, it will be necessary first to develop a large part of the country," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society. "For some fifty or sixty miles back of its coast Liberia has been cleared and partly developed, but from that imaginary line inland there are dense forests and extremely primitive peoples. Sir Harry Johnston encountered beasts, birds and reptiles there, which, he writes, 'are found fossil in Miocene formations of France and southern Germany.'

"It would be safe to assume that local denials would never bring about the development of the country's rubber resources, for there are only two roads, one of them extending from Monrovia, the capital, fifty miles back into the country, and the other a short stretch of five miles inland from Cape Palmas. There is not a single mile of railroad. Native porters, balancing huge loads on their heads are the only means by which the products of the interior can be brought to the coast.

"However, the potential wealth of the country should not be overlooked. Although Liberia, located as it is on the point where the west coast makes the great bend to form the Gulf of Guinea, does not stand out very prominently against the great bulk of the African continent, it has an area equal to that of Kentucky, and a total population estimated to be greater than that of any one of thirty states of the union. Of these two million or more inhabitants only about 50,000 of whom one-fourth are of American origin, may be considered civilized, and take part in the government of children all over the United States, for he became perhaps the most popular circus clown ever known.

"With a rainfall of nearly 150 inches, one of the heaviest in the world as well as consistently high temperatures, Liberia's soil is productive, although so far its cultivation has been neglected. Each year, however, there is a fair sized export of cocoa, cotton, coffee, rice, palm oil, palm kernels, benni seed, kassam fiber and other products. Porter trains bring iron ore, gold, the copper, zinc, ivory, hides, and precious stones from the mountains back of the coast.

"The little republic has hardly scratched the surface of its possibilities. Its interior is less accessible than is America 4,000 miles away, due to lack of communication. It is as little known to the Liberians themselves as it is to the world at large. Rivers are navigable for only a short distance from the coast; due to the rapids when the plateau region is reached. Along its 50 miles of coastline rough trails and small boats are used.

"Liberians are friendly to Americans, as many of the high officials of the republic were born in this country, a few of them former slaves. The American spirit is strong in Liberia. The capital of the country, Monrovia, is named for the American President Monroe, while the traveler is likely to come upon a collection of huts or shanties in the midst of the African jungle with the inconsruous names of New York, or Philadelphia, or Bunker Hill, or Latrobe, or Hartford—all of them actual Liberian settlements.

"The houses of the more well to do Liberians are built in the style of the southern states, while much of the furniture, clothing and most of the books and papers come from the United States. Few of the natives have seen or ever expect to see the United States but they like to feel with a similar language, currency and customs, and a government modelled after ours, that they are still a part of America.

"More than twenty varieties of wild rubber vines and trees have already been found in the tropical wilderness that begins beyond the cleared areas. Liberia does not have a very extensive coastal plain, with the moist, preferably inundated, ground best suited for rubber cultivation, but in Ceylon, where conditions are similar, cultivated rubber trees are growing at altitudes up to 2,000 feet, and even higher. On a rubber plantation, the trees are usually planted in open rows, like fruit orchards, and in the early stage of their growth catch crops, such as groundnuts, cassava, coffee, bananas, cotton, etc., are often set among them, with the idea of removing the catch crops later on. Thus a cotton, banana, or coffee estate can be gradually transformed into a rubber plantation as soon as it is certain the latter will pay.

"Since the founding of the Monrovian Rubber company (later known as the Liberian Rubber corporation) in 1906, rubber has had a place in the trade of the nation. Sixteen different grades are obtained from the natural growths, the lianas or vines of the interior forests being the main source of supply. These huge creepers grow up tall trees and sometimes extend 300 to 400 feet along their tops. The ropelike stems are often nine inches in diameter."

Our idea of a selfish person is one who is unable to remember a favor.

INGROWN NAIL

Turns Right Out Itself

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail relieves inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it cannot penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

The Travelers Are Waylaid

Who travels never knows when he
May face to face with danger be.
Nanny Meadow Mouse.

Danny and Nanny Meadow Mouse were peeping out from under an old board at the foot of a post at the lower end of the Long Lane while they talked with Peter Rabbit. They were explaining to Peter that they were preparing for winter by traveling, and Peter was having hard work to get that through his head. They teased him for a while and then they explained. "You see," said Danny, "we had such a very comfortable winter when we went down to the Sunny South that we decided we must do something this year to have as comfortable a winter as possible. So we are moving up to Farmer Brown's."

"Farmer Brown's!" cried Peter. "Do you are mean to say that you are going up to Farmer Brown's to live?"

Again Danny chuckled that squeaky little chuckle of his. "We're going up to his barn to live," said he. "It is a wonderful place, that barn. You know Nanny and I lived there one winter, and we've never forgotten it. It is warm, there is plenty to eat, and there are no end of hiding places. I wouldn't care to stay there in the summer, but in the winter it is wonderful. Nanny and I talked it all over and decided that we would move up there for this winter. So we're on our way. We're taking our time, you know, because there is no particular hurry about getting there. So far we're had a very pleasant journey. Blacky the Crow was the first one to make any trouble for us. This old board came in very handy."

Peter Rabbit looked up. Then, without even stopping to say good by, away he ran, You see, Farmer Brown's boy was heading right straight for that old post. Stooping over, he picked up the board. He was going to take it back to the barn. My, you should have seen Danny and Nanny Meadow Mouse take to their little heels. They squeaked with fright and away they ran. Farmer Brown's boy apologized, but they didn't hear him.

"You poor little scamps," said he. "Were you living under there? I'm sorry to give you such a fright." Then he looked very carefully to see if there was a nest. Of course there wasn't a nest, and then he concluded that they weren't living under that board at all, but were just hiding there. He went whistling up the Long Lane and on his shoulder he carried the board.

As for Danny and Nanny Meadow Mouse, they also continued on up the

They ran from one shelter to another

Long Lane. But they went by a series of little runs followed by stops. You see, there were no little paths for them up there. They ran from one shelter to another, and in each shelter they stopped to look and listen for danger. You see, it was a very dangerous trip for two such little persons. They had been lucky so far no one but Blacky the Crow had discovered them. Presently, as Danny ran from one little clump of grass to another, a great black creature sprang. Danny squeaked with fright for two black paws had all but landed on him. In fact, they had landed on his funny little short tail. Nanny Meadow Mouse had wanted to squeak, but she wisely had kept her mouth shut. Just in time she had seen Black Pussy the Cat. So now, with her heart going pitter-pat, pitter-pat, she crouched under the grass and, holding her breath, watched to see if Black Pussy would catch Danny. She expected every second to see Black Pussy with Danny in her teeth. But Black Pussy seemed to be having difficulty. She hadn't caught Danny, Nanny couldn't think how Danny could have escaped, but she was sure he had escaped. She could tell that he had by Black Pussy's actions. "Don't you let her get you, Danny. Don't you let her get you," she kept saying over and over under her breath.

You may be quite sure that Danny had no intention of letting Black Pussy get him—not if he could help himself.

U. S. VISITORS IN BALKANS HAMPERED IN TRADING

Among the things that seem especially to impress American visitors to the Balkans is the virtual impossibility of carrying through business deals without recourse to intermediaries. Thus, in a question of buying or selling, there is always some individual who will offer his services, saying that he is in position to obtain a very low price for the buyer or a high price for the seller. Foreign residents in the Balkans find it especially difficult to dispose of anything direct. For example, a certain foreigner who for months has been selling his furniture, his automobile and other effects has never once come into contact with a real buyer. There seems to be a tacit arrangement among the real buyers and the intermediaries by which each agrees to respect the other's rights.

Sugar From Dahlias

A new dahlia and artichoke industry promises new life for domestic sugar manufacturers, according to science. At present huge beet sugar plants are lying idle two-thirds of the year for lack of raw material. It is now expected that after producting beet sugar in the summer the plants will run four months on artichoke, followed by four months on on dahlia tubers to produce large quantities of the new levulose sugar. At present, levulose is prepared only as a syrup or moist, powder-like brown sugar, but the problems of crystallization are rapidly being solved commercially.

Climbing Fish

B. K. Das, a scientist from the Orient, showed living specimens of the famous climbing fish of Bengal, India, at the recent meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science. This species known as Anabas scandens quite lives up to his name—"scandens" means "climbing"—for it actually does climb coco trees, says science. Dr. Das, however, denied the rumor that it invades gardens and battles with its fellows over angle worms as robins do. So used is this fish to being out of water that it drowns if kept in it too long. It absolutely must have atmospheric air to breathe.

There are five species of Indian fish that have developed air-breathing apparatus, some with, others without auxiliary gills. This, it was pointed out, is an example of present-day evolution quite different from the way amphibians and higher animals rose.

Practical experience in beekeeping is a part of the curriculum in a number of rural schools in the province of Ontario. In 16 schools in Wentworth county bees are kept in observation hives in the schoolroom. The study involves little extra work on the part of the teacher, and is valuable as a nature contact and in contributing to the promotion of a great productive industry. The sale of honey in many of the schools has been more than sufficient to cover in one season the expense of installation and upkeep.

SUFFERED TWO YEARS

Finally Relieved by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Says Mrs. Anderson

Rangeley, Maine.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped me greatly for pains in the sides and back, headaches and tired feelings. I suffered two years and it seemed as though I could not get my work done from one day to the next. After reading letters from others who had taken the Vegetable Compound I decided to try it and now I can do all kinds of work sewing, washing, ironing and sweeping. I live on a farm and have five in the family so am busy most of the time. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to my friends and hope my letter will help some one to take your medicine."—Mrs. WALTER E. ANDERSON, Box 270, Rangeley, Maine.

Over 200,000 women have so far replied to our question, "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?"

BACKUS HOSPITAL

Nurses' Home Opening

The new Nurses Home of The William W. Backus Hospital will be open to the public on Wednesday, November 4th from 3 to 5 and from 8 to 10 p. m.

The Executive Committee take this opportunity to express their appreciation of the gifts, over seven thousand in number, which have made this building possible. It is hoped that a large number of the donors will be interested to visit the new Home on the opening day. Any general Hospital is practically a public institution and the quality and extent of its service is determined largely by the community which it undertakes to serve.

SHOT THREE COONS IN PRESTON WOODS

Stanley Henschel, Donald Gregson and Albert Werth scored heavily in the coon hunting game on Monday night when they brought in three fine fat coons from an excursion into the Preston woods. The young men were without the help of dogs, but they spotted two coons in one tree and brought them down. Soon afterwards the third coon was seen in a tree nearby and this was also secured, a record bag for about an hour's work in the early season. Each animal weighed about 30 pounds.

OBITUARY

Mrs. James Dawson.

After being in poor health for about a year the death of Jennie L. Shaw, wife of James Dawson, occurred Sunday her home at No. 12 Cliff street. Mrs. Dawson was in her usual health during the morning and about noon sat down in a chair to rest and passed quietly away.

She was born in Norwich Nov. 2, 1854, the daughter of John B. and Elizabeth Edwards Shaw and all of her life had been spent in this city, where in October 1883 she was united in marriage with James Dawson.

Mrs. Dawson was a member of Christ Episcopal church and always took an interest in church affairs as long as her health permitted her to do so. A woman of kindly disposition and loving qualities her friends were many and the news of her death comes as a shock to them.

Surviving besides her husband, are one niece, Mrs. Ella Beebe Willard of Groton and one nephew, Frederick Nelson of California; also two sisters-in-law, Mrs. Minnie Byrnes of Union street, Norwich, and Mrs. Caroline Shaw Beebe of Groton.

Mrs. George Dewey

The death of Mrs. Ellie E. Dewey, widow of George Dewey, occurred Monday evening at her home 58 Cliff street, resulting from severe burns which she received two weeks ago while preparing dinner at her home. Mrs. Dewey had been a resident of this city for many years, having a wide circle of friends who will learn of her death with deep sorrow.

Patrick D. Falvey

Following a brief illness the death of Patrick D. Falvey occurred Saturday morning at 10 o'clock at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Mary E. Stevens of Yantic.

Mr. Falvey was born in Ireland but came to this country when a young man and for many years engaged in farming in Bozrahville where he was highly esteemed.

He is survived by his daughter, Mrs. Mary E. Stevens of Yantic, with whom he lived, a daughter, Mrs. John Ward of Norwich and a son, Michael F. Falvey of Trenton, N. J., also by one grandchild, Miss Julia C. Stevens of Yantic. His wife died on February 10th last.

Miss Margaret Elizabeth Tate.

Miss Margaret Elizabeth Tate died Supday at the Hartford hospital, after a short illness. Miss Tate was born in Windsor Locks and was a graduate of the public schools there. She was also a graduate of the Connecticut Literary institute. Miss Tate had been a teacher at the Chauncey Harris school in Hartford for the past thirty years. She leaves four brothers, Edward Tate of Hartford, Gilbert Tate of Southington, Frank Tate of Windsor Locks and Rev. W. J. Tate of Franklin; four sisters, Mrs. Mary I. Collins and Mrs. W. S. Fox of Springfield, Mass., Mrs. J. M. Hastings of Owego, N. Y., and Mrs. J. R. Bond of Plantsville.

WEDDING

Collins—Perry

Miss Arline Evangeline Perry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel E. Perry of Waterford, and Irvin Stillman Collins, son of Mrs. Sarah Collins of this city, were married at the Methodist Episcopal church in New London at 6 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Charles E. Spaulding, pastor of the church. The altar was banked with palms and chrysanthemums. At the bridal party came up the aisle Mrs. Henry Remmert of Groton played the wedding march and later Mrs. Ragnoe Perry of Jordan sang At Dawning.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. The maid of honor was Miss Caroline M. Brine of Cambridge, Mass., and the flower girl was little Evelyn Draper of this city. The best man was Roscoe T. Perry, brother of the bride.

The bride was charmingly gowned in white satin-faced crepe trimmed with pearls. Her veil of tulle was held in place by a coronet of pearls. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and bridal roses. Miss Brine wore a gown of powder blue satin-faced crepe with hat, shoes and stockings of matching shade. The hat was trimmed with a band of rhinestones. She carried an arm bouquet of pink roses. The flower girl wore a dress of pink satin-faced crepe and bands of orange blossoms in coronet fashion around her head. She carried a large basket of pink roses.

Following the ceremony there was a reception and dinner at the home of the bride's parents. Forty guests were present. Out of town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Perry and son, Raymond, of Norwich; Mrs. Sarah Collins and Miss Alice Collins of Norwich, Mrs. George H. Brine, Miss Caroline Brine and John Damson of Cambridge, Mass., Mrs. George Williams, Miss Martha Walsh and daughter, Florence, of Boston. At the dinner decorations were in pink and white. House decorations consisted of ferns and red berries.

Immediately following the dinner Mr. and Mrs. Collins left on a wedding trip to Maine. On their return they will make their home in Norwich.

Byron H. Evans

Following serious illness for the past two weeks, the death of Byron H. Evans occurred late Monday evening at his home, 24 court street, during the last few days his condition became critical and everything possible was done for him by his wife and those assisting her, but he was unable to rally.

One of his sons, Dr. John U. Evans, is returning to America from nearly four years service in the Near East. Dr. Evans with his wife, is now somewhere on the sea, and it is not expected that they can reach Norwich until the middle or latter part of this month. They have not been aware of the critical illness of the doctor's father.

PREDICTING OVER $12,000 TO BE FINAL FOR ST. JOSEPH'S SCHOOL

Predictions that the outlook is for approximately $12,000 were made by general chairman Adelard Morin at the dinner Monday night at the Wauregan hotel for the campaign workers in the drive for the fund for the equipment of St. Joseph's school building. Reports from the special committee are to be made on Wednesday evening at a meeting at 8 o'clock at the chamber of commerce rooms, and Chairman Morin said he had reason to believe that all will be proud of the final results.

Over 150 of the team members were present for the supper which was opened with the singing of America before Rev. S. A. Icick, pastor of the church, asked the divine blessing.

After the menu had been served Chairman Morin addressed the workers with words of commendation for the part they had played in the campaign of the past week, declaring that the amazing number of contributions indicated the great interest that this drive had aroused in the community. A cordial welcome had greeted the workers wherever they went and he felt sure that if times had been normal they could have reached the high goal which had been set. The final results will be something for Norwich to be proud of.

Chairman Morin called on the team captain to report their figures since their last previous report. The following responded, many of the reports being received with loud applause: P. T. Diggins, $24; Michael D'Atri, $8; G. H. Dolan, $80; Jeremiah Sweeney $14; J. E. Fitzgerald, $10; P. T. Connell, $95; Walter G. Casey $102; Delphis L. Pre $44.25; John Dombrowski $32.75; Martin Rozycki $22; Joseph Panek $117.50; Peter Wrona $9.75; John Tumicki, $146.75; Joseph Rozanski $117.65; Mrs. Morgan Cronin $38.50; Mrs. Thomas O'Rourke $104; Miss Sella Steczewicz $155.50; Mrs. Lena Krzeczkal, $21.75; Mrs. Frank Owsiak, $40.

Father Icick followed with warm words of praise for what the team captains and workers had done and said he felt sure St. Joseph's school had made many friends for itself in the community. The more people realize what the school means the more they will be willing to contribute towards it and to come to the school building to enjoy the advantages which it will offer. Those who contributed, he said are making an investment that will pay dividends in the more intrinsic values of life. The work of the school will go on and on through the years in producing good and successful citizens.

Father Icick expressed himself as being pleased with the work that all had done and spoke particularly of Fitchville, which had turned in over $200. He went on to speak of various individual workers whose earnest and persistent efforts had amounted to so much in the drive and said he thanked everybody from the bottom of his heart.

He made the announcement that on Jan. 15, 16 and 17, from Friday to Sunday, he would have the grand opening of the new school building, the date marking a year from the day he had first come to Norwich and in that time had put up and paid over $30,000 on the new school building. The pastor declared that he wanted to assure the people of Norwich that he should always be glad to give help and cooperate in any civic or national movement or any good work, and he wanted the people who were committed to his charge to enjoy every opportunity possible and to have extended to them the hand of friendship by those Americans of longer years in this country. He expressed his appreciation to the newspapers for their assistance during the drive and to the Palace theatre for its contribution of the Sunday entertainment. He closed amid enthusiastic applause as he declared it to be his intention to show his appreciation by working for the interests of the people in his charge and for the welfare of this wonderful community.

Ex-Mayor J. J. Desmond, a member of the general committee, was the concluding speaker, calling attention to the magnificent responses which had been made in this good old town, of which he said he was proud, and which would experience splendid benefits in the years to come as the result of Father Icick's work. It was all a fair reflection of that fine spirit of brotherhood in this community, all children of that great Creator who has meant us to be brothers forever.

A number of the team captains and workers stayed after the meeting for consultation with General Chairman Morin in order that they might take assignments to visit a dozen or more of the manufacturing plants of the city where it is understood they will be welcome to receive voluntary contributions.

BOZRAH TOMBSTONE STORY AS TOLD FROM NEW YORK END

A New York paper had the following, at the week end: Last August Reginald F. Bolton, of 115 East Nineteenth street, picked up a broken tombstone in Riverside Drive recording the burial of a 3-year-old child of Jabez Crocker, Jr., and his wife, Mary, some time in the eighteenth century. Mr. Bolton advertised his find and through the attendant publicity learned the graveyard from which the stone had been taken.

"Among various suggestions as to its probable origin," Mr. Bolton said, "I received from a member of the family in Washington, D. C., a transcript of local records in the town of Norwich, Conn., which has led to the complete identification of the stone and of its place of origin.

"Within the last few days I had the pleasure of taking the child's stone to the little hamlet of Bozrah, near Norwich, where I found the footstone of the child's grave bearing the same name and those of the rest of the family, including the mother, the father having been an officer of Connecticut troops in the revolution. The date of the child's death was 1760."

Mr. Bolton said that the invasion of the graveyard had resulted in the local chapter of the Daughters of the Revolution promising to restore the stone and to care for the neglected graves, he added:

"The only mystery that remains in connection with the incident is the personality and character of people who could be guilty of so mean an action as to steal the headstone from a child's grave, carry it 135 miles to the metropolis, and there cast it into a public thoroughfare."

He might have added that it was through Arthur L. Peale and Mrs. Elisha E. Rogers of Norwich that the mystery was solved, up to its present point.

COMMON PLEAS COURT HEARS SUIT OVER WAGES

A suit over wages was heard in the court of common pleas at New London Monday before Judge Charles H. Waller in the trial of the case of Robert Clark of Niantic against Harry B. Morton of Niantic, the plaintiff seeking $485.45 which he claimed was due him for work rendered to the defendant. After the testimony was concluded, Judge Waller requested that the defendant who in a counter claim sought $1,330, file a bill of particulars within one week. The court then took the papers.

Attorneys Arthur T. Keefe and Marion Davies submitted an amended bill of particulars for the plaintiff, the bill calling for $487.45.

One of the issues at odds was whether the plaintiff, Clark, or the defendant, Morton, handled a contract for work in East Lyme. Both claimed that they handled the job, the plaintiff stating that he made the terms with Attorney Austin I. Bush, the defense counsel. This was denied by Attorney Bush.

Judge Waller at the conclusion of the testimony suggested that perhaps the attorneys might yet get together on the proposition. Both sides agreed that it was impossible.

FUNERAL

Mrs. John Scott.

With many relatives and friends present, including a delegation from Sachem Chapter, O. E. S., funeral services for Mrs. John A. Scott, were held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock from her late home No. 66 Prospect street. The floral tributes sent in memory of a loved one were numerous and beautiful.

The services was conducted by Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor of the Greeneville Congregational church. Burial is to take place today, Tuesday, in Pine Hill cemetery, Dover, N. H., where the body in charge of Charles A. Gager, was sent on the State of Maine express, Monday evening at 10.45 o'clock, being accompanied by relatives.

Hallowe'en Party for School

Pupils of the East Great Plain school were entertained Saturday at a Hallowe'en party given under the supervision of the two teachers of the school, the Misses Lathrop and Morrison, assisted by Mrs. Harry Pecan and John Conners. Games were played and prizes awarded and refreshments were served. The pupils were attired in Hallowe'en costumes and the school room was also decorated in keeping with the day. The affair was most enjoyable and the pupils expressed appreciation for the entertainment.

SPECIAL CITY MEETING AUTHORIZES WATER BONDS

By a vote of 17 to 1, a special meeting held Monday evening in the town hall, Mayor Milo R. Waters, presiding, approved the action of the special city meeting held August 4th last in voting an appropriation of $1,080,000 for the construction of the Deep river reservoir project for the city of Norwich. The meeting was held as was explained by Corporation Counsel William H. Shields, Jr., to secure a formal ballot vote on the million dollar appropriation, as the Boston bank with which the city is negotiating for the bond issue, did not think the action taken at the August meeting was sufficient.

There was hardly a score of men in the hall when the meeting was called to order by Mayor Waters. City Clerk Weston C. Pullen read the call for the meeting which included the authorizing of the city to borrow a sum not to exceed $160,000 for the temporary financing of the reservoir project and the formal approval of the $1,080,000 water bond issue, which had already been voted at the August meeting.

The corporation counsel moved that the ballot vote be by check list, that the registrar of voters check the voters, and assist in the counting of the ballots. The motion prevailed.

The corporation then presented a resolution authorizing the city to borrow a sum not to exceed $160,000 to temporarily finance the reservoir project in anticipation of the bond issue. As no ballot vote was necessary on this resolution it was adopted by acclamation.

The corporation counsel then presented a resolution approving the reservoir bond issue, the resolution being as follows:

Voted, that this meeting approves and authorizes the issuance of bonds by the city of Norwich to the amount of one million eighty thousand dollars ($1,080,000.00) either at one time or in different issues, under the provisions of an act of the General assembly of the state of Connecticut entitled, "An act authorizing the City of Norwich to issue water bonds," passed at its January session, 1925, and approved May 21st, 1925; and all votes at the special city meeting held August 4th, 1925 are hereby ratified, confirmed and approved.

The vote was taken by ballot, the registrars checking the list of voters, and resulted as follows:

Total votes cast, 18. Yes, 17; no, 1.

The resolution was declared adopted, after which the meeting adjourned, having been in session for fifteen minutes.

The authorization to borrow $160,000 makes a total of $210,000 available for the reservoir work as a previous meeting authorized the temporary borrowing of $50,000.

FORMER NORWICH MAN WAS INSTANTLY KILLED

George L. Valentine, 48, of 23 Crescent street, Waterbury, a former resident of this city was instantly killed in an automobile accident at Great Barrington, Mass., early Saturday night. William Holmes, 40, of Waterbury is seriously injured and probably will die, and William Guesnsey, 60, also of Waterbury is suffering from a broken right leg.

The accident took place about two miles south of Great Barrington when the three men in the machine driven by Valentine were coming north in a Buick car. At the scene of the accident a car driven by Samuel Fox of Sheffield had collide with a telegraph pole, run across the road and come down an embankment, lodging against a tree, which prevented it from plunging into the river.

This accident to Mr. Fox's car caused many motorists to stop in the roadway. While these cars were parked, the machine driven by Valentine came along at a high rate of speed. An eye witness of the accident stated that the car was traveling at least 40 miles an hour. The driver did not seem to slow down as he approached but struck the rear end of a car parked in the road. This threw his machine into a maple tree. The engine was driven back to the front seat, and Valentine sustained a broken neck.

Mr. Valentine was born in this city. Surviving him are his wife, Mildred Mitchell Valentine, formerly of Norwich and two children, Clifford and Alice.

A member of the committee on the construction of a bridge across the Hudson river between Fort Lee and Manhattan includes Albert S. Bard of New York, formerly of Norwich.

PUBLIC INSPECTION DAY AT NEW NURSES' HOME

The new Nurses' Home at William W. Backus hospital, made possible through the contributions from over 7,000 citizens of Norwich and vicinity, will be thrown open to public inspection Wednesday, November 4th, when the public is invited there between the hours of 3 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon and from 8 until 10 o'clock in the evening. During the hours the building will be thrown open to the public there will be special musical selections and refreshments will be served.

This opportunity of inspection is given that the public may become better acquainted with the modern and comfortable home for the nurses at the hospital, made possible through the cooperation and support of the public in general.

This fine headquarters for the nursing staff of the hospital was the realization of an aim of long standing. For many years the question of properly housing the nurses of the hospital staff had been before the officials of the institution and when the appeal was made to the public there was a ready response, the necessary money was quickly pledged and the beautiful home above the drive leading to the main office of the hospital became a reality.

In the planning and construction of the building every thought was of beauty and suitability and the nurses home is one of the best in the state, one in which Norwich may well take pride, and, for which, the officials of the hospital and nurses of the staff, express a deep and sincere appreciation to the public of Norwich and vicinity.

When plans for the nurses' home were made, Dr. S. S. Goldwater, director of the Mt. Sinai hospital of New York city, who is a recognized authority in such matters was engaged as a consulting architect and he made a careful study of the entire plant. Cudworth and Thompson were employed as local architects. As a result of many conferences with the architects, and those connected with the hospital, plans and specifications were prepared and submitted to contractors for bids. The general contract was awarded to the Peck-McWilliams Co. and the Williams Bros. of Norwich. The Southern New England Telephone Co. and the City Gas and Electrical department cooperated generously in special work, necessitated by the new construction.

The building in architecture and material is designed to harmonize with the adjoining hospital buildings. Its general appearance and location have elicited much favorable and enthusiastic comment, and we can all feel real pride and satisfaction in its completeness and appointments of comfort. Fifty nurses can find pleasant accommodations there.

On Wednesday this whole building will be thrown open to the public's inspection. In the basement is located a large class room, demonstration room, dining rooms and diet kitchen, sewing room and laundry, with store rooms and rooms for linen and trunks. On the main entrance floor there is a large and most attractive living and reception room, with a sunparlor connected, and at the right of the entrance the matron's office and suite. The rooms of the superintendent of nurses are located on the floor above, over the main entrance.

On this floor is a sun-parlor and a library, the reference books being a gift of the Nurses' Alumnae association. Suitable provision has been made for special and graduate nurses, as well as for nurses in training. A subway connects the residents with the other hospital buildings. The important work of interior decorating and furnishing has been done most admirably by Mrs. Robert W. Perkins and Mrs. Edmund W. Perkins, who with discrimination and energy have devoted themselves to this work. For a few weeks past the nurses have enjoyed the comfortable appointments of this new house.

PROGRAMME BY CONTRALTO GIVES DELIGHTFUL EVENING

The November meeting of the Norwich Music association on Monday evening at Slater hall annex was one of unusual merit and satisfaction. Rarely is an audience privileged to listen to a voice so rich, full and free as Miss Gertrude Tingley, mezzo-contralto, possesses. The warmth, liquid purity and exquisite beauty of her tones, the intelligent and artistic restraint in her interpretations were really delightful. In every way, to the ear and eye as well, Miss Tingley afforded those in her audience an evening of real pleasure.

It was a pleasure, too, to have Mrs. Millicent Chapman Cooke at the piano to whom is due much credit for her sympathetic accompaniments with color added when and where it proved effective.

Miss Tingley gave the following group of songs in her programme:

D'Amour de moi, 16th Century; Trois Jours de Vendange, Hahn; Le rossignol des lilas, Hahn; two folk songs Arr, by Bax; Femmes, battez vos Maris, Berceuse; Lamento Provencale, Paladilhe.

La Lettre, from Pelleas et Mellisande, Debussy.

Nature's Voices, Rimsky-Korsakow; Song of London, Cyril Scott; The Unforseen, Cyril Scott; Two poems from the ancient Chinese, Feast of Lanterns, Griffes; Return of Spring, Wymann.

A Joyous Hymn, 17th century; Madonna song, Wilboby; The Shepherdess, arr, by Schlinder; southern songs; At the Well Hageman.

NATIVE OF WOODSTOCK KILLED AT BATH, ME.

Ernest Haskell, an artist was killed early Monday at Bath, Me., when his automobile overturned as he was returning to his summer home at West Point, Phippsburg, from New York where he had gone to arrange for a winter exhibition of his paintings. Haskell was a native of Woodstock, Conn., and had made West Point his summer home for fifteen years.

A Hartford paper pictures the first graduating class of trained practical nurses at Hartford Municipal hospital shown with the board of charity commissioners and hospital officials, on graduation day, Oct. 28th.

In the group are two from Norwich, Mrs. Sadie Plaut Mayer a member of the city charity board and Miss Helen Lynch, one of the nurses, who formerly lived on Ward street, Norwich.

BAD BREATH

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Get at the Cause and Remove It

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, act gently on the bowels and positively do the work.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, griping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without griping, pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 15c and 30c.

A Raw, Sore Throat

Eases Quickly When You Apply a Little Musterole

Musterole won't blister like the old-fashioned mustard plaster. Spread it on with your fingers. It penetrates to the sore spot with a gentle tingle, loosens the congestion and draws out the soreness and pain.

Musterole is a clean, white ointment made with oil of mustard. Brings quick relief from sore throat, bronchitis, tonsilitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds on the chest. Keep it handy for instant use.

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

Gargle Aspirin for Tonsilitis or Sore Throat

A harmless and effective gargle is to dissolve two "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" in four tablespoonfuls of water, and gargle throat thoroughly. Repeat in two hours if necessary.

Be sure you use only the genuine Bayer Aspirin, marked with the Bayer Cross, which can be had in tin boxes of twelve tablets for few cents.

FLY-TOX

Every Bottle GUARANTEED

FLY-TOX was developed at Mellon Institute of Industrial Research by the Rex Fellowship. In a simple, easy and thoroughly effective way, FLY-TOX kills flies, moths, mosquitoes, fleas, ants, roaches and other insects. It's no convenient to saturate the air with clouds of FLY-TOX. Flies, by merely whizzing through the mist, become affected with the strange action of FLY-TOX, and die.

This mist lingers just long enough to do its work. It then evaporates and leaves only a pleasant, clean odor. Well-aired or drapes are not stained. FLY-TOX is harmless to humans. Those stray, elusive flies that invade the most carefully screened homes, are quickly and easily exterminated with FLY-TOX.

ONLY TEN TEAMS RETAIN CLEAN SLATE IN EASTERN FOOTBALL

NEW YORK, Nov. 3—(By the Associated Press)—Ten eastern football elevens remain undefeated, six having been hurled from the heights by the coming of "Red" Grange, the remarkable recovery of Yale, the visit of the Navy to the west and the development of power by some institutions of the northeast.

Only one, Syracuse, retains an untarnished goal line. Cornell having permitted 14 Columbia points Saturday while Bucknell and New York university went down before Holy Cross and Fordham respectively.

Of the ten remaining at the head of the list, four will become entangled in encounters this week, and unless ties result, two must come forth victorious. The meeting between Dartmouth and Cornell at Hanover, N. H., undoubtedly will be the center of interest although Holy Cross and Fordham should stage a sparkling engagement at the Polo Grounds.

Harvard and Princeton, both defeated this season, will clash at Palmer stadium in the first of the 1925 "Big Three" meetings with all signs pointing to a Tiger conquest.

When Cornell and Dartmouth meet, two high scoring elevens will be pitted against each other. The Ithacans, whom Coach Dobie described as anything but football material a few weeks ago, have performed excellently and given rise to the belief that the "Red Tornado" has come forth again in all its fury. In five contests they had scored 213 points, an average of 43 a game.

Dartmouth, numbering Harvard and Brown among its victims, has totalled 145 points in six battles, an average of 24. But the "Big Green" was forced to depend upon the giants of its forward line against Brown Saturday, two blocked punts accounted for the touchdowns. It showed that it could be worried by a good aerial attack and that is what it may expect from Cornell.

Holy Cross, Boston college and Fordham are members of the undefeated group, but they have their own way of settling these matters and no more than one of them is destined to survive. Washington & Jefferson meets Pittsburgh Saturday and is likely to fall but, of the select list, while Penn Military encounters Susquehanna. Boston college faces West Virginia. Colgate opposes Providence and Dickinson tackles Gettysburg.

Dickinson has one of the strange records of the season, having kept away from defeat while only scoring 39 points. It tied Lebanon Valley, 6-6; defeated Villa Nova, 13-2; defeated Franklin & Marshall, 7-0; tied Muhlenberg, 0-0, and conquered Albright, 18-0.

Colgate, meeting Providence, appears to be safe for another week at least.

AGGIES CLASH WITH NEW HAMPSHIRE SATURDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Nov. 2.—Following their impressive victory over Manhattan college Saturday, Coach Sumner Dole gave his Connecticut Aggie squad the usual Monday's holiday from practice. Three more games remain on the slate of the Nutmeg Agraians, all of which will be played away from home.

New Hampshire will be met at Manchester, N. H., next Saturday in what shapes up as the toughest assignment of the three remaining games. Rhode Island will be met at Kingston, R. I., on Nov. 14, and Rensellaer will be met at Troy, N. Y., Nov. 21, in the final game of the season.

Coach Dole used 24 men, his entire squad, in the Manhattan game. They all came through the battle in good condition and with no injuries. Barring accidents that may be sustained in practice this week, Dole will be able to throw his strongest lineup against Coach Cowell's New Hampshire eleven.

Present plans call for only one session of scrimmage this week, as Dole fears to take chances on injuring any of his first string lineup. Work will be mainly devoted to polishing off the Aggie forward passing attack, which last year enabled the Storrs team to defeat the Granite staters in the last few minutes of play. Connecticut's aerial attack has been working none too well this season, but it is hoped an intensive drill through the week will improve it.

WOLVERINES LEAD PACK IN WESTERN CONFERENCE

CHICAGO, Nov. 3—(AP)—Michigan still tops the heap in the western conference football race tonight, with not a point scored against her. The Wolverines now tackle three big ten opponents in a row, Northwestern, Ohio, and Minnesota, and championship hopes at Michigan are high.

Iowa is likewise undefeated with two victories against Michigan's three. The Hawkeyes play Wisconsin and Minnesota.

The conference standing:

Team	W	L	T	TP	OP
Michigan	3	0	0	130	0
Iowa	3	0	0	121	17
Chicago	2	0	1	24	10
Wisconsin	1	1	1	84	33
Northwestern	1	0	1	55	45
Minnesota	0	0	1	110	49
Ohio State	0	1	1	49	21
Illinois	0	2	0	50	44
Purdue	0	2	0	90	24
Indiana	0	2	0	60	101

Above schedule gives games won, lost, tied, total points and opponents points.

SEVERAL PENN PLAYERS ARE NURSING INJURIES

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 3. (AP)—The University of Pennsylvania football team today counted up the casualties as a result of the Illinois tornado that swept over Franklin field on Saturday. The list was not long nor serious. Left End Singer came out of the Red Grange clash with a sprained ankle, Right Guard Butler has a jaw so sore he cannot eat. The team physician has not diagnosed the cause. Right Tackle Gerackl, who had a bad ankle when he went into the game, received a bad kick on the leg that is giving him trouble.

JOHNSON WINS MEXICAN TENNIS SINGLES TITLE

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 2.—(AP) — William M. Johnston, second only to William T. Tilden in American tennis today won the Mexican championship by defeating Howard Kinsey in the final round of the Mexican national tournament in straight sets, 6-2, 6-0, 6-4. At the close of the match Johnson received the championship cup from the hands of President Calles himself.

"Little Bill" maintained his superiority through the match and was never in danger. He opened carefully in the first set, but soon had the count at 5-1, his games including one love game. Here Kinsey rallied and took two games by good placement, but Johnson then took his own service and the set.

The second set opened with Kinsey dropping a love game on his own service, frequently double faulting Johnston's powerful driving enabled him to run the set out quickly without giving his fellow Californian a game. The third set was more bitterly contested, and the two played on even terms until 4-4 was reached. Here Johnston broke through Kinsey's service in spit of three service aces and then took the final game on his own service.

Miss Mary K. Browne and Harvey Snodgrass of California, won the Mexican national championship in mixed doubles. They defeated Miss Elizabeth Ryan and Howard Kinsey, 6-1, 6-4.

As indicated by the score Miss Browne and Snodgrass won the championship with ease. Snodgrass was in superb form and Miss Browne played a fast game at the net.

Kinsey made the poorest showing of all, and Miss Ryan was below par and uncertain in her placing. Thus the match was completely one-sided.

O'CONNOR LEDS SCORERS IN N. E. CONFERENCE

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Conn., Nov. 2 — Eddie O'Connor, captain of the University of New Hampshire eleven, is the leading scorer in the New England college conference, which includes all New England state colleges except Vermont. O'Connor has made five touchdowns, three field goals, and three points after touchdowns. The leading scorers in the conference are as follows:

	t	fg	pat	tot
O'Connor, New Hamp.	5	3	3	42

JONES IS NOT IN FAVOR OF 40-PLAY SYSTEM

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 3—(A. P.)—Tad Jones, head coach of Yale football team, declared here tonight that he was opposed to an innovation in football rules that will be tried out in the Brown-Boston university game Saturday. The experiment calls for forty plays a period instead of the usual time limit of fifteen minutes.

"I have heard of this before," Coach Jones said tonight, "and it is nothing new. I cannot say whether or not it will work out, but it will be an interesting experiment. I do not think it is a good plan and I would not like to see it adopted as a part of the official football rules."

YALE HOCKEY TEAM ABANDONS SPRINGFIELD ARENA

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 2.—(AP) — Plans of the Yale hockey team to practice and play some of its games during the coming season in the Springfield arena, one of the buildings of the Eastern States exposition plan at Springfield, Mass., have been abandoned because of the indefinite postponement of the opening of the arena, it was announced by the Yale Athletic association tonight. The Yale team has been without an arena since the burning of the New Haven arena.

DELANEY READY TO RESUME RING CAMPAIGN

NEW YORK, Nov. 2—(A. P.)—Jack Delaney, Bridgeport, Conn., light heavyweight, who is scheduled to meet Paul Berlenbach in the New Madison Square Garden here December 11, for the world's title, was examined at Tex Rickard's office today by Dr. W. G. Fralich and pronounced fit for the resumption of boxing.

Delaney has been out of condition for some time due to an operation but three weeks of hunting in New Hampshire has given him back his ordinary weight of 175 pounds. He will complete his training in Bridgeport.

VETERAN BIKE RIDER BACK FROM TRANSCONTINENTAL TRIP

NEW YORK, Nov. 2. (AP)—Returning from a bicycle ride across the continent, M. C. Plummer, 71, a retired oculist of Portland, Me., left today for his home, accompanied by his some what travelworn vehicle.

"I just got tired of being tied down," he explained. Every summer for 31 years he has pedaled around for a vacation. But this year's was his most ambitious ride. Mr. Plummer reached here Thursday by ship from San Francisco.

New Record Set

HAMBURG, Germany, Nov. 2.—(AP) Fraulein Kruens established a new breast stroke record for women swimmers at 400 metres yesterday, covering the distance in 7 minutes 9.6 seconds. The former record of 7 minutes 20 seconds was established by Miss Gilbert at Bradford, Eng., in October, 1923.

Nutmegs Indoor Team

The Nutmegs A. C. indoor baseball team challenges either Battery B or the Combat Train team for games at the earliest date. Answer through this paper. The Nutmegs to date this season have met with considerable success on the gridiron and hope to have the same in indoor baseball.

White Sox Pick Shreveport

CHICAGO, November 2.—(AP)—The Chicago Americans will train next spring at Shreveport, La., where they conditioned for the 1925 season. Date of departure probably will be about March 1.

An extended barnstorming tour will be arranged. No dates have been closed, but week-end games at New Orleans, Fort Worth and Dallas are certainties, the season tapering off with a series at Indianapolis.

Red Grange feels that he made good a year-old promise in smashing the Pennsylvania defense Saturday. "I want to show up the east," he said last fall. He did just that.

BABE RUTH RETURNS TO FARM AFTER HUNTING TRIP

SUDBURY, Mass., Nov. 2.—(AP)—Babe Ruth, home run king and erstwhile big game hunter, was back at his Sudbury farm here today. The party of big league baseball players, including "Muddy" Ruel, Joe Bush and Benny Bengough, who journeyed into the wilds of northern Maine recently, broke up in Boston today and the players started for their homes.

While moose were the object of the Ruth expedition, the Babe won only the title of "slayer of ducks." Only one member of the party, Shawkey, brought down a moose. The hunters bagged plenty of ducks, however. Ruth says he is in good condition. After a stay at his farm here, he plans to go to Florida and play golf all winter.

Makes Hole In One

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 2—(A. P.)—Dr Frederick Beck, of the New Haven Country club joined the hole-in-one club yesterday by making the ninth hole with a single swat. The distance is 153 yards and the fair green runs down hill. Dr. Beck was playing in a foursome with F. S. Crabb, C. A. Pierce and H. V. Whipple.

Irish Billie Glynn in Shape

Irish Billie Glynn, local lightweight, is fast roupding into shape at his training quarters here and is now ready for his winter campaign. Glynn injured his hand in a recent bout but the injured member is strong again and he is slipping it over with his accustomed speed.

NEW SYSTEM OF FOOTBALL WILL BE TRIED OUT IN BROWN-BOSTON GAME

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 2—Radical departure from all accepted football custom will be made in the Brown-Boston university game here next Saturday when the stop watch will be discarded and the game run on a basis of 40 plays per period, Dr. Fred W. Marvel, director of athletics, announced this morning.

The system has been urged by Harry R. Coffin, Harvard '04, and R. W. P. Brown, backfield coach and strategist at Brown for some years, but it was not until this week that the consent of head coach Edward N. Robinson of Brown was obtained. Dr. Charles Whelan of Boston University agreed to the plan some time ago.

Both Mr. Brown and Mr. Coffin contend that the present system of playing 15 minute periods if of no benefit except to the teams which scores first and they say can use up so much time by legitimate delays that its opponents are left with practically no chance to score.

In support of this, they cite statistics which show that in 39 Harvard-Yale games the team scoring first has always won with the exception of the 1916 game. Their figures also show that in 44 Yale-Princeton games, Yale has lost but two games in which she scored first, each of the defeats being caused by recovery of a loose ball for touchdowns and goals after long runs.

Members of the football rules committee, leading coaches and officials from all parts of the east will be invited to view the experiment.

Please answer through this paper if game can be arranged.

GIVEN JAIL SENTENCE ON INTOXICATION CHARGE

For lack of evidence the charges of driving while under the influence of liquor and of evading responsibility against Edward Carey, formerly of this city, now of New London, were nolled by Judge Arthur F. Libby in the city court Monday morning. Carey however, pleaded guilty to a charge of intoxication and was sentenced to serve 10 days in jail. The trial was a lengthy one taking up a good part of the court session.

Carey was arrested Saturday night after his machine had collided with two other machines and narrowly missed a third near Goyette's blacksmith shop in Taftville. He was found on the road, lying near the car tracks and arrested by Constable Paquette.

The contention of the defense was that Carey was not driving the machine at the time of the crash. A sailor, stranger to Carey, who offered to drive the machine to Norwich and who got away after the accident, is blamed for the crash. Carey was represented by Attorney Thomas J. Kelly.

According to Carey's story he had gone to a Hallowe'en party Saturday evening. He was accompanied by Fred Potter of Norwich Town and the trip was made in a Dodge roadster owned by William Carey, father of Edward Carey. Carey and Potter told the court they both got drunk. When they started to go home, about 9:30 o'clock, Carey told Potter that they were going home on the trolley car as he was too drunk to drive, even if he wanted to.

A sailor who had been a guest at the party, was standing nearby, and he said he would drive the machine. Carey, seeing that the sailor was sober, allowed him to drive. The sailor got into the machine Carey sat next to him, and another sailor got into the seat. Potter also got into the machine, sitting on the sailor's lap.

Carey and Potter said the sailors were strangers to them and that they would be unable to identify them. They got as far as Goyette's blacksmith shop when the Dodge narrowly missed sideswiping an automobile parked in front of the Urban residence, according to Mr. Urban's testimony. This caused Mr. Urban to keep an eye on this car, which he saw plunge into a Cadillac car owned by Edwin Cleveland of 324 School street, Webster, Mass., and operated by his brother, Eben Cleveland of the same place. The Cleveland car was heading in a northerly direction, opposite to that of the Dodge. The Clevelands were returning from the Yale-Army game at New Haven.

Doing considerable damage to the Cadillac, the Dodge car came to a stop, about 100 feet farther on. It was brought out in the testimony that the first car struck by the Carey machine was a Ford touring car, operated by Alfred Tebo of Baltic, doing some damage here, and then the Dodge hit the Cadillac, which had come to a dead stop, the operator seeing the oncoming machine. Edwin and Eben Cleveland, owner and driver of the Cadillac, stated they saw someone get out of the Dodge on the left hand side of the Carey machine, with a light overcoat and light hat, which Carey admitted was he. This lead to the conclusion that Carey was operating as he had come out of the door nearest the steering wheel. Two sailors were seen going down the road toward Norwich.

Neither Edwin or Eben Cleveland Alfred Tebo nor Mr. Urban were able to say who the driver was. They would not swear that Carey was driving the machine.

The claim of the defense was that Carey was too drunk to operate and let the sailor drive the machine. There were four in the party on the one seat. Carey said that after the accident two sailors got out of the car and started running as fast as they could. He got out of his car and was asked for his license by Tebo, and Carey handed Tebo the license.

Potter incriminated himself in his testimony so that a warrant was drawn up charging him with intoxication. He was fined $20 and costs and given ten days in jail, the jail sentence being suspended. Potter stated that after the accident he got out of the car and saw the two sailors "beat it." He stayed nearby but did not make his presence known and came to the city on a trolley car.

Urban testified that he saw Carey get out of the Dodge with a crank and that he tried to crank the Dodge, but was unsuccessful. He threw the crank back into the machine and then disappeared.

The authorities were unable to discover the identity of the two sailors.

Carey was involved in a similar case sometime ago after an automobile collision at Trading Cove. Some time afterwards he gave up his position with one of the city departments and since then has been employed as a chauffeur at New London.

MOTOR TRUCKS FOR R. R. FREIGHT IN THIS SECTION

Those who opposed the re-location of the Norwich-Putnam road, on the grounds of cost and who were perfectly agreeable to continuing the use of grade crossings and congested streets were evidently unfamiliar with what is going on all around us in the way of advances in the use of motor trucks and busses by the railroads, says a statement issued Monday evening by the executive officers of Norwich council, No. 302, U. C. T.

In advocating the re-location of the Norwich-Putnam trunk highway, the United Commercial Travelers were very much alive to the future requirements of federal aid roads.

Norwich Council is also alert to the changes that are taking place all over the United States, in the way that railroads are making deliveries of fine freight by motor trucks instead of local freights as formerly.

The November number of the Eastern Connecticut U. C. T. Monthly has the following article relating to the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. making use of motor trucks in the near future for such purposes:

"In conjunction with the abandoning of trolley lines in Eastern Connecticut by the Connecticut company, a subsidiary of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R., and the substituting of busses, comes the news that the New Haven road is mapping out a system of highway truck deliveries of local freight.

"The first installation of this service in Eastern Connecticut will be at Putnam. All less carload freight, for local points between Putnam and Willimantic, Putnam and Plainfield, Webster, Southbridge and east to Stackstone, will be billed direct to Putnam and unloaded at the freight house, when trucks will consummate the deliveries. Local freights have always been a source of trouble to train dispatchers. They are continually and everlastingly in the way of both passenger and through freight business—they cause the major share of delay train service—they produce many dangerous situations.

"The secon dadoption of the truck delivery service, it is thought, will be at New London, which like Putnam lends itself to the new system. Deliveries from New London can easily be made to all points, north to Plainfield, east to Westerly, and west to Saybrook and up the valley to Middletown.

"This service is to be for broken car lots only, or what is termed fine freight. Carload lots will be delivered by local switching crews at the points mentioned, as has long been the custom within yard limits.

"It calls for no stretching of the imagination for one to visualize the effect this constantly growing burden, that is being placed on our modern million dollar highways, will mean.

"Just as long as there is no unbroken links in the highway chain(just so long will traffic roll along at 35 to 50 miles per hour and everyone skting pretty.

"It's when the break comes that things go wrong. The piling up of nomogeneous traffic at congested spots, grade crossings particularly, and the straightening out process after the obstruction is removed is where the fun begins.

"A greater utilization of these splendid concrete roads is sure to come as night follows day—with their 50 mile an hour curves, and moderate grades will lend themselves to still greater service, as time goes on. There is no question about that, there is no limit to the uses our trunk lines will be called upon to serve.

STORRS MILKING SHORTHORNS GOING TO BIG SHOW

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Nov. 2—Thirteen Milking Shorthorns, the best of the herd owned by the Connecticut Agricultural college, were shipped from here today on their way to Kansas City, where they will be shown at the American Royal Livestock exposition. This was the announcement of Prof. Harry L. Garrigus, head of the animal husbandry department at Storrs, who has bred up the state college herd to a point where it is recognized as one of the best in the country.

With the closing of the American Royal the college shorthorns will be shipped to Chicago, where they will be shown at the International Livestock exposition, which is the largest and best livestock show in the world. Here the animals from Storrs will be shown in competition with the best from the United States and Canada.

Winnings this year by animals owned by the livestock department at the state college have broken all previous records.

At the Eastern States exposition in Springfield, in the largest Milking Shorthorn exhibit ever staged on this continent, the Storrs herd "cleaned up." Prizes won included five firsts, one second, three thirds and four fourths. Further, Flintstone Model, a bull owned by the state college won the senior and grand championship for his fourth successive year, one of the outstanding achievements at the show. Ollo White Maid, also owned by the college, was senior champion cow of the show. In addition to this, a bull sold here last year by Flintstone Model, was junior champion bull.

Showing Percheron horses at Springfield, the college won four firsts, three seconds, three fourths, and also champion mare.

At Trenton, N. J., the college Shorthorns made a good showing again, winning eleven firsts, three seconds, and one fourth. Junior, senior and grand champion bulls, and junior champion cow, was also taken by the Storrs Shorthorns. Both junior champions were sired by Flintstone Model.

At Danbury, showing against the famous Donald Woodward herd of Leroy, N. Y. the college shorthorns won all championships, and defeated for the first time the Woodward Get-of-Sire group, that has been showing through the larger shows of this country and Canada for the past two years.

NEAR EAST PACKAGES ARE BEING COLLECTED

The people of Norwich, including Taftville, Greeneville and Norwich Town have in the past made generous contributions of clothing for those in the near east made destitute, or their relatives wiped out by the world war. This last year packages of clothing have been sent every few weeks from Norwich Town to the United States army base, to be forwarded. Charles V. Vickery writes. "Near east relief acknowledges with gratitude your recent contribution just received at its Brooklyn warehouse for shipment overseas. Your kind cooperation means shelter and comfort to those you have helped to save."

Two thousand children, whom lack of means would have forced to leave the orphanage at Alexandropol, standing, formed the letters S A V E D, a message of gratitude to America. Packages of clothing are being left at Miss Elizabeth Huntington's 344 Washington street, or at Miss J. G. Bonney's on Harland road, or may be sent direct to Near East Relief Warehouse, U. S. Army Base, Foot 58th street, Brooklyn, N. Y. Packages sent by parcel post are more secure if insured.

SEVERITY OF THE STORM AT QUONOCHONTAUG

Mr. and Mrs. James F. Thurston have returned to their home on Town street after passing several months at East Beach, Quonochontaug, R. I. During the season five houses have been built on the adjoining Lucas Beach and most of them have been occupied. The last one was being built, the foundation laid, the house boarded in when during the recent gale, which was very severe there it was laid flat. The curb of the well which supplies drinking water for East Beach people was blown over. The ocean tide came to the doors of the cottages.

Mercury at 22 Degrees

The traditional "early bird" had cause to shiver Monday, for the mercury had lowered to 22. Heavy frost covered everything in sight. By night the temperature was much higher and there were light showers most of the evening.

WESTERLY

Records filed at the Westerly Town Clerk's office include:

Oct. 31, Susan A. Vose to Thomas Whyte and John Bogan, a certain lot, No. 42, on plot of Westerly Building corporation, on the west side of Benefit street.

Nov. 2, D. Wayland Larkin to Margaret Erwin Katt of Scarsdale, Westchester county, New York state, land with buildings and improvements on the southerly side of Pawcatuck avenue, Watch Hill.

Alexander C. Thompson to George L. Stillman, a certain parcel of pasture and woodland, 80 feet wide on the east side of the grantee's dahlia field, on Beach street.

Judge William A. Wilcox of Pawcatuck held a session of Stonington Town court in Borough hall Monday when four cases came before the court. Otto Weirch of Mystic was presented on complaint of George R McKenna of Pawcatuck, prosecuting attorney of the town of Stonington for speeding. He was apprehended by Connecticut State Trooper Fred Caron of the Groton barracks Oct. 31. On his plea of guilty he was fined $10 and costs of $12.18, amounting to $22.18, which he paid.

John B. Delehanty, accompanied by Thomas V. Clancy of Westerly, was detected by Connecticut State Trooper Giles Watson of Groton barracks, when Delehanty was stopped about 5 o'clock on the Stonington-Westerly road Oct 31. The claim was made that the automobile was being operated at a speed of 44 miles per hour, and when so charged, Delehanty claimed that he never travelled at that rate of speed. He was found guilty and fined $10 and costs of 10.18, amounting altogether to $22.18, which was paid.

Walter Giordano, 29 West street, West New Haven, Conn., with relatives residing in Westerly was charged with evading responsibility. It was claimed that in operating his automobile he struck the hub cap of another automobile, as a result of which its passengers were shaken up, and he did not stop to ascertain the damage. The defense was that he proceeded a distance, stopped, and as the other machine did not catch up he proceeded. He was given the minimum fine of $50, and costs of $16.53 brought the total to $66.53, which he paid.

Frank B. Delisle, who was given a summons to appear in Stonington Town court when Connecticut State Trooper Giles Watson found him operating an automobile Oct. 24 without a tail light, did not make his appearance in the town court Monday, but his appearance at the next court was assured by the construction company for which he worked.

Richard Mitchell, Westerly agent for the Prudential Insurance company, is having a week's vacation from his duties and is passing the time gunning and fishing from his shack on Charlestown pond.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence A. Vars have returned to their Westerly home from two-weeks vacation, part of which time was passed at Atlantic City, N. J., Washington, D. C., and New York.

Saturday was the last day for the payment of taxes in Westerly in which a discount of five per cent. was allowed. From now on the unpaid taxes 12 per cent. interest charges are added. Through Saturday the tax collected totalled $365,164.74. The total tax levy for the town with discount taken out amounts to $368,377.32, so that there now remains due and unpaid $23,813.58.

Everything is in readiness for the biennial election of town and district officers for the town of Westerly, so that there will be no delay when the polls open at 6 o'clock this (Tuesday) morning, the voting lists, ballots, sample ballots, receipts, sticker seals, booths, boxes, etc., being prepared.

The canvassers voting lists show a total of 3,486 qualified voters for the entire town of Westerly, divided as follows: Voting district No. 1, 1,506; voting district, No. 2, 1,980. The first voting district is located north of Broad and Granite streets. The second comprises the area south of Broad and Granite streets and the village of Bradford.

The H. T. S. society of Westerly plans to hold its annual Thanksgiving dance in Westerly Town hall. Noyes Melody Makers of Mystic will be the orchestra.

Installation of sewer main drain pipes on Railroad avenue has reached a point near the Guarino garage building and a barricade placed at the junction of Railroad avenue and Dixon streets gives warning that the highway is closed. One-way traffic was maintained with difficulty Monday afternoon on the north side of the highway. This stretch of highway is used by taxi service to and from the Westerly station of the New Haven road. On the Canal street end of Railroad avenue the highway has been cleared of obstruction and the surface partly smoothed to a point just east of the Chester block.

One of the quietest town elections for Westerly is looked for today (Tuesday) in the two voting districts of the town when qualified electors gather at the Westerly town hall on Broad street, where the First Westerly voting district has ballot booths erected on the east side or Elm street side of the assembly hall and the second voting district on the west or Union street side. The polls open at 6 a. m. and remain open until 7 p. m. as provided under the new election law enacted by the General Assembly.

Following is the list of candidates for town officers whose names will appear on the ballot tomorrow: Town moderator, Lewis Stanton; town clerk Everett E. Whipple; town treasurer James M. Pendleton; collector of taxes; James M. Pendleton; first councilman, John D. Nichols; second councilman, Roger E. Trainer; third councilman, Harry H. Coleman; fourth councilman, Peter Nardone; fifth councilman, Isaac G. Smith; sixth councilman, A. Clifford Holdsworth; seventh councilman, Thomas F. Moore; director of public aid, Oliver P. Crandall; highway commissioner (for six years), Harvey C. Perry; school committee (for six years), Daniel F. Larkin; assessor of taxes (for six years), Howard E. Thorp.

The electors of the first and second representative districts will vote for a moderator and clerk in each district. In the first district, Ira B. Crandall is the nominee for moderator and John J. Dunn for clerk, and in the second district, Lewis Stanton for moderator and John J. Dunn for clerk, and in the second district, Lewis Stanton for moderator and Miss Mabel A. Saunders for clerk.

Tony Gaiome, 4, of 96 Liberty street, suffered a fracture of the leg Monday morning, when bumped by an automobile operated by Frank E. Beckham of 4 Cottage street, White Rock. Officer C. Wilson Brown of the West Side investigated the accident and it was reported tha tthe child ran out into the road and was hit by one of the front mudguards of the machine. Officer Brown tested the brakes and found them to be in good condition and learned that the automobile was proceeding at a slow rate of speed when the accident happened. The child was attended by Dr. Charles P Crandall.

Miss Mildred Grabo Johns, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Johns of Pleasant street, and Alfred Nelson, son of Mrs. Augustus Nelson of New London were married at the home of Rev Walter Heintze on School street Saturday at 8 o'clock. Miss Edith Nicholson and Francis Gadbois of New London were bridesmaid and best man respectively. Mr. and Mrs. Nelson will reside at 93 Truman street, New London.

Paul A. Smithson, a retired overseer, at the William Clarke Mill of the American Thread company, is seriously ill with heart trouble at his home, 10 Moss street in Pawcatuck.

Thomas Mott Osborne, former warden at Sing Sing prison, addressed an audience under the auspices of the Westerly Teachers' club Monday evening in the high school auditorium, Broad street. Warden Osborne in relating numerous incidents in his career and the lessons to be learned from his experiences, said that prisoners when released should be fit to be returned to the civil walks of life. "You can't damage them without damaging yourself," was the substance of his recommendations for prison conduct.

CHAS. A. MORGAN STRICKEN—TOWN'S PHILANTHROPIST

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Nov. 3—At his home, 12 Elm street, Monday afternoon, shortly after 1 o'clock Charles A. Morgan, 70, in the insurance business in Westerly since 1876, suffered a paralytic shock. Attending business downtown in the morning and returning home at noon, he was stricken soon after lunch, his whole right side being affected. He also suffered the loss of his voice, which had been partially regained by the evening, after he had been attended by Dr. John Champlin. Mr. Morgan had been an unassuming benefactor to numerous interests in Westerly giving $100,000 in securities to the new Westerly hospital as a gift, retaining only the interest for himself during his lifetime. He has also given lesser amounts with the same conditions to other societies and organizations in Westerly with which he has been actively associated.

MYSTIC

The Congregational church was filled at the marriage of John F. Cushman and Miss Hazel A. Pecor Saturday evening. The church was decorated with autumn leaves and laurel. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Frederick G. Chuter, pastor of the church. The bride wore a dress of white satin and carried white roses. Miss Wilhelmina MacDonald, dressed in white, was flower girl. After the ceremony a reception was held in Main hall. Music for dancing was furnished by an orchestra and lunch was served. The bride received many gifts of silver, cut glass and gold. The bride has been employed at the Sadonia Mills. The groom is engineer of the new Main block and they will occupy one of the apartments there.

The children, grandchildren and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wilson, numbering about one hundred, called in celebration of their golden wedding during Saturday, when they kept open house, the evening attendance being about sixty-five. Noyes orchestra furnished music for the first part of the evening, Jordan's orchestra coming in later. Henry Wilson, who was 79, last August and Mary R. Sebastian, 70 years Monday were married October 31, 1875 by Rev. S. Backus Bailey, a former pastor of the Baptist church here. Eight children were born to them, seven of whom are living. There are sixteen grandchildren. Mr. Wilson came to Mystic sixty years ago. In his younger days he followed the water but has been sexton of the Baptist church for thirty-seven years. He has the love and respect of old and young in the church. He is also gardener for H. C. Cornwall, a summer resident of Cliff street. He and his wife are in good health. Their home on Starr street was prettily decorated with autumn leaves, carnations and chrysanthemums. On the center table, was a large cake beautifully decorated. Chicker salad, rolls, pickles, cakes, ice cream and coffee were served. A substantial amount of gold was given them and several other presents. Guests attended from Norwich, New London, Westerly, Stonington, Fair Haven, Mass., Virginia and Mystic.

At the Baptist church Sunday morning four received the hand of fellowship, Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Bennett and two sons. Notice was given of four state conferences to be held, the nearest for this church to attend is Norwich on Nov. 11. The subject for the evening sermon was Rowing Against the Wind.

Miss Elizabeth G. Whiting, of Boston, was brought here Monday night by the Parent-Teachers association. She is a reader of unusual ability and delighted a large audience in her recital of "The Man From Home" by Booth Tarkington. Miss Whiting has a fine personality and she interpreted the play most intelligently, making each character stand out as vividly to her audience as if the whole cast were before it.

Mrs. Urannah B. Mattison and daughter Mrs. Fannie M. Kent returned Sunday afternoon from Providence. They went there Oct. 23rd and on the 24th attended the 100th birthday party of Mrs. Mattison's sister, Mrs. Amy Baker who was able to sit and receive callers all day in a room filled with beautiful flowers and plants, chrysanthemums predominating. In addition to Mrs. Mattison of Mystic who is 94 another sister Mrs. Martha Thompson, of Providence aged 83 was present to receive with the two older sisters. The combined ages of these three sisters is 277 years. Mrs. Baker has four daughters, four grandchildren and three great-grandchildren without a break in the family. All were present except one grandson who lives in Wyoming. One grandson was present from Chicago. One of the grandsons is Hiram Andrews state senator of Rhode Island. She received many gold pieces, one grandson presenting her five $20. gold pieces, and others numerous gifts. Monday evening Oct. 26 Mrs. Mattison with her daughter was present at her son's home, Edgar Mattison, at his golden wedding. Edgar Mattison and Della Hasens were married in Mystic Oct. 26, 1875 by Rev. G. L. Hunt, pastor of the Baptist church. They took letters and are now members of the Central Baptist church in Providence. At this event was another former Mystic girl, Mrs. Geneva Gates Westcott, who lives in Providence. Her father owned the place on Cliff street now the property of Miss Joanna and Rachel Burnet. During Mrs. Mattison's stay in Providence the time was divided between her son and the other relatives. The trip which was made by automobile does not tire her and she enjoys the ride.

Miss Beatrice Gifford, R. N. superintendent of Oake Bluff hospital, Vineyard Haven, Mass., was the guest of friends here over the week end, leaving Monday for New York.

Cards received from Mr. and Mrs. Alphens Schooner state that they are pleasantly situated in a cottage at Tangarine Fla.

The pupils of the 8th grade, Mystic academy held a Hallowe'en social Friday evening. Games were played and refreshments were served.

Mrs. Frelove Miller of Norwich spent the week end with Mrs. Gurdon Allyn.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Allyn leave Wednesday for their winter home in Orlando, Fla.

Mrs. Florence Bertholf and daughter Margaret moved Monday from High street to the house on New London road which they recently bought for W. L. Main. It was known as the Davis inn until they sold it and moved out of town.

Mrs. Warren Rathbun is seriously ill at her home on Denison avenue.

Mrs. Jessie M. Ivers is visiting her sister in Cooperstown, N. Y.

Notice of the W. C. T. U. meeting to be held on Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 in G. A. R. hall was given at the churches Sunday. Mrs. Mary B. Wilson former state president is to be the speaker.

Mrs. James W. Jackson sang a solo at the Methodist church Sunday evening.

Mrs. Eugene Wilcox has returned from a visit with her brother William Noble in Malden, Mass.

Mrs. Elwood Lathrop and Miss Jennie Denison have received word that their brother-in-law and sister, Mr and Mrs. James Baker of Sterling have returned from a trip to Miami, Fla.

Miss Chalotte H. Palmer of Brooklyn, Conn., was a visitor here over the week end and attended St. Mark's church.

Mrs. Annie Peabody has returned to Philadelphia after spending the summer here. On her way she stopped in Bridgeport and visited Miss Ellen Thompson.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Wheeler have returned from Washington, D. C. They attended the Congregational church conference.

John W. McDonald and daughter Alice have returned from a few days' stay in East Killingly.

Mrs. Raymond Holmes has left for her home in Florida and on the way will visit her sister, Mrs. William C. Current in Statesville, N. C.

The street Saturday night was full of young folks rigged up in all sorts of ridiculous costumes.

By the death of Fannie H. Stott which occurred on Sunday the Methodist church is bereft of one of its members of long standing. Mrs. Stott was received into membership October 4, 1896, during the pastorate of Rev. L. B. Codding.

At the Methodist church Sunday there were special services in commemoration of All Saints' day. At the morning service, when Holy communion was administered, two adults and two children were baptized and five adults were received into church membership. At the evening service the pastor Rev. J. G. Sallis called the roll of the dead the congregation responding with stanzas from the hymn "For all the Saints who from their labors rest." The pastor's sermon themes were "Living by the Faith of Others" and "We Believe in Immortality."

The good points of a great many people seem to have been broken off. Why is that neighborly feeling nearly always one of curiosity or envy?

NOTED CLIFF HOUSE OF SAN FRANCISCO SHUTS ITS DOORS

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 2.—(AP)—San Francisco's Cliff House, known for generations wherever bon vivants gathered, has given up the losing fight. Its various recent management's credit its demise to prohibition.

Old-time San Franciscans, sitting over their ice cream sodas, recall that the Cliff House always has been one of the cardinal features of the city, a "point of interest" demanded by every tourist.

The first Cliff House was built in 1863, and, since, there had been some sort of a restaurant there most of the time. The site is magnificent. High above the ocean, beside the Golden Gate, it looks down on the famous Seal Rocks and commands a great stretch of sea and shore line. The house is the first building sighted by approaching ships and the last seen by departing ones.

The present structure, built in 1909, is the third of a series started in the 80s. The previous buildings were burned. For decades the Cliff House was noted for its cuisine. In the pre motor era blooded trotters took their owners to fashionable gatherings there. It was the drive for San Franciscans of that day, the miles of scenic road between the city and the entrance to San Francisco Bay.

Among the personages who were entertained at the Cliff House were five presidents.

In recent years there has been a steady decline in the prestige of the place. About a year ago it was made into a combination restaurant and coffee house. This dying effort failed. The building is for rent.

There is talk among prominent citizens of petitioning to purchase the property and fit it into an observatory park.

Oxygen on Mars

That the amount of oxygen on Mars is relatively very low has been shown by a spectroscope fixed on the Mount Wilson telescope. It is only 50 per cent, as great as the oxygen supply on Mount Everest, where exploring expeditions have had to resort to the use of oxygen tanks in order to keep alive.

Though deficient in water and oxygen, there is no doubt that Mars still possesses an atmosphere. E. C. Slipher of the Lowell Observatory at Flagstaff, Ariz., showed that photographs made with red light filters made the planet appear larger and showed greater detail than those made with blue light filters. Red light is known to have greater powers of penetration through the atmosphere than blue; so that the photographs would tend to indicate the presence of an atmosphere on Mars.

A summer school for farm boys between 14 and 21 years of age, who have dropped out of school was held at the Fletcher Memorial school for four weeks during August, according to South Carolina education. They were taught agriculture, arithmetic, English, and citizenship.

That "pay-day smile" when you smoke P. A.

WHEN a fellow's happy as a spring robin, he's just got to show it. Face lighted up like a sample house. Look at those jimmy-pipers all around you. You can't tell whether they've just got a raise, or whether they've been mentioned in a rich uncle's will.

But here's the secret: They've discovered Prince Albert! Just you tuck a neat wad of P. A. into the muzzle of that little old jimmy-pipe and make fire with a match. Man, alive. Here's tobacco as IS tobacco. Mellow. Mild. A win in every draw.

No other tobacco is like Prince Albert. Cool and sweet and fragrant. Not a nip or a scorch in a barrel of it. The Prince Albert process cuts out bite and parch, and develops a tobacco flavor that has solace and satisfaction written all over it.

Quality tobacco and no mistake. Quantity too! There are TWO full ounces in every tidy red tin. (Look at the revenue stamp.) Get together now—you and your jimmy-pipe and Prince Albert. Step around the corner and tell the man you want a tidy red tin of P. A. Then you're set for real smoke-sport.

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

Look at the U. S. revenue stamp—there are TWO full ounces in every tin.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

During the past week considerable progress was made on local building projects and the suddenly cold weather made the contractors look sharp to the cement work. At the state hospital the new ward building is being roofed in and work on the interior finish will be started this week. Good progress has been made at the Sheltering Arms where work is being rushed along toward completion in an effort to get the building far enough aldar so that cold weather while not retard the work.

During the past week only one or two building permits were issued by Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton bringing the total for October to close to forty permits which is close to the normal average for the month. The total valuation of buildings called for in the permits issued was well above the normal average for the month owing to one or two of the largert projects in the city coming under this month's business.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

During the past week there were 40 sales of real estate in Norwich, seven sales less than during the same week in 1924. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $57,000 and $86,-925.

There were 10 sales of real estate in New London during the past week a marked increase over the corresponding week a year ago when there were 4 sales. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $91,400 and $18,800.

New London

Final action will be taken on November 10 by the committee in charge of the contemplated alterations to the Masonic Temple on Huntington street in the matter of selecting plans for the changes. Competitive plans are in the hands of the committee, of which George E. Waters is chairman and whose recommendations will be submitted on the above date to the local Masonic bodies.

Bids are being received by Mrs. N. Harris, corner Fowler avenue and Ocean avenue, for alterations to the building at the corner of Blackhall and Frost streets, recently purchased by the Hebrew Ladies' Aid and Educational society. There will be four classrooms on the first floor and an assembly hall which will occupy the second and third stories. The work will consist of extensive interior changes and improvements.

The permit has been issued to William R. Golding, for a dwelling at the corner of Ocean avenue and Henry street. The house will be 28x52 feet, of frame construction, arranged for two tenements. The work will be done by day labor, under the owner's supervision.

Work has been started on a cottage on Highland place, Ocean Beach, for Dennis Heffernan. From private plans the dwelling will be 25x42 feet, of cottage design. It will be arranged for one family. The cost will be about $3,000.

The contract has been awarded for an addition and alterations to a farm building at the corner of Montauk and Gardner avenues, making it into a house for Emily L. Norris. The dwelling will be 15x44 feet. There will be new plumbing and electric wiring.

A cottage, two stories high, is being erected at 11 Whittlesey street for John H. Swanson. The house will be 24x26 feet, and will be arranged for one family. The owner will have charge of the construction.

A house has been started on Blydenburgh avenue by Thomas F. Moran, 192 Montauk avenue. From plans prepared by the owner, the house will be 26x45 feet. It will be of frame construction, costing about $7,000, and will contain two flats. All improvements will be provided.

Fowler & Rathbun, of Norwich, have been awarded the contract for a two-story cottage at 766 Williams street for Clyde B. Smith. The house will be 24x28 feet, arranged for six rooms. The estimated cost is $5,000.

Alterations to a barn at 29 Huntington street have been started by George A. Darrow, who will remodel the building for a six-room residence. The work will be done by day labor and will include new plumbing, heating and electric wiring.

M. L. O'Connell, 561 Montauk avenue has secured a permit to build a house at 48 Lower boulevard. The house will be arranged for one family. It will be 24x26 feet, and will cost about $4,500.

Ground has been broken by Robert Tetrault, Parkway, for a house on Montauk avenue. The house will be arranged for one family. It will be 28x35 feet, of frame construction. There will be steam heat and other conveniences.

Building Permits

William R. Golding, frame dwelling, corner Ocean avenue and Henry street, $4,000.

Sidney Suiman, garage, 10 Church street, $15,000.

Number of permits issued for the week, 26; estimated cost of buildings, $61,750.

Mystic

A St. Louis firm has been awarded the contract for an addition to the local exchange office of the Southern New England Telephone Co., at the corner of Broadway and Washington street. Work on the new post office is proceeding rapidly, the brick walls having been completed. Work is being started on the roof. The Standard Oil Co., have also started work on their new storage tanks at Willow Point.

Storrs

The plans for the men's dormitory here for the Connecticut Agricultural college, have been completed ready for figures. The building will be of fireproof construction, 30x200 feet, three stories high with two ells, 36x30 feet. There will be limestone trim, a slate roof, and steel casement sash. The building will accomodate 200 men and will have four common rooms in the basement, with fireplaces. The floors will be laid with linoleum throughout, the trim will be in oak, with a buck steel alternate, and the heating a two-pipe steam system with specialities. There will be 16 toilet rooms and marble shower stalls with Carmic floors and wainscoting. The stairs will be of steel with pre-cast treads.

CLARENCE M. SHAY SQUARES BAD CHECK ACCOUNT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 3.—Clarence M. Shay, of Mott avenue, who was in the Norwich city court this forenoon on a charge of passing a fraudulent check today made payment of $22 to Leroy Darrow, Waterford garage man, whom Shaw tendered a worthless check for payment for work Darrow performed on Shay's truck recently. It is understood that Shay will make good the several checks that were worthless and which were recently passed on New London merchants by Shay and his wife.

10-Day Tube FREE

Mother! Be sure you get Pepsodent for child's teeth and gums

Do you want your child to have prettier teeth now, and better protection from tooth and gum troubles in later life?

Mail the coupon then for a 10-day tube of Pepsodent, free. See what the world's leading dentists urge mothers to use as science's latest attainment in tooth and gum care.

• • • •

You will notice a film on your child's teeth. That's a frequent danger sign—an invitation for tooth and gum troubles. The same stubborn film that you can feel by running your tongue across your own teeth. You must combat it! Ordinary dentifrices don't fight it successfully.

Film is the greatest enemy of tooth health. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. Germs breed in it and imperil both teeth and gums. The acid that leads to early decay forms. Old type methods failed to combat it. Men of science engaged themselves in discovering an effective combatant.

Now in Pepsodent, two new combatants are embodied—combatants approved by highest dental authority. It curdles the film, gently removes it; then firms the gums. It keeps the teeth whiter, cleaner, more sparkling. It is the modern scientific method for better tooth protection. Insist upon it. Get a tube today. Mail the coupon.

NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

A levy of three cents on the dollar of the town grand list was made necessary three quarters of a century ago when it was voted to enlarge and repair the West Side fire station and build a new station and buy an engine for the Falls at a total cost of $2,300. Items of the week in 150 as taken in part from the Courier of that year are as follows:

Tuesday, October 29, 1850—The receipts of the Stonington road for the year ending August 1st 1850 were: passengers, $116,275.98; freight, 354,-495.26; mail service, etc, $6,739/9, a total of $186,510.97. Expenses, including all repairs and $19,500 in dividends left a total of $11,352.65 on hand at the close of the year, a substantial increase over the close of the year 1849.

Jenny Lind, prior to her departure from Philadelphia gave $3000 to the fund for the alleviation of the sufferers by the late great fire.

Norwich people are pleased to learn that the new map of Norwich, by Mr. McIntyre, is to be ready for sale within a few days.

A check up of town meetings throughout the state shows that the whig party has made a gain in 16 towns, the locos making but one gain in the entire state, this being in Lebanon.

A piece of gold in its raw state is being exhibited in New York and its owners have been offered over $3,000 for it. The gold weighs over 27 pounds and belongs to a two Englishmen who found it in California.

London papers are now discussing the possibility of a magnetic wire from London to New York and from England to Calcutta. Some people who believe that this scheme of laying a wire across the Atlantic is impossible have suggested making the connection by way of Russia, Siberia, Behring straits, Oregon, St. Louis, Philadelphia and thence to New York.

Thursday, October 3, 1850—The special town meeting held Saturday afternoon passed a vote in favor of repairing and enlarging the fire engine house on the West Side, building a new engine house at the Falls and furnishing a new and effecive engine for that company—the estimated cost of all being $2,300. To meet this expense an extra tax of three cents on the dollar on the list last perfected, was voted.

One large mill in Willimantic has been forced to shut down and several wholesale houses in Norwich are feeling the effect of the ruinous tariff of the present administration.

Mr. McIntyre of Philadelphia is now in the city and is making plans to distribute the new map of the city. The map is a highly finished and beautiful piece of work, being an elegant specimen of lithography. As a highly minute and accurate delineation of the boundary lines, squares, streets, houses, lots (including size and shape of same) it is most valuable now, and will be in future years.

Saturday, November 2, 1850—The sweep of disaster of mills in this country due to tariff laws under the present administration has increased to 70 mills with 6000 looms and more mills are soon to close. The closing has been general in New England but is now beginning in the south and west, where many big mills, which have here-to-fore made a profit, are losing money.

At the annual meeting of the Auxiliary Foreign Missionary society of Norwich and vicinity and New London and vicinity, held at Norwich the following officers were elected: President, William Williams; vice president, Asa Otis; secretary, Henry P. Haven; treasurers, Francis A. Parker and Solby Chew; executive committee, Rev. Dr. Bond, Rev. H. P. Arms, Rev. Thomas L. Shipman and William A. Buckingham.

We are informed that there are about 30 different factories or places for making "segars" in Sheffield; at which 150 men are employed. These men average 2000 per week—amounting to 300,000 "segars" a week. The "regalias" made there are sold in New York for the real imported and many a "four-center" is smoked by the dandies, without thinking it is of American weed.

FRED E. WILSON, LONG SOUGHT, IS HELD IN HARTFORD

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 2.—Frederick E. Wilson, a former resident of New London, at which time he represented a radio house, and later a resident of Groton, is under arrest at Hartford charged with violation of the motor vehicle laws and he is also being held pending an investigation of his recent movements in and around Hartford. Wilson is also wanted in Groton for the theft of an automobile and in Westerly for evasion of payment of a board bill.

Wilson, following his removal from New London to Groton, over a year ago purchased, on conditional bill of sale a Chrysler automobile from E. W. Jones, Groton. After making the first payment Wilson left the city and went to Boston, later going to Hartford and Westerly. From that time all trace of Wilson was lost until he appeared in Hartford Saturday. He was suspected of bootlegging and when four police officers started after Wilson's car, Wilson speeded his machine and it was not until four hours later that the Hartford officers overtook the Wilson machine. When the car was searched it was revealed that Wilson had four sets of registration plates, they being the issue of Connecticut, Ohio, New York and Massachusetts.

After going to Boston Wilson abandoned his wife, who has since returned to New London and is employed at the Union station. He also went to Westerly, where he contracted a board bill at the Elm Tree inn and left that place without making payment.

The Groton authorities have held a warrant for Wilson's arrest about a year and it is probable that he will be brought back to that place for trial.

CAPT. FENTON IN CONTEST AGAINST MAYOR FITZGERALD

HARTFORD, Nov. 2—(A. P.)—Captain Frank P. Fenton, of Willimantic, took the field today as a candidate against Mayor David E. Fitzgerald, of New Haven, for the chairmanship of the democratic state central committee. A vacancy in that position will be created within a few weeks by the contemplated resignation of Chairman Edward M. Yeomans, preparatory to taking his place as a judge of the superior court in February.

Fenton definitely assured members of the state central committee who approached him that he would stand for election. He was democratic leader of the house of representatives in 1923. Since he was one of the delegates to the democratic national convention last year who stood by Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York through thick and thin, for the presidential nomination, and Mayor Fitzgerald was one of the delegates who voted for William G. McAdoo, on some of the early ballots, the fight for the state chairmanship is expected to be along the lines which divided the Connecticut delegation at the New York convention.

If there's nothing in a name it's queer what becomes of the things a man sometimes puts in his wife's name.

POETRY

Sweet is October

The stately dahlia bows, her crimson head
Beneath her heavy crown of early snow;
The deep-hued oaks, as whirling snow flakes blow,
Change rose and russet gowns for white instead;
And gracious maples, clad in gold and red,
Wear white-furred mantels as they curtsey low.
If autumn's mellow loveliness to go
With wistful dreams of Indian summer fled?
Surpassing beauty meets our wondering eyes
As vivid leaves and pines are veiled in white,
Each burning bush and glowing flower subdued;
How bravely earth receives its grim surprise.
Of winter's warning putting fall to flight,
And gives us beauty's joy in every mood!

—Winifred Pratt in Boston Transcript.

Sea-Sleep

Sleep, sleep, sleep
In thy folded waves, O Sea!
Till the quiet breathings creep,
With a low-voiced melody,
Out of the glimmering deep,
For sleep is the close of life:
'Tis the end of love, and its birth:
'Tis the quieting of strife,
And the silencing of mirth,
Hush and sleep!

Close thou thy lids, O Sea,
On palaces and towers;
Dream on deliciously
Deep in thy dreamland bowers
Waken us not again,
Beating upon our shore,
Rousing the strife in men
With full and thunderous roar

Drop from they crested heights,
To still repose and rest;
Fold us in hushed delights,
With dream-flowers from thy breast;
Not as the poppies are
But lilies cool that weep
Tears that at kisses scar
To soothe for slumbers deep.

Hush thou the little waves,
Hush with a low-voiced song,
Till the Under-deep that laves
Thy lurid floor lifts strong:
Till the Under-World is borne,
To this weary world of ours,
And lives, for love that mourn,
Bold as the dew-lipped flowers.

Rest thou in time's unrest,
In the bloombell and the brain;
Then loose, all silver-tressed,
The streamings of thy mane:
Gilding, dissolving so,
That we at peace may be,
Stern in thy silver glow,
Thy azure calm, O Sea:
Make lullaby!

—Thomas Lake Harris

He was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct, but was discharged when arraigned.

Breadfruit for the Hawaiian Islands is expected to be one of the results of a ten-months' scientific voyage recently completed by Gerrit P. Wilder, of the Bernice P. Bishop Museum, of Honolulu. Mr. Wilder journeyed from island to island schooners, gathering planting stock of the many varieties of the breadfruit tree, which is reported to be in danger of extinction. In all, 33 new types were obtained, of which about 250 specimens, adapted to the climate of Hawaii, can be grown.

FORMER NORWICH MAN PURCHASES OLD H. K. H. SILK MILL, NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 3.—The two-story wooden structure, corner of Hempstead and Home streets, owned by the H. K. H. Silk company, and formerly the home of that concern's branch in New London, was sold today to Frederick Fabricant. The price paid was approximately $36,000.

Mr. Fabricant, who formerly resided in Norwich, has become interested in the Troy Laundry, and as soon as the structure can be made ready for occupancy the laundry plant will be removed to the Hempstead street building. The Troy laundry has occupied its present quarters on Bank street a quarter of a century, or over since the late Alex Fournier started the business.

The silk company's plant is adaptable for the laundry business, having several thousand feet of floor space on each of the two floors. A steam heating plant and a boiler room, which will provide motive power is already among the equipment purchased by Mr. Fabricant today. The purchasers of the building will have work started within a short time in installing the laundry equipment in the new site, and as soon as it is accomplished the business will be transferred to that place.

They who looked upon the Boozo when it was of the hooch variety—when it stirred itself aright, when it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder—appeared in the police court this morning to answer for their offenses, which were not alone intoxication, but which had the frills on them which usually attend free indulgence in liquor of the high alcoholic content that goes to make up the decoctions known as whiskey. A few of the nine accused got away with suspended judgment, but others had fines to pay, also had costs to settle. One of them was William Burchet, a soldier at Fort Wright, and whose home is at South Avenue, Norwich, and there he went to get $35 from his mother to settle for his drunken escapade. he was on Woodbridge street after midnight when she found an automobile, the property of Henry Young, parked at the curbing. Billy was dizzy enough to think he should operate the machine, so he turned on the lights and made an effort to get the engine into operation. This act awakened Mr. Young, and from his window he saw what was going on. Burchet was arrested. In court he represented that he was intoxicated, and pleaded guilty to the offense, but he could not remember that he tampered with the automobile. Mr. Young was certain as to that and Burchet was ordered to pay a fine for the liberties he took with the auto.

Henry Martinez, a Coast Guard sailor, was fined $5 for intoxication. He had a idea he couldn't carry when two officers encountered him.

George Orth, also a Coast Guard sailor, a recruit, was fined for intoxication.

George Sullivan and George Kelly, both young men, were charged with intoxication. They escaped penalty that will come to them when they appear again. The former has twice been before the court recently. He represented that he had been employed in printing offices and was to be so engaged again as soon as he got to Boston. Judge Prince told him today that if he comes into court again he would not get to Boston in a long time. Both boys were fined, but the execution of the judgment was suspended that they might get to some employment. Eugene Sullivan encountered Patrolman Sheehan Saturday night and upbraided the officer for making an arrest some time ago, calling him vile names. Mr. Sheehan just grabbed Sullivan and walked him to the police station as rapidly as he wanted to travel. He was charged with a breach of the peace when the police court assembled. Then Judge Crandall told Sullivan that he would be wise to keep a civil tongue in his cheek and to refrain from criticism of policemen who do their duty. He released Sullivan without other humiliation than that he had experienced by his arrest and presentation in court.

Antone Thomas, a soldier, when he became intoxicated sought to go into the Capitol theatre. He encountered James Lyman at the door. That meant that he should not pass. James might have taken the little soldier by the ear and led him to the street, but he didn't do that. He called Policeman Manice, and the latter did the expulsion act. Tony resisted as best he could, but that was not great, so he landed in a cell at the lock-up. Today he admitted that he was drunk when he attempted to get into the theatre, so he was fined $10.

There was trouble in Darktown last night. Three women participated in it and all were arrested. Edward Jones proved a good Samaritan and he produced the bonds by which the women were allowed their freedom. An effort was made this morning to penalize the offenders, but adjournment became necessary in order that witnesses should appear to tell what happened. The women were released till tomorrow morning. Then they will come into court and listen to proceedings with which they are familiar.

Edward Burke, a young man who said his calling was that of a painter was charged with intoxication. He pleaded guilty, but he appeared to have an ambition to get to some work so Judge Crandall was disposed to help to do that. He was insolent when he was questioned by Police Sergeant Smith and used language that is not permissible anywhere, so he was arrested again and will come into court tomorrow on a much more serious charge. A young girl is concerned with Burke in the offense he is to answer for now.

Fred and Victor Johnson, brothers, residing in Montville, were before Justice of the Peace Oscar Church at Montville this morning charged with breach of the peace. They pleaded guilty and the former was fined $5 and costs and the latter drew a penalty of $3 and costs. The brothers were taken into custody late yesterday by State Police Officer Bernard Kenerson, following a brawl on a farm in Montville, where a drinking party had been in progress. During the brawl Fred Johnson is alleged to have exploded a shot gun, but he did not take aim at any of the disturbers. The explosion of the shot gun brought about the arrest of the brothers, for complaint was then lodged with the state police at Groton.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins S. Stoeckel today caused the operator's license of Reuben Lubchansky, 217 Main street, to be suspended. Commissioner Stoeckel also caused the licenses of Thomas White, 312 Main street; Archie Blatchford, submarine base, and Ester Peterson, 50 Willetta avenue, recently suspended, to be returned to the owners.

Marion Frances, one of twin daughters born to Mr. and Mrs. John Scanlon, 93 Crystal avenue, two months ago, died today at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, and in whose institution the other little girl twin is under treatment.

Michael J. Devine, 35, of 25 Central avenue, died today at Kings County hospital, Brooklyn, N. Y., where he underwent an operation about a week ago. Mr. Devine is survived by his wife and two children; his father, Dennis Devine, Sr., 105 Crystal avenue, and by three sisters and two brothers, the latter being Dennis Devine, Jr., and Patrick Devine, all of this city.

Samuel Glater, proprietor of a dry-goods store, 405 Bank street, has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the United States district court, New Haven. The petition records that the petitioner has unsecured liabilities of the amount of $5,-088, and assets in stock amounting to $1,500.

Louis Olbrys, 17, of 26 Richards street, and John Leitkowsky, Jr., 19, of 24 Lincoln court, are patients at Lawrence hospital, suffering from injuries sustained late yesterday while riding a motorcycle which Olbrys was operating, in Groton. Olbrys suffers a compound fracture of the left leg and Leitkowsky received a compound fracture of the left leg, also body bruises and contusions. Olbrys did not have a license to operate this cycle, that right having been taken from him by Motor Commissioner Robbins B. Stoeckel a year ago. The men suffered their injuries when the cycle collided with an automobile.

Floyd Mitchell of 35 Truman street was taken into custody this afternoon charged with evasion of responsibility. He furnished a surety on his bond of $200 for his appearance in the police court tomorrow morning. Mitchell, it is alleged, was operating his automobile on Montauk avenue, early this morning and when between Alger street and Avery court, the car collided with automobiles owned by John T. McArdle and Joseph J. Caffrey, which were parked in front of the residences of the owners and considerably damaged. Mitchell, it is claimed drove his machine away without stopping to discover the extent of the damage occasioned. He was later located at his home and taken into custody.

An automobile operated by Mrs. George Collins of Old Lyme, in passing along Bank street near the city line last evening, struck a child, Edward Dimmock, aged 3, residing with his parents, 964 Bank street. Although the boy was felled he did not sustain injuries more serious than bruises and contusions.

Julia R. Lester has sold to Tobias Olsen and Joan Jensen a house and lot on Gardner avenue.

Morris Glater has transferred his title in a cottage on Alewife avenue, Ocean Beach, to his son, Samuel Glater.

August and Margaret Sauczok have sold a house and lot on Brewer street to William H. Davidson.

Boys returning home from school this afternoon caused damage to a dwelling owned by the Connecticut College for Women on Williams street, and which is unoccupied, smashing the plate glass in the front door, also smashing windows in the living rooms.

Norman Blaisdell, of Boston, arrested Oct. 19 by State Police Officer Fred Caron charged with reckless driving failed to present himself in the Groton town court this morning. Judge Cornelius C. Costello ordered the case continued a week and it is believed that by that time Blaisdell will have been served with a warrant for his court appearance.

Mrs Spencer Moon, of 12 Summer street, and Mrs. Samuel Jordan and infant son, 32 Cutler street, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were dismissed today.

Mrs. John Gannon and infant daughter of Hope street; Miss Anna Hamilton, Tenth street; William Terry, Bayonet street; Thomas Yansky, 17 Lewis street, and John Davis, Tenth street, patients at Lawrence hospital, were able to return to their respective homes today.

An automobile owned by George Lowry, 33 Harris court, skidded on the wet pavements on Howard street this evening, the car striking a telephone pole and then continuing against a machine owned and operated by Attorney John J. McGarry, 240 State street. Both machines were damaged.

Edward Barca of this city, was in the Waterford town court this afternoon charged with reckless driving. Judge Frederick Dimock imposed a fine of $10 and costs.

MAY AND STREETER ALERT FOR CITY'S INTERESTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 3—The city council held its longest meeting this evening, but it did something. It had an expression of opinion that was an open confession, and that is the sort that is good for the soul. It tackled the question of congestion on Bank street, the opening of Green street to Tilley and the prolongation of Washington street to Reed street and to Howard street. The latter is an old subject and one that has once received the sanction of the council and for which an appropriation was made, but the jugglers got in their work and the plan was never carried through. The money was applied in some other direction and, finally the fact that the appropriation had been made was forgotten. But New London never got the extension of Washington street.

Now comes up the matter of the extension of Green street for the widening of Bank street. The latter project will cost the city a tremendous sum. It will involve the placing of electric and telephone wires in conduits, a plan that will be opposed probably because of the expense it will involve and which will come on the public service companies. They are powerful organizations to tackle. But the Green street extension is a comparatively easy matter and one that has not the attending expense.

The project was brought up by the youngest member of the council, James A. May. He insisted that his recommendations should not be merely received for record, but that they should be referred to a committee and there threshed out and a recommendation be made on the subject to the council. These matters are now in a way of being considered intelligently and then being brought out into the light of day and views expressed pro and con. In that respect something tangible was accomplished at this evening's meeting.

Councilor Streeter would not consent to have his communication submitted at the meeting a week ago, merely "received for record." He insisted that it should be referred, with the report of the city engineer, on the water supply of the city, to a committee, where it could be calmly and dispassionately considered and discussed, that the citizens might know by the recommendation made whether it was good policy for the council to recommend the purchase of Miller's pond for additional water for the city, or whether the city should sit tight and wait until such time comes that the emergency will force the acquisition of an increased volume of water.

Councilor Streeter is in earnest about the matter. He has made a study of it and went on record this evening, in a statement in which he declared that the members of the council who visited the source of the supply declared that a serious situation would confront New London under circumstances that might arise when there would be a drought and the supply of water would not be adequate. He desires that the city shall forestall any such emergency and be prepared for it when it does come. He got the communication which he sent in and which he read from manuscript, referred to the committee on public safety. He announced that he would insist upon the communication being given the consideration it deserved. He pointed out the fact that Earns' Reservoir, Bonnie brook and other sources of supply was more during a few years than would be the cost of Miller's pond. The discussion waxed warm for a time and information that was to the point was brought out.

Councilor Scott held that the water of Miller's pond had been declared to contain typhoid bacilli and to be unfit for the use of the city for drinking purposes. This Councilor Streeter denied and claimed an analysis showed it to be as pure as was that of Lake Konomoc, which is used exclusively by the citizens.

The council did not take kindly to the aggression of the League of Remembrance, that the 11th month and the 11th day of the months and the 11th hour of the day would be set apart for two minutes of silence as a tribute to the men of the world war. Councilor Whiton wanted to await the action of the governor in recognizing the demand of promoters of the plan. Councilor May expressed the opinion that this city should be a leader and not a follower in such matters. He wanted the occasion recognized as was suggested.

The Red Cross asked for an appropriation of $— additional to what had been appropriated for maintaining the hut and the corps of life savers at the beach in the summer season. That matter went to the budget committee.

The matter of the maintenance of Groton Ferry was brought up and the city manager was directed to advertise for bids for maintaining the ferry. It was shown that there was a deficit which was met by the city of New London and the town of Groton. Groton is willing to continue to contribute to the cost of operating the ferry but it desires that the boat now in service shall be continued in use, while the city of New London is of the opinion, as expressed by certain members of the council, that a smaller boat, and one more economical in maintenance might be provided. That matter was referred to the budget committee and there it will be threshed out. Councilor Streeter declared that the merchants, or a considerable group of them, had consulted him and that they desired the present boat to be maintained. He gave eight reasons for keeping the boat and said one of them was the uncertainty that the bridge now in use would be in service all the time. He said it was a dilapidated structure and was handed to the city by the railroad company. The council voted to buy two snow ploughs at a cost of $550.

JAMES H. BURNES FOUND DEAD ON LIGHTSHIP

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 2.—James H. Burnes, 53, a member of the crew of Bartlett's Reef lightship, off Goshen Point, Long Island sound, was found dead aboard the craft this morning death having occurred while Burns was on watch. His home was formerly at Staten Island, N. Y., and he had been a sufferer from a chronic disorder of the heart for a long time, and twice he was under treatment at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital.

Burns went on watch at 1 o'clock and then was apparently in his usual health. That was the last seen of him alive, for at 4 o'clock when the change of watches took place Burns was found lying dead on the deck. This forenoon a government transport was signalled and going alongside the lightship the body was taken aboard the transport and brought into port.

TODAY'S EVENTS

Today has been set aside in Japan for the first nation-wide observance of "Physical Education day."

The season of the Chicago Grand Opera company will be inaugurated tonight at the Auditorium theatre in that city.

Numerous bishops and other representatives of the high church contingent in the Protestant Episcopal church will meet at New Haven today for an Anglo-Catholic congress.

The national political barometer is not likely to be seriously affected by the off-year elections to be held in scattering states today. Few state-wide officers are to be chosen and the few congressional elections are to fill vacancies.

In New Jersey, Arthur Whitney, republican, and A. Harry Moore, democrat, are contesting for the governorship. In Virginia, Byrd, the democratic nominee for governor, is believed to be assured of election, over S. Harris Hoge, the republican choice.

In several other states there is considerable interest in referendums and the election of legislatures. In Pennsylvania, where only one state-wide office is to be filled this year, the interest is confined chiefly to county and local contests.

Municipal elections will be held in numerous cities throughout the country and in many of them important local issues will come up for decision, such as proposed changes in the form of government, municipal ownership, and important bond issues.

Of country-wide interest is the election in New York city, where the voters will choose a mayor, controller, a president of the board of aldermen, and five borough presidents. James J. Walker, Tammany candidate for mayor, is opposed by Frank D. Waterman, as the republican standard-bearer.

Breed Theatre

Brilliant comedy, soul-stirring drama and pulse-quickening thrills are mingled in equal proportions in "The Wise Virgin," an Elmer Harris production, which comes to the Breed theatre Wednesday, with Patsy Ruth Miller and Matt Moore featured.

The story is an original one by Elmer Harris, a master craftsman of stage writings. His musical comedy successes, "So Long, Letty," and "Canary Cottage," still live in the memories of playgoers after ten years since they were first produced. His other achievements, both on stage and screen, are too numerous to mention.

The action of "The Wise Virgin," centers around Billie Farrington and her infatuation for a handsome foreigner, Count Ricardo Venino. Her grandmother, a "demon chaperone" if there ever was one, suspects the count of wooing her granddaughter for her money and sets about in her own way to discourage the match.

One of the grandmother's properties is a beautiful California cattle ranch, governed by Bob Martin, a handsome young cowman. Learning that Martin has saved a comfortable amount of money from his earnings and being otherwise impressed by him, she asks him to become her grandson-in-law. This is entirely in accordance with the young man's own ideas, and he sets about the task with a will that is only equaled by his ardor.

The cast selected to present "The Wise Virgin," is an exceptionally good one. In addition to Miss Miller and Moore, it includes Lucy Fox, Leon Bary, Edythe Chapman and Charlee A. Stevenson.

The picture was directed by Lloyd Ingraham under Harris' supervision.

"The Unholy Three," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production starring Lon Chaney, the great character actor, will be shown again today for the last time.

Lyceum Theatre

The fact that it was seen by more than a million theatergoers during the two years of its engagement at the Booth theater, attests to the quality of the dramatic entertainment afforded by Seventh Heaven, which John Golden will bring to the Lyceum, New London, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, Nov. 5, 6, 7 with a Saturday matinee.

Written by Austin Strong, author of Three Wise Fools, Seventh Heaven, is the first Golden play to be laid in scenes other than American. Its locale is the Parisian slum district known as The Hole in the Sock, situated back of the famous Church of the Heavenly Angels, and here Mr. Strong has found characters for the most part taken from the life that abounds in gay color and that are of a type entirely new to the American stage. The mobilization and the armistice, with their stirring events, form a setting for the play and for the author's theme of human courage. This theme, universal in its appeal, has made Seventh Heaven of interest for theatergoers of the widest range of tastes.

The company which will present Seventh Heaven has spent most of the season in the New York Metropolitan district and has established a new house record in virtually every theater which it has visited. It is headed by Ann Forrest, of motion picture fame, as Ilane; and Louis D'Arclay, from Madame Rejane's Paris repertoire company as Chico. The play was staged under the personal direction of Mr. Golden.

Broadway Theater

One of the most enjoyable B. F. Keith vaudeville programs of this season opened at the Broadway theater yesterday, to capacity crowds both matinee and night, all having nothing but the highest praise to give.

Miss Shelton Bentley, a gifted and talented songstress, made a perfect opening stage attraction.

Hoey and Hope followed with a shower of laughs, all new and some comedy songs.

Dolaro Sisters and Schweiler in third spot was a delight to the eye as well as the ear. Singing, dancing and music comprise their offering.

Ralph Sims, is a monologist with real funny stories that follows one after another.

Cahill and Wills, in a comedy mixup was another comedy riot.

Following a remarkably successful run at the Broadway theater, where it opened last Sunday, the Banner production, The Love Gamble, will close Wednesday night. Lillian Rich has gained even greater popularity as a result of her work in this film. The story is from the novel, Peggy, From Beacon Hill, by Maysie Grieg, an Australian newspaper woman who studied conditions in Boston first hand while she wrote. A strong cast, with Robert Fraser playing opposite Miss Rich presents one of the most human stories that have come to the screen in recent months. It was acclaimed by critics and public alike as a production with a minimum of hocumb.

For McAll Mission Meeting

Mrs. David Miller of Elizabeth, N. J., recently returned from France, is to tell of what she has seen of the work of the McAll Mission, in the varied departments, at a meeting to be held in the Osgood Memorial, at three o'clock Thursday afternoon. Some dozens of special articles including babies' layettes, as well as shawls and mufflers for older people, have been made during the past summer, by members of the Norwich McAll Auxiliary and their friends.

He who owes a parting shot is never pressed for payment.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

An optimistic comedy of family loyalty and affection, bringing abundant laughter with just a suspicion of a tear, is the description given to "The Goose Hangs High," the entertaining comedy of modern American life that will be presented tomorrow afternoon and evening at the Palace theatre by the Richard Mansfield Players, the new company of professional Broadway actors who are resident in New London.

"The Goose Hangs High" is the work of Lewis Beach, well known as a modern American playwright, and caused a great stir when it was produced in New York recently, where it ran 200 nights. The play deals with the eternal conflict between the younger and older generations, but, unlike most dramas and photoplays based on this theme, it makes the flappers come out with flying colors.

Mr. Beach shows that although the young sons and daughters of today may appear to be thoughtless, extravagant, pleasure-loving and self-centered, these qualities are only surface deep, and that they can really prove to be true as steel when misfortune comes to the family. The author is a violent defender of the flapper, and proves that a lipstick and rolled stocking may very well go with filial devotion and sacrifice.

"The Goose Hangs High" tells the story of the Ingals family, an average American family, comfortably well off, with a son and daughter at college and another son about to be married. For the first part of the play the author shows the young people of the family home from college for the Christmas holidays, engrossed in their own reckless pleasures. They are busy with their plans for the future, selfishly enjoying the gay life of the younger set in the town in which they live ignoring their self-sacrificing parents.

Then, when a crisis comes in the Ingals family, Mr. Beach shows the stuff that really goes to make up the younger generation. No more of the play or its fascinating plot will be disclosed here, lest it take the keen edge off the enjoyment of the stage presentation.

"The Goose Hangs High" was put on by Edwin R. Wolfe, the noted young stage director of the Richard Mansfield Players who is staging all their productions. A special feature is the beautiful setting of the play which was especially designed by the Players' scenic director, Louis Bromberg.

Headed by Mrs. Richard Mansfield, the wife of the great actor, who is thus returning to the professional stage for the first time since her husband died, practically the entire personnel of the Players will be seen in the cast.

Mrs. Mansfield plays the role of the mother, Eunice Ingals, with Robert LeSueur, a splendid actor, as Mr. Ingals. The flapper daughter, Lola, will be played by Betty Pratt, a charming girl with excellent experience for one so young, and Bradley Ingals, her twin brother, will be acted by Theodore St. John, the talented and attractive young Juvenile. Edwin R. Wolfe, the stage director, who is also an actor of great distinction, will play an important role as the older son, and his fiancee is in the capable hands of Haroldine Humphries, a tall, stunning young actress who was seen last year in New York as the nun in "The Miracle."

Lillie Brayton, another prominent member of the Richard Mansfield Players, has the comedy part as the grandmother. Marbet Semmes will be seen as Rhoda, and Charlotte Read, another well known actress, has the role of Aunt Julie. Noel Derby will be played by Frank Pocta, a fine young character actor with excellent experience, and Theron Lucas, Charles Freeman, and Raymond McGrath complete this splendid cast.

Palace Theatre

Monday night, November 9th will mark the first appearance in this city of the sensational DeForest Phonofilms at the Palace theatre which have caused a stir around the globe both in theatrical and scientific circles. Many attempts have been made in the past to "make the movies sing and talk," but it remains for the celebrated inventor of the radio, Dr. Lee DeForest to perfect his famous "phonofilm," which constitutes actual moving pictures of the stars performing, together with "photographs" on the film of their actual voices or of the instruments they are playing. First introduced at the Rialto and Rivoli theatres in New York, the phonofilms attracted such wide-spread attention that the world's most famous stars came to the laboratories of DeForest to have their "acts" reproduced, visually and vocally, by the wierd new invention. Among the stars assembled for the first transcontinental tour of the "phonofilms" are Weber & Fields, Eddie Cantor, Ben Bernie's Band, DeWolfe Hopper, Eva Leoni, from the Metropolitan Opera House, Puck & White from the Keith Circuit, Conchita, the famous Spanish dancer, and many others, all of whom will be shown here at the Palace for three days starting Monday night, November 9th, with matinees on Tuesday and Wednesday. From reports already received from other cities where the "talking pictures" are being shown, local amusement lovers will be afforded a most remarkable and amazing treat.

HUNDREDS HEAR ORTHOPHONIC RECITAL AT PLAUT-CADDEN'S

A new era in the mechanical reproduction of sound was heralded yesterday with the presentation, by the Plaut-Cadden Co., at their store, of the newly invented Orthophonic Victrola, whose announcement has created a sensation in musical circles. A varied and comprehensive musical program was rendered to demonstrate the capacities of the new instrument, which is declared to represent a 100 per cent increase of efficiency over the old type. The presentation, with recitals, lasted throughout the day and hundreds of people took advantage of the opportunity to hear for the first time what is conceded to be the most wonderful contribution to music in the history of the world. Public recitals will be given by the Plaut-Cadden Co. every day this week at 10 and 3 o'clock and the public is cordially invited.

Honesty, like other policies, often runs out the day before the fire.

MARKET WAS SPECULATIVE

NEW WYORK, Nov. 2—(By the Associated Press)—Excited speculation in the motor shares again featured the resumption of the broad upward movement in today's stock market. Hudson was the sensational performer, closing 36 points higher at 180 after some of the wildest fluctuations seen in recent months. In the last 15 minutes of trading, it quickly jumped from 123 to 159 1-2, broke precipitously to 137 and then rallied to 180. Total sales in that issue, which sold as low as 91 two weeks ago, exceeded 600,000 shares.

Except for reports of expanding trade activities and publication of additional favorable earnings statements, there was little in the day's news to influence the course of prices. Wall street, however, was flooded with rumors regarding increased and extra dividends and capital stock split-ups. Indications that public participation had substantially increased in the last few days were seen in the unusually large volume of odd lot buying.

While motors received the bulk of speculative attention, a better demand also was noted for the oils, equipments and local tractions. Activity in the rails centered largely in the southern carriers, Atlantic Coast Line jumping over four points to a new record high at 232. St. Paul issues also were active and strong, the preferred closing 2 points higher at 20 3-8 on report that a compromise agreement would shortly be effected between the two banking factions which have promoted reorganization plans.

Motors changed hands in enormous volume. Studebaker closed fractionally lower at 67 1-2, after having touched a new top at 68 5-8 on total sales in excess of 120,000 shares. While it scored an extreme gain of 4 1-2 at 102, nearly half of which was liquidated on sales of over 116,000 shares, Hupp was bid up over 3 points to a new top at 28 1-2 on total sales of nearly 85,000 shares.

Chrysler soared 12 points to a record top at 253 and then sagged to 250. Jordan opened at 65, a new year's high, and then sagged to 61 5-8 for a net loss of 3 1-4. Pierce Arrow preferred advanced nearly four points to a new peak at 99. Mack Trucks attained a new maximums price of 243 and then slipped back to 239 1-2, up 1 3-4 on the day.

Oils were galvanized into activity when a spirited demand developed for Pan-American B, which closed 1 1-3 points higher at 74 1-2. Pan-American Western B closed 2 points higher at 44. Mariand, Houston, General Asphalt, Standard Oil of California, Pacific, Phillips, Producers and Refiners and Simms also closed about 1 to 3 points higher. Buying of these issues was based on steadily decreasing crude oil production and reports of large current earnings.

Steady accumulation of the equipments reflected the recent large increase in railroad inquiries and orders, Baldwin and American Locomotives closing at 125 3-4 and 154 1-2 for net gains of 2 and 2 1-2 points respectively. American Brake Shoe and Foundry was run up over 3 points to a new high record at 126 1-2.

Other standard industrials also were in good demand, United States Steel common closing a point higher at 129 after selling within a fraction of the year's high, and American Can soaring 3 points to a record top at 263 and then yielded to 29 1-2 on profit taking.

Among the two score or so other issues to attain new peak prices for the year were American International, Associated Drygoods, Brooklyn Edison, Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit, Brown Shoe, Case Threshing Machine, Coca Cola, Dupont, Foundation company, Montgomery Ward, National Dairy Products, Underwood Typewriter, United States Rubber and Youngstown Sheet and Tube.

Call money held firm at 5 per cent, time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges fluctuation within rather narrow and irregular limits. Demand sterling advanced slightly to around $4.84 1-4 but French francs ruled about 5 points lower around 4.26 cents.

TAFTVILLE

Rev. and Mrs. Edwin Gordon Crowdis have returned from Washington where they have been attending the sessions of the National Council of Congregational churches.

Monday being All Souls day, a solemn mass of requiem was celebrated at Sacred Heart church for the souls of the faithful departed.

Harold DeCelles of Lisbon and John Lafleur of South B street were in New Haven Saturday attending the Yale-Army football game.

President Allan Bogle presided at the regular monthly meeting of the Taftville Football & Social Club held Monday evening in the rooms in the Ponemah house.

The Artisans held their regular monthly meeting Monday evening in their rooms in St. Louis hall on Dion street.

Chairman George J. Meyer has called a meeting of the standing committee of the Taftville Congregational church for this (Tuesday) evening, the regular meeting of last month having been omitted because of the absence of the pastor.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kellner and children, William and Virginia of Preston were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Axel J. Aberg of North Third avenue.

Miss Stephanie Horosco entertained a number of friends at a Hallowe'en party at her home on South B street, Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Patrylo, and son Stephen Patrylo of Hallville have been recent visitors at the home of Nicholas Lukoff and family of South B street.

Branch 99, Polish Workers Sick Mutual Aid association held a meeting Sunday afternoon with the president, Walter Wujick in the chair. Routine business was transacted.

The general fair committee which is to have charge of the annual fair of the Taftville Congregational church has appointed its sub-committees and these committees are now at work to make the affair a success. A three act comedy is planned for the entertainment on the opening night, with an old fashioned minstrel show for the entertainment on the second night.

Saturday night, the youngsters of the village owned the town. In fact there has never been a time when there were so many spooks, ghosts and maskers roaming about the streets as there were Saturday night. While most of the pranks played were harmless, some householders complained that the revellers went a little too far, for in some cases windows were broken and street lights shattered. The huge incinerators from all over the town were missing from their accustomed places, some of them still standing in the middle of the roads over Sunday. The big roller used on the Providence street grounds was also moved from its place near the grandstand and pushed through the fence on South B street.

Resigns Pastorate at Maine

Rev. George C. Sauer, who was formerly pastor of the Third Baptist church in this city, has just resigned the pastorate of the First Baptist church at Belfast, Me.

FRIENDS SAY SHE IS PICTURE OF HEALTH

"I cannot give Tanlac too many thanks, for it brought back my health and strength after everything else failed, and nearly all hope of getting well had left me," is the grateful statement of Mrs. Sarah Duckett.

"Stomach trouble and rheumatism had been gradually weakening me down for 20 years. At times I ached all over, could not walk without limping, and felt too weak to get out of my chair. Sleep was almost out of the question and I was nervous, discouraged and despondent.

"When I began taking Tanlac I was down to 120 lbs. but I now weigh 150 and haven't an ailment in the world. This is what Tanlac did for me four years ago and since then I have never been without it in the house. I take a bottle now and then and everyone says I am the picture of health."

What Tanlac has done for others, it can also do for you. For sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute.

OFFICER MALONEY IS PLACED ON NORWICH VETERAN RESERVE LIST

Found physically disabled through long service as a regular officer of the Norwich police force, Edward J. Maloney has been transferred to the veteran reserve at a pension of $75 a month. Announcement of Officer Maloney's retirement was made by the police commissioners at the regular monthly meeting of the court of common council Monday evening. John Dunion, first on the list of supernumeraries, was elected a regular member of the force by a ballot vote.

The council meeting was delayed somewhat owing to the special city meeting held at 8 o'clock in the town hall and over which Mayor Milo R. Waters presided. It was 8:35 o'clock when the council was called to order with one absentee. The minutes, according to custom, were accepted without reading. City Clerk Weston C. Pullen read his certificate of publication of the changes in the traffic laws adopted at the last council meeting and which are now in effect. The certificate was accepted by the council.

Petitions Presented

The meeting then proceeded to petitions. G. Warren Davis and a score of others petitioned for lights along the entire distance of Corning road. The petition called attention to the fact that Mr. Davis had petitioned for lights a year ago last October, that the petition had been referred to the police committee, but that the lights had not been installed. It was stated in the petition that certain sections of the road are frequently used for immoral purposes and the petitioners asked that the entire distance of Corning road be lighted. The petition was referred to the police committee.

Alderman Patrick F. Sweeney, chairman of the police committee, stated that the petition of a year ago had been received and had been reported to the council. The alderman stated that the committe had taken the matter up with Mr. Davis and with Mr. Taggart, manager of the gas and electric department. It was felt by Mr. Taggart that Mr. Davis should see to it that the necessary poles for the line were provided. Mr. Davis was notified by the police committee to confer with Mr. Taggart but he had not done so.

Other petitions were received and acted upon as follows:

From H. C. Lane, et al., for a light on Washington Place. Referred to the police committee with power.

From Elizabeth Gleason, et. al., for an electric light on Seventh street between Prospect street and Durfey street. Referred to the police committee with power.

From George W. Bassell, et. al., for a bug light at or on No. 77 Winchester street. Referred to the police committee with power.

The monthly reports of the city treasurer, street commissioner, and the auditors report on the quarterly statement of the cashier of the water department were received and accepted.

Tax Refunds Allowed

The council then accepted a quit claim deed from the Norwich Free academy of a sewer in Williams avenue after which the following tax refunds were voted by the council.

To William J. Oglivie of No. 14-90, soldier exempt; to Gilbert S. Raymond, No. 12, assessed on land which is outside the city limits; to Michael Marr, $8.76, soldier exempt; Ashby J. Fitzgerald, $24, soldier exempt; to Arthur J. McNamara, $47.75, soldier exempt.

The council voted to instruct the city treasurer to pay to Theodore F. Galkowski, $15.50 in full settlement of his claim against the city for damage to his automobile at Boswell avenue and Broad street.

Alderman Henry Gebrath of the public works committee reported progress on the Tyler avenue acceptance project and the report was accepted.

Automobile Damage Claims

Mrs. D. Louise Atterbury presented a claim of $11.95 for damage to her automobile. She represented in her claim that her son was driving her car on Central avenue and that, forced to turn out suddenly to avoid running over a dog, he ran into a hole in the street, breaking a spring. The claim was referred to the finance committee and the corporation counsel.

Franl D. Davis presented a bill for $7.95, damage to a spring on his Cadillac at the foot of Park street, near the Elks home, owing to the defective condition of the street. This was referred to the finance committee and corporation counsel.

Alderman Sweeney, chairman of the police committee, presented a report from Dr. E. J. Brophy, in which the doctor stated that he had examined Police Officer Edward J. Maloney and found him physically incapacitated for further service on the force. The police committee, along with the doctor's report, presented a statement announcing the transfer of Officer Maloney to the veterans' reserve at a pension of $75 a month, effective November 3rd. The physician's report and statement of transfer were ordered printed in the appendix to the journal.

The police committee, through Alderman Sweeney, then presented the name of John Dunion, first on the list of supernumeraries, for appointment to the regular force. The ballot vote showed an unanimous appointment for Officer Dunion. There were 12 votes cast, all being in favor of Mr. Dunion.

Department bills were approved as follows:

Fire department, $5,800.59; water department, $3,340.64; Deep River Reservoir, $8,531.91; police dept., $7,467.85; street lighting, $2,158.88; finance dept., $64,460.94; cemetery dept., $1,073.84; gas and electric dept., $46,713.71; park dept., $268.73; public works dept., permanent street improvement, $13.43; regular, $19,367.07.

Adjournment was taken at 9:05 o'clock.

PRODUCE DEVOURER OF BACILLUS OF TUBERCULOSIS

The mysterious thing called bacteriophage or bacteria devourer, recent discovery of which has so disturbed the scientific world, was the subject of discussion Monday at a meeting at Undercliff at Meriden of the medical officers of the state tuberculosis sanatoria. Most of the advanced bacteriologists now admit the existence of the bacteriophage in the intestinal tract of all animals, but they insist that it can be found no where else, and they have hitherto agreed that there was no possible bacteriophage for germs like the tubercle bacillus that possesses a defensive waxy capsule.

Monday, however, Drs. Cole, Gibson and A. L. Banyai, of the Undercliff sanatorium, claimed that from the very culture of tubercle bacilli they have been able to procure a bacteriophage capsule of distraying the waxy armor of the tubercle baccillus, thus making it vulnerable to the protective forces of the animal organism.

The doctors gave full details of the work that they have carried out at Undercliff in this connection the last year and they exhibited many cultures and microscopic preparations of their intensive studies.

Another paper that elicited a lively discussion was by Dr. William R. Carroll, of the Undercliff sanatorium, on "Errors of Diagnosis of Tuberculosis in Children." Dr. Carroll told of many of the foolish mistakes made by some of the physicians who send children to Undercliff. He gave as the chief causes of error in diagnosis: Insufficient evidence of tuberculosis and lack of exclusion of other conditions, confusion of other definite clinical entities with tuberculosis. Failure to differentiate chronic non-tuberculous pulmonary disease from tuberculosis, over dependence of X-ray findings alone, haste in diagnosis, insufficient observation and confusion of non-tuberculous bone disease with tuberculosis.

Members of the state tuberculosis commission and other doctors present congratulated Dr. Gibson and his assistants on the valuable research shown in the two reports.

BIBLE CLASS SOCIAL AT TEACHER'S HOME

The Phi Alpha bible class of the First Baptist church, met at the home of Mrs. L. A. Huribut, 48 Williams street, who is their teacher. The house was decorated with grotesque figures, being witches, black cats and other Hallowe'en horrors in pumpkin masks.

Ghost stories were told and the class yell was given, which caused neighbors to rush to doors and windows to see what the disturbance was about. After the exercises were over, dainty refreshments were served, consisting of various kinds of cake, ice cream, delicate little baskets of candy and nuts.

The members of the class declared that they had had the most enjoyable time during the evening—in fact it had been one of the events of the season.

To Reside in California

Mrs. Agnes C. Warwick of 32 Bliss place left Sunday to visit her parents in Canada and will sail later from New York by a Panama canal steamer line for California, where she will make her home. Two of her sons and her brother now reside in California. She has sold her Bliss place house to Earl G. Taggart, who will occupy it for his residence.

DISTURBANCE IN LOCAL THEATRE

The patrons of a local show house were very much disturbed and annoyed by the continuous coughing of a person in the audience Don't be a nuisance because you have a cough or cold. A few doses of FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR COMPOUND taken promptly will bring speedy relief from coughs, colds and hoarseness. Mrs. W. T. Clary, White Plains, Va., writes: "We have used FOLEY'S MONEY AND TAR COMPOUND for colds and bad coughs with splendid results." Lee & Osgood Co.

MANSFIELD PLAYER WILL BE ROTARIANS' GUEST

There will be something of a reunion at the Rotary club's luncheon on Wednesday when Robert LeSueur, the leading man of the Richard Mansfield Players, who will give two performances of "The Goose Hangs High" at the Palace theatre, will be the guest of honor.

Mr. LeSueur was in Norwich several years ago as leading man of a local stock company, and at that time won so many warm friends that when it became known that he was returning with the Richard Mansfield Players, he was immediately tendered an invitation to lunch with the Rotarians.

This distinguished actor, who has a reputation for being a witty and a highly entertaining speaker as well as a fine actor, will tell something about the Richard Mansfield Players, the company of professional actors who have left Broadway to come and live at the Mansfield Grange in New London the home of the late illustrious actor, and from there to travel to nearby cities to offer the best of the drama, where movies and vaudeville comprise the chief theatrical fare.

On Thursday Mr. LeSueur will be the guest of the Lions. Miss Ruth Putnam Mason and Jetta Geffen, two members of the executive staff of the Players were guests of the Lions at their luncheon last Thursday, and when Mr. LeSueur's name was mentioned as a leading member of the company, there was a round of applause and an immediate invitation for the popular actor.

In "The Goose Hangs High," the comedy which the Richard Mansfield Players are presenting here, Mr. LeSueur appears in support of Mrs. Mansfield, playing a leading role.

BRANDEGEE ESTATE WILL NOT PAY 50c ON DOLLAR

The estate of the late Senator Frank B. Brandegee, of Connecticut, who killed himself at Washington a year ago because of financial difficulties, amounts to less than $100,000 according to an announcement made at Washington by his attorneys.

Creditors of the estate will get less than 50 cents on the dollar, it was estimated.

Among the creditors is Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, who held the senator's notes for $15,000. Other friends who have filed claims are: Senator Phipps, of Colorado; Senator Edge, of New Jersey; former Senator Elkins, of West Virginia; Edward B. McLean, publisher of "The Washington Post," and Charles B. Warren, of Michigan, former ambassador to Japan and Mexico.

The $100,000 remnant of the late senator's fortune includes money derived from a public sale of his personal effects which included a number of portraits and other works of art. Following his death it was disclosed that Senator Brandegee had sustained serious financial losses through overbuying in Washington suburban real estate.

LAWYERS OF COUNTY TO MEMORIALIZE JUDGE GREENE

Later at Norwich at the present session of the superior court that is being held by Judge Christopher L. Avery memorial notice and action will be taken by the bar of New London county on the death of the Hon. Gardiner Greene, of Norwich, for many years a distinguished judge of the superior court of Connecticut.

William H. Shields, president of the bar has appointed Charles L. Stewart Arthur M. Brown, and Henry H. Pettis, of Norwich, and Abel P. Tanner and Charles Hadlai Hull of New London a committee to prepare in behalf of the bar suitable memorial resolutions to be presented to the court.

Leaving For Miami

George Letender is to leave today (Tuesday) for Florida, making the trip by automobile. He expects to locate in Miami and go into business there.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR SOCIAL HELD AT HANOVER

A very much enjoyed Hallowe'en social was given by the Hanover Christian Endeavor society last Friday evening at the parish house with about fifty present. The people gathered in the Witches Den which was in the basement from which they ascended to the auditorium by means of a darkened tunnel along which were demons who attacked the travelers as they crawled along. Midway of the tunnel was a see-saw which frightened them as it tipped. They were also frightened by the wet gloves and "thunder peals." The ascent from the den was made by a covered ladder.

The "grand march" to determine the most attractive costumes resulted as follows: Miss Jean Peck received the prize for the prettiest ladies costume and Thomas Bamford for the funniest gentleman's costume.

With all lights out a ghosts story was told of a murdered man. Fortunes were told in one corner while in other parts of the room games were played and apples "ducked" for.

Cocoa and cookies were served by the committee, after which more games were played.

Everyone had a pleasant time and all were especially pleased with the tunnel which was arranged Thomas Bamford electrician for the Airlie mills.

There were pretty Hallowe'en decorations of streamers, lanterns, pumpkins, etc.

Mrs. John Roblsh, Jr., chairman, Miss Gladys Crombie, Mrs. William Campbell and Miss Ruth House.

Third Birthday Party

Saturday afternoon many little friends of Dorothy Kelly of East Great Plain gathered at the home of Mrs. Walter Allen of 118 Washington street in honor of Dorothy's third birthday.

Games were enjoyed by the little tots. Venus Di Palma won first prize for pinning the tail upon the donkey and Irving Miller first in the peanut hunt.

Refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Alfred Kelly and Mrs. Alfred Smith, consisting of sandwiches, cake, ice cream and hot chocolate.

The dining room was prettily decorated in black and orange for Hallowe'en and a huge birthday cake delighted the little folks.

Those present were Marion Miller, Venus Di Palma, Florence Kimball, Viola and Emily Miller, Emily Allen, Lewis and Nelson Miller, Danti Di Palma, Elmer and Irving Miller, Charles Jorden, Olin Shaver, Francis and Walter Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Miller, Mrs. Lewis Miller, Mrs. Alfred Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Kimball Mrs. Jay Shaver, Frank Allen, Harold Jorden, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Kelley.

Don't Say "You Can't Sleep —You Can

If your health and nerves are to be maintained at the full vigor, which makes life worth living, you must get proper sleep. The number of hours you sleep is not as important as the depth of your sleep. You should be able to fall asleep almost as soon as your head touches the pillow and sleep without a break until morning. That kind of sleep is the greatest aid to health, beauty, vigor and strength.

And you can do it. Those who are troubled with fitful, broken slumber have found that this condition is changed as soon as they begin to use a new preparation called Neura.

Neura is an easy-to-take pink pellet, that contains no opiates or any harmful or habit-forming drugs. Neura quiets the too active brain, soothes the shattered nerves and brings the sweet, profound sleep of childhood. And best of all, you can get Neura from Lee & Osgood Co. or any good druggist with an absolute guarantee to return your full purchase price if you do not get wonderful results from the use of the very first package.

These discussions will be made by laymen delegates from the different churches throughout the state.

ENGAGEMENT IS ANNOUNCED AT HALLOWE'EN BIRTHDAY

A Hallowe'en birthday, and farewell party was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey C. Davis at Spring Hill last Friday evening in honor of the birthday of their daughter, Miss Frances B. Davis. About twenty guests composed of girl friends from the offices at Connecticut Agricultural college of which she is a member were ushered into the rooms decorated for Hallowe'en.

At the supper hour they were invited to the dining room where the center table held a large birthday cake decorated with pink hearts and candles. From the center piece were streamers in pastel shades to which were attached pink hearts and cupids bearing the name of each guest with appropriate quotations to be read aloud. The drawing of the favors proved to be cards announcing the engagement of Miss Frances B. Davis to Wright D. Gifford of Randolph, Vermont, a senior at Connecticut Agricultural college. The place cards at the small tables about the room were pink hearts upon which the menu was printed with names for the food which were appropriate to the occasion. A decorated cake held fortunes for the guests.

After the supper Miss Gwendolyn Athoe, office manager of the extension service, presented gifts to the four girls having birthdays and to those going south.

Hallowe'en games and stunts, and dancing were enjoyed during the evening.

Other guests from out of town were cousins, Mrs. Vantine Anderson of Windham and Miss Constance Smith of New London.

STORRS RADIO LECTURE ON "GRAIN FEEDING"

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Nov. 2.—"Grain Feeding" was the subject of the third lecture in the radio-correspondence course offered by the Connecticut Agricultural College, which was broadcasted here tonight from station WCAC. A. R. Merrill, dairy specialist of the college gave the lecture.

The general composition of feeds must be known in order to feed intelligently, according to Mr. Merrill, who said that feeds are classified as either roughages or concentrates. In the mixing of rations, it was recommended that a good dairy ration should carry from 1,400 to 1,500 pounds of total digestible nutrients to the ton.

Among the more important recommendations made by Mr. Merrill for the mixing of rations, were the following; have enough grains to give variety; be sure the mixture contains some bulky feeds; offset constipating feeds like cottenseed meal or middlings with laxative feeds like bran or oil meal; heavy feeds should not be used entirely; weight should be approximately one pound to the quart, except when a high protein mixture is needed; do not have too many unpalatable feeds in the mixture.

Advocating that cows should be fed in the proportion to their milk yield, Mr. Merrill said Jerseys and Guerseys need one pound of grain for every three pounds of milk, while Holsteins or Ayrshires need the same amount of grain for four pounds of milk.

NORWICH TOWN

All Saints' day, at the Sacred Heart church, both masses were largely attended. At the 8:30 mass there were several hundred communicants. Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament followed the 10 o'clock mass. Monday, All Saints' day, masses were at seven and eight, the latter a high mass. There was the usual number of communicants at both masses. The Sunday morning worship at the First Methodist Episcopal church, was devoted to a communion service, the pastor, Rev. James B. Aldrich, officiating at the celebration of the Lord's Supper.

Miss Irene Cruthers was leader of the Young People's Christian Endeavor service in the evening, when the topic was Can We Live By the Golden Rule? (Matt. 7:12; Lev., 19:18; Gal. 6:2. This was followed by a preaching service by Rev. Mr. Aldrich, who practically took up the Christian Endeavor topic, as the basis of his sermon theme. This was the beginning of the regular Sunday evening preaching services for the winter, these services having been discontinued for the past few months.

The Methodist Y. P. S. C. E. held the October business meeting on Friday evening, the president, Miss Theodora Brown presiding. A social time followed, when the thirty present enjoyed Hallowe'en and other games. Miss Florence M. Brown, chairman of the C. E. social committee was in charge of the arrangements. During the evening, sandwiches, fancy cookies and orangeade were served.

Included in the congregation at the First Congregational church Sunday morning, were visitors from Hartford and Springfield. In his sermon, the minister, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey spoke from John 15:16. Ye have not chosen Me, but I have chosen you and ordained you, that ye should go and bring forth fruit and that your fruit should remain; that whatsoever ye shall ask of the Father in My name, He may give it to you." Emphasis was laid on the first few lines, "Not You Have Chosen God; But He Has Chosen You."

At the close of the morning worship, the November communion service was observed, Rev. Mr. Bailey officiating at the Celebration of the Lord's Supper.

Monday, November 2nd, Rev. Mr. Bailey completed six years of faithful service as the beloved pastor of this church, having commenced his pastorate Sunday November 2nd, 1919, coming to Norwich Town from Collinsville.

While visiting Norwich relatives and friends Sunday, Avery Ray and daughter, Miss Ruth Ray of Springfield, attended the morning worship at the Congregation church, Miss Ray assisting in the choir.

The Young People's Christian Endeavor service in the evening was omitted, as eighteen members went to Jewett City - Congregational church and attended the Y. P. S. C. E. meeting there, by special invitation of that society. The Norwich Town Endeavorers went mostly by automobile. In the meeting, which was called for 7 o'clock, the members of the visiting society each had a part.

SWEEPING DEM. VICTORY IN NEW YORK REPUBLICAN MAYOR ELECTED IN BOSTON

Senators James J. Walker, Democratic Candidate For Mayor of New York, Defeated Frank P. Waterman, Republican Nominee, by More Than 371,000 Votes—In the State Election All Four Constitutional Amendments Were Ratified—Boston, After 16 Years of Democratic Rule, Elected Malcolm E. Nichols, Republican Mayor—A. Harry Moore, Democrat and Wet, is Leading Gubernational Race in New Jersey.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4—(Wednesday)—(By the Associated Press)—The Democrats scored an overwhelming victory over the republicans in the city election yesterday, electing a mayor, all five borough presidents, a president of the board of aldermen, comptroller, all four district attorneys and a long list of minor officers.

Senator James J. Walker defeated Frank D. Waterman for mayor by more than 378,000 votes on the basis of returns tabulated at 1:15 a. m. With only 193 districts missing out of the 5,073 in the city the vote for mayor was: Walker 697,496; Waterman 319,495.

NEW YORK STATE RATIFIES CONSTITUTIONAL CHANGES

NEW YORK, Nov. 4—(A. P.)—Returns from approximately one-fifth of the 7,784 election districts in the state indicated that each of the four proposed constitutional amendments submitted to the voters today had been ratified.

While the least understood amendment—that relating to the judiciary—was generally advocated throughout the state, the bond issue of $100,000,000 for permanent public improvements and $300,000,000 for financing the elimination of railroad crossings at grade and the consolidation of state departments through constitutional amendment showed the ancient line-up of New Yorkf city and the up-state districts in opposition to each other.

Returns at hand at 11:30 p. m. showed comparatively small majorities against the bond issues and the governmental consolidation proposal in the up-state counties, while meager returns from the greater city indicated overwhelming pluralities in favor of all four amendments, which were expected to smother the adverse pluralities fro mup-state.

The contests for the assembly showed only one overturn in the eighty districts reporting. This was in the fifth district of Westchester, where Arthur I. Miller, democrat, campaigning on a platform that promised a reduction of commutation rates to the point where they previously were placed, over Assemblyman George A. Krog, who only a year ago prevented Miller's re-election.

Mayoralty contests had been settled in 34 of the 61 cities up-state where municipal elections were held, within four hours after the polls had closed. In seven cities there was a reversal in the politics of the head of administration. Republicans will displace democratic mayors at Geneva, Rensselaer, Salamanca and Syracuse. Democrats defeated republican administrations in Glens Falls, Rome and Schenectady.

RESULTS OF MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS IN NEW YORK

POUGHKEEPSIE—Mayor Frank B. Lovelace, republican, was re-elected over his democratic opponent, Jesse J. Graham, by a plurality of 120. Complete unofficial returns give Lovelace 4229; Graham 4109.

ROME—City complete for mayor gives: Carroll, democrat and socialist 3950; Martin, republican, 3407; Martin is the present mayor.

BINGHAMTON—Clarence J. Kook, democrat, and citizens' candidate, defeated Charles W. Yeomans, republican, for mayor by about 2,000 votes.

ALBANY—Mayor William S. Hackett, democrat, was re-elected, defeating Edward Easton, republican. Hackett's plurality was 14,203.

WHITE PLAINS—Frederick C. McLaughlin, republican, was elected as mayor defeating his democratic opponent, Ritchie G. Betts, 3492 to 2157.

ROCHESTER—Re-election of Mayor C. D. Van Zandt, republican, over Leroy E. Snyder, democrat, by a majority of more than 4,000 votes was indicated by almost complete returns at 7:30 o'clock last night as well as passage by a fair sized margin of the model charter proposition providing a city manager for Rochester.

UTICA—Frederick Gillmore, democrat, was re-elected mayor over City Judge John T. Buckley, republican.

ITHACA—Dr. Fred B. Howe, republican, was elected mayor of the city of Ithaca over John W. Hines, democrat, by a plurality of 950 votes.

TROY—Mayor Harry E. Clinton, republican, was re-elected. He defeated Dr. J. H. F. Coughlin, his democratic opponent, by 853 votes.

BUFFALO—Mayor Schwab was given the highest vote ever accorded a municipal candidate since the charter form of government was adopted in 1914.

In a statement issued after the result became known the mayor said the "plain people have spoken again."

PROMINENT SOCIETY WOMAN WAS ELECTED ALDERMAN

NEW YORK, Nov.—(A. P.)—Mrs. Ruth Pratt, prominent society leader and welfare worker, today was elected an alderman from the "Silk Stocking" district in Upper Manhattan, running on the republican ticket, she defeated her democratic opponent, James O'Gorman, Jr., son of United States Senator O'Gorman, by 3,621 votes, with one district to be heard from.

Mrs. Pratt's husband, John D. Pratt, was a classmate of President Coolidge at Amherst college. She will be the first woman member of the aldermanic board.

HUB DECISIVELY ELECTS A REPUBLICAN MAYOR

BOSTON, Nov. 3—(A. P.)—Malcolm E. Nichols, republican, former collector of internal revenue, tonight rode into office on a plurality which reached 21,258 votes with but nine precincts of 339 missing. Theodore A. Glynn, democrat, the city fire commissioner who was backed by the present administration of Mayor James M. Curley, ran second to Nichols. The vote: Nichols 62,322; Glynn 41,063.

Nov. 4—(Wednesday)—330 precincts out of 339 gave: Nichols 62,322; Glynn 41,063; O'Neil 30,974; Coakley 15,915; O'Brien 9,789; Keliher, 7,357; Fitzgerald 3,171; Cook 1,763; McGauley 428; Burrill 346.

RETURNS FROM CITY ELECTIONS IN BAY STATE

CAMBRIDGE—Mayor Edward W. Quinn, democrat, was re-elected to his fifth two year term today over Ralph W. Robart, republican by 2740 votes. The vote was: Quinn 14,760, Robart 12,020.

LYNN, Mass.—Ralph S. Bauer was chosen mayor of this city in the non-partisan eelction, defeating John V. Phelan, 13,174 to 12,112.

WET CANDIDATE LEADING FOR GOV. OF NEW JERSEY

NEWARK, Nov. 4—(By the A. P.)—With half the state complete, A. Harry Moore, democratci candidate, at midnight was leading Arthur Whitney, republican by 19,216. Late returns indicated Whitney was steadily reducing the tremendous lead rolled up by his opponent in Hudson, his home county.

Returns from the 3rd congressional district indicated a see-saw battle between Stewart Appleby, republican, and J. Lyle Kinmouth, democrat. The vote with 86 districts counted out of 309 was Appleby 11,953; Kinmouth 11,094.

"A fight of the people against the menace of the anti-saloon league," was the description of the campaign given by Moore. Whitney asserted it was a test of the Coolidge type of government as opposed to a machine spoils system.

National interest in the result was seen in the virtual certainty that a Whitney victory would mean a reversal of the long-held attitude of New Jersey toward prohibition, while the triumph of Moore would represent an overturn of the 370,000 plurality given Coolidge last year.

ELECTION RESULTS

Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 3—The republican party elected its city ticket in Indianapolis, headed by John L. Duvall for mayor and wrested Evansville, Lafayette and other important cities from democratic control in today's municipal elections. With unofficial returns practically complete in Indianapolis, Duvall had 45,869; Myers 38,033. The republicans lost the South Bend mayority, which they held. The republican state committee conducted the mayoralty campaigns on party lines.

Pennsylvania

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 3—Jesse E. B. Cunningham, of Harrisburg, republican candidate for judge of the superior court, the only state-wide office voted for in Pennsylvania today, was elected by a substantial plurality over William A. McGuire, of Johnstown, his democratic opponent.

Ohio

COLUMBUS, Nov. 3—Returns from more than a third of the 3,624 precincts in the state tonight indicated defeat of all three proposed constitutional amendments submitted to Ohio voters today. Majorities against the amendments were: limited classification 45,000; debt limitation for taxing districts 48,000; four year terms for state and county officials 100,000.

Michigan

DETROIT, Nov. 3—Mayor John W. Smith was running ahead of his Klan supported opponent, Charles Bowles, in the non-partison municipal election. Fifty out of 583 precincts gave Smith 9,684; Bowles 6,456.

New Hampshire

CONCORD, Nov. 3. (AP)—Fred N. Marden, former policeman, was elected mayor of this city in today's non-partisan election, with a margin of 324 over his opponent, Mayor Willis H Flint. Both men are Democrats. The vote was: Marden, 3,857; Flint, 3,533.

Missouri

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 3. (AP)—Ben Kaudson, Democrat, city treasurer, was leading Elbert J. Beach, Republican, for mayor on early returns from today's municipal election.

Returns from 78 precincts out of 426 gave: Kaudson, 10,642; Beach, 8,180.

Headquarters of both candidates were claiming victory by small majorities.

Virginia

RICHMOND, Nov. 3, (AP) — The election of the entire Democratic state ticket with the exception of Treasurer John M. Purcell, was indicated on the face of early returns tonight. Mr. Purcell, seeking reelection on he Democratic ticket, was running behind John P. Bassett of Roanoke, his Republican opponent.

Kentucky

LOUISVILLE, Nov. 3. (AP)—In an extremely close race, in which first one and then the other has been ahead, Arthur A. Will, Republican, was leading Joseph T. O'Neil, Democrat, for mayor when 587 out of 749 precincts gave Will 74,544; 47,483, a majority of 61 for Will, Courier-Journal reports indicate.

Gen. Butler to Return to Marine Corps Jan. 1

President Coolidge Denies Further Leave For Police Duty in Philadelphia.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—Brig. Gen Smedley D. Butler, who has been serving as head of the Philadelphia police department under leave of absence, must return to duty with the marine corps Jan. 1.

Further extension of Gen. Butler's leave, which began two years ago, was denied today by President Coolidge, who, in a letter to Major Kendrick of Philadelphia, said there was no new development warranting change in his position, set forth a year ago, that the arrangement should end at the close of the year.

Enclosed with the communication to the mayor was a copy of the letter the President wrote to him in December, last year, in which he said he was extending Butler's leave until January, 1926, but believed it should not be continued beyond that time.

The new letter sent today follows:

"After having considered the request which you and Senator Pepper laid before me for further extention of the leave of Brig. Gen. Butler from his duties in the marine corps in order that he might continue to serve as head of the police department of the city of Philadelphia, I have come to the conclusion that the request ought not to be granted.

"Nearly a year ago I gave you my views very fully. I supposed that you and the people of Philadelphia in keeping General Butler, accepted the conditions which I then made.

"Of course, I have every wish to help you and to grant any reques Senator Pepper might make, and I have every sympathy with your wish to take all reasonable precautions to secure the enforcement of the law but I am convinced that there are no new elements which ought to cause me to recede from the position I took last year. For your information I am enclosing a copy of the letter which I sent to you at that time."

Gen. Butler, on giving up his duties as Philadelphia safety director, will report for duty as commander of the marine corps base at San Diego, Cal.

GENERAL BUTLER SAYS PRESIDENT IS THE BOSS

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 3. (AP)—"The President is the boss and I will obey orders," said General Butler when informed that his leave from the marine corps would not be extended.

COMPROMISE EFFECTED IN MITCHELL COURTMARTIAL

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3—(A. P.)—Prosecution and defense counsel battled to a tie today, with the court martial tribunal trying Colonel William Mitchell on charges of conducting prejudicial to good order and military discipline sitting as umpire and finally adjourning the contest until Monday.

The prosecution, headed by Colonel Sherman Moreland, scored first when the court declined to free the air officer on a motion by defense counsel, who contended that not a scintilla of evidence of guilt had been presented against the air officer. The defense then scored its victory, the court deciding it should be permitted to call what witnesses it believed necessary and directing the prosecution "to take immediate steps to proceed" with the summoning of the long list of witnesses and the production of voluminous records from government files it had requested.

A compromise on the request to summon three cabinet officers, Secretaries Davis, of the war department, Wilbur of the navy and Jardine of agriculture was effected by the defense and prosecution attorneys at a conference was called later in the day. It was agreed that the presence of the cabinet members in court would be waived provided the records in their possession were produced by authorized agents.

A further compromise is probable in the matter of summoning witnesses from Honolulu and other far away places. Their testimony will be sought in the form of depositions to be offered in evidence by the defense. This move is put forward as a means of expediting the trial, now threatening to extend over a considerable period, and also to save the government the heavy expense of bringing such witnesses to Washington.

ANDERSON'S CRIMINAL CAREER BEING TRACED

MUSKEGON, Mich., Nov. 3.—(AP)—Police and federal agents tonight were weaving the identity of George (Dutch) Anderson into some of the unsolved crimes that have stirred western Michigan in the past few months.

While Anderson's body lay in the morgue, the authorities compared notes to trace Anderson's trail of crime into Michigan into which he fled after Ben Hance and his wife had been murdered at Muncie, Ind., and rewards had been offered for Anderson in connection with the crime.

The Anderson trail was first picked up in Detroit. It led to Grand Rapids back to Detroit and then to Toledo Ohio. The gunman who was convicted with Gerald Chapman for the great mail truck robbery in New York four years ago and who later escaped from the federal penitentiary at Atlanta Ga., went from Toledo to Grand Rapids and then visited several Michigan cities, including Flint, Kalamazoo and Benton Harbor.

In each city Anderson left a trail of "queer" money. In Flint less than a month ago he escaped from a clerk who discovered he was a passer of counterfeit only by backing away under the protection of his menacing revolver.

Today Anderson was partially identified as one of the three men who held up the messenger and guards of the Lakey Foundry plant here July 20 and escaped with a payroll of $32,900. George Pate, Toledo, secret service operative, said Anderson was known to have been in this vicinity on the date of the Lakey holdup.

Pate and Joseph F. Vick, a secret service man from Buffalo, New York, added to the positive identification of Anderson today.

OBITUARY

George W. Benjamin

MT. VERNON, N. Y., Nov. 3—(A. P.)—George W. Benjamin, 78, president of G. W. Benjamin & Son, pioneer carriage and wagon builders and automobile dealers, died today in the Mount Vernon hospital, after an operation. He had resided here forty years.

Vote of Confidence In French Cabinet

Chamber Voted 221 to 189 in Favor—121 Deputies Abstained From Voting.

PARIS, Nov. 3.—(AP)—The Painleve ministry won its first fight in parliament today, thanks to the support of former political enemies, gaining at least short lease of life by a vote of 221 to 189. This in fact, but not in spirit, was a vote of confidence in the new cabinet, although 121 deputies abstained from voting.

The moderates and conservatives, fearing the disastrous effects of a further prolonged political crisis, rallied to the support of Premier Painleve in sufficient numbers to offset the socialists' defection. In so doing however, they made it clear through their spokesman, M. Landry, that their vote was not an expression of confidence in the cabinet, but a vote to end the existing chaotic condition of public affairs.

The vote in favor of the cabinet falls far short of the usual significance of such action because many deputies who refused to overthrow the cabinet opposed the financial conceptions as outlined in the premier's declaration. The fact that the pound sterling was at 120 and the dollar at 24.83 francs caused a great impression during the debate and exercised considerable influence on the decision of hesitating deputies.

The debate, reduced to its simplest terms by the abstention of a number of interpellators, proved leader, M. Cachin, who warned the government that it was going wrong if it counted on the three coming French generations to pay 150,000,000,000 francs debts to "Anglo-Saxon bankers."

No inflation, no loan, but a special tax on all forms of wealth was the remedy proposed by M. Painleve's declaration for the ailments from which the French treasury is suffering. Prompt settlement of the debts to England and the United States he advocated as a most important matter to be attended to in otter to restore confidence and credit.

FALL TRIAL RESTS WITH D. OF C. COURT OF APPEALS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3—(A. P.)—Whether Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, and Edward L. Doheny, California oil man, and his son, Edward L. Doheny, Jr., are to be brought to trial on bribery charges growing out of the senate oil investigation rests, for the present at least, with the District of Columbia court of appeals.

Argument on the appeal of the government from the decision of Chief Justice McCoy of the district supreme court quashing the indictments, were heard today by the higher court, which then took the matter under advisement. A decision is not to be expected before next month.

Questions propounded to counsel by members of the court during the argument were interpreted by some of those present as indicating a disposition to question the conclusion of the lower court that the indictments were illegal because Oliver E. Pagan, a special assistant to the attorney general, was present in the grand jury room without authority in law.

The indictments now at issue are those based upon the $100,000 transaction between the Dohenys and Fall so vividly described to the Senate Teapot Dome committee by the elder Doheny. It was this recital that set at rest the question where Fall got the money to improve his New Mexico ranch holdings about the time he quit President Harding's cabinet in 1923.

Doheny said the transaction was nothing more than a personal loan between old friends, with Fall giving his personal note as evidence of the nature of the transaction. Senate critics, however, found much food for discussion in the testimony that the money was sent to Washington in cash in a "little black satchel" carried by the younger Doheny, and that the transaction took place while Doheny was seeking oil contracts and leases from Fall.

The facts as to the negotion on the "loan" were not before the court today. Argument was based solely on the question of the legal right for Pagan to be present in the grand jury room in his capacity as an assistant to the attorney general after congress specifically had placed power and control over the oil prosecutions in the hands of special counsel instead of the department of justice.

IMMIGRATION CASE LAID BEFORE COOLIDGE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—(AP)—The labor department's case in the controversy with Immigration Commissioner Curran of New York, has been laid before President Coolidge by Secretary James J. Davis.

The controversy arose over a statement given to the press August 7, in which Mr. Curran sharply criticized the immigration bureau's new system of inspecting aliens abroad or on ships to permit them to land without first going to Ellis Island. Mr. Curran opposed the plan as designed to eliminate Ellis Island as an immigration station, and suggested that $200,000 appropriation was needed immediately to improve the water system on the island.

The discussion between Mr. Davis and the president is understood not to have reached the point of any suggestion regarding the desirability of Mr. Curran's resignation but to have been confined to a presentation of the developments in the matter to the president. Commissioner Curran was appointed by the president and confirmed by the senate in 1923.

While officials declined to discuss the incident pending the return tomorrow of Secretary Davis, indications tonight were that they felt the department's case had been substantially strengthened by a statement just issued by the state department announcing that the new system had proved successful during the first two months of its operation in Great Britain and Ireland, and that there was every prospect that it would be extended to other countries.

PRINCE OF WALES THROWN FROM HORSE IN FOX HUNT

LEIGHTON BUZZARD, Bedfordshire, England, Nov. 3.—(AP) — The Prince of Wales today took his first tumble from horseback since returning to England from his South African and South American journey. The fall came in the course of an exciting fox hunt when the prince's horse failed to take an awkward fence. The prince was unhurt.

BRIDGEPORT AND NEW HAVEN ELECT REPUBLICAN MAYORS

Unofficial Vote in New Haven Was: John B. Tower, Rep. 20,227; John J. Lane, Dem., 15,630—Bridgeport Re-elected Mayor Behrens By Plurality of 1,689 Votes—At Previous Election Mr. Behrens Had a Margin of Only 84 Votes—Entire Republican Ticket Won in Both Parties—Election in Bridgeport Was a Victory John T. King.

NEW HAVEN—John B. Tower, the republican nominee for mayor, was swept into office here today in a republican landslide that spelled victory for the entire republican ticket. The vote for mayor stood Tower 20,227, John J. Lane, democratic nominee 15,630, giving Mr. Tower a plurality of 4,597.

Mr. Tower will succeed Mayor David E. Fitzgerald who has been in office for eight years. Mayor Fitzgerald retires from office January 1. He was not a candidate for re-election and directed the candidacy of Mr. Lane in the present campaign.

A republican board of aldermen will go into office as the result of the voting today and many of the ordinary democratic wards of the city fell into the republican columns.

The republican candidates carried 21 of the wards against 12 for the democrats. The republican will have 23 seats in the board of aldermen against 10 for the democrats.

Mr. Tower was given a big reception by his friends and workers tonight. He was born in Chicago and moved to this city in 1893. He has been active as republican ward chairman in the 13th ward. He was connected for a number of years with the J. R. Lambert company, being made a partner in the firm some years ago. He sold the business to his nephew a few years ago and since then has devoted his time to two manufacturing plants he recently purchased. The balance of the republican ticket elected today follows:

For controller: Frank G. P. Barnes.
For city clerk: Joseph S. Blinn.
For treasurer: Harry V. Whipple.
For collector of taxes: Edward J. Stanford.
For city sheriff: Nicholas Ferradino.
For registrar of vital statistics: Arthur M. Beebe.
For town clerk: Cataldo Massa.
For registrar of voters: August Elrich, Jr.
For assessment: Israel Jacobs, Alfred Mazzarella, Marinda D. Alden.
For constables: C. Franklin Baker, Michael Mancini, Benjamin Levine.

RESULT IN BRIDGEPORT A VICTORY FOR JOHN T. KING

BRIDGEPORT, Nov. 3—(A. P.)—Mayor Behrens and the entire republican ticket with the exception of two aldermanic candidates were re-elected today. Mayor Behrens was given a plurality of 1,646, defeating Attorney Thomas M. Cullinan by 16,032 to 14,386, according to official figures. Socialists polled 745 votes, making 41,166 the greatest vote ever cast in a municipal election here.

The most spectacular run of any candidate was that of Town Clerk Joseph F. Wieler, present incumbent, a democrat who was defeated by John Y. Caldwell, of the assessors ousted by the "ripper" law, by a margin of 197 votes.

Behrens ran behind his ticket. Alfred W. Burdick was elected city clerk by a plurality of 2,939, running second only to Dr. J. Murray Johnson, elected to the board of education, who received the greatest plurality, 2,639. O. K. Edelman was re-elected city treasurer by 2,223 votes and William E. Martin, butt of corruption charges made by Attorney John A. Cornell democratic leader, was given a 2,135 plurality.

It was a great victory for John T. King in the face of charges brought against him during the campaign by Cornell in connection with the alleged property scandal being investigated by the federal grand jury. Two years ago Mayor Behrens was elected by 84 votes defeating Fred Atwater.

"The results embody the unmistakable answer of the voters to 'ripperism' and its selfish sponsors and to the campaign by the opposition that was remarkable for its utter lack of truth and decency," said Republican Town Chairman Burdick who had privately predicted Behrens' election by between 1,500 and 1,600. "The republican party went before the voters with two real issues, honest and fair taxation for all and continued warfare against 'ripperism' and its violation of home rule rights."

Mr. Cullinan had no statement to make, but Cornell and Democratic Town Chairman John J. McGuinness extended congratulations.

Atty. King said he wanted congratulations from none of the opposing candidates and charged that the Bridgeport Manufacturers' association was responsible for the fantous underlying this fight." He claimed that the association had financed the democrats in the campaign.

DRY OFFICIAL DECLARES DETROIT VERY WET CITY

DETROIT, Nov. 3—(A. P.)—With the parting thrust "there is something radically wrong with law enforcement in Detroit," A. B. Stroup, deputy administrator in charge of the federal prohibition forces here, resigned today to enter the insurance business.

"I can say without reservation," the retiring deputy added, "that Detroit is the wettest city I have been assigned to. I have worked in general parts of the country and observed conditions carefully and I can say without hesitation that nowhere else is the law openly violated as here."

The announcement today startled local political circles. Vice and crime conditions and liquor law enforcement have featured as issues in the mayoralty campaign to be decided today. Mr. Stroup's farewell statement emphasized and detailed conditions he states exists in this city, outside of the law.

"Since coming to Detroit I have been amazed at the open flouting of the law by resort keepers and others who profit by the sale of illicit beverages," Mr. Stroup said. "Where the fault lies I do not know. People may ask why I did not correct these conditions. The answer is: Such conditions do not fall within the jurisdiction of my department.

"I have talked with many policemen and I think they are honest and eager to enforce the law but still the blind pigs and disorderly houses flourish."

MAYFLOWER INN WAS DAMAGED $30,000 BY FIRE

WASHINGTON, Conn., Nov. 3—(A. P.)—The main building of the Mayflower Inn here was damaged by fire this afternoon, the loss being estimated at $30,000. The blaze started on the roof from an undetermined cause and burned off the roof and did considerable damage to the second floor of the structure before it was brought under control.

There were a number of guests in the hotel when the blaze was discovered but all got out safely. They saved most of their belongings but several reported that they had forgotten a number of things in their rooms and these were lost. Over the week end, the inn is usually filled, but many of the rooms are vacant in the middle of the week.

The Bantam Fire company of Bantam, 12 miles away, responded to a call for help from the Washington company and made the trip here in sixteen minutes.

The Inn is conducted by the Mayflower Inn Company, Inc., and the building is owned by the Stone Holding corporation of this place. Most of the stock is owned by New York interests.

HEAVY TRANSPORTATION OF BITUMINOUS COAL

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—(AP)—With bituminous coal prices advancing under the stimulus of the anthracite suspension, the American Railway association reported today that the movement of this fuel during the four full weeks in October was the greatest for any corresponding period in five years.

Cars loaded with bituminous coal during the October period, said the association, totalled 824,544 cars, which was 58,832, or 7.7 per cent. more than were loaded during the corresponding period last year, and 41,789, or 5.3 per cent. more than the 1923 figure.

SECOND MURDER TRIAL FOR OLYMPIA MACRI

COURT HOUSE, LITCHFIELD, Conn., Nov. 3.—(AP)—Olympia Macri, who last night slept in the Litchfield county jail on the eve of her second trial for the murder of John Bagnano with the state expected to press charges of first degree murder, tonight occupied the same room with the knowledge that should she be convicted the maximum sentence would be life imprisonment and not execution.

Three times during the first day of the retrial in the criminal superior court here before Judge George E. Hinman, State's Attorney Alling said that capital punishment would not enter the present case and that a first degree murder would not be asked.

After an all day session no more progress had been made in picking the jury than the first day of Olympia Macri's trial in New Haven county early in the summer. Only one talesman out of 33 examined was acceptable to the state and the defense.

He is William J. Hunt, 66 with a neatly trimmed beard and a pleasant face. He was born and has lived in Bethlehem where he has a farm. Mr. Hunt is a widower with no children.

Miss Macri who, with the exception of her daily trips to court in New Haven, has been in jail since the shooting on February 28 last appeared to be in fine spirits as the trial opened today. She was dressed simply in a dark blue dress with a touch of purple. During the examination of prospective jurors she looked out of a window toward the Berkshire hills in the distance. At the short recesses she left the seat she occupied beside her counsel, Joseph Koletsky, and went to a window. At no time did she comment on the proceedings.

The court room was large enough to hold all of the spectators who tried to get in today. At no time was every one of the 100 seats taken. There were about 75 women spectators present at one time.

At the end of the day's session the defense had exercised two peremptory challenges. The state excused one of the veniremen and has another challenge checked up against it conditionally.

Nine talesmen examined were excused by Judge Hinman. Shortly after the opening of court the judge excused ten who in open court asked to be exempted from serving and during the afternoon he excused seven more who had asked to be dismissed for various reasons. Of the nine excused after an examination, all except one was dismissed because they had formed fixed opinions which no amount of evidence one way or the other would cast aside. The ninth was dismissed because of ill health.

JAMES GIZZI ACQUITTED OF CHARGE OF MURDER

WATERBURY, Nov. 3.—(AP)—James Gizzi 57, of this city, was found not guilty by a superior court jury tonight of the murder of Donato Gaudiosi, June 8 on a lonely country road here.

Gizzi was ordered discharged by Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin. The jury was in deliberation eleven and one-half hours on this case, which has been before the superior court for a month. Gizzi was alleged to have murdered Gaudiosi by shooting from ambush. The defense claimed self defense.

James E. Mellier, of Pikeville, Ky., was elected to the Elihu club, Yale senior honor society yesterday.

WILLIMANTIC

The fire has been lighted under Willimantic's political melting pot and with the city bi-ennial elections due Monday, December 7, the work of sorting out the candidates for mayor, board of aldermen and other city offices is already under way. Talk of the coming elections was much subdued up to Tuesday, when the news buzzed about that several candidates had been mentioned at a meeting of the democratic city committee, held Monday night, with John R. Pickett, chairman. The possibilities taken under consideration included Mayor George W. Hickey, former City Clerk Frederick A. Sanderson, Alderman Pierre J. Laramee, former Assessor James P. Mustard, Assessor John R. Pickett and T. Frank Cunningham. Reports had it Tuesday that Cunningham had signified his willingness to enter the field and it was generally said that of the possibilities he was looked upon in a favored light. About half of those mentioned have made it known that they would not enter the race for the mayoralty. The name of T. Frank Cunningham is expected to predominate the democratic caucus for the nomination of city officers which will be held in the town building Saturday, November 14. Members of the republican city committee declined to vouch for any rumor concerning the prospective candidates for that party. As near as could be learned those talked of are John G. Tracy, Representative Charles E. Pomeroy and Frank M. Smith. The committee will meet within a few days to officially discuss possible candidates and set a date for the caucus.

Attorneys and clients were requested to endeavor to have their cases tried on date of assignment to avoid continuations, by Judge Edwin C. Dickenson, after he had opened the superior court session in this city Tuesday forenoon. Judge Dickenson added that he did not know whether or not he would be in a position to resume sittings in this city during the present term after next week, which may cause some other judge to get the reassignments.

Of three actions assigned for Tuesday none came to trial. In the case of Alice M. Alford, administratrix vs. Daniel P. Dunn, et al, the court was informed by Attorney Harvey that one of the defendants desired a continuance of the case.

When the case of Frank A. Phillips vs. James W. Baker, was called Attorney Harvey for the plaintiff, made the announcement that the case was off the docket for the term.

In the case of Sylvester Pelechatz vs. Stefo Shimanasky, the plaintiff side represented by Attorney Harvey was ready to proceed and witnesses were on hand, but Attorney Gaucher for the defendant stated that his client had not presented an appearance. The court ordered that the defendant's intention should be affirmed. The case was then assigned as the second for Wednesday November 11.

A review of the cases assigned for today (Wednesday) was then made by Judge Dickenson and he asked that all be ready for trial. Attorney Harvey gave assurance that the case of Hankel Rosen vs. James E. Randall was ready and Attorney William A. Kinsella likewise in regard to the case of John Romanoff vs. Lena Sabina and Elijah Sabina. The attorneys in the case of William R. Chandler vs. Charles Lavalley, the third and final case assigned, were not present.

Attorney Harry S. Gaucher, also prosecuting attorney, was extended the greetings of the Willimantic Rotary club as a new member, at the weekly meeting and luncheon held at the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday noon. The initiation ceremonies will be carried out at a later date.

The meeting was devoted to transacting business and making announcements. Dr. R. Bullock Jones, song leader, was authorized to purchase fifty new song books. President John F. Ahern asked for a large attendance of Rotarians at the testimonial to be tendered St. Joseph's Boy Scout band and its director, Charles N. C. Wheeler in the town hall Monday evening, November 16.

John Allison, governor of the 30th Rotary district, will pay his annual visit to the Willimantic club on the evening of November 17. It was voted to recognize the courtesy of the Y. M. C. A. in furnishing meeting and luncheon quarters by a reimbursement of $30 to be used in securing Y. M. C. A. memberships for underprivileged boys. James P. Mustard, chairman of the boys' work committee announced that the annual Football Nite, when the Windham High school football squad are guests of the Rotary club, will be held on the evening of November 24. Richard E. Dodge, chairman of the program committee announced that next week would be a Business Methods' Meeting, in charge of George Buck Jr. A letter of thanks for flowers sent to her during a recent illness was read from Mrs. Eleanor A. Reilly.

The funeral of William H. Harris was held at 11:30 o'clock Tuesday morning from the home of William A. Buck, 158 North street. Rev. A. Stanley Muirhead conducted the services. The body was taken to Central Village where Rev. W. J. Crawford read a prayer at the grave at one o'clock, in Evergreen cemetery. The J. C. Lincoln company had charge of the arrangements.

Miss Mary J. Freeman, 71, of Spring Hill who died Monday at Norwich state hospital, was born in Mansfield November 5, 1854, a daughter of James W. and Eunice Seagraves Freeman. She is survived by a nephew, Freeman Rogers and a niece, Mrs. Cora Lamb, both of Nonnk.

Chief of Police Allen McArthur has completed his report for the fiscal year ending October 31, 1925, showing that there were 473 arrests, or 46 more than during the year ending in 1924. Industrial trouble during the past summer is given as the cause for much of the increase. The arrests during the year average a fraction under 40 per month. During the year, 185 intoxicated persons were arrested, this number being thirty-two per cent. of the total number of arrests. Last year there were 123 arrests for intoxication. 19 arrests were made for violation of the liquor laws as against thirty made during the previous year.

A man giving his name as Xavier Beaudry of Attleboro, Mass., came here Tuesday forenoon and established his ownership of an Overland touring car which was found on St. Joseph's cemetery road, a few days ago, where it had apparently been abandoned after the motor broke down and the front axle snapped in two. Beaudry said that when the axle broke he left the machine and got a ride back to Attleboro with a friend. When found, the engine could not be started and the car was hauled to this city.

Frank A. Phillips of this city has purchased a tract of standing timber in Westford, town of Ashford, which is being cut into lumber, telephone poles and fence posts. About 4,000,000 feet of cut timber will be secured. Three families, a total of fifteen people, have moved to the vicinity of the timber patch where the men of the households are employed. The families are those of Samuel Curtis and John Gates, of East Lyme, and Henry Tetreault, of Southbridge, Mass.

Local physicians who attended the farewell dinner tendered Dr. John B. Kent of Putnam at the Day Kimball hospital Tuesday evening, to note his retirement from actual practice, after 55 years as a physician, were: Drs H. C. White, C. E. Simonds, F. E. Guild and Laura H. Hills.

A competitive field event program was inaugurated at the Y. M. C. A. this week by Physical Director Richard Holden, for members of the junior and senior boy classes. A high jump contest was won by Philip Simon and William Edwards in the senior and junior classes respectively. A comedy event in the form of a boxing bout of three rounds was staged Monday by Eugene Lewis and Herbert Warrender.

Mr. and Mrs. William P. Dineen were hosts at a meeting of the Neighborhood Whist Club recently when Mrs. and Mrs. T. J. Connolly won the prizes. Mrs. John A. McKenna and Mrs. Alton Griswold, the latter a guest, were awarded the consolation prizes.

Personal Mention

Mrs. Donald E. Crane entertained the Congregational Church Thimble Club of which Mrs. Harvey Bronson is leader, at her home recently.

Mrs. Henry R. Lincoln has returned home, after a visit with her cousin, Mrs. Wilbur L. Cross of New Haven.

Mrs. A. P. Banner and daughter, Mrs. George F. Hall, of Hampton, spent Tuesday in Hartford.

Mrs. Katherine C. Rew is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Clark, of Mansfield Center until her departure for Miami, Fla.

Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock was the leader of the devotions at the state convention of Congregational churches in South Manchester, Tuesday.

Mrs. Charles L. Crane has as guest, her cousin, Mrs. Alice Wheaton of Providence.

HOW ATHLETES TREAT STRAINS AND SPRAINS

Gymnasium director advises simple, easy treatment

Hard exercise brings lame muscles—and often bruises and strains as well.

An athletic director in a gymnasium at Utica, N. Y., writes that he has found a simple and always effective way of treating them.

"Just put on a little Sloan's Liniment, as the bottle says, without rubbing. It takes out stiffness and pain as nothing else will. We have it always on hand and we think it is the best ever."

Sloan's gives real help because it doesn't just deaden the pain: it gets at the cause. Right to the place that hurts it brings a healing tide of fresh new blood—builds up the injured tissues—clears out the fatigue poisons.

Almost at once you feel relief. Stiffness, swelling, inflammation go down. The pain stops. Get a bottle today and have it on hand. All druggists—35 cents.

FENTON CALLS NEW RUMOR JUST POLITICAL BUNK

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 3—State papers have apparently taken a liking to Willimantic politicians as for the second time within two days local men have been picked by them as candidates for office. Monday morning County Detective William E. Jackson was chosen as an applicant for the local postmastership being vacated by Walter R. King. Tuesday morning, Captain Frank P. Fenton, clerk of the town of Windham, was chosen candidate against Mayor David E. Fitzgerald of New Haven for the chairmanship of the democratic state central committee. Both local men deny the stories.

Within a few weeks Chairman Edward M. Yeomans will resign the chairmanship of the Democratic State Central committee and in February he will assume his place on the superior court bench.

The statement declares that Captain Fenton has assured in definite manner, members of the committee who had approached him that he would stand for election. When he was confronted with the news Tuesday morning he took the matter gracefully but remarked in no uncertain terms, "That's the bunk. I have not talked with any member of the state central committee for the past six months, nor have I even engaged in written or telephone communication with any of them. I have been under the impression that "Davy" Fitzgerald had the chairmanship all in hand, judging from newspaper reports a week or two ago." He added that he had not seriously considered making a fight for the chairmanship as he had trouble enough over here in the east to keep him busy. Questioned as to whether or not he would be a candidate he replied: "Time enough to talk about that later."

It is rumored that most members of the state central committee are very unfavorable to Fitzgerald and New Haven sends out the story that the members of that body are divided in opinion and a warm session is anticipated when they meet the latter part of this month.

Mr. Fenton and Dr. Edward G. Dolan of Manchester were among the delegates to the Democratic National convention in New York last July and throughout the heavy verbal firing they carried the banner for the nomination of Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York for president. Mayor Fitzgerald was among the delegates to vote for William G. McAdoo on some of the early ballots. Therefore it is expected that the fight for the state chairmanship will be somewhat of an echo of the division of the Connecticut delegation at the stormy convention.

The location of the oyster bed is given as about 20 miles south of Port San Antonio and at a depth varying from 15 to 20 meters below the level of the sea. The oysters are stated to be of excellent quality.

Itching Burning Eczema in Blisters Healed by Cuticura

"I had eczema for six months. It started on my right temple in small blisters, and after a few days spread all around the edge of my hair, down the back of my neck, then on my ears and face. After a while it would dry and scale off, and the itching and burning nearly drove me wild. My face was disfigured for about two months.

"I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in a few days I could see a decided change, and after using two cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was healed." (Signed) Miss Kathleen L. Davis, Dec. 31, Port Clyde, Me., Apr. 14, 1925.

Clear the pores of impurities by daily use of Cuticura Soap, with touches of Cuticura Ointment as needed to soothe and heal. Cuticura Talcum is fragrant and refreshing, an ideal toilet powder.

Mrs. E. H. Hiscox is the guest of Miss Abby G. Willard in Colchester today (Wednesday).

Eddie Gomes recently purchased the Weeden property on North Main street. During alterations and improvements the old kitchen floor was ripped up and underneath a hickory cane was found. In the handle was set a disk of mother of pearl, engraved with the letters F. W. More than half a century as elapsed since Fred Weeden occupied the property.

Lawns which have been cleared of leaves, especially those which were covered with a blanket of snow one night last week are exceptionally bright and green for November.

The Ten Commandments, at the Finn opera house, at the Tuesday matinee and in the evening was shown to a fine audience. Mr. Barnett secured this picture some time ago, and he has bookings of some of the best for some time to come. The many Finn theatre patrons are much disturbed to have to believe that their favorite diversion is to be interfered with to the exent that is predicted. The Ten Commandments proved one of the finest 11-reel pictures ever seen in Jewett City.

A local man, interested for the well being of the community, sent in Tuesday the sure cure for these small breaks and burglaries of a minor nature that are occurring all too frequently of late. He says, Leave a dog at night shut up in the store. He guarantees to buy a dog for $15 that will keep out a stranger during the night season.

Visitors at the recent church conference in Preston City, who have attended for many years were telling the other day how much they missed the companionship of the late Mrs. Sarah Dorrance of Plainfield, whose tragic death occurred some moths ago at a railroad crossing in her native town when she and her husband were instantly killed. There was always a number, who during the recess at the noon hour, took much pleasure in visiting the beautiful cemetery that occupies wide acreage hard by the church. Mrs. Darrance possessed a rare knowledge concerning the older slabs that, with hardly decipherable letterings, are set to mark many of the ancient graves, where sleep the founders and forefathers of Preston. She was always as willing to give as her companions were to receive the ready fund of information with which much study and careful research had so wonderfully equipped her memory. Many have listened attentively to her explanations of the ancient urn and willow and cherub and lace stones, which she knew so well just where to find. Of especial interest is the story of the stones which are fashioned from British slate, which was hewn from the English quarries and sent to America on old-time sailing vessels. The last resting place of Johnathan Ayers, who died in 1757 at the age of 81, is marked by a curiously wrought slab of Lancashire slate.

TWO UNUSUAL RECORDS— NO MARRIAGES—TRIPLETS DIE

JEWETT CITY, Nov. 3.— There were no marriages in the town of Griswold during September. Triplets were born and after living a few days all died of inanition, thus establishing two unusual records for Griswold.

OLD MYSTIC

Word was received here Monday morning of the death of William H. Harris, 82, at the home of his niece in Willimantic. He was a resident of Old Mystic for 45 years, a regular attendant of the Methodist church and sang in the choir many years. He retired from work when he came here to live. He was always interested in hunting and spent much time in the summer killing woodchucks on the farms nearby. He had many friends who delighted in calling at his home and listening to stories and anecdotes. Mrs. Harris died a year ago last May, and later he went with the niece. The funeral was held at Central Village chapel Tuesday and burial was in the cemetery here.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

A Well Baby conference is to be held at the town hall building Friday afternoon, relative to the meeting the following was given out Tuesday:

The mothers in Connecticut who have been taking advantage of the Well Child Conference have learned the value of giving their little children the right food. They have even had it brought to their notice that adult food, such as fried food, rich pastries, tea and coffee, partaken of by their little children, will keep them underweight, in a highly nervous condition, fretful and unmanageable.

All this has been called to their attention by those who are in attendance at the Well Child Conferences. After the doctor has examined the children, the nurses advise the mothers about the child's hygiene, and make a special point of the value of choosing the right food. Often a dental hygienist is also present to instruct the mother in the care of the teeth. Mothers are beginning to realize through this advice that the constant care of the teeth is of great importance in the later health of the child. They have learned that each child should have its own tooth brush which should be used regularly. It has also been called to their attention that they should watch for the development of the six year molar, as this is the first one of the permanent teeth. By cleaning the teeth thoroughly each day, and by choosing foods which are rich in vitamines and mineral elements such as are found in whole milk and in vegetables, and by the use of stale bread which must be chewed thoroughly, children will soon develop sound teeth.

C. Clinton Cleveland of the force at the postoffice has a new pigskin bill fold, and a good one, won for being the most interestingly costumed man at a Hallowe'en party at the Putnam Country club.

A whist and dance given under the joint auspices of the Service battery and the Danielson Girls' club at the state armory Tuesday evening provided real diversion for the many attending.

St. Alban's Sewing circle has a meeting scheduled for Friday afternoon. The hostesses are to be Mrs. E. H. Keech and Mrs. A. D. Putnam.

Friday of this week a meeting of the civic federation is to be held at the Health station in the town hall building.

Having a football temperature, numbers from here will be at Providence, Saturday afternoon, to see the Brown-Boston university game, which will be peculiar inasmuch as 40 plays will count a half instead of playing the usual "quarter" arrangement. This arrangement is to be tried as an experiment.

A real detour is now enforced between Danielson and Elmville, traffic being sent around state highway construction via Morin avenue, Connecticut Mills avenue and Judd avenue to the trunk line highway. It is a rougher and tortuous passage, but cuts down the waiting. At least it seems so.

Samuel Anderson of the Connecticut Company, with headquarters at Norwich, was a visitor in Danielson Tuesday.

Beauty in Distress!

Her face grew ten years older, in ten minutes! Indigestion. How distressing to be the life of the party and leave the table, almost doubled-up with pain! And how senseless! "Take this," said a gentleman who was never without a Stuart's tablet. That same evening she ate a Welsh rarebit and felt fine. Remember Stuart's, and you can forget dyspepsia.

Dyspepsia! Indigestion! Sour stomach! These ailments are not caused by what you eat. Give your digestive system a chance, and it will function with almost any kind of food. HOW NORWICH-PUTNAM ROAD LOOKS TO BOROUGHITES DANIELSON, Nov. 3—There are business interests in Danielson that would like to combine and appoint a representative to take the publicity man of Norwich Council, No. 308, U. T. C., out some evening, buy him a dinner, a long, cool drink of sarsaparilla, an excellent cigar, and having him in the right mood, suggest, "Brother, will you listen to me for a few minutes? I want to talk to you about this Norwich-Putnam road project, as you call it, though what really all it amounts to is a new state highway layout between the town of Griswold and the town of Killingly. Norwich and Putnam figure in the matter only incidentally.

(Special to The Bulletin)

"It is our opinion in Killingly that you are wasting a trainload of ammunition and yards of newspaper space shooting at a position that is only minor, in what you may consider the opposition's defences. Killingly wants that new highway as much as the Norwich C. T. U. wants it. The same applies to Plainfield. But neither of these towns wants it, as desirable as it is, under an arrangement that will throw miles of present trunk line highway within their limits out of the trunk line system of the state and cause these highways to revert to these towns for upkeep, and cause Killingly and Plainfield, to be put to heavy annual expense under such an arrangement.

"Why don't you traveling men issue some propaganda along the line of having the state do something real in the way of trunk line highway expansion? Why is it that you are not shouting for continued maintenance by the state of the present trunk line between Danielson and Central Village as well as for the proposed Green Hollow route? Killingly and Plainfield do not understand this attitude on your part and it is chiefly responsible for the often repeated assertion up here in the sticks "That a parcel of drummers want a speedway over which they can make 50 miles an hour while they are selling goods at wholesale and not to Tom, John, Joe and the other boys the retail men have to depend on and who come into town from areas where trunk line highway discussions are only a matter for abstract discussion."

"Killingly is fully aware of the trunk line traffic that is coming. That's the principal reason why it wants the state to act regular and build auxiliary trunk lines without abandoning present ones. That's why it feels the Norwich Council, U. T. C., is getting itself in Dutch up this way by constant propaganda for a new highway without regard for incidental issues that this and other concerned towns regard as vital."

TROLLEY LINE TO GO AFTER 27 USEFUL YEARS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 3—Sing the swan song of the trolleys. They are going, probably never to return, but the after-thought is prophecy. The selectmen of the town of Killingly were notified Tuesday by the Public Utilities Commission that it is to issue a certificate of public convenience and necessity to the Connecticut company to operate motor busses between Norwich and North Grosvenordale, via Taftville, Jewett City, Plainfield, Central Village, Wauregan, Danielson, Putnam, Mechanicsville and to North Grosvenordale.

This authority has been issued following a hearing held at Norwich before the Public Utilities commission October 2. The motor bus service now authorized will supercede the present trolley service. When the change from trolleys to busses is to be made could not be learned in Danielson on Tuesday, but it is all probability will be in the immediate future. The trolley company has the busses with which to start the service.

East Killingly will be left out cold under the new arrangement. There will be no bus service between Danielson and that place to replace the trolley service. The same will apply to the branch line running between Central Village and Moosup.

A transportation offering incident to the change from trolleys to busses may be a south-bound train out of Putnam Saturday afternoons for Norwich. It was stated at the hearing in Norwich that the N. Y., N. H. and H. R. R. company stood ready to cooperate with the Connecticut company in caring for the transportation of several hundred persons who go southward from this territory every Saturday afternoon to Norwich, this traffic developing largely between Central Village and points south. This train likely will leave Putnam about 12.15 p. m. and, returning, leave Norwich about 6.00 p. m. Such a train would relieve congestion on the bus lines to replace the trolleys during Saturday afternoon and early evening rushes.

In their memorandum of decision the Public Utilities commissioners point out that revenues received from the operation of trolley cars between Norwich and North Grosvenordale, and particularly between Central Village and North Grosvenordale for many years have not been sufficient to pay operating expenses and afford a reasonable return on the investment, and in recent years the revenues have been gradually declining. The territory can be more economically served at the present time by motor busses.

It developed at the hearing that the street railway service between Central Village and Moosup, a distance of 1 67-100ths miles, and between Elmville and East Killingly a distance of 3 38-100ths miles, branch routes, do not provide sufficient revenue to pay any material part of the cost of the service, and that a considerable outlay of money is necessary in the immediate future to repair the roadbed and bridges on these branch lines, if they be continued. So operation will be discontinued by grant of the commission.

Twenty-seven years ago, in the fall of 1898, and just about this time of year, the People's Tramway company operated the first trolley car ever run over the newly built lines into Danielson. The opening of the line was marked as the swinging of the gates of a new era into which this and other communities along the line were to pass. It appeared the dawn of a golden age for the section of northeastern Connecticut served by the trolleys. The line was gradually extended until it reached to North Grosvenordale on the north and Central Village on the south. The area served was regarded as having been set ahead a generation in transportation facilities and prospect of growth.

The years have told the story. Thousands flocked to ride on the trolleys for a long time after the road opened. Getting a seat on a car was like finding elbow room in a can of sardines. As time went by ownership of the road changed hands a number of times but the line never proved really profitable. And all of this was before the days when the automobile age was to dawn. Development of the motor car industry began to point nearly a decade ago to the final passing of the trolley service in this particular territory. Year by year the drift was from the trolleys to the motor car and in the past three or four years the drift has become a landslide. Trolley revenues have dropped to their lowest minimum, warranting any future service.

There will be regret at the passing of the trolleys. They have furnished a dependable, regular and comfortable means of transportation. There'll be a bit of sentiment about the passing, too. One with memory can distinctly recall with the rejoicing which the advent of the electric cars was received in Danielson. In exact reaction, it will not be strange if many are depressed when they go and feel as though an old friend were passing on. But again: "The king is dead! Long live the king!"

PUTNAM

The Blue and White Banner, the high school paper has the following to say of the Girls' basketball:

"Girls' basketball season has opened again and found the girls once more ready to put into practice all they possibly can of their time, energy and enthusiasm. Once more the interest, love and honor which they have for their school reveals itself.

"The first practice found no less than twenty-five girls waiting in the gym to receive instructions and advice from the coach. There were girls from all classes, some of whom played last year and others who have never played before. Practice is held every Wednesday and Friday afternono. The coach, Miss Tackaberry, anticipates a very successful season."

Physical training exercises are being conducted at the High school in all of the rooms by a squad of junior and senior boys, three times a day. Isadore Larose, driving a small motor truck which he uses for delivering milk, encountered a truck driven by Samuel Amikole on Mechanic street, Tuesday morning. The cars were damaged slightly.

The funeral of Stanley Derosier, five months old son of Henry Derosier of Main street, was held Saturday at St. Mary's church.

The 28 members of the Putnam Rotary club who went to Providence Monday evening to see the presentation of Lawrence Stallings world war drama "What Price Glory?" have varying opinions about the play. Some of them were decided in their view that the popular drama served no useful purpose and could just as well have been forgotten, that there was an unnecessary use of profanity and questionable allusions. Others were of the opinion that it was one of the greatest stage productions of the decade, entitled to be ranked among modern classics.

The former service men who were among the Putnam party said that it was a cross section of what really occurred "over there". In support of their contention they point out that the author Lawrence E. Stallings, literary editor of the New York World, won a captain's commission while fighting in France, also lost a leg there.

JOSEPH IGO, 16, STUDENT MISSING SINCE SUNDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 3—The parents of Joseph Igo of Church street, 16 year old student at Putnam High school are greatly worried over his disappearance. He left home at noon Sunday after some words with his father and declared that he would not return. It is an experience that has befallen nearly every boy, but usually each thinks better of his resolution and gets back home for the next meal. This was not the case with young Igo. As he was of a studious nature and spent most of the time when he was not at school preparing his lessons at home, the parents are all the more worried over his absence.

The police have been appealed to and Captain Jarvis has sent out notices to authorities of nearby towns to be on the lookout for the lad.

NORTH STERLING

At the home of Arthur Miller there was a Hallowe'en social and dance Saturday evening.

The Home Circle is to meet with Mrs. Marion Brown today (Wednesday.)

George Whaley of Oxford, Mass., called on George C. Spooner, Sunday.

Local people are complaining of severe colds.

COLUMBIA

Mrs. Chester R. Winsor and two children, of Johnston, R. I., have been spending several days at the home of Mrs. Winsor's sister, Mrs. Clayton Hunt, returning Sunday.

The first in a series of whist parties to be held by the Columbia Improvement association was held Friday evening. It being a stormy evening, the attendance was small.

Mrs. Robert Gillette and daughter, Marjorie, of Spring Hill, spent Sunday with Mrs. Gillette's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Isham.

Mrs. Anna Dart of Providence has been spending several days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Holmes.

November was ushered in by a decided drop in temperature, the lowest reported being 12 early Sunday morning, a record for these parts for this time of year. Ice two inches thick formed in water barrels.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Goff of Providence were recent callers at the home of Mrs. Clayton Hunt.

Rev. Mr. Blake of Hartford preached at the Congregational Church Sunday morning. Following the regular service, the communion service was held.

Mrs. Florence Budge was the leader of the Christian Endeavor meeting Sunday evening.

A Hallowe'en party was held Saturday afternoon at the home of Clayton, Jr., and David Hunt, in honor of their cousins Lauriston and Helen Winsor of Johnston, R. I., who were visiting them. Others present were Frederick Hunt, Gladys Rice, Westcott Rice, Adelia, Arlene and Margaret Badge. Games were played and supper was served. The house was decorated with pumpkins, witches, black cats and other hallowed symbols of the day.

NORTH LYME

Misses Ethel, Anna and Edith Maynard were Norwich visitors Saturday.

Mrs. J. L. Raymond and Miss Emily Stark were in East Haddam Friday attending a D. A. R. meeting.

Mrs. Marian Dakin of Storrs college met a group of women at the home of Mrs. N. S. Strong last Thursday, gave a demonstration of salad making and a talk on winter menus.

Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Ackley and Miss Ida Stark of Cluster were callers at M. J. Stark's Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Rogers of Salem visited Mrs. W. M. Sisson Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Gurdon Rathbun, David Fox, Miss Noma Rathbun and Miss May Shepherd of Willimantic called on friends here Sunday.

N. S. Strong, Edward and Robert Strong were in Norwich Saturday.

Miss Charlotte Stark and a friend from New London, Miss Jennie Stark of Willimantic, Miss Marion Stark of Greenwich were week end guests at J. W. Stark's.

WINDHAM

Mrs. Haisey Kelley of New York and Mrs. Wallace Kelley of Boston are guests of the Misses Johnson.

Mr. and Mrs. Rotter and daughter, Patricia, of New London, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Potter.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Smith of Franklin spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Williams.

The Hallowe'en party given by the Community Dance club Friday evening under the direction of Mrs. Paul Hopkins, Mrs. Donald Macdonald and Mrs. Marguerite Cook was largely attended, many coming from Willimantic, North and South Windham and Scotland. The assembly hall was decorated with orange and black crepe paper, witches, cats, Jack-o-Lanterns, etc. The Lynn orchestra of Willimantic furnished excellent music.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Parsons are staying at the Inn.

About 25 members and friends of the Mansfield Centre L. E. society visited the local society Sunday evening. The meeting was led by Miss Marguerite Cook. Rev. W. M. Brown gave an interesting report of the national convention in Washington.

The Woman's Missionary society meets with Miss Dorothy Brown this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Leffingwell entertained a few friends at a Hallowe'en party Saturday evening.

The full moon Saturday night made it too light for anything but innocent Hallowe'en pranks. There were a few ghosts in he streets with Jack-o-Lanterns and cow bells and they amused themselves by ringing door bells and pounding on doors, which was harmless fun.

The local C. E society is to be the guest of the South Windham C. E. society at a Hallowe'en party Friday evening.

The fall meeting of the Willimantic C. E. union is to be held here on the 13th.

Nearly two-thirds of the entire teaching force in the public schools of Virginia devoted from 6 to 12 weeks during the recent summer vacation to professional study.

Back at Work, With No Thought of Piles!

For those who do manual labor, piles are out of the question! What a pity all men do not know exactly what to do with piles! Don't you suffer pain, or a lay-off on account of them! Do this:

Go to any druggist in any town, and get a sixty-cent box of Pyramid pile suppositories. They always work wonders—with piles in any form—and the man who sells them to you will tell you so. How soothing it is; you feel it at once; pain lets up. Men and women who have itching, bleeding, tender piles will bless the name Pyramid from the moment they first use it! 60 cents a box.

All you need say to your druggist is "Pyramid." Or, you may have a free box plainly wrapped, by just sending your name and address to Pyramid Drug Co., 500 Pyramid Bldg., Marshall, Michigan.

Service Means Supremacy

A single hit may decide a world's series. An unexpected swell may snatch victory from the leading boat.

But truck supremacy is won on a more substantial issue—on the long, hard pull where minutes mean little and years mean all.

Graham Brothers won world supremacy among exclusive motor truck manufacturers because Graham Brothers Trucks have stood the test of exacting service in every line of business—and because they are priced at a figure that is too attractive to be overlooked.

Advises Ordinary Buttermilk for Wrinkles and Enlarged Pores

This Good Looking Young Woman Uses Old Time Recipe of Buttermilk Cream in a New Way—A Gentle Massage with Fingers Around Eyes and Mouth Before Retiring All That Is Necessary.

The old-time application of Buttermilk and Cream to whiten and preserve the skin and remove harsh little wrinkles and ugly sallowness was grandmother's recipe and women throughout the country are again using it to ensure a beautiful complexion and snow-white hands and arms.

Buttermilk, however, is not always obtainable, but a specialist has at last perfected a method of concentrating buttermilk and combining it with a perfect cream, which you can buy in small quantities ready to use at any first-class drug store by simply asking for "Howard's Buttermilk Cream."

There is no secret about it nor is there any doubt about the result—it's just a common ordinary buttermilk in the form of a wonderful cream.

To get the best effect, be sure to follow the simple directions. Lee & Osgood and all druggists guarantee a noticeable improvement after the first application or they will refund the money.

A delicious food and doctors approve it

Their knowledge of Dietetics make doctors enthusiastic over the rare flavor and ready digestibility of Heckers' Cream Farina.

Nothing but the hearts of selected wheat.

Its creamy smoothness is latent with strength and vitality. But it's light and delicate. Never does one feel over-fed.

A cereal that's good all year 'round. Winter or Summer its zestful flavor encourages a hearty, satisfying breakfast.

MONOPOLY CONTROLLED PRODUCTS

When Secretary Hoover speaks he usually has something to say, and that certainly was the case when he spoke a few nights ago in Erie concerning foreign monopolies and the steps that might be taken by this country to offset them if their continuance is insisted upon. The desire isn't for any such trade war as might easily develop, but there is such a thing as carrying things too far, and this the secretary of commerce would check by one means or another before that point is reached.

It is thoroughly understood by the country what prices are being paid for rubber, nitrates and coffee because a monopoly of these products is controlled by foreign countries. We can get only as much as they are willing to sell and we must pay just such a price as they demand, up to and until the time when such a monopolistic control can be broken.

Secretary Hoover pointed out for the benefit of those back of such a situation that this country can also adopt such methods. We have not as yet got to the point where such a move has been decided upon for there is no desire to resort to any such step, but when we have gotten to the point where more than $600,000,000 is being spent for monopoly controlled products and it is estimated by the secretary of commerce that from a third to one half of this must be rated as extortion, it is time that we woke up to the situation and let it be known that we are fully aware of what is being done and that we are not without means of providing protection if it is necessary.

This is a game at which others can play, and quite effectively. It is something to which there is no eagerness to resort if adjustments can be accomplished otherwise, but there are times when nothing brings home the real facts of such a condition like giving them a taste of their own medicine. A word to the wise should be sufficient. Possibly Secretary Hoover has succeeded in getting illuminated the situation for those intended. It is to be hoped he has. Trade war is not preferred to trade peace.

CABINET RUMORS

There is someone who is always ready with a fantastic story about changes that are pending in the president's cabinet, how soon they are going to take place, why they are to be made and how the vacancies are going to be filled.

When such changes are in process it is invariably the case that there is no need of speculation about them. But some are never satisfied unless they are indulging in speculation of that kind and seemingly like to put their dreams on the air and let them go for such entertainment or harm as they may do.

Attorney General Sargent is the youngest member of the president's cabinet in point of service, but some of the cabinet fixers have been elaborating on the shift which they have figured out by dovetailing a lot of speculation together in such a way as to make an interesting rumor, though there is no basis of fact in connection with it.

Because the attorney general went to Vermont without proclaiming the object of his trip, even though it was no more than to see his newest grandchild, the speculators got busy, started their imaginations to going at a tangent and produced the rumor that he was to resign from the cabinet at the desire of the president in order to run for the senate and, thereby settle a political squabble in the state of Vermont and to permit of another appointment for attorney general. Perhaps it wasn't necessary, but a statement was nevertheless issued from the White House to the effect that it is the hope of the president that Mr. Sargent will remain in the cabinet and at the head of the department of justice as long as he stays in Washington.

If attention was paid to all rumors the president would have little time to do otherwise than answer them. There is no question, however, but what he is thoroughly pleased with his attorney general, who was picked because of his ability and because he was not a prominent figure in political affairs. He is the man for the place by qualifications and temperament and something more than rumors will be responsible for his retirement.

CHANGING PILOTS

The Painleve statement which failed to win the support of the French socialists included the determination to presume at the earliest possible moment the negotiations for the funding of the French debt to the United States."

In that connection it was apparently part of the programme to send a new ambassador to this country, and while M. Herriot officially confirmation, Senator Victor H. Berenger is said to have been selected for the post. Such a selection would seem to bear out the plan of the premier of France inasmuch as Senator Berenger is thoroughly posted on the French debt situation, was a member of the debt commission which came to this country and was a member of the French sub committee that endeavored to bring about an adjustment with the American committee while in Washington. He is to be regarded as an expert in regard to the debt situation and as such it is apparently figured that his influence and efforts are needed in Washington at this time in order to insure the success of any further undertaking in regard to the debt settlement.

If the change is made it is reasonable to assume that it will be for such reasons and, while it has been intimated that the debt matter would be allowed to drift, it cannot even to be appreciated in France that it is for the best interests of France that an early agreement concerning the debt be reached. It is not simply the adjustment that is bothering France, but the fact that upon such action depends its ability to obtain further loans, and such loans are of the utmost importance when it comes to meeting certain of its financial problems.

Whether it is the Painleve ministry, or some other which directs the affairs of France, or whether it is Ambassador Daeschner or Ambassador Berenger who holds that post at Washington, as the representative of France, the French government cannot fail to recognize the wisdom of overcoming the situation which now places a handicap upon it.

BUTLER GOES BACK

No surprise can be felt at the decision which has been rendered by President Coolidge that General Smedley Butler must return to the Marine Corps the first of the year if he is to remain in the service.

At that time it will be two years since he undertook the job of director of public safety in Philadelphia. He faced a much more difficult task than he anticipated. He has not accomplished all that he anticipated or desired, but he has given Philadelphia a chance to note the contrast between the conditions that formerly prevailed and those that exist today. No claim can be made that Philadelphia is been cleaned up clean. It will have to be admitted, however, that he has accomplished much that is beneficial for the city and that there is a better understanding of the conditions and what is necessary in combating them.

There were revolutionary tactics that were applied and army discipline was undertaken. These did not all work out satisfactorily. They aroused opposition and friction, but perhaps one of the best endorsements of the work of General Butler has been the repeated demand that he be permitted to remain. He must be given credit for the good he has done in the face of the strongest kind of opposition.

A year ago Philadelphia was told that his services could not be allowed to continue beyond this year. Philadelphia has apparently hoped against hope in the effort to get his leave of absence extended. While General Butler was willing to stay if accorded proper support, there are reasons for believing that he will welcome the president's decision. At least it is not believed that he will resign from the army to accept the Philadelphia job.

THE LAST OF THE CLIPPERS

There was a sort of shudder when it was announced on the arrival of the last of the clipper ships, the Benjamin F. Packard, in this country that it had made its last voyage and was to be broken up for junk. That is the fate of many a proud ship and yet it seems most unfitting in many instances. When there are many more of the same type in existence such a course is to be expected. But in this case the last of its kind was to be ignominiously destroyed.

For that reason there will be a feeling of general satisfaction at the decision which has been reached to convert it into a floating museum. This should at least mean its preservation for the benefit of future generations, quite the same as one of the last of the old whalers has been preserved at South Dartmouth, in New Bedford harbor where it stands as a monument to a one time flourishing industry in that vicinity.

Shipping has undergone great changes, but there is no way of better appreciating and understanding the progress made than by actually comparing these old time vessels with those of the present day. Pictures tell much but there is nothing like a view of the real thing and a chance to go over and into these old ships. Descriptions and photographs do not take the place of the old time ships any more than they do of the old time houses, vehicles and other relics.

The decision to at least prolong the days of the last of the clipper ships, one which has sailed the seven seas and returned, must therefore be regarded as a happy one.

THE BIG NEWS

The girl with the swirl of white fur around the bottom of her black coat speaks into the telephone:

"Lo, kid. How are ya?

"Just grand, an' I'll tell the cockeyed world. Where you been all this time? Why didn't ya—you know—phone me or somepin the last coupla weeks, huh?

"Me? Fade away, darling! I been so rushed I didn't scarcely know if I was her or some place else see? That's how rushed I been.

"Say, dearie, you're crazy to be in the know, what?

"Sure! Well, say, kid, plug in and I'll tell you. This is it. I been—you know—buyin' me some swell clothes and everything, see?

"Oh, you know—silk undergarments and one of these here—you know—assembled soots and a tricky hat, see? And, say, old dear, listen. This is what I phoned up to tell you about. You ain't got a date to-morrow noon?

"Well, say, sweetie, lookut. Did you see how they was an ad in the paper last night about some swell sheets and pillowcases over to Handelburg's, that they was havin' a sale on 'em and everything? Well, say, old thing, I kinda doped it out that maybe you'd beat it over there with me and help me give 'em the double O to-morrow, what?

"Say, kid, how ja get that way? Listens like weddin' bells? Listens like dumb-bells! I'll say it does. Can't a person buy themselves no clothes or anything without they're thinkin' of—you know—gettin' married?

"Say, girlie, quit your razzin'! You'll make me laugh in a minute. And lookut here. Honest, will you jazz over there with me to-morrow like I said and tune in on them—you know—sheets and like that, you bein' such a swell judge of those sort of things?

"Absolutely. I'll say you are. What ya mean, kiddin'? Who's kiddin'? Not us. I'll say I ain't. Will you?

"Honest? Well, ain't you adorable? Well, so long, darling. I'll phone you to-morrow morning where we'll eat.

"Say, you're dumb! Snap out of it, girlie! And, say, kid, listen in again. We gottа do some steppin' tomorrow. I'll say we have. I'm scared the boss'll get sore if I stay out over my noon hour, see? And I ain't takin' no chances of—you know—gettin' fired or anything right now. I need the cash.

"Oh, put on the muffler, you big noise! Can't a person not want to get fired without there's a catch in it somewhere? Can't they? I ask you.

"Sure! But, say, dearie, here's another one. Listen. One of the girls at the office says they got some wonderful—you know—hose over to Smithers, and if we step fast enough we could—you know—hoof it over there maybe and get an eyeful, what? How about it?

"Say, you're some wise kid. I'll say you are. You sure are one fast thinker, see? But, say, old top, there was another thing I was goin' to ask you. There was one of them cute little breakfast room sets priced awful low over in Blank's window. How about us just walkin' past there on our way back and—

"Well, say, kid, listen! Don't get sore! There ain't nothin' to tell. Honest, there ain't. Or, anyway, nothin' much of anything yet.

"Well, say darling, don't go away mad. I never had no intentions of not tellin' you or anything—only we—that is, I—you—know—thought, maybe we'd better not spill it until we'd picked out the date and everything—but, say, kid, I don't want to make you sore or anything and if you'll just watch your step and—

"Well, say, old top, lookut. It's just like you said, see? Weddin' bells is right! Ain't it wonnerful? I ask you.

"Oh, reel awful kind of soon. Next month and everything. Only we ain't picked the day yet, see. That's how come I didn't want to say nothin'.

"Sure! And you ain't sore or anything because of me not tellin' you right off, huh, or anything? You certainly are adorable. I'll say you are! Well, say dearie, listen. I gotter sign off now. I'll give you a ring in the morning and we'll say where we'll eat and everything. And, say, cutie, listen. Don't you say nothing till I give you the high sign, what? Positutely! —Exchange.

From Small Beginnings

Jack London, the Great Story Writer

Since the death of Robert Louis Stevenson there has been no more picturesque figure in American literature than Jack London. Jack London was a born adventurer, familiar with every sea and at home in every land. In spite of his roving nature he was a most indefatigable worker and wrote several shelvesful of books that took the popular fancy. The story of his life, as told by his widow, Charmian K. London, is a story more romantic and more surpassing in interest than any of the novels that the gay adventurer wrote.

When he was only 17 Jack London sailed across the Pacific and made himself one with the hardships and dangers that he describes so strikingly in such books as The Sea Wolf and The Mutiny of the Elsinore. His was no literary excursion, but genuine seafaring life, for he was only a common sailor, kicked and cuffed perhaps more than the rest. By the time he was 20 he had lived both as a sailor and as a tramp, wandering from town to town. In these years he led anything but a temperate and well-ordered life; he drank to excess and was in general the sort of man he looked. At 21 he went with the rough adventurers over the White Pass into the unknown Klondike, experiencing there the life he pictured later in The Call of the Wild.

Meanwhile, in all his vagabond life, he read and thought and practiced writing, with the definite aim of becoming an author. As a war correspondent, a position that he gained because of his Kiplingesque short stories, he visited Japan and China and many parts of the world. He wrote with the most amazing fertility and produced a host of short stories, novels and other books. His own energy was as great as that of any of the characters he painted.

When he was 30 he set off, in a small boat with intention of going around the world. He visited many tropical lands in the South Seas and gained rich material for stories. His last notable work was as a war correspondent. He literally wore himself out and died at 40, but he had lifted himself from the depths of degradation and from absolute poverty into being the most popular writer of his day.

Stories That Recall Others

New Cake Icing

Donald, age three, was very anxious to get into the first snow. So mother dressed him, put on his new boots and out in the yard Donnie went. In about ten minutes he came running into the house and said. "That snow looks like cake frosting."

Convincing Proof

The call for new street lights prompted Bill to recall when street lights were first being installed. They were on high poles and some insisted that they fit the heavens, but not the streets. One man was strongly opposed. He was walking home one night after they were turned on and saw two men approaching, each walking on the outer edge of the walk. The man thought they were holdup men and concluded when he walked between them they would seize him. So he quickly made up his mind to run between them real fast and possibly get by before they could grab him.

A few feet before reaching the men he started to run. A moment or two later he was sprawling on the ground. The men were carrying a trunk and he did not see it, and that was conclusive proof to him that the lights lit the heavens and not the streets.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

America is about to receive an interesting visitor in the person of Archbishop Zepliak of Poland, who is now on his way to the United States. The Archbishop was one of a number of prominent prelates and priests of the Roman Catholic church who were tried and condemned to death by the soviet government for teaching religion. Mgr. Constantine Butchkavitch, vicar general to the Archbishop, was shot by a firing squad on March 31, 1923. A world-wide protest is believed to have caused suspension of Archbishop Zepliak's sentence and later he was released from custody. The Archbishop is coming to America at the personal invitation of Bishop Schrembs of Cleveland, extended when the two prelates met in Rome recently while attending the Holy Year jubilee.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

Our out-of-place Boundaries

"Work recently begun to check up the condition of monuments marking the straight line boundary between New York and Pennsylvania, and to find how far the line varies from its proper position, brings to attention only one of the scores of 'boundary skeletons' in the national closet" says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"It is probably safe to say that not one of the forty-eight states is now administering exactly the territory which supposedly belongs to it," continues the bulletin. "In some cases the differences are only matters of hundreds or thousands of acres, but in others they must be measured by hundreds of square miles. These faulty boundaries are for the most part accepted now, especially in the states longest settled; but the agreements have not all been reached quietly. There have been scores of disputes between neighboring states and territories, dozens of law suits have been brought before the supreme court, and in one or two cases bitterness has been so great that civil war has seemed on the verge of breaking out.

"The chief difficulty is in drawing straight lines. Anyone can draw a straight line on a piece of paper. He can construct a reasonably straight edged flower-bed or driveway. But try to lay out a straight line some miles or hundreds of miles long on the face of the earth, over hill and dale, valley and mountain, and you are faced by a vastly more difficult problem.

"Many of the supposedly east and west lines between the colonies, later inherited as boundaries by the states, were laid out with no other instrument than the magnetic compass. The direction in which the needle pointed varied as the surveyor advanced; but in some cases no account was taken of this, and in others inaccurate corrections were applied. The lines, instead of being straight and running in a true east and west direction, were traced somewhat like rail fences between terminal points, or struck off from the true direction at an angle and had to be brought back at intervals by offsets.

"Later when better instruments, astronomical methods, and higher mathematics were used the errors in running boundary lines were greatly reduced. An absolutely accurate line hundreds of miles long through rough country has never yet been marked out on the earth's surface, however, and probably never will be—chiefly because surveying instruments depend on plumb line or spirit level to establish perpendiculars, and these indicators vary with differences in density of the rocks from place to place. The closest approach to accuracy has been made by the 'triangulation system' which the United States coast and geodetic survey has extended over a great part of the United States. Errors still crop up, but they are almost negligible. It is this triangulation system which has disclosed many of the rather glaring inaccuracies of the earlier boundary surveys.

"A number of boundary difficulties have arisen because of mistakes in geography. Thus the first boundary treaty between Great Britain and the United States in 1782 provided that the northern boundary of the United States should run from the lake of the Woods 'on a due west course to the river Mississippi'—a physical impossibility. This error had to be adjusted later but the tiny projection of United States territory into Canada at the 95th meridian—like the sight on a rifle barrel—is a monument to the mistake.

A Misplaced Lake

"Another error that led to trouble was the belief than an east-west line through the southern extremity of Lake Michigan would cut Lake Erie at or north of the latter's western end. The extension of Indiana and Ohio several miles north of this old east-west line testifies to the correction that had to be made. The shifting of the Ohio like north, incidentally, was one of the boundary matters that came near causing civil war. Militia from both Ohio and Michigan were mobilized near the disputed territory in 1835 and bloodshed was avoided by the narrowest margin.

"One of the most peculiar state boundaries in the United States is the northern line of Delaware which is the arc of a circle nicked out of the southeastern corner of Pennsylvania. Laying out the Delaware boundaries was a rather difficult problem in geometry and surveying combined. While the north line is an arc of a circle drawn from the center of the town of Newcastle with a twelve mile radius, the west line is in the main a tangent to the circle from the midpoint of a base line in the south between the Atlantic Ocean and Chesapeake Bay.

"No boundary line is more famous than the 'Mason and Dixon Line,' which divides the north and the south. It is the southern boundary of Pennsylvania and the northern boundary of Maryland. It takes its name from Jeremiah Mason and Charles Dixon, two famous mathematicians sent from England to survey the boundary. The line established by Mason and Dixon is probably more nearly accurate than any of the other east-west boundaries run in the eastern United States.

"In contrast to the Mason and Dixon line is the long east-west line forming the southern boundaries of Virginia and Kentucky between the Atlantic Ocean and the Mississippi River. This line is supposed to lie along a parallel of latitude at 36 degrees 30 minutes north. The line as laid out is probably north if this parallel throughout practically its entire course. Where it cuts the Tennessee River it is about 20 miles too far north. At this point there is an offset to the south and the short stretch between this Tennessee and Mississippi rivers is approximately on the theoretical parallel. The southern boundary of Tennessee is only less inaccurate then the northern. It dodges both north and south of its supposed location along the 35th parallel.

"North Carolina is among the states suffering the greatest losses on account of boundary errors. Its diagonal boundary with South Carolina is supposed to extend to the 35th parallel before turning west. It actually makes the turn 10 miles short of the goal, then jumps north of the parallel and continues west. The net loss of territory to the state is estimated at between 500 and 1,000 square miles."

Huge Pumps

A pumping plant equivalent to the municipal water works of a city of nearly 2,000,000 population will be part of the equipment of the steamship Malolo, which, when completed, will be the largest and fastest high powered passenger steamship ever built in the United States. The Malolo is under construction for the Matson Navigation company at Cramp's shipyard, Philadelphia. When put in service in the spring of 1927, between San Francisco and Honolulu, she is expected to make the round trip in eight days, cutting four days from the time by the fastest vessels now on the run. The pumps of the swiftest scout cruisers of the United States navy will set the standard for the huge pumps of the Malolo. In exact figures, the Malolo's pumps will have a capacity of 32,615 gallons a minute, or 48,405,600 gallons a day—enough, on the basis of twenty-five gallons a person a day to supply every man, woman and child in a city of 1,932,000.

In after years a man may not be averse to acknowledging the superior wisdom of the other fellow who had a chance to marry his wife but didn't.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

The Strange Escape of Danny Meadow Mouse

Who proves himself possessed of pluck
To win needs but a little luck.
—Danny Meadow Mouse.

When Black Pussy jumped for Danny Meadow Mouse she thought she was going to get him. In fact, she felt sure of it. She was quite certain that if she missed on that first jump she would get him on the second one. She could almost taste Meadow Mouse. Yes, sir, Black Pussy could almost taste Meadow Mouse, she was so sure she was going to catch Danny.

Now, when she had sprung at Danny, he had been running along beside a dead limb which had fallen from a tree growing beside the Long Lane. Danny knew nothing about that fallen limb, for this was the first time he had seen it. He had never been over there before. Out of the corner of one eye Danny saw Black Pussy just in time. My, such a fright as he had! As she sprang, he sprang. As you already know, Black Pussy barely missed him. Danny knew that she would instantly spring again. Black Pussy was very quick and no one knows this better than Danny. You should have seen those short legs of his move. He had to find a safe hiding place and find it quickly. There was no time to go looking for one. No, sir, there was not time to go looking for one. If there wasn't a hiding place right quickly, he would most certainly find a last hiding place in the stomach of Black Pussy. So, frightened as he was, Danny's sharp little eyes didn't miss a thing. One jump! Two jumps! Three jumps! Was that a little hole in that fallen branch? It was. Into it whisked Danny. It was a little hole which had been made long ago by Drummer the Woodpecker. Mrs Drummer had had a nest in that limb before it had fallen from the tree.

It was luck. Danny says so himself. It was luck that he should have been so close to that hole when Black Pussy discovered him. But there was something more than luck in that escape too. If Danny hadn't used his legs and used his eyes to the best of his ability even when he thought it was useless, he wouldn't have escaped.

Black Pussy was a surprised cat. She had been so sure that that second spring of hers would catch Danny that she couldn't believe it when those black paws of hers landed on nothing but the ground. Danny had slipped into that hole from right under those paws. He had done it so quickly that Black Pussy hadn't seen what became of him. Such a funny look as there was on her face. But, of course, it didn't take her long to discover that hole. She could get a paw in, but that was all. Of course, she put a paw in. She put a paw in with the claws all out, feeling for Danny Meadow Mouse. She hoped to get those claws into him and pull him out. Danny wasn't there. At least, he wasn't in reach of those claws. He was quite some little distance from those claws, and actually was laughing to himself as he heard Black Pussy feeling around for him. You see, that limb was now hollow nearly its whole length. That is why it had broken off and fallen. So Danny had scampered along to the other end of it. He was smart enough, however, not to leave it. He made himself comfortable inside and waited.

Into it whisked Danny

"I wonder where Nanny Meadow Mouse is?" thought Danny. "I do hope she had sense enough to stay where she was. Black Pussy didn't see her. I'll just stay here until Black Pussy has gone away; then I'll go back to look for Nanny unless she comes down here looking for me. My goodness, that was a narrow escape! But an escape is an escape, no matter how narrow it is, so what's the good of thinking about it. I suppose Black Pussy will sit down and watch that hole for a long time. That's the way she does. If it were not for Nanny I would hurry along. As it is, I guess I'll have to wait."

MANY HOUSEKEEPERS TOO ILL TO WORK

How Many Are Finding Relief from Weakness and Pain. Mrs. Brandenburg a Notable Case

MRS. EMIL O. BRANDENBURG
661 37TH STREET, MILWAUKEE, WISCONSIN

Milwaukee, Wisconsin.—"I was in a badly run-down condition and I would get weak spells and terrible headaches. I felt so badly last year that I could not do any housecleaning. The minute I would lift or stoop it seemed as if I was going to fall to pieces. I told a neighbor how I felt and she said that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was surely the right thing for me. I took four bottles then and in the fall of the year I took three. I had been treated by a doctor, but he gave me an iron tonic and that did not help me. It seemed that the tonic did not have in it what the Vegetable Compound did. That gave me the strength and ambition I needed and I have gained in weight. This year before I started to clean house I got four bottles of the Vegetable Compound and am taking it right along. I tell all my friends about it and how much good it does me. They can notice it because I have gained in weight. I weigh 118 now and do all my work myself again."
—Mrs. EMIL O. BRANDENBURG, 661 37th Street, Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Mrs. Earl's Recovery

Horace, Nebraska.—"I had terrible pains and backache, so bad that I could hardly move, and I would have to lie down at times. I read advertisements of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I was so sick that I thought I would try it. My husband knew it was good as he knew a woman it had helped. It took all my pains away and I don't have any backache now. I do my own housework, take care of a few chickens and my garden, and have a little girl three years old to look out for. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to my friends and I will answer all the questions I can, if any one writes to me."—Mrs. ADA EARL, Box 28, Horace, Nebraska.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

CORNS AND CALLUSES

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove very hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the foot calluses, without soreness or irritation.

SOFT CORNS

Money Back Says Druggist, if Moone's Emerald Oil Doesn't Do Away With All Soreness and Pain in 24 Hours.

Get a bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil with the understanding that if it does not put an end to all the pain and soreness and do away with the corn itself your money will be promptly returned.

Never mind the cause, how long you've had it or how many other preparations you have tried. This powerful penetrating oil is the one preparation that will make your painful aching feet so healthy and free from corn and bunion troubles that you'll be able to go anywhere and do anything in absolute feet comfort.

So marvelously powerful is Moone's Emerald Oil that thousands have found it give wonderful results in the treatment of dangerous swollen or varicose veins. All druggists are selling lots of it.

PHILIP PLANT MARRIES FAMOUS STAGE BEAUTY

Philip Morgan Plant, formerly of New London, son of Mrs. William Hayward of New York and the late Selden B. Manwaring of New London and Oswegatchie, was married Tuesday at Greenwich to Constance C. Bennett, 25, stage beauty, daughter of Richard Bennett, prominent actor. The bridegroom is a stepson of Col. Hayward, former U. S. district attorney for the eastern district of New York, who married young Plant's mother, after her second husband, the late Morton F. Plant of Eastern Point died. Under the terms of Commodore Plant's will, Philip, who was adopted by him, came in for a very large share of the estate. Young Plant's bride is known as one of the most beautiful young women on the American stage.

Several months ago the parents of Judith Smith, New York society girl, for some unknown reason forced their daughter to break her engagement to Plant, and the latter shortly afterward sailed for Europe. About a year or two ago Plant settled for $25,000 a damage suit filed by Helene Jesmer former Follies star, who claimed her beauty was marred in an automobile accident on Pelham Parkway, New York, several years ago. Returning from New Haven to New York, the automobile driven by young Plant crashed into a tree and Miss Jesmer was severely injured.

The ceremony Tuesday was performed by W. S. M. Fiske, a justice of the peace. Miss Bennett previously was married on June 16, 1921, to a student, Chester Hirst Moorehead, but this marriage later was annulled. Miss Bennett claimed that she married the student on a "dare."

The ceremony was performed at 2.30 at the home of Justice Fiske. He was the same justice who married Miss Bennett to Mr. Moorehead.

GIVES BENEDICT ARNOLD'S REPORT OF THE BURNING OF NEW LONDON

A Norwich resident who spent a large part of the summer in England came across a matter of great local interest during his reading there, when he found in an English magazine of 1781 the official report of General Benedict Arnold of the capture of Fort Griswold and the burning of New London in 1781. It gives details of special local interest, especially to the rising generation, many of whom are unaware of the facts concerning the engagement. With the Arnold account was also an account given by an American.

It will be noted that in Arnold's account no mention is made of the massacre, which he naturally overlooked, and his account of the burning of New London attributes it to an explosion.

Tradition declares that he set fire to the town deliberately.

No mention is made also of the subterfuge employed by Arnold, which accounts for the small garrison at Fort Griswold when it was attacked. We have been told that it was customary to announce the arrival of a captured British ship brought into New London harbor by a signal of three guns. The signal for the Minute Men to gather at the fort to meet an attack by the enemy was two guns. Arnold knew this, and when a signal of two guns was fired at the approach of the British, Arnold had a third gun fired, consequently the Minute Men did not go to the fort and it was practically undefended.

In the American account of the engagement there is a veiled reference to the massacre in the mention of actions of the British "contrary to the rules of war."

In the story of the massacre that has come down to us it is related that the British officer in command advanced after the flag had been pulled down and said: "Who commands here?" Col. Ledyard went up to him and said: "I did, but you do now," and presented his sword. With that the British officer stabbed him through the body with his own sword and this was the signal for a general massacre of the garrison. A number of the wounded were placed in the magazine and a fuse was lighted. Luckily this was extinguished before it reached the powder. Other wounded were placed in carts which were rolled down the steep hill leading to the fort. One cart struck an apple tree and the wounded were hurled to the ground. The house still stands in Groton to which these victims were taken.

Arnold's Letter

The following is the copy of the letter, published in the Gentleman's Magazine, dated November, 1781, from Brig. Gen. Arnold to His Excellency the Commander in Chief, dated Sound off Plum Island, Sept. 8, 1781:

I have the honor to inform your Excellency, that the transports with the detachments of troops under my orders anchored on the Long Island shore on the 5th inst. at two o'clock p. m., about 10 leagues from New London; and having made some necessary arrangements, weighed anchor at 7 o'clock p. m., and stood for New London with a fair wind. At one o'clock the next morning the wind suddenly shifted to the northward and it was 9 o'clock before the transports could beat in. At 10 o'clock the troops in 2 divisions and in 4 debarkations were landed, one on each side of the harbor, about 3 miles from New London, that on the Groton side consisting of the 40th and 54th regiments and the 3rd battalion of New Jersey volunteers with a detachment of yagers and artillery were under the command of Lieut. Col. Eyre.

The division on the New London side consisted of the 38th regiment of loyal Americans, the American legion, refugees, and a detachment of 50 yagers, who were immediately on landing put in motion, and at 11 o'clock being within 1-2 a mile of Fort Trumbull, which commands New London harbor, I detached Capt. Millet with 4 companies of the 38th regiment to attack the fort, who was joined on his march by Capt. Frink with one company of the American legion.

At the same time I advanced with the remainder of the division west of Fort Trumbull on the road to the town, to attack a redoubt which had kept up a brisk fire upon us for some time, but which the enemy evacuated on our approach. In this work we found 6 pieces of cannon mounted and 2 dismounted; soon after I had the pleasure Capt. Millet march into Fort Trumbull under a shower of grapeshot from a number of cannon which the enemy had turned upon him and I have the pleasure to inform your Excellency that by the sudden attack and determined bravery of the troops the Fort was carried with a loss of only 4 or 5 men killed and wounded.

Captain Millet had orders to leave one company in Fort Trumbull to detach on to the redoubt we had taken and to join me with the other two companies. No time on my part was lost in gaining the town of New London.

We were opposed by a small body of the enemy with one field piece who were so hard pressed that they were obliged to leave the piece which being iron, was spiked and left.

As soon as the enemy were alarmed in the morning, we could perceive they were busily in bending sails and endeavoring to get their privateers and other ships at Norwich river out of our reach, but the wind being small and the tide against them, they were obliged to anchor again. From information I received before and after my landing I had reason to believe that Fort Griswold, on Groton side, was very incomplete and I was assured by friends of the government, after my landing, that there were only 20 or 30 men in the fort, inhabitants in general being on board their ships and busy in saving their property. On taking possession of Fort Trumbull I found the enemy's ships would escape unless we could possess ourselves of Fort Griswold.

I therefore despatched an officer, Lieut. Col. Eyre with the intelligence I had received and requested him to make an attack upon the fort as soon as possible; at which time I expected the howitzer was up and would have been made use of.

On my gaining a height of ground in the rear of New London from which I had a good prospect of Fort Griswold, I found it much more formidable than I had expected, or that I had formed an idea of from the information I had received. I observed at the same time that the men who had escaped from Fort Trumbull had crossed in boats and thrown themselves into Fort Griswold and a favorable wind spring up about this time the enemy's ships were escaping up the river, notwithstanding the fire from Fort Trumbull and the six pounder which I had with me.

I immediately despatched a boat with an officer to Lieut. Col. Eyre to countermand my first orders to attack the Fort but the officer arrived a few minutes too late.

Lieut. Col. Eyre had sent Captain Beckwith a flag to demand a surrender of the fort which was peremptorily refused and the attack had commenced.

After a most obstinate defense of nearly 40 minutes the fort was carried by the superior bravery and perseverance of the assailants. The attack was judicious and spirited and reflects the highest honor on the officers and troops engaged who seemed to vie with each other in being first in danger.

The troops approached on three sides of the works, which was a square, with flanks, made a lodgement in the ditch and under a heavy fire, which they kept up on the works, effected a second lodgement on the traising, which was attended with great difficulty, as only a few pickets could be forced out or broke in a place, and was so high that the soldiers could not ascend without assisting each other.

Here the coolness and bravery of the troops was very conspicuous as the first who ascended the fraize were obliged to silence a 9 pounder which enfiladed the place on which they stood, until a sufficient body had collected to enter the works, which was done with fixed bayonets through the embrazures, where they were opposed with great obstinacy by the garrison with long spears.

On this occasion I have to regret the loss of Maj. Montgomery who was killed by a spear in entering the enemy's works, also of Ensign Whitlock of the 40th Reg., who was killed in the attack. Three other officers of the same regiment were wounded, Lieut. Col. Eyre and three other officers of the 54th Reg., were also wounded but I have the satisfaction to inform your excellency that they are all in a fair way to recovery.

Lieut. Col. Eyre, who behaved with great gallantry, having received his wounds near the works, and Maj. Montgomery being killed immediately after, the command devolved on Major Bromfield whose behavior on this occasion does him great honor.

Lieut. Col. Buskirk, with the New Jersey volunteers and artillery, being the second debarkation, came up soon after the work was carried, having been retarded by the roughness of the country. I am much obliged to this gentleman for his exertions, although the artillery did not arrive in time.

I have enclosed a return of the killed and wounded, by which your excellency will observe, that our loss, though very considerable is very short of the enemy's who lost most of their officers among whom was their commander Col. Ledyard. Eighty five men were found dead in Fort Griswold and sixty wounded, most of them mortally, their loss on the opposite side must have been considerable, but cannot be ascertained. I believe, we have about 70 prisoners, besides the wounded who were left paroled.

Ten or twelve of the enemy ships were burned among them were three of four armed vessels and one loaded with naval stores, an immense quantity of European and West Indian goods were found in the stores; among the former the cargo of the Hannah, Capt. Watson from London, lately captured by the enemy, the whole of which were burnt with the stores, which proved to contain a large quantity of gunpowder, unknown to us, the explosion of the powder, and the change of the wind, soon after the stores were fired, communicated the flames to part of the town which was notwithstanding every effort to prevent it, unfortunately destroyed.

Upward of 50 pieces of iron cannon were destroyed (exclusive of the guns of the ships) a particular return of which I cannot do myself the honor to transmit to your excellency at this time.

A very considerable magazine of powder and barracks to contain 300 men were found at Fort Griswold which Captain Lemoine of the Royal Artillery had my position directions to destroy. An attempt was made by him but unfortunately failed, he had my orders to make a second attempt the reasons why it was not done, Capt. Lemoine will have the honor to explain to your excellency.

There follows complimentary references to officers of the navy who cooperated with Arnold in this tremendous and noble engagement also a list of the killed and wounded British officers.

He concludes: "The officers and troops in general behaved with the greatest intrepidity and firmness."

B. ARNOLD

An American Account

There follows immediately after Arnold's account of the battle an American account of the engagement dated New Haven, Sept. 13th, unsigned. The substance is as follows:

Early on Thursday morning a fleet of the enemy consisting of about 30 sail one of them a frigate and two other ships of considerable force came to off New London and landed about 400 troops on the west side of the harbour near the Light House under the immediate command of General Arnold who commanded the expedition and 800 under Col. Eyre on Groton side.

As this gave the inhabitants the first notice of the hostile approach of the enemy they were not in readiness to receive them. Gen. Arnold reached New London about 10 o'clock, took possession of the town, proceeded to lay it waste by setting it on fire in several parts, destroying in the whole 58 dwelling houses, 56 stores, the Episcopal church, court house, gaol and about 22 sail of vessels, several of them loaded.

The enemy returned about 3 o'clock by the route they came and embarked on board their shipping, meeting with some opposition from a small number who had time to collect, three or four fell on each side and five or six of the enemy were made prisoners among whom is an ensign mortally wounded.

As New London was full of most kinds of goods, notwithstanding much was sent off in vessels up Norwich river, the loss is supposed to be several hundred thousand pounds.

The party under Col. Eyre stormed Fort Griswold which contained a garrison by this time about 140 men under the command of the truly amiable heroic and brave Colonel Ledyard. This small force repulsed the enemy three times but were at last overpowered.

Col. Ledyard with several officers and worthy citizens fell victims to the enemy, contrary as it is said to the most rigid rules of war.

73 were killed and about 30 wounded the chief of them after the enemy entered the fort, which they kept possession of until 10 in the evening when they left, taking 40 prisoners.

They destroyed about 25 buildings near Groton ferry, blew up the magazines in the fort, knocked the trunnions off 2 or 3 heavy cannon but did not destroy the barracks.

They left the harbour on Friday or Saturday, have since passed our harbour and gone up the sound.

COMMISSION MAKES VISIT TO STATE HOSPITAL

A commission of five appointed by Governor Trumbull to serve under an act providing for a commission on state institutions, which was passed the last session of the legislature, visited the Norwich state hospital Tuesday. They were guests of Dr. Franklin G. Wilcox at dinner, who also had as guests Judge and Mrs. Allyn L. Brown and Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, Mrs. Brown presiding at the dinner table as Mrs. Wilcox is away in Florida.

The commission, whose chairman is John Wadhams and the members Mr. Clark, Mr. Childs, Mr. Pierpont and Mr. Hendricks, visited parts of the hospital, the new ward building, the power house and the new bakery. The purpose of the commission is to determine the advisability of increasing or diminishing the capacity of any institution and to decide as to the necessity of a new institution for the care of mental cases.

HALLOWE'EN EVENT HELD AT UNCAS-ON-THAMES

A most delightful Hallowe'en party was given Tuesday evening at Uncas-on-Thames, for the benefit of the patients and staff of that institution. The party was held in the men's infirmary ward which had been tastefully decorated in Hallowe'en attire.

The entertainment began with a parade through the wards, all costumed, people parading for the benefit of the patients confined to the beds, the array of costumes affording no little amusement to those not fortunate enough to take an active part in the activities of the evening.

As the marchers passed about the wards, the Judges, Rev. J. Eldred Brown, Rev. John J. Reilly, Hugh Campbell, Sr., Miss Martha Osgood and Miss Lottie Williams, selected the winners in the various groups, the prizes being awarded by Rev. J. Eldred Brown, as follows: To the staff, most original, Miss May Strong, fisherman; best, Miss Sally Boyd, Chinese girl; most comical, Curtiss Holland, hobo. Men patients, most original, Vincent Battle, tramp; best, George Thum, Toreador; most comical, Daniel Crummins, baby. Women patients, most original, Miss Bessie O'Keefe, The Flame; best, Miss Anna Beazon, Hawaiian girl; most comical, Miss Mildred Fritzell, boy. The child prize was awarded to Miss Lucy Kelly, French doll.

During the evening a delightful musical program was rendered by Kells Patch's orchestra, who were secured through courtesy of the New London Elks. Felix P. Callahan of Norwich was floor director and kept things moving lively and the pleasing decorations were the work of Aubrey Travers and Miss Violet Comsick. One of the special features of the evening was the refreshment number, delicious cider, apples and doughnuts being furnished for the party, while Hallowe'en favors, donated by the New London Elks and candy furnished by the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women were also welcomed.

The party was attended by numerous visitors from New London, Norwich and other places and the entire affair was made possible through the holiday fund, which is used throughout the year to provide entertainment for the patients at the hospital.

MISCHIEVOUS COHANZIE BOYS STOLE AUTO TUBE CAPS

What is termed as a mischievous boys contest has been holding sway in the Cohanzie section of the town of Waterford for the past week, much to the dismay of automobilists who had occasion to stop in that vicinity with a result of nearly 1,000 automobile tube caps being stolen from automobiles and in many cases the air being let out of the tires.

Complaint was made to the state police and Officer Schweikert investigated and has put an end to the practice at present.

From his investigation it was disclosed that several pupils of the Cohanzie school were competing to see who could get the most caps. When apprehended the winner of the contest had 350 of the caps in his possession. The second boy had 175 and the third 90. Several other boys had a dozen or more in their possession. When the boys began to let the air out of tires they brought the contest to a rather sudden close. The boys were all under 16 years of age and accordingly were not prosecuted. They have been placed under probation however. The caps were confiscated by the state police and the owners are welcome to get them back.

Women Secure

against lost charm this new way of solving oldest hygienic problem

SHEER gowns and ill-timed social or business demands hold no terror for the modern woman. The insecurity of the old-time "sanitary pad" has been ended.

"KOTEX," a new and remarkable way, is now used by 8 in 10 better class women.

It's five times as absorbent as ordinary cotton pads!

You dine, dance, motor for hours in sheerest frocks without a second's doubt or fear.

It deodorizes, too. And thus stops ALL danger of offending.

Discards as easily as a piece of tissue. No laundry. No embarrassment.

You ask for it at any drug or department store, without hesitancy, simply by saying "KOTEX."

Do as millions are doing. End old, insecure ways. Enjoy life every day. Package of twelve costs only a few cents.

KOTEX

No laundry—discard like tissue

Hair Beauty

Thick, Gleamy Hair —Full of Life

The constant curling and waving demanded by modern style in hair dress, slowly burns the color, lustre and very life from the hair, leaving it dry, faded, brittle, streaked with gray; then the hair roots shrink and the hair falls out fast.

A 25-cent bottle of refreshing, fragrant "Danderine" will do wonders for any girl's hair. This vitalizing beautytonic acts on the hair like fresh showers of rain and sunshine act on vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates, nourishes and strengthens them, helping the hair to grow thick, healthy and luxuriant.

Try this for one week! While combing and dressing your hair, moisten your brush with a little "Danderine" and brush it through your hair—the effect is startling! Your hair immediately takes on new life and that healthy, youthful lustre, becomes incomparably soft, wavy and appears twice as thick and abundant.

LOCAL BOY IS PLAYING BRILLIANT GAME WITH AGGIE FRESHMAN TEAM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Nov. 3.—Injuries took a heavy toll among the members of the Connecticut Aggie Freshman football eleven in the game with the Springfield yearlings here last Saturday, and Coach Alexander will be forced to make several shifts before his team lines up against the Rhode Island State freshmen here next Saturday.

Captain Sahaglan is out with a bad case of "Charley Horse," and he will be unable to start against Rhode Island. Williams, Willimantic boy, who played a great game for the frosh at quarterback will have to watch the game from the sidelines because of a knee injury. His defensive work was one of the features in the game with Springfield, and he will be missed in the Rhode Island game. Dickson, star halfback from New Haven, and the most consistent ground gainer for the Aggie cubs will be out because of a broken finger. Schildgren, an end from Naugatuck, will be prevented from playing by a hip injury.

The loss of these men will force Coach Alexander to make several radical changes in his lineup in order to present a balanced combination to Rhode Island. Work in this respect got under way in today's practice session, and several different lineups were used.

The one that looked the best was as follows: Ends Hewitt and Wilson, the latter being shifted over from a tackle berth; tackles, Sayers and Crombie; guards, Calicurcio and Gilman; center, Callahan; quarterback, Cox or Anderson; halfbacks, Knaut and Brown; fullback, Allard.

Gilman, Norwich boy playing guard, looks like one of the outstanding men in the Aggie yearling's line. Although weighing but 148 pounds, the Norwich boy out through the line repeatedly in the Springfield game, nailing the runner for a loss. He should make strong varsity material in another year or two, after he puts on more weight.

ROBINSON IS COMBING BUSHES FOR TIMBER

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Uncle Wilbert Robinson, big chief of the Brooklyn Nationals, is leaving no bush uncombed in his efforts to gather together a winning combination for the 1926 baseball campaign. The Dodgers finished dismally this year after giving the Giants a great fight for the 1924 pennant and Robinson is busy revamping his forces.

The club's reserve list of players for the next year, just made public, reveals a substantial number of changes and additions. The biggest deal so far since the close of the regular season has brought Gus Felix, Mickey O'Neil and Jess Barnes to Brooklyn in exchange for Zach Taylor, Jimmy Johnston and Ed Brown. In addition, Robbie has an imposing array of newcomers from minor league fields.

Seventeen of the 35 players on the reserve list are pitchers, a corps from which Brooklyn hopes to obtain greater strength in the box than existed this year. Two of the most promising candidates are George Boehler and Douglas McWeeney, both obtained from the Pacific Coast League and both having had major league experience. Boehler, with Oakland, and McWeeney, with the champion San Francisco Seals, were among the best on the coast this past season. Hollingsworth, recalled from Portland, Ore., Bennett from Blackwell, Okla., Moss, from Memphis and Stelecki from Grisfield, Md., are other likely twirling prospects.

Aside from Kohlbecker, a catching recruit from Memphis, all the other new men are infield candidates, including Herman from Seattle; Standaert, recalled from Springfield, Mass.; Partridge, recalled from Waterbury, Conn. and Corgan, purchased from Wichita, Kansas.

ACADEMY SQUAD IN HIGH SPEED FOR BULKELEY

Coach Whitney put his men through a long, hard practice session Tuesday in preparation for their forthcoming game with Bulkeley High at New London on Saturday afternoon. Practice opened with kicking drill which was later followed by a long signal practice. The entire team is working with a vim that bodes evil for Bulkeley.

The N. F. A. came out lucky in Saturday's contest in regard to injuries. The only men who were hurt were Pelsky, a guard who received an injury to his leg and Mousley who has been having trouble with his shoulder. Both of these men have been out to practice the past two days but have not been in uniform. They are expected to be in readiness to start in Saturday's game. The members of the local team are predicting that they will beat Bulkeley by at least four touchdowns. It is hoped that the local team will turn their down river rivals back with a decisive victory. If the Academy players display the same pep and action in Saturday's contest that they do in practice the game will be a walk away for them.

NUTMEGS HELD LONG SIGNAL DRILL LAST NIGHT

The Nutmegs football squad held a long signal drill Tuesday evening in preparation for Sunday's game with the Jewett City Speed-boys in Jewett City. A few new plays were introduced which, with those already known, should be sufficient to insure victory for the local boys' Sunday in the upstate village game. If the local club plays any kind of good football in the game Sunday they should be returned the victor as the team-work that was lacking in past games is now in evidence as the result of frequent drills. Another practice session will be held Friday night at which the local boys will polish off their attack and strengthen up their defense.

GRANGE VS. M'CARTHY IN CHICAGO-ILLINOIS GAME

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—(AP)—"Red" Grange versus "Five Yards" McCarthy may be the story of the Illinois-Chicago gridiron meeting at Urbana this week. They are the ground gaining stars of their respective teams.

The Illinois brick top leader is in fine physical trim after his exploits in downing Pennsylvania. McCarthy is living up to his sobriquet in practice even as he has done against Maroon opponents. In their respective games Saturday Grange averaged better than 10 yards every time he carried the ball, while McCarthy averaged 6 1-5 yards against Purdue. Grange's longest run was 55 yards, McCarthy's 31. The Maroon battering ram played only a part of the game, but Stagg plans to use him throughout the Illinois contest.

NOTED SWIMMERS TO TAKE COACHING POSITIONS

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(AP)—The Women's Swimming association announced today that Gertrude Ederle and Aileen Riggin, two of its best known champions, would shortly relinquish their amateur standing to engage in teaching and coaching at a pool in Miami, Fla.

WINDHAM LAYS CLAIM TO STATE FOOTBALL TITLE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 3.—With the defeat of Wilby High of Waterbury and holding Hartford Public High to a scoreless game and meeting with no defeat since the year 1922 the Windham High School gridders stand as contenders for the state interscholastic championship. The schedule for this season calls for an encounter with South Manchester in the Silktown's home ground next Saturday and a game in this city November 14, with Bristol High as the opposition. Only an out and out pessimist could say that the games will not be victorious for the locals. Manchester High offered a tough tussle last year when encountered but with the last graduation exercises went several of its most formidable stars and it now stands in a weakened condition. Having outplayed Hartford Public High school which has been ploughing through all opposition, so convincingly to any impartial spectator on October 24, Windham appears now to have the inside position in any running for state championship honors in view of the fact that the Capitol City gridders have a better than even chance to defeat their traditional rivals, New Britain High, which also remains undefeated. This feeling arises even though Hartford High and Windham battled to a scoreless deadlock. Windham's mastership of the game appeared preeminent to all, except of course, to the Hartfordites. Windham also has two outstanding players who must be considered in the ranking for positions on the mythical all-state eleven. They are "Tommy Meikle" quarterback and halfback and Tomasco, the signal caller from the right tackle position. He is the strongest lineman to ever represent Windham and to date has outplayed all of his opponents, including the Hartford game, in brilliant displays of gridiron ability.

AGGIES HAVE STIFF PRACTICE YESTERDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Conn., Nov. 3.—Preparing for the New Hampshire game at Manchester, N. H., next Saturday, Coach Sumner Dole gave his Connecticut Aggie team a stiff session of scrimmage this afternoon.

Work was devoted almost entirely to bolstering the Aggies' aerial attack, which this season has not functioned any too smoothly. The first team was given the ball, and for forty-five minutes a veritable barrage of passes were tossed over the heads of the second team. Everything in the aerial line was attempted; short passes, long passes, flat passes, and double passes. Dole alternated his passers and receiver, working to make this line of attack as deceptive as possible.

Against New Hampshire, Dole will probably make one or two shifts in his lineup. Captain Brink will be back on one of the wing positions, with either Fienneman or Logan on the other end of the line. John Daly, Hartford boy, will go back to his old position at center, and Lorentzen has a good chance of getting the call for the right guard berth. Bilgood is sure of starting at left guard, and Nanfeldt and Zolin are sure bets in the tackle berths. Behind the line, Schofield will call signals, Makofski will play fullback, and Moreland will play right half. The other backfield berth will be filled by Filmer or Eddy.

EUROPEAN BOXERS TO INVADE AMERICA SOON

NEW YORK, Nov. 3. (AP)—Europe threatens to take the place of South America in the indoor season of professional boxing, with Johnny Brown, the bantam champion across the seas, coming here to tackle Charlie Phil Rosenberg, who gained the title from Eddie (Cannonball) Martin.

Tommy Mulligan, the "Irishman born in Scotland," may gain an engagement with Mickey Walker, world's welterweight titleholder before the winter is gone, and little Edouard Mascart, who has sought a battle with the featherweight king, Louis (Kid) Kaplan, of Meriden, Conn., remains in the country, still on the trail of the title that the war hero, Eugene Criqui, won and lost over here in 1922. Other Europeans ready for action here are Lucien Vines lightweight, and Vincent Sannes, Spanish featherweight.

Johnny Brown is a colorful little lad known as the "Newsboy from Whitechappel." Three times he has won the Lord Lonsdale belt and now holds it permanently.

EASTERN LEAGUERS IN SESSION NEXT WEEK

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Nov. 3. (AP)—The annual meeting of the Eastern Baseball league will be held next Tuesday in Waterbury, according to an announcement by Dan O'Neil, president, here today. Mr. O'Neil's five-year term expired with the close of the current season, the election of a president being the chief business before the magnates. Mr. O'Neil undoubtedly will be reelected for another long term.

The annual meeting is generally held in December, but the session has been put ahead this season because John Sullivan, owner of the Waterbury club, pennant winners, and James H Clarkin, Hartford magnate, are leaving this section soon, Mr. Sullivan going to Europe and Mr. Clarkin south.

RESIGNS RATHER THAN PLAY DEMPSEY'S GAME

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Nov. 3—(A. P.)—Rob Roy Benton, publicity director and counsellor of Jack Dempsey world's heavyweight champion, announced tonight that he was resigning from the champion's employ, rather than become a party to what he described as an imminent invalidation of the Fitzsimmons contract for a bout between Dempsey and Harry Wills, the negro challenger, next year.

VETERAN JOCKEY RULED OFF TURF FOR LIFE

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 3—(A. P.)—J. A. Mooney, a veteran jockey, today was ruled off the tracks of the Kentucky Jockey club for life. Mooney's expulsion came after Jockey D. Mergler had confessed to the racing stewards that he had pulled Bumpkin, a two year old belonging to Frederick Johnson, eastern turfman, in a race at Latonia Oct. 10. Mergler implicated Mooney in his confession, it was said.

PITTSBURGH HOCKEY TEAM HAS BEEN DISBANDED

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Disbanding of the Pittsburgh Amateur Hockey League because of failure to agree with the Duquesne Garden management for rental of the rink, was announced today by James McKay, president of the club. The team had been granted a franchise in the central group of the United States Amateur Hockey association.

Pittsburgh holds a franchise in the National Professional Hockey league.

SPORT BRIEFS

Wellesley college boasts of the only woman crew couch in the country.

Johnny Maiben has been crowned king of eastern jockeys for the 1925 season with 81 purses, one more than the total of Laverne Fator. Earl Sande was third with 63 victories.

The New York Hockey club seems determined to get somewhere this season, as evidenced by its offer of $10,000 for the services of George Boucher, the star defence man of the Ottawa Hockey association.

Lucien Vines, lightweight boxer of France in this country looking for fistic trouble, claims to have taken a resin bath under the compelling influence of rival fists only once in 416 bouts.

Gildobian pessimism has not yet hit Washington and its baseball loving public. The Senators announce that over 400 applications for 1926 world series reservations have already been received.

Leading professional golfers will enter a nine-hole indoor putting competition in New York tonight. Walter Hagen, Willie MacFarlane, Johnny Farrell, Gene Sarazen and Leo Diegel are among the entries.

For years the biggest gridiron event of the season in West Virginia has been the annual clash between West Virginia university and West Virginia Wesleyan. In seventeen years the State university has won 13 of the games.

The Haskel Indians of Lawrence, Kansas, apparently are out to eclipse Notre Dame's football touring record. The redskins have played on opposite sides of the continent within a few weeks. They lost to Boston college at Boston Oct. 12 and defeated Gonzaga at Spokane, Washington, last Saturday.

Red Grange scored one of his touchdowns against Pennsylvania on a play that Coach Zuppke of Illinois calls a "flea's flicker." It was a double lateral pass from a fake placement kick formation and worked beautifully. Penn's defense being caught flatfooted as the agile Grange grabbed a quick throw and flitted over the line.

An American who is playing golf in many countries on a tour of the world has informed the United States Golf association that courses in India, China, Japan and Egypt are closed to visitors on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays because of crowded conditions.

Polo Grounds officials reiterate that applications even for single seats for the Army-Navy football game are only so much wasted effort. Every seat, with the exception of a few in the boxes, has been sold, they assert.

EASTERN TEAMS HOLD EDGE ON WEST IN INTERSECTIONAL FOOTBALL GAMES

NEW YORK, Nov. 3—Although the east still holds a wide margin over other areas in the intersectional gridiron battles this season, so far as statistical records go, it will have a hard time living down the memory of the stunning setbacks administered by Illinois to Pennsylvania and Michigan to the navy.

These two triumphs, together with Ohio State's defeat of Columbia, have done more than anything in years to lift middle western gridiron prestige to a high level, besides more than offsetting this fall the defeats which Army administered to Notre Dame, Pennsylvania to Chicago and the Navy to Marquette.

Records for all intersectional play so far shows the east leading with twenty victories, with eight credited to the middle west and only three to the south. Where western conference or "big ten" elevens have matched their strength with leading eastern arrays, the middle west has come in with three victories and only two defeats. One more clash of this character is in the schedule with Dartmouth going west to play Chicago on November 14.

Notre Dame seems to have recovered from the shock of its defeat by the Army and is bowling over opposition far and wide. This week Knute Rockne's men come east again to tackle Penn State, and the Hoosiers probably will be favored to win.

This is the only intersectional clash of major importance in a week those high spots are confined more to the renewal of traditional feuds such as the battles embrolling Chicago with Illinois, at Urbana, Princeton with Harvard at Palmer stadium and Cornell with Dartmouth at Hanover, the latter a struggle of unbeaten teams.

Yale, preparing for Princeton the following week, has an intersectional foe in Maryland but the southerners hardly measure up to the strength that forced the Elis to the limit two years ago.

The Army, gathering up the pieces after the impact of defeat at the hands of Yale, meets its fifth intersectional opponent of the second in Davis-Elkins, from West Virginia. Syracuse, the only unbeaten outfit whose goal line also is uncrossed so far, is unlikely to keep this record intact against Ohio Wesleyan in another intersectional encounter. While Boston college entertains West Virginia University in an interesting engagement.

The record of intersectional games so far follows:

Total Won
East
Middle West
South
Far West

East	x	15	5	0	20
Middle West	5	x	3	1	8
South	2	1	x	0	3
Total lost	7	16	8	1

Ties, East Middle West and Far West-Middle West, one each.

MANY NORWICH PEOPLE TO ATTEND BROWN-B. U. GAME

The football experiment that is to be tried out at the Brown-Boston university game at Providence Saturday is attracting nation-wide attention and many football enthusiasts from Norwich will attend this experimental game. The plan deals with the doing away with the time periods in a game and limiting each quarter to 40 plays. This is a plan which has been under discussion for a number of years, primarily to do away with the so-called stalling for time by the team that is leading toward the fag end of the game.

Just how this will work out is problematical. There is much discussion, pro and con, and Tad Jones, football mentor at Yale has come out flat-footed against the innovation. Other coaches, especially among the smaller colleges are in favor of it, claiming that many teams have been beaten through the stalling tactics used by a heavier team. Those in favor of the 40-play system claim that with a score against one team the opposing aggregation in the last few minutes of play has taken possession of the ball and by re-calling signals and otherwise delaying the game have used up the remaining time of the period so that the team with the smaller score has had no chance. They claim that the 40-play syste mwill eliminate this practice and will give the team with the short end of the score a better chance. They claim that a team will have a better understanding of how to lay out a campaign against the opposing team. They can perfect plays that are guaranteed to gain so much yardage and then figure just the number of plays that will give them a touchdown if all goes well. It will give them an opportunity to open the play or to play a defensive game as the case maybe.

An example of the new system is as follows: It is the last quarter and the score stands seven to six. The team with the small score takes possession of the ball on their owne twenty-five yard line on downs. There are five plays left and under the old system there is about two minutes to play. Under the old system it would mean that the team in possession of the ball would have to hurry. They would naturally be tense and nervous which would greatly increase the chances of fumbles. Under the new system there are five plays left before the end of the game. There is plenty of time, no nervousness and plenty of time for a conferences of players to consider the best form of attack. The team with the small score has a number of plays that are certain of gaing just so much ground. The quarterback calls these plays and everything goes off according to Hoyle. The needed ground is gained and the ball goes over for a touchdown. The team with the smaller score has planned their attack and by systematic playing has won. Under the present rules the quarterback would have been unable to tell just how much time it would take to run off his plays and if something went amiss the opposing team would take possession of the ball and through the stalling tactics would use up the remaining time.

Those against the new system declare that the new rule would take away much from the intensity of the game, that battle against time in the last few minutes of play, which holds spectators and players in its thrill. The opposition claim athat a team might get on the one yard line on the fortieth play but by the watch there would still be a minute left to play and in that time under the present system a score might be made.

There is much to be said about the new system but Saturday's game will go a long way towafd proving its worth and many of the football coaches of the east will be present at the game.

The Pimlico Futurity, richest of the stake offerings at the Maryland Jockey club meeting to open on November 2, is a comparatively new turf fixture, having been established in 1921. In that year Morvich, unbeaten as a two-year-old, won the rich stake.

The Portland club of the Pacific Coast league has purchased Johnny Couch, right hand pitcher, from the Philadelphia Nationals. Coach formerly was with the San Francisco club. He was sold to Cincinnati in the winter of 1921-22 and has since been with major league clubs.

RUFFED GROUSE ARE IN SERIOUS SITUATION

The Connecticut Sportsman describes in its current issue as follows the serious situation affecting ruffed grouse in this state and other parts of New England and Canada:

Our great American game bird, the ruffed grouse—erroneously called the partridge—seems to be very nearly doomed by an epidemic disease about which little is known thus far. Reports have just come in from Nova Scotia that there are almost no grouse left in this province. The grouse of New Brunswick have been almost exterminated in the last two years, apparently by the same disease. The grouse of Michigan are nearly gone, although two years ago they were reported more abundant than for many years. Parts of New England—particularly some counties in this state—have suffered in the same way. Reports from all over this state, as well as Massachusetts, most of Vermont and New Hampshire indicate that there is barely a breeding stock left, and all this destruction by disease has taken place since the spring of 1924, barely eighteen months ago.

The Connecticut and Massachusetts birds have been decimated in spite of a practically close season last fall on account of the drought, and the sportsmen of New England—particularly of Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island and eastern New York state—must refrain from killing the small remnant of ruffed grouse, in fairness to the grouse there should be a close season this fall in all the areas seriously affected by this epidemic, but the sportsmen are so well organized and so determined to protect the game that an emergency proclamation by the governor will probably not be necessary.

The seriousness of the situation can hardly be overstated. A committee to investigate the grouse situation was appointed by the American Game Protective Association last winter; and the committee is well worth careful reading.

Any dead grouse or partridge found within the state of Connecticut should be immediately mailed by parcel post to the Fish and Game commission, Hartford, Conn., and it will be appreciated if the viscera, that is the entrails, including the stomach, and crop, could be put in a small bottle of formaldehyde solution and mailed at once to the Fish and Game Commission, Hartford, Conn.

The Fish and Game Commission would appreciate very much indeed any field observations bearing on this problem—increase or decrease in the number of birds of any given locality, any evidence of disease, or birds in poor condition. It is to be hoped that by intensive study the cause and the remedy can be found and the greatest of game birds saved for posterity.

It is very important that the sportsmen of Connecticut co-operate in the investigation of the disease of the grouse by carefully inspecting for possible signs of the infection all birds that they kill, also every one should be on the watch for bodies of birds that might have died from the disease.

Superintendent Titcomb, of the State Board of Fisheries and Game, will accept specimens and be glad to forward them to Dr. Alfred O. Gross, of Bowdoin college, Brunswick, Me. Sportsmen may, however, send specimens direct to Dr. Gross.

It is especially important that with each specimen the label, which must accompany it, contain all the information requested.

Sportsmen or others finding dead grouse should send them at once as above directed. These should be sent entire if possible. Every dead bird found and each bird shot should be examined for external parasite and if any are found such as Hippoboscid flies, mites or ticks, these should be enclosed in a small bottle and forwarded. The entire carcasses of birds may be packed in salt for shipment. When the viscera only are sent these may be hardened in a formaldehyde solution for a few hours and then wrapped and shipped dry. In such case the entire alimentary tract should be preserved including the crop.

Directions to Co-operators

Supply yourself with several quart jars and fill them half full of a five per cent. solution of formaldehyde. You will also want for each specimen a ten inch square piece of cheesecloth or old cotton cloth and a strong tag or label. As soon as possible after the bird has been shot open it for its full length on the side, taking care not to cut into the viscera, and remove the entire viscera including the crop. Place this in the square cheesecloth and tie it up securely. Prepare the label writing in India ink or soft pencil giving the following facts:

1. Name of collector and address.
2. Exact locality where bird was shot: Town, county, state.
3. Date when bird was taken.
4. Statement whether grouse are above or below normal in this locality (If you have noticed any sudden increase or decrease or other fact that requires more than a few words, accompany the specimen with a letter.)

Drop the specimen into the formaldehyde and leave it there for from a few days to a week before draining, wrapping and shipping.

ACCUSED OF USING KNIFE TO THREATEN

In the city court Monday morning the case of Pacifico Duga of High street, charged with breach of the peace, came up for trial. Duga pleaded not guilty to the charge made by Gabriel Romanowski of 88 High street, that he had drawn a knife and threatened him, the trouble alleged to have been caused when Romanowski refused to give Duga a recipt for the rent, claiming that he had already given him one receipt.

Due to the fact that Duga had once before been in court for using a knife, Judge A. P. Libby did not nolle the case, but continued it until December. In the meantime Duga is to move and pay Romanowski the rent and money for groceries due him.

A case against two Portuguese, one of whom had appeared in court previously, was heard and a fine of $5 and costs was imposed.

JEWETT CITY MAN IS FOUND DEAD IN BED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Nov. 3.—William Lord was found dead in bed Tuesday night at his home on the Dr. Sweet farm. A neighbor, Leon Young, not seeing him about the place notified S. H. P. Clement of Jewett City and with him and Deputy Sheriff Dolan entered the house and found Mr. Lord with his clothes on in bed. Medical Examiner G. H. Jennings said he had been dead 48 hours and the cause evidently was acute indigestion. Sunday he visited the Lathren family on Stone Hill and was seen about the farm later that day, but had not been seen since. He lived alone in the house. He is survived by a great aunt, Mrs. Lydia Harris of Pawtucket and a niece, Mrs. F. H. P. Clement of Jewett City. He was the son of Elias Lord.

Automobile Brakes Started Fire

The fire department was called out at 1:58 o'clock Tuesday afternoon by an alarm from Box 116, Washington Square, when an automobile caught fire. The fire was quickly extinguished and there was little damage to the car, which belonged to a Westerly man. The fire was in the brakes of the machine and the firemen were not needed to put out the fire.

"HAIR-GROOM"

Keeps Hair Combed, Glossy Well-Groomed all Day

"Hair-Groom" is a dignified combing cream which costs only a few cents a jar at any drug-store. Millions use it because it gives that natural gloss and well-groomed effect to the hair—that final touch to good dress both in business and in social occasions. Even stubborn, unruly or shampooed hair stays combed all day in any style you like. "Hair-Groom" is greaseless; also helps grow thick, heavy, lustrous hair.

WESTERLY

An appeal has been made to war-time knitters of Westerly and vicinity by Judge John Barton Payne, who states that there are still 36,000 disabled veterans in the government hospitals throughout the country. The supply of sweaters has been exhausted and with cold weather coming on there is great need of warm clothing which the men in many cases are unable to purchase. Now an especial appeal is made to those war-time knitters to continue the work. Wool for sweaters may be obtained at the headquarter of the Westerly chapter of the American Red Cross, Miss Lucy M Crowley, executive secretary, 43 High street, Westerly.

Louis A. Rossi, Westerly zoning inspector, returned to his home in Westerly Monday from New York, where he accompanied his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. Rossi, who sailed Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock on the Italian Lloyd (Saltando) fine steamship Conte Rosso, for Naples and Genoa, Italy, where they plan to make a visit with relatives and friends.

Miss Elizabeth D. Pendleton returned Tuesday morning to her duties with the Westerly branch of the Prudential Insurance company, after a visit accompanied by her sister of Stonington, to New York, where ten days' vacation were passed.

Miss Annie Edmond is having a vacation from her duties as a bookkeeper with the Washington Trust company.

Mr. and Mrs. George M. Leach (Ethel M. Burdick) were automobile visitors in Westerly the past week from New Hampshire, N. J., guests of Dr. Robert H. Farnham and family, before proceeding to St. Albans, Vt., and returning home.

Mrs. Mary Goff of New York city has arrived in Westerly and is the guest of friends in Ashaway for a two-weeks visit.

William Lamphear is substituting as a driver the present week for the Hoxie Taxi service of Westerly.

Harry Potter is acting manager of the Westerly branch of the Prudential Insurance company during the absence of Agent Richard Mitchell, who is on his vacation.

The Quality Bridge club of Westerly met Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Merton L. Stott on Spruce street. The first prize was won by Mrs. Fannie R. Stott while the consolation award went to Mrs. Jessie M. Laing.

Tuesday election in Westerly for town and district officers was held with generally fair weather, the polls remaining open from 9 a. m. to 7 p. m. There appeared only one slate to be voted for, though blank spaces on the ballot provided for anyone who wished to write in names of anyone for whom he desired to vote.

The polls opened in the second Westerly voting district soon after 9 o'clock, when Moderator Lewis Stanton called for nomination of a moderator for the election in his own intended absence. John Smith was named moderator and Mabel Saunders clerk. The supervisors were Republican, David A. Lowry and Mrs. Mary Helena Smith; Democratic, Thomas Y. Clancy and Bernard J. Christy; gate tender, Adam Archie.

The opening of the polls in this district was enlivened by the verbal tilt between Democratic Supervisor Thomas Y. Clancy and Westerly member of the Rhode Island Republican State Central Committeeman George B. Utter. Supervisor Clancy stated that the location outside of the rail of the Republican checker, Edna M. Saunders interfered with the work of the election officials, in that intendant voters first gave her their names and not to the gate tender. After further interchange of words Committeeman Utter had the table moved to the opposite side of the entrance gate. Herbert L. Burdick was the first voter to cast his ballot in this district.

Polls in the first voting district, after George B. Utter had nominated Everett A. Kingsley as moderator in the absence of the regular moderator, Ira B. Crandall, did not open until after 9.25 a. m., with John J. Dunn clerk, when the ballot box was tied around with a string when the box was forced after the key could not be found. At that time there were no Democratic supervisors present, the Republican supervisors being James H. Hodgson and Mrs. Bessie M. Clark. Gate tender, Raymond Mitchell. Clerk Dunn stated after Moderator Kingsley had visited the town clerk's office to look up the statute on elections, relative to the absence of supervisors that there should at least be a Democratic supervisor present to sign the seals when the ballots were sealed to await the recount of the Westerly Town council, which acts as a returning board. At the council meeting last Friday to appoint supervisors, Joseph A. Guarino and Joseph Delaney were named as Democratic supervisors, but they declined to act. In this circumstance Westerly Town Solicitor John Ferguson, Jr., informer President Campbell that on him devolved the duty of naming the supervisor and apparently those named by him did not care to act, as none were present when the hour of 9.30 a. m. arrived.

Council President Clifford W. Campbell was not in town Tuesday morning for he was with the Rhode Island State Mount Hope Bridge commission which was on a tour of bridge inspections.

In the probate court chamber of Westerly town hall, Tuesday afternoon, before Probate Judge Edward M. Burke probate matters were taken up at 2 o'clock and disposed of as follows:

The steam shovel was set at work Tuesday afternoon on Railroad avenue in front of the garage block of Joseph A. Guarino in the excavation of the continuance of the ditch up Railroad avenue for the laying of sewer mains. Progress has been made at the Canal street end of Railroad avenue so that the street has been cleared to just above the upper driveway approach to the Westerly station of the New Haven road. An attempt was made to rip out the old rails of the Westerly-Norwich electric car line by hooking a chain around a rail and to the digger derrick boom but the rails proved to be too firmly bedded in the highway surface. The work of excavation of the road way above the track was then started. At this point the old electric line rails are in the center of the highway and will have to be removed before the sewer pipes can be laid.

Franklin lodge, No. 20, F. and A. M. of Westerly, Frederick N. Robinson worshipful master, held a special communication Tuesday evening in the Masonic rooms, High street, when the Third or Master Mason degree was worked upon a class of candidates. Following the degree work, light refreshments were served and a social time spent by the large number present.

A freight train of 81 cars, east bound, became stalled on the grade east of the Westerly station of the New Haven road Tuesday afternoon and had to back up by the station and wait until a relief locomotive could be sent from Midway. The east-bound Hub express came into the Westerly station on the west bound track and the west bound "Shorelines" express, due to 3:08 p. m. was sent from Bradford to Westerly on the north siding, track No. 5 to allow the east-bound express to proceed to Bradford, before crossing to the east track.

Mrs. Ella M. Burdick left Westerly Tuesday by automobile for Providence to be the guest of her niece, Mrs. W. C. Lumley, for several months.

Charles E. Dubary of Pawcatuck completed his duties with the Hoxie Taxi service at the Westerly station of the New Haven road the first of the month, previous to his going south for the winter.

Frederick L. Hall of the West Side has a vacation from his duties at the office of the C. B. Cottrell and Sons company, in Pawcatuck.

D. W. Clark of New Haven was a Westerly business caller Monday later going to Providence.

George Corey returned to Westerly Monday after a short vacation trip to New York.

Charles C. Treat of Norwich was a Westerly visitor Monday, going to Pleasant View Beach to close his summer cottage for the winter.

Workmen in the employ of the New Haven railroad were engaged Monday in filling holes in the surface of the driveway between the Westerly station and plot separating the station grounds from Railroad avenue. Hot tar mixed with chipstone were used for the road patching.

The erection of the parochial school of the Immaculate Conception church at the corner of High and Dixon streets has progressed to such an extent that workmen were placing the permanent roof upon the two-story brick building Tuesday.

Robert C. Stanton of Providence, a former Westerly young man and son of the late William C. Stanton, was the guest of Westerly friends Monday.

Three women—all strangers—met in a Portland, Me., hotel elevator by chance, and they all wore dresses exactly alike. They became curious and an exchange of questions and answers developed the fact that one gown was bought in California, another in Kansas City and the third in Boston.

MYSTIC

Mrs. Frances Harriet Stott, wife of William Stott of 43 Willow street died Sunday afternoon after an illness of several months. She was born in Mystic, June 21, 1857, the daughter of Benjamin Brooks and Mary Esther Eldredge and granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Eldredge, of Old Mystic. Mrs. Stott was stricken with a shock in July, but recovered sufficiently to be around the house and had been able to go out in the yard a few times. She was a woman of cheerful disposition and one whom it was always a pleasure to visit. She leaves many friends who sincerely mourn her death. She united with the Methodist church October 4, 1896 and has been a faithful member, also a loyal member of the W. C. T. U. for many years. She leaves besides her husband, a daughter, Mrs. Thomas B. Collins, of Bridgeport, two sons, William, who lives at home and George C. Stott, and a grandson, Harold S. Collins, three brothers, George W. who was her twin, John T. Edward and a sister, Mrs. Abbie A. Rathbun.

The W. C. T. U. held a meeting Tuesday afternoon in G. A. R. hall to give the members an opportunity to hear Mrs. Mary B. Wilson, former state president, now vice president-at-large. She is a fluent talker and told of the world W. C. T. U. convention held in Edinburgh, Scotland, last June. She spoke in a most interesting manner, giving in detail the work accomplished and stressing the dangers the United States is facing today. The world is watching this country, she said, and much depends upon the enforcement of the prohibition law. The Eighteenth Amendment and the legislation following it, is the law of the republic. The future of the commonwealth hangs upon the outcome. Mrs. Wilson while here, was the guest of Mrs. Augusta E. Cutler, of West Mystic avenue.

The November meeting of the B. F. Hoxie Engine company was held Tuesday evening in their rooms.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lebeau and daughters spent Saturday in Providence.

Mrs. Albert E. Wheeler is assisting at Daniel Ivers' store during Mrs. Ivers' absence.

Ernest Lebeau was home from Hartford over the week end.

Reports of the grand lodge sessions held in Seymour in October, was given before Mistuxet lodge, No. 42, K. of P. at the meeting Monday evening.

Attorney B. H. Hewitt, chairman of the committee appointed at the meeting of the business men held last Thursday evening, has announced that the committee held a meeting in his office Friday evening, where plans for permanent organization were laid. The next meeting will be Thursday evening.

NOANK

An interesting item appeared in the New York papers recently concerning Captain Hubbard C. Fish of the Steamship American Trader, who risked his life when he saved the lives of the crew aboard the Norwegian freighter Elven, which was considered a heroic deed. Capt. Fish is a native of Noank and followed the sea most of his life. His mother is Mrs. Adelaide Fish of Main street.

Dexter Holiday has returned from New Haven after a visit.

More Women Are Benefited

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Than By Any Other Medicine for Woman's Ills

All Ailing Women Will Be Interested in the Following Unsolicited Testimonials

HEALTH IMPROVED WONDERFULLY

"I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and find it has improved my health wonderfully. For months and months I was not regular and had terrible pains. They used to affect my side so I could not work. I am strong enough to do my housework now and have two dear babies to care for besides."—Mrs. T. H. Fuller, Walpole, N. H

WAS A MERE SHADOW

"When I first started with the Compound I was a mere shadow. My health seemed to be gone. The last doctor I had said he would give me no more treatments. That was when I gave the doctors up. Now I am a healthy robust woman. I wish I could tell the world what a wonderful medicine Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound is."—Mrs. J. A. Jones, 317 Colley Ave., Norfolk, Va.

NERVOUS, SICKLY, AND PAIN IN SIDES

"I was nervous—had inflammation, pains in sides and sickly after my last baby was born. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound restored my health and made me well. It is the best medicine for sick women in the world. It surely did put me on my feet again."—Mrs. James Miles, 419 Cherry Street, Dover, Ohio.

NOW WELL AND STRONG

"I cannot begin to tell you how much Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped me. Before taking it I couldn't stand on my feet without pains running all through my whole body from my waist down just like threads pulling. I was not fit to do any work. Now I am well and strong."—Mrs. Rush Fullerton, 525 South 2nd Street, Clearfield, Pa.

Palace

Of all the states in what is romantically referred to as "The West," much more than a geographical term — Nevada comes the nearest to living up to the popular impression of what the West of fiction should be like. "Black Cyclone," Hal Roach's spectacular adventure starring Rex, the king of wild horses, showing Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the Palace theatre, is a story of the Nevada hills, where wild horses roam in vast herds—where great dramas of love and conflict are enacted by four-footed creatures of the wild.

The production of "Black Cyclone," directed by Fred Jackman, from Hal Roach's original story, required thirteen weeks of work in the wildest section of Nevada, where one may travel to the four corners of the state and find four different kinds of mountains, plains and canyons. In one section will be magnificent ranching lands; in another deep-cut canyons with rock foundations of weird outlines. One section has smooth paved highways and the appearances of rapid development—while perhaps 20 miles away one may find, if desired, perfect solitude in the mountains, in spots where civilization will be handicapped by nature for decades.

Jackman, in choosing the location in which to make "Black Cyclone," traveled over five states of the West and Southwest. He chose that part of Nevada in which Muddy Valley and Fire Canyon are located, traversed by the Union Pacific lines, with stretches of great distance where no station relieves the monotony of the smooth steel ribbons of the railroad.

"Black Cyclone" will be shown in addition to the regular big vaudeville show. Thursday night many useful gifts will be given to the lucky patrons. The grand prize Thursday, merchants' night, is a 32-piece dinner set.

Friday night the much talked of Cabaret night will be a feature of the show.

Isa Kremer Coming to Broadway

The coming of Isa Kremer, the greatest interpreter of ballads and folk songs to the Broadway theater Monday, Nov. 16, marks one of the truly big musical events of the season. The news of her great success since coming to America has been known for nearly a year. Miss Kremer is the one concert artist who never fails to enthuse, as she always presents some novelty in a novel way. Her recitals are unique. They present the true life of a people and gives them in the true spirit. The listener does not have to understand the words of the song. The manner in which she sings and acts is enough. Isa Kremer is the singer of the people and for the people. She is international in this respect. The Russians, the Italians, the French, the Jews, all know Isa Kremer. American concert goers have accepted her and welcomed her with open arms. And why? Just because Isa Kremer sings what is in the hearts of mankind.

Isa Kremer has sung for every class of people from crowned heads to the humblest peasant. All received her alike—joyously. Her concert here will be greeted with delight—for there is but one Isa Kremer.

Broadway Theater

On Thursday a brand new show will be ushered into the Broadway theater.

The ever popular prize night will take place Thursday night in which many valuable presents are to be given away free.

The Keith vaudeville program of five acts will be every bit as good if not better than today's program which reaches a very high level.

At last a picture which tells the truth about the stage!

It's Paint and Powder, Hunt Stromberg's latest all-star special starting tomorrow.

The picture presents the stage as a serious profession—not as a happy hunting ground for bald-headed millionaires.

It shows the stage people as human beings—decent, loyal, and sympathetic—not as exotic creatures who scoff at the homely virtues.

It proves that their leisure hours are not necessarily spent in breaking the conventions, but that their lives are well-ordered—usually better—than those of business men and their wives.

Consequently Paint and Powder is more than splendid entertainment. It is a much needed document in defense of the hard-working folk who give their lives to the public—and in return too often have their reputations colored past recognition, simply because of the old out-worn fallacy that the stage is not a 'decent' profession.

Cast includes Elaine Hammerstein, Theodore Von Eltz, John Saltpolis, Stuart Holmes, Russell Simpson, Pat Hartigan, Derelys Perdue and Nell Craig.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

"Boomerang" at Slater Hall

Miss Elizabeth Gurrell Whiting of Boston, widely known throughout New England as a reader of unusual ability, will appear at Slater hall Tuesday evening, Nov. 17 in the "Boomerang." Miss Whiting's delightful personality and wonderful impersonation of characters has won her the reputation of being one of the finest readers in the country.

Assisting Miss Whiting will be one of Norwich's most prominent artists, Mrs. W. Clayton Burgy. In addition to being soprano of Park Congregational church, Mrs. Burgy will be remembered for her charming and effective costume song recital given at the Hugh Henry Osgood Memorial last year—as well as having been the soprano soloist at the third of the Lenten concerts given at the Palace theater last year at which time she proved herself to be an artist both in the possession of a wonderful voice and in the perfect control displayed in its use. While in Philadelphia this summer, Mrs. Burgy received many offers to broadcast over the radio and she gave three concerts from stations WFI and WCAU of Philadelphia. So enthusiastic were the listeners in—in the form of letters and telegrams of praise received by Mrs. Burgy that she accepted engagements to appear in various cities during the present season. Mrs. Burgy's program on Nov. 17 consists of classics as well as folk songs—being entirely new—and different from any program before given by her in Norwich. Assisting Mrs. Burgy at the piano will be a musician well known for her sympathetic and brilliant accompaniments, Mrs. Charles A. Sexton.

Breed Theater

The Wise Virgin, in which Patsy Ruth Miller and Matt Moore are starred and which comes to the Breed theater today for a run of two days, is a picture built up of unusual situations said to contain a wealth of drama, comedy and romance.

The story centers around a 1924 high speed model of a girl. She fancies herself in love with a titled foreigner. Her grandmother, however, wants her to marry one of her own countrymen and to that end conspires with the foreman of her ranch to court the girl, an idea that he has secretly had in mind for some time. After much coercion the girl marries the American but her heart remains with the foreigner and she refuses to be anything but a "wife in name only."

To complicate matters there is an attractive young girl chum of the heroine who has made the mistake of marrying for money. The spark of romance being entirely extinguished in her aged but wealthy husband, she casts longing eyes at the husband of her friend and perceives the bright glistening diamond beneath the rough exterior. Naturally, with so many angles to contend with, the course of true love is made decidedly rough for the man of the big open spaces. But the grandmother, a resourceful lass, straightens matters out in a most ingenious manner.

In support of Miss Miller and Mr. Moore appear Edythe Chapman as the grandmother, Leon Barry as the titled foreigner, Lucy Fox as the girl chum and Charles A. Stevenson as her wealthy but decrepit husband.

Lyceum Theater

John Golden's Seventh Heaven with a record of two full seasons at the Booth theater, New York, will be the offering at the Lyceum, New London, Thursday, Friday, Saturday, Nov. 5, 6, 7, with a matinees Saturday.

This great love drama, written by Austin Strong, author of Three Wise Fools, is now in its fourth year in America.

Seventh Heaven is a story of the Paris slums. Filled with characters that are taken from Parisian types of the author's acquaintance, the play is colorful in character and setting, and in theme it is thrilling and dynamic. The story has for its high lights stirring events of the mobilization and the armistice celebration, but these great events are merely for the purpose of providing a background for the theme, human courage. And it is this theme, universal in its appeal, and interesting to theatergoers of all tastes, which caused the play to be seen by a million people in New York, and which is giving it one of the most successful tours ever enjoyed by any Golden attraction.

The company which will present Seventh Heaven here is headed by Ann Forrest as Diane, and Louis D'Arcley as Chico. Miss Forrest, famous in the motion pictures, is making her first appearance on the spoken stage. Mr. D'Arcley, from Madame Rejane's repertoire theater, and the Theater Odeon, Paris, here, has his first leading role in the English language.

The Goose Hands High

Today will see the long awaited opening of the Richard Mansfield Players, the interesting and unique company from New London, who will be seen here for the first time at the Palace theater this afternoon and evening in the entertaining comedy, The Goose Hangs High, by Lewis Beach.

Considerable interest has been awakened in Norwich by the coming of this company, for it is the first time that a band of well known professional players have left Broadway to travel about the country and bring the best there is in modern plays to cities where the usual dramatic fare is confined to vaudeville or burlesque. The players, who reside as a family at the Grange, the beautiful home of the late illustrious actor in New London, will arrive here in a large blue bus which has been chartered especially for them, and in which they travel about the country. This makes easier their task of getting from New London to the various cities in Connecticut where they present their performances, and the big bus is already becoming a well known sight on the broad roads of this state.

No better choice could be made by the players as an opening bill than The Goose Hangs High, for, besides being a delightfully entertaining play, it includes in its cast practically the entire personnel of the players, and so makes it possible for their audiences to see them all together and judge for themselves what a charming and talented group they are.

In the cast, which is headed by the lovely Mrs. Mansfield, widow of the great actor whose name is thus honored by this organization, are Robert LeSueur, Haroldine Humphreys, Edwin R. Wolfe, who is also stage director, Lillie Brayton, Charlotte Read, Frank Pecta, Charles Freeman, Betty Pratt, Theodore St. John, Theron Lucas and Raymond McGrath.

Mr. Wolfe has staged the play, and the special setting has been designed by Louis Bremberg, the scenic director of the players, and built under his supervision in New York.

OBITUARY

Almon W. Coolidge

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 3—(A. P.)—Almon W. Coolidge, cousin of President Coolidge, and a carpenter by trade, died here today at his home. Mr. Coolidge had lived in Rochester several years and with the help of his wife had busied himself in compiling the genealogy of the Coolidge family. During that time he had been constantly in touch with the president and had received considerable correspondence from him.

PLAINFIELD

The shop committee of Lawton Mills, held a meeting at the community house Monday night, and much important business was transacted. There are several meetings scheduled to be held this week at the community house, besides its regular activities. The mill Brownies met at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon under the care of Miss Birkwistle and the girl scouts held a meeting at 7 o'clock. The executive committee of the association will meet on Wednesday evening also the card room union, the C. N. S. club at 4 o'clock and the Odd ladies at 7 o'clock. The Lawton Fire Co., has a meeting scheduled for Friday at 7 o'clock and there is to be a dance in the auditorium under the auspices of the community association later.

Walter J. Kingsley left Plainfield Tuesday to start on his journey to Los Angeles to visit his son Clarence. Mr. Kingsley will leave New York by boat Thursday, and on passing the Florida coast will be within sight of the Keys. The boat will go to Havana, Cuba, remaining a few hours then through the Panama canal, stopping at San Diego, thence to Los Angeles. Friends have been wishing him a pleasant voyage.

Frank Bernier left Tuesday for Miami to take up work with a real estate company. Mr. Bernier was given a farewell party at the home of Ovila Charron, where he has made big home for the past three years. Mr. Bernier was presented a handsome traveling bag, by friends and business associates of Norwich.

A party was given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Latrique Boulais, at the community house, Saturday night. Friends from New Bedford, Pawtucket, Manville and other towns were present. Mr. and Mrs. Boulais were married recently.

A menace to public safety, in the form of an old maple tree, six feet in diameter at the butt, has been removed in front of the Kingsley property on the state road. The Lincoln club was instrumental in the removal of this danger and the work was done by Charles Hopkins and his gang of lumberjacks.

Mrs. Gerard Townsend who recently arrived home from Europe left Plainfield Tuesday for her winter home at Montclair, New Jersey.

COLCHESTER

The body of Mrs. Anna Daudey, who lived in Rockville, was brought here for burial Sunday afternoon, in the family plot in Linwood cemetery. Mrs. Daudey was the widow of William Daudey of this place. She is survived by two daughters, Misses Anna and Elsie. The family moved to Rockville some time after the death of Mr. Daudey.

The board of warden and burgesses held their meeting in the parlor of the engine house Monday evening. A board of fire commissioners was appointed, the warden, A. T. VanCleve and Leon Broder. It was also voted to find a suitable place for the old hand engine and a company will be formed from the high school which will be drilled in the use of the apparatus and will answer to second alarms. The old engine has done good work in years gone by and it was thought best that it be put in good condition so as to be ready in case of emergency.

Oliver Woodhouse lodge, No. 51 Knights of Pythias held a meeting in Pythian hall Tuesday evening. The rank of page was conferred on three candidates and two applications were received. During the past year the lodge lost a few members by moving out of town and the members are at work to try and gain what was lost also to add to their numbers. After the work of the evening a lunch was served by the entertainment committee. The lodge has at present 122 members, which is good for a small town. The representatives to the Grand Lodge gave a report of that session.

Henry N. Benoit of Putnam, Conn., and Theodore J. Bartolomei of Webster, Mass., have filed notice of intention to apply for admission to the bar and to be examined therefore, and request action of the bar upon said applications.

There will be a bar meeting for the purpose of acting upon said applications at the superior court room in Willimantic on Friday, November 6th, at 9:45 o'clock a. m.

GEORGE PICHE OVERCOME BY GAS IN CLOSED GARAGE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 3—George Piche, 59, engineer at the Holland Silk Manufacturing plant, narrowly escaped death by suffocation, Tuesday night, when overcome by the fumes from an automobile on which he was working in a closed garage in South Park street extension. He was found at out 10 o'clock lying unconscious on the floor of the garage. The engine of his Ford was still running and the garage was filled with dense smoke ejected from the exhaust. The police were summoned and Officer Arthur Hurley secured an automobile to transfer the man to his boarding place at the Ferdinand Jolie home, corner of Jackson and Valley streets. Dr. S. J. Turcotte was also summoned. The man's relatives were notified, for fear that he would not recover, but he gradually improved and it was believed that within a few hours he will have fully regained consciousness.

WHEELER WOULD DENY LIQUOR FOR THE RICH

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—(AP)—The millionaire with his cellar of pre-war liquors and wines will not be secure in the enjoyment of his hoard, if Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel for the Anti-Saloon league, has his way.

"The next law that will be passed will make that liquor contraband and the poor men of the country will turn in and help pass such a law," Mr. Wheeler said in an address here today. He is here for the annual meeting of his organization which opens Thursday.

The Eighteenth Amendment was no "rich man's law." It was no fault of the statute that the rich man had sufficient funds to stock his cellar before the act went into effect. "He also has more diamonds and automobiles than the poor man."

Mr. Wheeler replied to the statement of former Governor E. F. Dunne that if Christ came to Chicago today and turned water into wine he would be jailed for violating the prohibition laws.

"If Christ came to Chicago, he would, first of all, obey the laws. The ex-governor's anxiety about the master is pathetic. There is no danger that Christ would be a bootlegger. A Jew and a subject of a Roman emperor, he obeyed laws that he did not like."

The dry leader said Congressman John P. Hill's plan to allow each state to determine what per cent. of alcohol is intoxicating would result in chaos.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

The White House expressed hope for a $300,000,000 tax reduction.

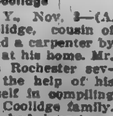
Hearings were closed by the house ways and means committee which is considering a new tax bill.

Argument was heard on the Doheny-Fall bribery indictment in the District of Columbia court of appeals.

Brigadier General Smedley Butler was denied further leave from the Marine corps to serve as Philadelphia police head.

The Mitchell court martial agreed to call a large number of witnesses for the defense and adjourned until next Monday.

"Kellogg's ALL-BRAN has entirely relieved me of constipation," writes grateful father



The ravages of constipation can be promptly stopped. Here is signed evidence.

Mr. Hunt's case is typical of thousands of others who have found habit-forming pills and drugs of no avail in seeking permanent relief from constipation. Read this interesting letter:

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN has entirely relieved me of constipation. Before I started using ALL BRAN I was a regular guy in taking pills—always getting something to bring relief. Now I never touch them. I fully recommend it to anyone to relieve constipation as you advertise on the package. My daughter also eats ALL BRAN and I can see her health improve.
(Signed) S. V. Hunt, Aurora, Ill.

You can get permanent relief from constipation with Kellogg's ALL-BRAN if eaten regularly—two tablespoonfuls daily, or in chronic cases, with every meal. Doctors recommend it because it is a bulk food which sweeps the intestine clean, stimulates digestion and normal, healthy action.

Eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN with milk or cream, or try the recipes given on the package. If eaten regularly, it is guaranteed to bring relief or the grocer returns the purchase price. Made in Battle Creek, Michigan. Served by leading hotels and restaurants. Sold by grocers.

SMITH AVENUE MAN, NORWICH, GETS OUT EASY, AFTER ACCIDENT

(Special to the Bulletin).

NEW LONDON, Nov. 3—Frank Benoit of Smith avenue, Norwich, can write himself down as fortunate, in that he wasn't injured Monday morning, about 4 o'clock when he ran an automobile he was operating into two still cars that were parked on Montauk avenue. Benoit was driving the car for a man who has been deprived of his right to operate his machine because of reckless driving. The car hit one of the parked machines, and then bounded over against the other, damaging one of the cars to the extent of $35 and the other a trifle less. Benoit had a lame excuse for not reporting the collision at the police station when he said he didn't know where to find the owners of the damaged car, but he got away with that sort of story. He has paid for the damage to the cars that his machine encountered so the owners did not insist upon punishing Benoit for his carelessness. Whether Commissioner Stoeckel will deprive Benoit of his right to drive for a while no fellow can tell.

Three colored women were in the police court today, but they all fared well notwithstanding they were mixed up in a breach of the peace. One of them is Viola May and she has been on a drunk some time. Her lenient treatment came today when she was released upon payment of the costs of her trial, that she may begin the month with a determination to keep away from booze.

The Elks are to inaugurate the winter social season with music and vaudeville for the members on Thursday night. That event is looked forward to with pleasure.

A couple of young folks were married in this city today who didn't care whether the word "obey" was in the promise they made as to their marital relations. They were determined to be wedded and nothing could stop them. They are Edward Sheeran, who was arrested here under the name of Edward Burke, and who claims to be a painter by trade and to have come from Philadelphia, where his father is one of those who help Gen. Smedley Butler to keep things in the way they should go. The other party to the contract, marital, is Mildred Paradee. She comes from Wilmington, Del., where she was a waitress, and which place she left and went to Philadelphia that she might be near her Eddie. She says she loves him and when he was held to answer for defiance of the moral laws of the state in living with Mildred as his wife, she declared that she would go out into the world and abandon compliance with law if her lover was sent to jail. Eddie was as anxious as was Mildred to marry. When the pair agreed to enter the marriage state Judge Prince, in the police court decided that he would suspend any sentence passed upon them till they had the opportunity to fulfill their promise. The couple then sought the town clerk and obtained a marriage license and Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky performed the ceremony that made the couple husband and wife actually. Eddie bought a ring and with it the couple plighted their troth. The groom declared he was happy and the bride pronounced her future assured now. The groom has some money saved and in bank and his wife starts off with a determination to live a life of happiness. The parties have been acquainted two and a half years and have reached the age where they are competent to decide for themselves as to their course in life.

The Shalett Cleaning & Dyeing Co., today purchased of Settimio and Marietta M. Giordani a brick building and small parcel of land, next south of the Shalett company's plant on Montauk avenue. The price paid was $13,000.

James Lawton has transferred his title in the two-family house occupied by him on Lee avenue to Helen E. Lawton.

The funeral of William J. Ebersole, special agent of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad and former chief petty officer stationed at the submarine base, who was killed during the performance of his police work between Millstone and Waterford last Sunday night when struck by a train, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at his residence, 34 Lester street. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Beveridge Lee, pastor of the Second Congregational church and was attended by a large assemblage. The bearers were chief petty officers stationed at the submarine base, a squad fired three volleys and a bugler sounded taps over the grave, as the body was lowered to its final resting place in the naval plot in Cedar Grove cemetery.

The police speed automobile, which has been out of commission six weeks to permit its receiving a complete overhauling and painting, was placed into service this afternoon.

Joseph E. Crandall, 68, of Waterford, died last night at Lawrence hospital, after a lingering illness. He is survived by a son, Joseph E. Crandall, of Chicago and a sister, who resides in Haverhill, Mass. Mr. Crandall was born in St. John's Nova Scotia and for a number of years was employed by Charles F. Brigham, a Waterford farmer, discontinuing work some time ago because of ill health.

Private funeral services for Mrs. Eunice J. Smith, widow of John Smith, formerly of Waterford, were held yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock at 12 Ocean avenue, Rev. Horatio J. Chase, pastor of Montauk avenue Baptist church, officiating. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Lawrence G. Sherman, guardian of the estate of Helen W. Stanton, has transferred a one-third interest in a house and lot on Bank street to Florence S. Clark.

William J. Faulkner, 63, of Niantic employed as engineer of the tug Harold, of the Thames Towboat company's fleet of craft died suddenly off Cape Cod yesterday, death resulting from a severe attack of indigestion. Mr. Faulkner, who was born in Groton, son of the late Samuel and Eliza Faulkner, is survived by his wife and six children, Clarence Faulkner of Niantic; Warren Faulkner this city; Mrs. Evelyn Peabody, Mrs. Margaret Darrow, Mrs. Annie Marquard, Niantic and Francis Faulkner of this city. A brother, Samuel Faulkner, Clinton, and two sisters, Mrs. Minnie McGrail and Mrs. Jennie Condon of this city, also survive.

Announcement is made of the wedding of Alfred A. Nelson, son of Mrs. Bertha E. Nelson, 3 Truman street, and Miss Mildred Grace Johns, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Johns, of Westerly. The marriage was performed by Rev. Walter Helmke at the residence of the clergyman in Westerly.

The case of Arthur Messer, 31 Summer street, charged with violation of the liquor law, and twice continued, is scheduled to be tried in the police court tomorrow morning. Messer was taken into custody, Oct. 22nd when state and local police conducted wholesale raids and arrested 19 men and women charged with violation of the dry law. All of the accused have been tried and most of them acquitted, but Messer's case, which was originally set for Oct. 23, was continued until Oct. 29 and again continued until tomorrow morning at 9.30 o'clock. The evidence against Messer, which caused his arrest by State Police Officers Pabuda and Kaminski and Patrolman Clarence Wells, was furnished the state officers by John McCarthy and who also furnished the evidence in the other cases. Messer has made it known and in no mild terms that McCarthy has "framed" him and that he will not plead guilty, but will fight the case to the bitter end.

A sailor stationed at the United States Coast Guard academy, Fort Trumbull, was about the streets this evening occupying practically all the sidewalk because of his intoxicated condition. He was also boisterous and attracted much attention. Finally when the bluejacket appeared on Bank street, near Golden street, he was nabbed by Patrolman Clarence Martin and it was then the sailor showed fight. He did not get far in that line, however, for Patrolman William Manice, on duty at the Capitol theatre, was near at hand, and assisted his brother officer in landing the sailor in a cell at police station.

Nostralia Facchini, 57 Willetts avenue, reported to the police early this evening that his son, 3, who had been left in an automobile that was parked alongside the curb on Bank street, had alighted from the machine and had strayed away. While the police were seeking the whereabouts of the child and a half hour after he disappeared the youngster was found about two blocks from where he had left the automobile.

Mrs. Thomas Manice has returned to her home on Chicago avenue, Groton, having spent a fortnight with relatives and friends in New York state.

Captain of Police Andrew McCarthy of Groton department, and George R. Hempstead have returned home, after having spent a week in New York.

Mrs. Benjamin Mowrey, 42 Perry street, complained to the police this afternoon because of the conduct of her husband at the Mowrey home and desired that Mowrey be taken into custody. Patrolmen William Corcoran and George Laboue were sent to the Perry street house, but when they arrived there Mowrey had left and could not be located.

POULARD YOUNG WOMAN AND SAILOR PRISONERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 3.—John Paul Kern, 28, a sailor attached to the U. S. S. Ericcon of the fleet of rum chasing craft stationed at the state pier, and Catherine Poulard, 19, of 167 Bank street, were taken into custody this afternoon by Sergeant Nelson Smith Patrolmen Clarence Wells and William Corcoran and Policewoman Jane Cassidy, charged with lascivious carriage. They are now prisoners at the police station, being unable to obtain sureties on their bonds for their appearance in the police court tomorrow morning. The Poulard girl, who has been employed in several of the restaurants as a waitress, has attracted the attention of the police for some time because of being found in the company of sailors.

COULDN'T CONTROL WARDS, SO SENT FOR THE POLICE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 3—The police had a wild ride without cause this afternoon and from the pranks of an excited youth. Shortly before 2 o'clock an operator in the Southern New England Telephone exchange received a request from some one at 298 Connecticut avenue that the police be sent there at once. The operator turned the information over to the police and two officers were dispatched in the police speed car to the Connecticut avenue house. Upon the arrival of the officers there it developed that a boy of 11, who had been left in charge of two smaller children, could not control his charge and when the boys started fighting the older youth decided to call the police, as the best method to bring about the cessation of hostilities.

QUAKER HILL MAN READY TO MAKE GOOD MISSING FUNDS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 3—William Lyman, Quaker Hill, a former employe of the Connecticut company, for whom a warrant was issued a fortnight ago on a charge of embezzlement, was taken into custody here this afternoon by Traffic Officer Linehan. The accused furnished a bond for his appearance in the police court tomorrow morning when his father qualified as surety.

Lyman had been employed recently as waiter at the Dining Car corner of Church and Main streets, owned by J. Nicholas Dans, of West Mystic. Dans entrusted Lyman with considerable funds, it is claimed and when the money belonging to Dans and in possession of Lyman amounted to approximately $500, Lyman took the money and left the city. Several hours after Lyman had departed for New York Dans discovered the embezzlement and caused a warrant for Danz's arrest to be issued by Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky. A search for Lyman in New York and Brooklyn by the police of those cities failed to locate Lyman. Last Saturday Lyman returned to his home and was, it is understood, attempting to confer with Dans the past day or two for the purpose of making restitution for his defalcations, even to working out such time as would cover the amount of money in wages that he had taken. Before Lyman had obtained an interview with Dans he appeared on State street shortly after 12 and when he was observed by Officer Linehan, Lyman was placed under arrest.

LOUIS OLBRYS' CASE DOUBLY SERIOUS TUESDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 3.—The condition of Louis Olbrys, 17, of 36 Richards street, who suffered a compound fracture of the left leg in a motorcycle accident in Groton Sunday afternoon, has become critical and tonight but little hope is held out for the recovery of the youth at Lawrence hospital. The change in the young man's condition is brought about through the fact that last night it became necessary for the left leg to be amputated owing to decomposition having developed and to make the ordeal doubly serious it became imperative that the appendix of the patient be removed. Olbrys did not rally from the double operation as well as was expected, for during the night he suffered a sinking spell and his parents were summoned to his bedside. The youth survived the night however, and did not suffer a second sinking period today, but this evening at the institution it was stated that his recovery was doubtful and that he had been placed on the critical list. The other young man who was riding on the same wheel with Olbrys, John Leitkowsky Jr., 19, of 32 Lincoln court, and who suffered a compound fracture of the left leg, besides severe body contusions and abrasions is reported as doing as well as could be expected.

BETTER CITY LIGHTING PLAN SHOWN CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 3—Membership dues were increased from $7 to $10 annually and an interesting talk on Street Lighting was listened to at the November meeting of the Willimantic chamber of commerce, Tuesday night. The attendance was unusually large. The supper which was served by the Woman's Relief Corps was followed by group songs under the leadership of John F. Ahern. President A. Linn Weatherhead presided at the business meeting, Secretary Channing H. Morrill read the minutes and the application of Nathan A. Knaub. Mr. Knaub was unanimously elected to membership.

Explaining the need of more funds, President Weatherhead asked for a vote on the resolution to increase the dues beginning January 1, 1926. The motion for the increase was made by Girard E. Loisell who had introduced the resolution at the October meeting. It was quickly seconded by James P. Bath and remarks in favor of it were made by P. D. Donohue, George S. Taylor, M. E. Lincoln, John F. Carr, John E. Brick and James B. Fullerton. The resolution was then adopted without a dissenting vote. The matter of increasing the dues has been attempted several times over a period of years and was included as one of the principal changes for progress inaugurated by the present administration of the chamber.

Rev. A. Stanley Muirhead announced that a simple service would be held on the afternoon of Armistice Day at Lincoln square and asked for the moral support of the members. It is planned to deliver a short address, read the honor roll of the dead warriors and sound taps.

W. C. Norris, chairman of the improved lighting committee was then placed in charge of the meeting. The remainder of that committee consists of A. B. Fullerton, John E. Tracey, Valentine L. Murphy and P. D. Donohue. Several of the members spoke of better street lighting and the general functions of the committee were explained by Chairman Norris. John C. Tracey gave figures of a survey conducted by the committee in neighboring cities, relative to street lighting systems.

The speaker of the evening was J. H. Lynch, a former employe of the Rockville Willimantic lighting company and a native of this city, now connected with the Westinghouse company of Lynn, Mass. Explaining the psychological effect from a business standpoint, the tendency to reduce crime and eliminate accidents caused by poor lights, the speaker, urging an improved lighting system, introduced stereopticon views, showing the progress of street lighting methods and the telling effect of better lights in decreasing crime and accidents. He recommended one lamp standards for Willimantic and stated that these should be equipped with 1,000 candlepower bulbs. The cost is estimated at $6,000 for the installation of about 114 units set about 120 feet apart on Main street, Union, North and Church streets. The matter is to be taken up at the common council which will act in conjunction with the Rockville Willimantic company which has given promise of assistance in every way, that the project may be realized.

Adjournment was taken at 10 o'clock.

WORK ON SETTLEMENT OF ITALY'S WAR DEBT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3—Members of the Italian and American debt commissions, in the absence of formal conferences today, took advantage of the opportunity to get more thoroughly acquainted with details of problems confronting them in the effort to reach an agreement for funding Italy's war debt.

There were unmistakable signs that members of the American commission had arrived at definite conclusions as to the maximum to which Italy can be expected to go in terms. The indications were that, in arriving at these conclusions, the Americans had met with no surprises in considering the statement of Italy's economic and fiscal situation and outlook submitted yesterday in connection with statistics independently arrived at by American experts.

The latter studies have presented conclusions not far from those contained in the twenty one documents which Count Volpi, the Italian finance minister, laid before the first joint meeting of the commissions as the basis for his group's negotiations.

On the strength of the indications that there was something of an understanding among both commissions as to minimum and maximum capacity of Italy to pay, reports arose that the negotiators would require little time to conclude an agreement. There was no confirmation of these rumors, however, but members of the American commission appeared optimistic that a satisfactory settlement would be worked out.

VESSEL FOUND BURNED; NO TRACE OF THE CREW

WILMINGTON, N. C., Nov. 3. (AP) —The Bunny III., which had William G. Taylor, secretary of state for Delaware, and R. Robert Pusey, both of Wilmington, Delaware, on board, and had been missing since October 23, was found by Coast Guard boats two miles off Georgetown yesterday burned to the water's edge. No trace of the crew has been reported to pilot headquarters at Southport today.

This information was furnished The Associated Press over long distance telephone today by Captain Jack Adkins of the pilots' office at Southport, who said an intensive search for the vessel and those on board had been conducted for three days without result.

Captain Adkins' report did not tally with one from Wilmington, N. C., in which Captain Galloway of the schooner Joseph D., was quoted as having said the Bunny III. was safe at Southport and mariners had been searching for the board in response to messages from relatives and friends of the two Delaware men.

The Bunny III., which had remained at Southport several days because of bad weather, Capt. Adkins said, left the town after taking on a fresh supply of fuel.

COMMITTEE WILL START TAX REVISION TODAY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3—Public hearing of proposals for revision of the revenue law was completed today by the house ways and means committee, and it will start work tomorrow on a bill to reduce taxes.

While asked by Secretary Mellon to keep the reductions within a total of $300,000,000 a year, a number of committee members were prepared tonight to go beyond this mark to accomplish the widespread revision in rates desired.

In this connection President Coolidge let it be known that he sees no harm in going above this limit, if necessary, and the belief prevailed tonight that the committee would recommend a reduction of at least $350,000,000 of the annual federal tax burden.

How the reduction will be apportioned among the various forms of taxes will be among the first problems tackled by the committee in executive session. Slashes in the normal and surtax income rates are expected to account for about $150,000,000 of the reduction, with the remainder divided among the inheritance tax and the various miscellaneous and excise rates, many of which probably will be repealed.

POULTRY

SUPPLY STORE—Vitality Feed will make hens lay; egg mash, $3.10; scratch, $2.85; pellets for sale; full line of supplies. Roy E. Clark (Baby Chick Man) 50-52 Shetucket St., Norwich. Tel. 2106 (Sept30d

POULTRY
PAN-A-CE-A
Puts hens in laying trim

You can feed as you will, care for as you may, but until your flock is in trim to lay, eggs will be scarce.

Just add Poultry Pan-a-ce-a with every 50 pounds of mash or one tablespoonful to every 20 hens once a day.

Then watch the change come over your flock, see the combs and wattles begin to turn red. Listen to the song, scratch and cackle.

That's a sign of getting ready for business.

Remember, you buy Pan-a-ce-a like this: for 100 hens, the 12-pound package; 60 hens, the 5-pound package; 200 hens, the 25-pound pail; 500 hens, the 100-pound drum.

You feed that package, all of it, on the more-eggs-or-no-pay way.

For Lice—Use Dr. Hess Louse Killer.

For Roupu—Use Dr. Hess Roup Tablets.

WAUREGAN BALL ROOM FILLED FOR WHIST PLAY

Over 140 tables of whist and 40 of bridge were in play at the party given at the Wauregan Hotel Tuesday evening, under the auspices of the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women, the spacious ball room being filled to capacity. Following the card play a delightful musical program was rendered by Shelby's orchestra and dancing was enjoyed until midnight.

The affair was one of the most successful of the year and the organization realized a large sum of money with which to carry on its work during the coming months.

At the conclusion of play the prize winners were announced as follows: Bridge, Mrs. James J. Casey and John R. Tarrant, first; Miss Molly Driscoll and Rev. Myles P. Galvin, second; Miss Margaret Daly and Mr. Lamothe, third. Whist, Mrs. Edwin Edwards and William Furlong, first; Miss Marie Dugas and John Murphy, second; Miss Cunningham and D. Hyman, third.

The success of the affair was due to the earnest work of the following committee: Mrs. Joseph E. Burns, chairman, Mrs. Thomas O'Rourke, Mrs. Thomas J. McVeigh, Mrs. Chester Wright, Mrs. James O'Neill, Mrs. J. Edward Driscoll, Mrs. John J. O'Rourke, Mrs. James T. Buckley, Mrs. R. S. Sullivan, Mrs. Patrick Brown, Mrs. Harry P. Powers, Mrs. John R. Tarrant, Mrs. Richard L. Tarrant, Mrs. Louis Combies, Mrs. Joseph Cummings, Mrs. Nellie Donahue, Mrs. Patrick T. Connell, Miss Mary Hartle, Mrs. Lucien Bissonnette, Mrs. Mary Coughlin, Mrs. John McCarthy and Mrs. John Cotter.

The committee was assisted in scoring at the many tables by the following scorers, the Misses Mary Foley, Noreen Shea, Anna Hassan, Gertrude Hamil, Madeline Fitzgerald, Miriam Sullivan, Anna Brennan, May O'Brien, Stella Guertin, Margaret Sheridan, Agnes Dunn, Barbara Sullivan, Mildred Langlois, Helen Rosannell, Katherine Sullivan, Margaret Dodd, Ruth Furlong, Nonie Brock, Mary Gorman, Evelyn Caron, Alice Enos, Isabelle O'Neil, Marion Lang and Eleane Brassill.

The success of the affair was also due to the courtesies extended by the management of the Wauregan Hotel, Geduldig, the Florist, Msgr. M. H. May, Rev. William A. Keefe, Rev. Myles P. Galvin, the Knights of Columbus, Ladies of Columbus, Foresters of America, Joseph A. Farrell, Quinn & Desmond, Pulaski Corporation, William Dennison, Division No. 18, A. O. H., George Dolan, John Corcoran and Miss Mary O'Neil.

TWO COUNTY PRISONERS ASKED FOR COMMUTATION

Twenty-three persons serving long terms were among those requesting commutations of sentences from the board of pardons at its session Monday at Hartford. Mrs. Mabel C. Kenyon of Pawcatuck, who was convicted in the death of Dr. Tetlow, also of Pawcatuck, in 1919, and who has served five of her 10 to 15 years sentence, was among the petitioners.

Mrs. Kenyon's appeal was to the effect that she desired a commuted sentence because of failing health; that to keep her in confinement would seriously impair her health; and that having but a few more years to live these years might be given to service of her family. She is now 50 years of age. A letter from Dr. Michael Scanlon, principal witness for the state against her at the trial favored her release. State Attorney A. M. Brown said his attitude on the case was well known and he had nothing to say at this time.

A graphic description of the crime of Simon A. G. Salisbury, who he said shot and killed two men while in a state of nervous hysteria caused by fear and overwork, was given by Herbert W. Fisher of Hartford. He introduced a considerable amount of testimony to show the character and record of Salisbury before the crime.

He shot and killed a constable and his assistant in Preston when the men were approaching Salisbury's house. He was sentenced for life in October, 1913.

OBITUARY

Byron Howard Evans.

It was with profound sorrow that friends and acquaintances learned of the death Monday evening of Byron Howard Evans of 34 Court street, for many years an esteemed resident of Norwich.

Mr. Evans who had not been in the best of health for about two years, was practically as well as usual when going out to business Saturday morning, October 17th. That day he returned home about noon feeling ill and though every possible attention was given him by his devoted wife, with the aid of medical skill, his condition grew rapidly worse until Friday last, when it became critical.

Born in Weymouth, Mass., the son of Lorenzo D. and Isabella Kingsbury Evans, he spent his early boyhood there. When he was nine years old, Mr. Evans' parents moved to Boston, where he grew to manhood. He was united in marriage in Boston, with Miss Genie Moriarty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Moriarty. After their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Evans resided for a few years in Boston.

The Evans family for many years were esteemed residents of Woodstock, while Mr. Evans was superintendent of Roseland Park.

A number of years ago the family located in Norwich. Mr. Evans took up the undertaking business with George G. Grant of Taftville, and after many years of faithful service, he associated himself with the Henry Allen and Son Co., of Norwich, remaining with the firm since then.

Mr. Evans was a Mason, being a member of Putnam Lodge, of Woodstock, having always retained his membership there. After locating in Norwich, he joined Sachem Chapter, Order Eastern Star. He was a member of the United Congregational church.

Besides his wife, Mr. Evans is survived by two sons, Dr. John H. Evans, who is returning to America from a commission in the Near East, and Major Lafayette E. Evans, of Bridgeport; two granddaughters, Miss Lucretia Imogene Evans and Miss Lorena Rebecca Evans, of Bridgeport; a sister, Mrs. Mellie S. Gillpatrick and niece, Miss Isabella Gillpatrick of Boston, also a nephew, Clifton G. Gillpatrick, of Needham, Mass.

Mr. Evans was a man of sterling qualities, faithful to every trust, kind hearted, conscientious and loyal. From his home, which was a haven of happiness and contentment, a loving husband and father has been removed. The sympathy of this and other communities goes out to the members of the bereaved family in their sorrow.

Mrs. Effie E. Dewey

Mrs. Effie Ellis Dewey passed away at her home, 3 Cliff street, on Monday evening, from the effect of severe burns received three weeks ago while she was preparing dinner. She was born in Norwich, August 22, 1861, the daughter of the late Austin W. and Julia G. (Tubbs) Myers. She lived for a time in the west and had been employed in Hartford and New York, but the greater part of her life had been passed in this city.

She is survived by two sisters, Miss Juliette Myers, with whom she lived, and Mrs. Clinton E. Stark; a nephew, Thomas Austin Linton, all of this city; and a niece, Mrs. Harwood B. Dolbeare, of Ithaca, N. Y.

Her family have the sincere sympathy of a wide circle of friends to whom Mrs. Dewey's tragic death has brought a deep sense of loss.

Mrs. John R. Bowman

Stricken with a shock two weeks ago pneumonia developing, Sarah E. Seamons, 69, wife of John R. Bowman, died at their home No. 23 Greene avenue, Tuesday morning. It was characteristic of Mrs. Bowman's charities and kindliness that at the very time when stricken she was at work on a garment for a little child in a needy family which had been brought to her attention.

She was born in Norwich Sept. 5th, 1856, the daughter of Eden and Sarah Palmer, long-time residents of Maple street. Following her school days in the West Chelsea district and at Norwich Free Academy where she was a member of the class of 1875 she took up the study of music, devoting herself especially to the organ. She played in the old Universalist church on the site of the present Chelsea Savings bank, later in East Main street Methodist church, then was organist at the original St. Mary's church, Greeneville, and for two years served as organist at St. Patrick's.

A member of the choir and tenor singer at that time was John Robert Bowman, a native of New Britain and shortly before graduated from the New Britain State normal school. Mr. Bowman, it is an interesting fact, and Livingstone Lord, superintendent of schools in Indiana, are the only surviving members of the class of 1874 at New Britain Normal school. Similarity of tastes led to the marriage of Miss Seamons, and Mr. Bowman which took place Nov. 23rd, 1881. They were among the first householders on Greene avenue, where they have been residents for over thirty years.

Although Mrs. Bowman's daughters are members of the Daughters of the American revolution, their mother never exercised her right to join, although eligible through several lines.

She was ninth in descent from Walter Palmer, founder of the town of Stonington, who emigrated from Nottinghamshire, England, about 1629. Her great-great-great grandfather Elder Walt Palmer was first pastor of the Baptist church, North Stonington; this church was organized in 1743. Walt Palmer was chosen pastor and ordained the same year. His son, Amos Palmer—Mrs. Bowman's great-great-grandfather, was a private in Col. John Topham's regiment, of Rhode Island, in the revolutionary war.

It is recorded that Amos Palmer, who died Jan. 4th, 1797, was often to be seen active in his mowing lots with his ten sons getting in his hay. He owned many acres of land in Exeter and Hopkinton, R. I., and extending into Voluntown, Conn. The North Stonington Palmers intermarried with the Denisons, Yorks, Browne Lewis and other prominent families of that section, so that Mrs. Bowman had a wide family connection in both Rhode Island and Connecticut. Walter Palmer was twice married; his wife, Rebeca Short, was Mrs. Bowman's ancestress.

It is recorded in the town annals that Elder Walt Palmer was baptized May 27th, 1711, and died in 1798. He married in 1727, Mary Brown, daughter of Eleazer and Ann Pendleton Brown and granddaughter of Capt. James Pendleton—which further extended Mrs. Bowman's kinship among the old families of eastern Connecticut. She was the granddaughter of Polly Lewis who was the daughter of General Slocum still another man of prominence in past generations.

Before her marriage Mrs. Bowman was a successful teacher of music and she is affectionately remembered by many former pupils. It was a source of great satisfaction to her that it was she who had taught such a thorough musician as the late Frederick W. Lester, in the first two years of his study.

Inheriting the faithful, thrifty and industrious traits of her ancestry, Mrs. Bowman's most marked characteristic was that of home maker while she delighted in doing kindly deeds, always in secret and without ostentation. She was a devout member of St. Patrick's church and a valued member of the Catholic Women's club of that parish.

Besides her husband, she leaves three children, two daughters — both Cornell university graduates — Sadie Agatha, wife of Compensation Commissioner James J. Donohue of Perkins avenue, and Miss Alma M. Bowman, a member of the faculty of Norwich Free Academy, also a son, John R. Bowman Jr., of Greene avenue. There are two grandchildren, John Robert Bowman, 3rd, son of Mr. and Mrs John R. Bowman, Jr., and James Chandler Donohue, son of Dr. and Mrs. James J. Donohue.

FUNERALS

Michael J. Foley

The funeral of Michael J. Foley was held Tuesday morning at 8:30 o'clock from his late home at No. 36 Oak street, a solemn mass of requiem being celebrated at 9 o'clock at St. Patrick's church. Rev. John J. Reilly was celebrant of the mass, being assisted by Rev. William A. Keefe, as deacon, and Monsignor M. H. May, as sub deacon. Henry LaFontaine was at the organ during the mass and for the offertory Pie Jesu was sung by Roderick F. Sullivan. For the waiting hymn Lead Kindly Light was rendered by Mr. Fontaine and for the recessional Mr. LaFontaine and Mr. Sullivan sang Nearer, My God to Thee.

There was a large attendance of relatives and friends at the service, coming from Melrose, Mass., Boston, Mass., Derby and New London and New York. A delegation from Thames Lodge, No. 826, New England Order of Protection, was also in attendance.

Burial was in the family lot in St. Joseph's cemetery where the committal service was read by Monsignor May. The bearers were Michael Garvey, Melrose, Mass., Cornelius Costello, New London, Daniel Foley, Henry Congdon, Joseph Shannon and Lawrence Volkman, all of Norwich. Arrangements were by Shea & Burke.

Mrs. James Dawson

With many relatives and friends attending final tribute was paid to the memory of Mrs. James Dawson Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock when funeral services were held from her late home at No. 12 Cliff street. Beautiful floral tributes gave evidence of the esteem in which she was held by many friends.

The service was conducted by Rev. C. Montgomery Budlong, rector of Christ Episcopal church, who also read the committal service at the grave in Yantic cemetery, Friends filled the places of bearers. Arrangements were by Church & Allen.

Mrs. George F. Harris

In the parlors of Church & Allen Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock the funeral service of Mrs. George F. Harris was held. Rev. Guy G. McGee, pastor of the Mt. Calvary Baptist church conducted the service and many relatives and friends attended. Mrs. Lucie Dorsey from Bridgeport, a sister was in charge and Gertrude Howard from Atlantic City interested in having her sister Mabel, allowed out on parole to attend the funeral. Prof. William E. Geary led the singing of Nearer My God to Thee and sang the solo in That City. Burial took place in the Harris lot in Yantic cemetery, where Rev. Mr. McGee conducted a committal service. Friends acted as bearers. After the service Mrs. Dorsey motored to Bridgeport.

Mrs. John Service

Funeral services for Mrs. John Service were held Monday afternoon at her late home, 43 Twelfth street with a large attendance of relatives and friends. The services were conducted by Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor of the Greeneville Congregational church, of which the deceased was a member. The bearers were Archibald Torrance and James P. Service of this city, John M. Henderson of Rome, N. Y., and Gilbert Henderson of Waterbury, nephews of Mrs. Service. Burial was in Maplewood cemetery.

WEDDING

Aubin—Dugas

Romeo Aubin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Aubin of Montreal, Canada, and Miss Bernadete Dugas, daughter of Prime and Rosanna Lavallee Dugas of 24 South A street, Taftville, were united in marriage at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning at Sacred Heart church, Taftville, by Rev. Henri Chagnon, assistant pastor of the church. The wedding was attended by many relatives and friends who came from Montreal Canada, Worcester, Webster, and Southbridge, Mass., and Woonsocket, R. I.

Professor A. Dugas organist of Sacred Heart church, Webster, and a brother of the bride, was at the organ during the mass and at the offertory Ave Marie was rendered other selections being rendered by A. Deneregau, O. Gelineau, Mrs. W. J. Plante, A. Billings and Mrs. A. Dugas.

The bride was attended by Miss Eva Dugas, as maid of honor, and Miss Emilia Paul as bridesmaid, while the groom was attended by Edmund Olsen and Alphonse Dugas of Putnam. The ring bearer was Lionel Dugas of Putnam and the flower girl was Lucille Dugas of Taftville, both cousins of the bride.

The bride was charmingly gowned in brocaded chiffon velvet and carried a shower bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. The maid of honor and bridesmaid were gowned in peach colored georgette with hats to match and carried pink roses.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents, about 150 attending, after which a reception was held at naturalization hall.

The gift of the bride to the maid of honor was a gold wrist band and to the bridesmaid she gave a silk umbrella, while the flower girl received a gold bracelet. The groom gave his best men a gold piece. To the bride the groom gave a diamond ring, while in return the groom received a pair of gold cuff links. The ring bearer received a signet ring.

The bride was the recipient of many useful and valuable gifts including cut glass, silverware purses of money, etc.

The groom is employed as an expert gardener, being a graduate of McGill college, Montreal. Later in the afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Aubin left for a honeymoon trip to Montreal, Canada, and other places where they will visit the groom's parents. They will make their home in Taftville.

INSURANCE CO. MUST PAY $50,000 POLICY ON JUDGE J. W. ROSS

JACKSON, Tenn., Nov. 3.—(AP)—Judge H. B. Anderson, in federal district court, ruled late today that the death of the late Judge J. W. Ross was due to an accident and overruled the contention of the International Life Insurance company which contested the payment of a $50,000 life insurance policy on the allegation that Judge Ross had killed himself.

Judge Anderson directed that the policy be paid.

All-schools day is an annual event in McPherson county, Kans., attended by thousands of patrons, teachers, and pupils. The program consists of pageants, concerts, fetes, athletic contests, and musical and dramatic features. It is a real community affair in which city and country people join. POETRY

Remorse

Down from a sunken doorstep to the road
Through a warm garden full of old-time flowers,
Stretches a pathway, where the wrinkled toad
Sits lost in sunlight through long summer hours.
Ah, little dream the passers in the street
That there a few yards from the old house door,
Just where the apple and the pear trees meet,
The noble deeds of old are lived once more!

That there, within the gold-lit wavering shade,
To Joan of Arc angelic voices sing,
And once again the brave inspired maid
Gives up her life for France and for her king.

Or, now no more the fields of France are seen,
They change to England's rougher, colder shore,
Where rules Elizabeth the Virgin queen
Or where King Arthur holds his court once more.

The stupid village folk they can not see
Their eyes are old, and as they past their way,
It only seems to them beneath the tree
They see a little dark-eyed girl at play.

—Mildred Howells

Scars

The smell of rain in the autumn air
When rusty twilights come too early down,
Will take the hearts of strong men unaware,
And lure them from the friendly lighted town—
To walk old, lonely roadways where they learn
Again of summers that have come to husk,
Where smoky stars like low-hung lanterns burn
Above the crumbling borders of the dusk.

On filtered ways where leaves are crisp and curled,
And mist comes in between the passing shapes,
There go the lone and desolate of the world,
Wrapped in their thoughtful silences like capes
Walking dark roads beneath the autumn stars,
Each with his hidden and historic scars.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Jones—How's the new baby at your house?

Smith—Oh, she's a howling success.—Capper's Weekly.

The Daughter—What is a "trial marriage, mother?"

Her Mother—Mine!—Sense and Nonsense.

No, we cannot believe the story that Rip Van Winkle slept for twenty years. He was not a college professor.—Center College Colonel.

That's a fine car. How did you get it?

Out of a prize competition.

Did you win it?

No, I organized it.—London Passing Show.

Farmer—I heard the crows last night—I'll bet they've eaten my corn.

Daughter (just from college)—Undoubtedly, for there cannot be caws, father, without effect.—Town Topics.

At a party I mistook a millionaire for the butler and tipped him a dollar. Afterward we had a good laugh over the affair.

A whimsical episode to be sure.

Yes, but he never handed back the dollar.—Boston Globe.

Norah, we expect to have breakfast served promptly at 8 o'clock every morning.

Yes, ma'am.

You understand?

I understand what you expect, ma'am.—The Progressive Grocer.

A nervous passenger said to a chauffeur, "Supposing you were going 60 miles an hour down hill with a stone wall at the bottom of it and your brakes wouldn't act, what would you do?"

"Nothing to do," answered the chauffeur. "It's done."—Boston Transcript.

How a pinch of salt in the drinking water prevents the exhaustion of workers in hot coal mines and steel plants was told before the Institute of Mining Engineers in London by Sir Josias Court recently. A similar discovery was made by Professor Neville Moss, of the University of Birmingham. He found miners who succumbed rapidly when working in a temperature of about 100 degrees were able to endure it better when their drinking water contained even one-fifth of a per cent of salt. Dr. J. B. S. Haldane, an English physiologist explains that doing work at a high temperature the body gives off much perspiration and with it a large amount of salt; to this depletion of salt the physical exhaustion is partly due. The addition of salt in their drinking water makes up for the loss.

BROTHER AND SISTER APPEAL IN $12,000 COLCHESTER ESTATE

A Colchester appeal from probate over the will of George Kramer, who died Sept. 22, 1925, leaving an estate appraised at $12,488.61 was among the new cases for the superior court filed here Tuesday at the office of the clerk of the court.

Mrs. Mary L. Burnham of Windham his sister, and John M. Kramer, of East Lyme, his brother, have taken the appeal. William J. Kramer of this city is executor of the will which was admitted to probate Oct. 2, 1925 before Judge John Condren in Colchester. Charles A. Kramer of Colchesetr is on the bond of the executor for $200.

Mr. Kramer was 83 years old when he died. By the appraisal made by Thomas Swan Rathbun and Daniel J. Webster, both of Colchester, the estate totalled $12,488.61, which was as follows: Norwich Savings society, $6,316.06; Chelsea Savings Bank, this city $2,288.91; Dime Savings bank of this city $178.25; Mariner's Savings bank, New London $653.28; Savings Bank of New London $718.58; two Connecticut Power and Light bonds, note to Horawitch, $100; dwelling house and land $2,000, with the balance of household articles.

By his will he left $200 to the Linwood Cemetery association of Colchester, the income of which was for the care of his lot. One hundred dollars went to St. Andrews cemetery association, Colchester, for general care. To John Kramer of Yantic, who he says is his nephew, but who is really his brother, $100, his nephew, John Kramer Jr., of Colchester $100 George Kramer, Colchester, nephew, $100; nephew and niece Charles and Nellie Kramer of Rockland, Mass., $200 each; niece Letitia Waters of Norwich $200.

The residue of the estate he made into a trust fund to William J. Kramer of this city, trustee, who is to pay out of the funds $100 a year to his niece, Mary L. Burnham, $100 to William Kramer of Norwich, and $100 to his nephew, William Kramer, Jr., and in case of death $100 to the others as long as the trust fund lasts.

By the will there is no provision for the bulk of the estate, as the trust fund will last forever, so the appeal was taken to the higher court.

Seeks Divorce

Another suit filed Tuesday was that of Donato Meo of Norwich who seeks divorce from Mathena Quinlan Meo of Waterbury, on the ground of desertion since June 20, 1922. They were married Dec. 21, 1921, and he asks the custody of a three-year-old daughter.

WOMEN VOTERS' LEAGUE HOLDING STATE CONVENTION

The Connecticut League of Women voters meets in Hartford for its fifth annual convention Wednesday and Thursday, November 4th and 5th. The league was organized five years ago, soon after the granting of the suffrage to women.

Reports to be made at this convention will show how the scope of activities has been extended since the first annual meeting, also held in Hartford in 1921. At that time but four of the eight committees now functioning were organized. The educational program of the league is now carried on through the departments of efficiency in government and of international co-operation to prevent war and through the six committees constituting the department of public welfare in government. Organization work has been delegated to vice-presidents, one taking charge of finance and two acting as advisors on organization for four counties each. In the counties the league has developed along similar lines.

Fifteen suggested topics along the line of efficiency in government, public welfare in government and international co-operation are to be presented to the delegates at this convention. They are to be asked to indicate the topics they think should be stressed, marking a prepared ballot in order of the preference. The results of this referendum will serve as a guide in forming the year's program. The department and committee chairman have prepared study detailed programs along the lines of these recommendations.

The department and committee chairmen who have made these recommendations which have been endorsed by the state board are as follows:

International co-operation, Mrs. Milton Simon, West Hartford; child welfare, Mrs. Percy Walden, New Haven; social hygiene, Mrs. H. C. Winternitz, New Haven; uniform laws, Mrs. T. N. Hepburn, Hartford; education, Miss Emily Whitney, New Haven; living costs, Mrs. F. C. Bursch, Riverside; women in industry, Mrs. E. H. Lorenz, West Hartford; efficiency in government, Mrs. Ernest Howe, Litchfield.

FEDERAL HEALTH AID LITTLE USED HERE

New England appears to be losing its seeming reticence in accepting the benefits of the so-called Shepherd-Towner act passed by congress in 1921, whereby aid, if matched by state funds, is made available for reducing maternal and infant mortality and promoting the health of mothers and infants. This conclusion is drawn from a report from the children's bureau of the department of labor, at Washington, which shows that whereas, at the end of 1924 but one New England state, New Hampshire, was cooperating under the provisions of the act, during the early part of this year Vermont and Rhode Island joined the group, bringing the total to forty-three states. Connecticut, for six months in 1923, was cooperating on a six-months continuance of the governor's acceptance after the adjournment of the legislature.

Connecticut, Maine and Massachusetts, together with Illinois and Kansas are now the only states not cooperating.

The work carried on in the several states along these lines varies widely, but much encouragement and gratification at the successful results of this work is felt by the bureau. Turning to specific examples, the bureau states that from studies made in New Hampshire—this being among the first states accepting the appropriations—"better prenatal care results in fewer stillbirths, less maternal mortality, a lower infant mortality rate during the first month of life and better health for both mother and baby."

New Hampshire, last year, accepted $12,988 of the federal appropriation, while previously the amounts accepted were the $5,000 received outright for accepting Vermont and Rhode Island accepted only the $5,000.

Although showing improvement, "the infant death rate in the United States is higher than in Australia, the Netherslands, Norway, Sweden and the Irish Free State, and no state in the United States birth registration area has so low a rate as New Zealand," stated Miss Race Abbott, chief of the children's bureau. "It is quite evident, therefore," she continued, "that the United States can not afford to slacken its interest or reduce in any way the intelligent expenditure of funds to lower the death rate among babies."

A very high percentage of the deaths at child birth are preventable, and here too, the United States lags behind many countries, Miss Abbott adds.

DISTRIBUTED PAMPHLET ON PREVENTING DIPHTHERIA

A pamphlet with the title Preventing Diphtheria, which is published by the John Hancock Insurance company, has been distributed in the Norwich schools by representatives of the company in order that the information it contains may be disseminated to the homes as a protective measure in health lines.

The distribution has been with the sanction of the health department and the nurses' association. Pictures have been shown in one of the theatres and will be shown in the others, these having the sanction of the city and town health officers. Dr. E. J. Brophy and Dr. Harrison Gray,

JEWISH WOMEN WORKING FOR U. S. IN WORLD COURT

Local organizations of the National Council of Jewish Women have just received the appeal addressed to the 225 sections which has been issued by Mrs. Arthur Brim of Minneapolis, national chairman of this organizations committee on peace and arbitration, calling on them to make all preparations for a nation wide drive to secure the immediate and favorable action of congress on the proposal that the United States become a member of the world court. The signal for this concerted movement is the announcement that the senate will consider the world court question at a session on Dec. 17. For over two years, declared Mrs. Brim, the national council of Jewish women has been vigorously at work, seeking to mould public opinion in favor of the world court. Our representative has appeared before the senate committee and our resolution adopted by the accredited delegates of our 52,000 women have been sent to President Coolidge, to Senator William E. Borah, chairman of the senate and foreign relations committee and to the senators. Since states, other than members of the league of nations, have been made eligible to membership in the world court the National Council of Jewish Women has expressed the belief that the world welfare demands the participation of the United States in the court. The voices of our women will be raised from one end of the land to the other to steer America's conscience. Our latent love of peace and its longing to have amity prevail among the nations of the earth must be permitted to express themselves through a definite world medium, such as the world court offers. Since Armistice day occurs in November that month has been designated as the most appropriate month for the consideration of the world court idea, by the council section. A large number of speakers will be enrolled to carry the court message to every community. A plan is also being developed for discussion of peace among the junior auxiliaries of the council for its introduction into the curriculum of the council's religious schools and for its representation in the classes for women in the rural communities through the councils department of farm and rural work.

ROAD WORK MONEY IS SENT TO TOWNS

To reimburse towns which constructed roads in anticipation of financial aid from the state, the Connecticut highway department has sent checks to nineteen towns. An aggregate of $41,283.13 was involved in the payments. Those represent towns in which the work is completed. There are a number of other towns which have work in various stages of completion and payment to those will be made when the work is accepted as finished.

Due to lack of so-called state aid funds by the curtailment of this appropriation by the legislature, the board of control, upon the application by the highway commissioner, approved a transfer of funds from the gasoline tax receipts to this account, and, as a result, the following towns received payments, representing the state's proportion of three-quarters or seven-eighths, according to each town's grand list:

Branford, $7,500; Canaan, $7,500! Colebrook, $3,750; Darien, $5,173.31; Easton, $7,500; Greenwich, $4,604.91; Groton, $7,500; North Branford, $7,500; North Canaan, $7,500; Norwalk, $7,500! Pomfret, $7,500; Redding, $7,500; Sprague, $7,500; Seymour, $1,500; Stafford, $7,500; Stamford, $7,500; Southington, $5,248.09; Torrington, $7,500; Trumbull, $6,078.14.

The maximum amount allotted was $10,000, state and town. In some of these towns the balance was less than the maximum amount allotted. In these, of course, the amount of refund was governed by the sum actually unpaid and the town obligation.

At the same time, the department announced that under provisions of chapter 307 a number of towns had been credited with $10,000 on the existing balance under the so-called unfinished interval statute.

GREENWICH COURT COSTS HIGHEST IN THE STATE

On the basis of population, the salaries paid in the borough court of Greenwich are about 50 per cent. higher than any other town or city in the state, the per capita cost there being 46 cents, according to figures furnished for the most part by the judges themselves, the Greenwich Bar association declares in a bulletin. The next highest per capita cost is 31 cents in Norwalk. The lowest cost per capita is 15 cents in Bridgeport. Population is considered a fair basis of comparison since the amount of business brought to court depends largely on that factor.

Figured on the same basis the per capita cost for other cities and towns is as follows: Bristol, 20 cents; Torrington, 19 cents; Middletown, 24 cents; New London, 19 cents; Norwich, 26 cents; Meriden, 26 cents; New Britain, 20 cents; Hartford, 18 cents.

To Discuss Financial Policy

Special consideration to the future financial policy of the organization is to be specially considered by the board of managers of the National Council of Jewish Women at its annual meeting, Nov. 15-20, at the Commodore, New York city. The programme of the organization covers eighteen distinct fields, which the 52,000 women want to see promoted and developed to the most efficient point.

CONNECTICUT COLLEGE BROADENS BUSINESS DEPT

During the past few years secretarial work and office practice have become so important to women in every day life that Connecticut college has deemed it necessary to offer more and more courses in this work until last year for the first time it was offered as a major subject. The aim of this department is to combine the technical with the cultural, so that, as soon as the principles of typewriting and stenography have been mastered, the student not only may use these courses outside this department, but may also gain a fund of knowledge in the advanced secretarial courses that will give her immediate as well as future value.

The courses that make up the department are: typewriting, stenography, the theory and practice of accounting, secretarial practice, business organization, business administration and business law. Typewriting includes instruction in the care and use of the typewriter, finger drills, arrangement of letters, tabulation, filing, copying from rough draft, and dictation at the machine. Stenography in the first semester's work consists of drills and dictation to gain ease in taking notes and in transcribing. The theory and practice of accounting gives a short outline of the history of accounting, and then proceeds to the actual keeping of a set of books and then to partnership and corporation accounts and the changing of books from single to double entry. The aim of secretarial practice is to familiarize the student with the various duties of a secretary. The student will be given practice in the use of the addressograph, ediphone, mimeograph and calculating machines in the preparation of manuscripts, and in proof-reading.

Business organization, business administration and business law offer lectures, discussions, assigned readings, research problems with the aim of acquainting the student with the underlying principles of business, and of enabling her to acquire such a knowledge of business law as is valuable to every woman, whether in business or not. Students in this course make several trips to various mills and offices during the semester to investigate current problems. Besides the theoretical knowledge gained the student is taught how to apply these facts to practical things.

Connected with this department are courses in the principles of economics, labor and industrial order, money and banking, and economic geography.

At the head of this department is one who has had much experience in secretarial work and office practice and one who is very capable and efficient, Almira F. Lovell. Miss Lovell received her degree of Bachelor of Arts from the University of Michigan in 1884 and from that time until she received the degree of Master of Arts from the same university in 1921 held several varied positions, such as a teacher in business subjects in the high schools Detroit, Mich., and Ithaca, N. Y., teacher of advanced shorthand, Gregg school, Chicago; proofreader the Christian Science Monitor, Boston; teacher of business subjects, Wellesley high school, Wellesley, Mass.; dictation and correspondence supervision Bureau of War Risk insurance, Washington, D. C., then an instructor in secretarial work and office practice, Connecticut, 1919-1923. Miss Lovell was made assistant professor in 1923. As an instructor in this department there is Miss Ruth E. Middleton, who received the degree of B. S. S. from Boston university in 1924 and has been at Connecticut college ever since. Miss Middleton has proven very efficient.

A student interested in secretarial work may prepare herself to perform the duties of a private secretary, or office assistant, or a teacher of commercial subjects. Such a preparation would be of value also to women who contemplate entering the civil service, or acting as general assistant to persons engaged in scientific, literary or professional pursuits. The opportunities for women in business are coming to be many and varied—for example, in banking, brokerage, publishing, publicity, insurance, real estate, credit, accounting, auditing, cost accounting and the teaching of business economy.

This department although comparatively new is very well equipped. At present it has an adding machine, a calculating machine, an electric mimeograph, an addressograph, a graphotype, a mimeoscope, an ediphone, files and a number of typewriters. The students besides using these machines for class work, are allowed to use them to work for professors. It is interesting to note that in less than four weeks about 65 hours of work has been done by the students, including a syllabus for the history department.

OLD SAYBROOK SELECTMAN CASE IS NOT DECIDED

Judge E. C. Dickenson, who heard the evidence in the dispute over the office of first selectman of Old Saybrook Monday in Middletown, reserved decision.

The action was the outcome of an order obtained from Judge Dickenson by counsel for Austin Denny, republican candidate for first selectman. The order summoned Frank Pratt, the democratic candidate for the office to show cause why he is retaining the office to which he was declared elected by the moderator at the election, Oct. 5. Denny in the final count had 193 votes and Pratt had 168. In naming Pratt, the moderator based his decision on the fact that the democrats had a majority of the board. Denny opposed this ruling claiming that the office of first selectman is a distinct one and that the candidate named for the office and retaining the highest number of votes is entitled to it.

Attorney D. O. Ryan, for the respondent, Pratt, was to file a demurrer, but Judge Dickson said the supreme court opinion in the Madison election case made such a document unnecessary.

The case was presented with very brief argument and the laying in of the ruling of the moderator.

PENNSYLVANIA VISITORS AT NORWICH STATE HOSPITAL

Dr. William C. Sandy, director of the bureau of mental health of Pennsylvania, and Dr. Henry I. Klopp, superintendent of the State hospital at Allentown, Pennsylvania, spent Sunday with Dr. F. S. Wilcox at the Norwich state hospital. The purpose of the visit was to look over the new buildings and to make a general inspection of the methods and work at the Norwich state hospital.

American Legion Show Progressing

At a meeting of the show committee of Fletcher post, in charge of presenting Princess Bonnie, which is to be given in this city Monday night, reports were most favorable and all indications are that the play will be a great success.

Harry W. House, chairman of the talent committee, reported rehearsals were progressing nicely and that members of the cast were pleased with the show and were making every effort to put it over in true legion style.

Given Birthday Supper

Mr. and Mrs. James Hartley of 2 Penobscot street entertained at supper on Monday evening in honor of Hugh Laird's birthday. Covers were laid for twelve and a delightful supper was served by Mrs. Hartley. Mr. Laird received many nice gifts. Solos were given by Miss Elizabeth Hartley and Mr. Laird.

MOTORISTS SLOW ABOUT GETTING 1926 PLATES

In spite of the fact that applications for the same numbered plates as now carried on automobiles must be in to the motor vehicle department's office on or before November 15, instead of on December 1, the date set last year, there are fewer making their applications than ever at this time. From appearances it looks as though the familiar line of 100 or more strong which has been seen in the past few years in front of the New London and other branch offices on the last two or three days of the year will be there again unless the applications roll in faster than they have been.

It was reported from the New London office Tuesday that there are fewer people than last year taking advantage of the opportunity of making their applications early and avoiding the rush. With the increase in the number of motor vehicles to be registered this year it looks like a mad rush the last few days of the year.

It has been announced that the new plates will be similar in color scheme to those now used by New York state, black and yellow. This combination has proven popular in New York and it is expected will meet with general approval in Connecticut.

Emphasis is being made on the fact that any autos operated on January 3 without the new registrations will make the owner or driver liable to punishment for operating without a registration. State authorities say that this law will be enforced.

NORWICH FIRE DEPARTMENT HAD 18 OCTOBER CALLS

There were 18 calls for the Norwich fire department in the month of October, of which 14 were by telephone, three were oral and one was a bell alarm.

There were two calls for outside aid to which the department did not respond but both were taken care of by the Yantic fire company.

Given Farewell Party

Monday evening a pretty farewell party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Morrill of Oakbridge street, for Miss Florence Morrill, who is to leave for West Virginia in a few days. Miss Morrill received many beautiful gifts including money, clothing, jewelry, etc. The house was decorated in cut flowers of chrysanthemums and roses. Dancing and music were enjoyed, songs being rendered by Mrs. G. Rogers and Miss Charlotte Fowler. A delightful luncheon was served consisting of coffee, cake, cookies, sandwiches, candy and fruit. The party broke up at a late hour, all wishing Miss Morrill good luck, health, happiness and remembrance in her new undertaking. There were 27 friends present.

Surprise Wedding Shower

A surprise wedding shower, arranged by Miss Nancy Patridge, was given Saturday evening for Mrs. Edward McGonegal (Hattie Mowrey) at her home at Sunnyside, Yantic. About twenty-five friends joined in the surprise and presented Mrs. MacGonegal with a pyrex linen, china, cut glass and silver. A buffet lunch was served by the hostess and music and games were enjoyed.

NORWICH TOWN

"Our Work Through the Education Boards and Foundation for Education." Prov. 22:6; Deut. 6:20-25, is the theme assigned to the Congregational mid-week service for conference and prayer.

For the first Friday of the month the mass at Sacred Heart church that morning will be at 7 o'clock. Friday evening at 7:30 there will be devotions in honor of the Sacred Heart of Jesus, consisting of rosary, litany and benediction of the most Blessed Sacrament

There is interest locally in the three act comedy "Cupid and Calories," to be given by the Girls Friendly society of Grace Episcopal church, Yantic, in conjunction with the First Congregational Young People's Christian Endeavor society, inasmuch as some of the members of the cast are Norwich Town young women.

Mrs. Sarah W. Chapin will be the hostess Friday afternoon to the Home Missionary society of the First Congregational church. Two weeks later, Friday, November 20th, the society plans to pack a Christmas box to be sent to Miss Ruth Beebe, of the faculty at Trinity college, Athens, Alabama. There will be opportunity for any who wish to send personal gifts or gifts to the school children.

The funeral of Patrick D. Falvey was held Tuesday morning at 8:20 from the home of his daughter, Mrs. Mary E. Stevens, of Yantic.

In the Sacred Heart church, Norwich Town, at 9 o'clock, the pastor, Rev. Charles W. Brennan, celebrated the solemn requiem mass which was attended by relatives and friends. Rev. Father Brennan was assisted by Rev. Frederick Coholan of St. Mary's church and Rev. Myles P. Galvin of St. Patrick's as sub-deacon. The musical part of the mass was under the direction of the organist, Mrs. William Murphy. At the offertory Miss Mary Buckley sang De Profundis, and for a waiting hymn, she gave Some Sweet Day. As the body was being borne from the church the choir sang Lead Kindly Light. There were choice floral pieces. The bearers were: Jeremiah Falvey, Patrick Lynch, Charles Klingberger, Charles Murphy, Timothy Fields, and John S. Sullivan. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, Greeneville, where the committal service was read by Rev. Father Brennan. Hourigan Bros. were in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Simpson of Tolland were in Rochester, N. Y., and attended the marriage of their son, William Sumner Simpson and Miss Sally Fairchild Burton, daughter of Prof. and Mrs. Henry F. Burton of the University of Rochester.

BUSINESS ACTIVITIES ARE SPURTING IN CONNECTICUT

Fact Disclosed by Statement of Bank Commission John B. Byrne—Growth of Loans by Trust Companies and Increased Deposits Are Given as Indications—Statistics Given Cover a Wide Field.

HARTFORD, Nov. 4—Increasing the amount of outstanding loans by $5,948,289 in the three months ended September 30, the trust companies of the state give evidence of the general spurt in business activities in Connecticut during that period, Bank Commissioner John B. Byrne declared today when issuing a statement of the condition of these banks. With the new increased the present outstanding loans and discounts of the trust companies aggregate $181,015,-098, the statement shows.

Another indication of favorable business conditions, Commissioner Byrne said, is the increase of $6,-946,832 in deposits made during the period. Of these deposits $1,455,364 were additions to individual savings accounts while $5,491,468 was deposited in commercial accounts.

The aggregate deposits in all trust companies at the close of business on September 30, were $252,991,917.08. The savings accounts amounted to $103,-553,36 and the commercial deposits to $149,168,363.72.

An unusually large increase in the authorized capitalization of these banks was noted during the period. The total increase $1,825,500, however, was largely made up from the $1,000,-000 increase granted the United States Security Trust company in August. The aggregate authorized capital stock of all trust companies is now $15,-951,000.

Aside from the increase in deposits, the statement shows that the banks have decreased amounts due from bankers, reserve agents and the currency, check cash and exchange items to meet the new business demand for loans and discounts. The total due from the reserve agents is now $12,-370,859 or $1,659,601 less than at the end of the previous quarter. The amount due from banks and bankers was decreased $448,663 to $1,865,122 and currency and cash was decreased $1,875,425 to $8,497,176.

Undivided profits, less expenses and taxes paid at the end of the period amounted to $7,912,7[illegible]0. The reserve for interest and taxes amounted to $1,653,950, an increase of $1,342,613. The aggregate surplus of $14,326,584 showed a decrease of $483,895 for the period. Commissioner Byrne pointed out that this was really due to the annual adjustments of accounts rather than to an actual decrease in the reserve.

The report also shows that the brisk activity of the previous period in stocks and securities was continued as an increase in these items of $876,-780 is reported, making the grand total $25,133,708.

Among other items in the assets of the bank, according to the statement, were United States bonds of $5,606,-051, bonds to secure postal savings of $248,026, banking house holdings of $5,808,263, real estate holdings of $774,833 and other assets amounting to $912,204.47.

The aggregate assets of the trust companies is $390,380,668, an increase of $7,593,732 over the previous quarter. Commenting on the statement, Commissioner Byrne said it shows a very satisfactory condition for these banks.

DETAILS OF THE WING TRAGEDY IN COLUMBUS

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 4—Insanity caused by the fact that his wife was about to sue him for divorce led Shirley B. Wing, 32, Rhodes scholar, to shoot and wound his wife and her father Claude Meeker, broker-politician, before he committed suicide last night, Mrs. Marjorie Meeker Wing secovered from her bed in a hospital here today.

The shooting occurred when Meeker, who came to the Wing home to take his daughter to dinner, attempted to intervene in an altercation between Wing and his wife. Wing had locked himself and Mrs. Wing in a bed room just prior to Meeker's arrival. When the father remonstrated with him, Wing shot him through a casement window between the bedroom and hall and then fired the shots which wounded Mrs. Wing and caused his own death.

County Coroner J. A. Murphy and Prosecuting Attorney John King agreed with Mrs. Wing and the coroner today returned a verdict of suicide while temporarily insane.

After describing events which led to the shooting of herself and father, Mrs. Wing continued:

"He grabbed me by the throat and choked me.

"He then opened the gun and showed me there were bullets in it. 'Now I am going to shoot you.'

"He shot at my father first through the casement window over the stairway and then at me. Then he shot himself.

"When I saw that he was down, I dragged myself to his body and took the key from his pocket (Wing having previously locked the door and pocketed the key) and opened the door and crawled down stairs and told the maid who notified authorities."

Charles M. Wing, father of the dead man and president of a local bank, today disputed Mrs. Wing's contention that her husband was unbalanced, blaming the young woman for Wing's actions on the ground that she was extravagant and 'devoted too much time to literary activity. Young Wing, the parent said, was extremely fond of his youth daughter Audrey and was proud of Mrs. Wing's literary ability.'

Mrs. Wing and her father were reported recovering from effects of the bullet wounds in their legs and are expected to be removed to the Meeker home within a few days.

GREAT BOOM IN NEW YORK STOCK MARKET YESTERDAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Wall street today experienced its greatest boom stock market in nearly ten years. Total sales were calculated by Associated Press tabulators at 2,801,-600 shares, or 99,000 above the previous year's high established on October 16, and the largest since the famous 'three million share' market which followed the 'leak' on President Wilson's peace note in December, 1916.

The averages of twenty leading railroad and 20 leading industrial stocks attained the highest levels in history, with over 40 individual issues smashing their previous peak prices for the year. The advance, however, was by no means uniform, as several substantial losses were scattered throughout the list.

U. S. Steel common, which ordinarily fluctuates within one or two point range, was the market leader, jumping over five points to 134 1-4, the highest price since 1917 when the peak price of 136 5-8 was established. Total transactions in this one issue exceeded 400,000 shares.

FOX CORP. TO TAKE OVER MOVING PICTURE HOUSES

NEW YORK, Nov. 4—(A. P.)—Formation of the Fox Theaters corporation to take over the moving picture houses operated by William Fox and his associates was announced tonight. In addition to about a dozen theaters in New York city and its environs, the new company will acquire the Fox holdings in Denver, Detroit, Springfield, Mass., and Newark, Paterson and Elizabeth, N. J.

Representatives of the Fox Film corporation said that the new company would be started with assets of more than $20,000,000, including $11,000,-000 in cash and $9,000,000 in real estate equities. Indebtedness will be limited to $1,500,00 0of real estate mortgages. The corporation will have an authorized capitalization of 4,000,000 no-par value common shares.

POLITICAL CHARGES AND DENIALS IN LOUISVILLE

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 4—(A. P.)—The post-election fanfaronade of charges and denials of fraud in the mayoralty election blares forth today. Leading the parade was a statement from republican headquarters that the Times was to be sued for an aggregate of $3,750,000 for alleged libel of 75 republican workers.

Each dip of the pen added bitterness to the procession of statements. Democratic headquarters said that the success of Arthur A. Will, republican, at the polls yesterday was accomplished by fraud and then came a statement from the republicans proclaiming the fairness of the election and the truth of the democratic charges. The republican statement also hinted that not everything was regular in the conduct of democratic workers.

To get down to figures, complete returns compiled by newspapers gave Will 59,205 and Joseph T. O'Neil, democrat, 56,919, a lead of 2,286 for Will.

Democrat campaign managers announced they had begun compiling evidence of alleged fraud for an expected contest. The republicans countered with a reply that they would be ready for the suit, which would put the legality of the election up to the court of appeals. The court threw out the republican victory in the councilmanic election of two years ago as fraudulent and illegal.

The statement regarding the suit given out by Aubrey Cossar, sheriff-elect, and published in the Times without comment, said that tomorrow 75 republican workers would file suits for $50,000 each against the paper for "defecting libelously" on the plaintiffs. The suits, if brought, will constitute the largest political damage action in the history of American journalism.

Mayor-elect will take the oath of office Nov. 17.

SELECTING JURORS FOR MACRI MURDER TRIAL

COURT HOUSE, LITCHFIELD, Nov. 4. (AP)—Throughout the day, the second of the retrial of Olympia Macri, of New Haven for the murder of John Bagnano, talesman after talesman followed one another to the witness stand only to be rejected by counsel or excused by the court because of an opinion already formed which "no amount of evidence could alter."

Although the procession seemed endless, only 14 men actually occupied the witness stand each to answer "to the best of my knowledge and belief" the questions put by the state, defense counsel and court.

When court adjourned at 5.30 this afternoon no juror had been selected to join William J. Hunt, selected yesterday as juror number one. Both the state and defense were saved a number of challenges by witnesses being excussed because of their fixed opinions. Many of these emphasized their answers to such an extent that there was no doubt left as to their desire to escape jury duty on the Macri murder case.

The state crept up to and passed the defense in the number of preemptory challenges exercised. The state three times today excused veniremen, and the defense once. The state has 21 of its 35 challenges remaining while the defense has 22.

Three jurors had been picked at the end of the second day of the first trial in New Haven county last spring. At that time, however, the state had excused seven challenges and the defense 13.

READY TO AID HUSBAND, BUT WILL FIGHT FOR DIVORCE

NEW YORK, Nov. 4—(A. P.)—Reported efforts of Frank Tinney, comedian, to induce his wife to act with him on the stage will in no way change Mrs. Tinney's plans to secure a divorce, she indicated today. Her attitude was made clear following the receipt of two cablegrams from London, signed by Percy Reiss, Tinney's agent abroad, asking whether Mrs. Tinney would consent to a double act with the comedian.

Mrs. Tinney said she had not decided whether she would accept the proposal, but in any event the offer would have no bearing on her suit for divorce. She said she would be glad to do anything in her power to help her husband. If he satisfactorily convinced her that he would "behave."

"We have never quarreled," she added, "and his troubles with other women don't affect me."

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Riffian Leader "Digging In."

FEZ, French Morocco, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Abd-El-Krim, leader of the insurgent Riffians, driven from his former capital of Ajdir by the Spaniards, has dug himself in at the little village of Tarquist, on the northern slope of the Atlas range.

This 'digging in" is literal, according to the account of a Riffian prisoner recently taken by the French, who says that the Moorish chieftain has had constructed for himself a subterranean refuge of such dimensions that his automobile can enter it, turn around and maneuver freely.

FRENCH LINER PARIS HAD DISTINGUISHED PASSENGERS

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Numbering among its passengers Gloria Swanson and her husband, the Marquis de La Falaise de La Courdraye, and Ignace Padgerwski, and the Prince and Princess Kuni of the Japanese royal house, the French liner Paris reached New York tonight 24 hours late after one of the roughest voyages it had ever made.

Gloria Swanson said she had been greatly worried by the accounts of her being fined for contempt of court for ignoring a summons to appear as a witness in the divorce suit of Janet Beecher, actress, and Dr. R. A. Hoffman. Miss Swanson said she did not receive the summons and knew nothing of the court order.

She was also highly contemptuous of reports tending to discredit the title of her husband. The marquis produced documents to show that the title of Marquis had been bestowed upon his ancestor by Queen Maria Casimir of Poland in 1707.

Miss Swanson said it made little difference to her whether her husband had a title or not. "I married a man and not a title," the motion picture actress said.

Her husband, however, took the matter more seriously and discussed at some length the various titles and honors which he said were hereditary in his family.

"I never went to the trouble of having my family name placed upon record, or registered, as is frequently done," he said, "because we have been what we are for so many generations that any doubt is absurd."

Ignace Paderewski, pianist and at one time premier of Poland, who arrived for another concert tour in this country, volunteered during the voyage to play for the ship's concert. The Paris at the time was in the midst of a storm and many of the passengers were dislodged from their chairs in the main salon during the concert, but the famous composer went through with his program to the end.

At the pier the musician was met by a reception committee representing the Polish-American colony in New York and numerous Polish organizations.

The Prince and Princess Asaka, the latter a sister of the Japanese emperor, were met at the pier by the Japanese ambassador to the United States Tsuneo Matsudaira, and his attaches attired in full military and naval regalia.

The prince and princess have been absent from Japan for three years for the most part in Europe where they studied international problems.

While in New York the royal party will be at the Waldorf-Astoria. They plan to leave for Washington the first of next week, from where they will go to Chicago, and from there to San Francisco where they will sail for Yokohama in January.

They were the guests tonight of the Japan society at its annual dinner at the hotel Astor. The president, Henry W. Taft, presided. The prince, Dr. John H. Finley and Dr. Henry Van Dyke addressed the society.

Aboard the Paris was Joe Stehlin, soldier of fortune, who brought to this country for exhibition purposes the Sultana diamond, the 183 carat stone which for generations was the chief ornament of the crown of the sultan of Morocco.

SEARCHING FOR ASSAILANT IN WOODS NEAR BRANFORD

BRANFORD, Nov. 4—(A. P.)—The woods near here were being searched late today and tonight for Veto Granella who is wanted in connection with an attack made here this afternoon on Frank Donato who was cut about the face and neck with a razor, it being charged that Granella was the assailant. The fight, according to the police, followed a quarrel over a board bill. Donato is in a critical condition.

Granella was a boarder in the Donato home and it is claimed that he left some time ago without paying a $21 bill. As a result his wages were attached by Donato. The men met at Hillside avenue and Main street this afternoon and a quarrel followed. Suddenly, Granella pulled a razor from his pocket and began slashing the neck and face of Donato. As the latter fell to the sidewalk, Granella dashed for the woods and disappeared. The woods were searched but the man could not be found.

The wounded man was taken to the health center where it was found that he was suffering from several wounds He was later taken to his home where it was said that his condition was critical.

Both Granella and Donato came here from Berlin, New Hampshire, about a year ago.

EXPRESSES GREAT HOPE FOR PERSIA'S FUTURE

TEHERAN, Persia, Nov. 4—(A. P.)—Great hope for Persia's future was expressed by Reza Khan, the premier, who has taken his place as head of the provisional government, at a public court and reception after the deposition of the Kajar dynasty, which brought an outburst of national sentiment throughout the country.

The parliament, realizing the danger of a revolution, placed the power temporarily in the hands of Reza Khan, leaving the decision as to the permanent form of government to the constituent assembly. In the meantime the minister of finance has been appointed acting premier.

She heir apparent to the throne, Mohamed Hassan Mirza, brother of the deposed Shah, has gone to Europe.

CHAUNCEY OLCOTT, NOTED TENOR, IS SERIOUSLY ILL

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 4.—(AP)—Physicians tonight reported the condition of Chauncey Olcott, noted tenor ill here, as somewhat improved but still serious. Olcott was taken ill Friday while on a tour with a company headed by Mrs. Minnie Madden Fiske and including Thomas A. Wise and other prominent actors. The company is now in Chicago.

Olcott was taken to a hospital after his appearance here but his illness did not become generally known until announced from the concert platform last night by John McCormack.

Got Uncut Stones to The Value of $50,000

Young Man Walked Off With Wallet From New York Jewelry Firm.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4. (AP)—While Louis Steinberg, a dealer in diamonds in the United Jewelers' Exchange building on the Bowery, was engaged in a telephone conversation today, a young man, who had posed as the owner of a Long Island jewelry store, walked out of his office with $50,000 worth of unset stones.

The man, whose description Steinberg gave police, had gained the dealer's confidence on three previous visits on each of which he had bought about $50 worth of jewelry. Today the young man said he wanted to purchase a large amount of jewelry and had been invited behind the counter when the telephone rang.

Steinberg expressed the opinion that the thief had timed his visit today to coincide with the absence of the office assistant and that the telephone call was made by an accomplice. The telephone is in a booth, and while the dealer was in it the thief walked out of the building with a wallet full of stones.

BUTLER UNDECIDED ABOUT REMAINING IN PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 4.—(AP)—If General Butler decides to return to the marine corps he will be succeeded as director of public safety by George W. Elliott, the assistant director and right hand man of the general, in all his crusades in Philadelphia. This was announced today by Major Kendrick after a conference with General Butler.

The public safety director intimated some time ago that if President Coolidge refused to extend his leave of absence from the marine corps another two years, he might consider resigning his commission and remain in Philadelphia. Now that the president has refused further leave, the general today was represented as being undecided as to the future course.

Assistant Director Elliott has stood shoulder to shoulder with General Butler in his efforts for law enforcement, and has kept step with him in all his movements. He is 41 years old, and for the last eight years has been superintendent of a Methodist Sunday school in Philadelphia. Elliott served as fire marshal under the administrations of Mayors Blankenburg, Smith and Moore.

"That is my business" said General Butler when asked whether he intended to leave the marine corps. "I'm going to take a respite from talking for the time being, so that there will be no misunderstanding."

Earlier in the day the general was asked whether he would seek retirement because of physical disability, and replied that the yearly physical examination comes in December and when ordered he would take it. "If I don't pass, I will have to retire," he said.

Major Kendrick, in announcing the tentative appointment of Elliott said that General Butler was undecided what is best for him to do. The major added that he was "more determined than ever that the police shall be divorced from crime and politics" during his administration.

MEMORIES REVIVED OF SERVICE IN FRANCE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Memories of service in France enlivened a luncheon given today by officers of the general staff to their new civilian chiefs, Secretary Dwight Davis and assistant Secretary Hanford MacNider, both of whom served as officers during the war.

Mr. MacNider, describing his sensations when he became assistant secretary, said his greatest thrill came when he inspected the big, double wheeled, closed car assigned to him in Washington.

A familiar aspect about the machine caused him to investigate, and it proved to be one of those formerly used by General Pershing, and the assistant secretary recalled having encountered it on a muddy road in France. He was a platoon commander then and had been forced to march his platoon into the roadside mud to permit the car and its staff occupant to go splashing by.

Secretary Davis took occasion to voice confidence in the fairness and earnestness of the officers of the general staff. Reference to the staff as bureaucrats unable to grasp new ideas, he said, were unjustified.

NEW JERSEY DEMOCRATS CELEBRATING ELECTION

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 4—(A. P.)—With only nine unreported districts, seven of them in Bergen county and two in Burlington, A. Harry Moore of Jersey City tonight held a lead of 39,-495 votes over his republican opponent, State Senator Arthur Whitney in the democratic party was celebrating the election of its third successive candidate to the gubernatorial chair.

Aside from the governorship, the republican party practically swept the state, however, it retained control of both the senate and house of assembly of the legislature, and elected a congressman, Stewart Appleby defeating J. Lyle Kinmouth, democrat of the Third Congressional district.

Personnel of the legislature on 1926. will be made up of eighteen republican senators and three democrats, while the house of assembly will have forty seven republicans and twelve democrats.

RESCUED TWELVE MEN FROM GROUNDED YACHT

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Nov. 4. (AP)—After battling all day with a heavy sea the crew of a Cost Guard cutter took Ed Stokes of Warrington, Va., owner, a guest and nine members of the crew of the yacht Genesee aground four miles off Vero beach, at 2.30 o'clock this afternoon. The craft is pounding to pieces.

FRENCH MINISTRY AGAIN TO FACE CRISIS TODAY

PARIS, Nov. 4. (AP)—The Painleve cabinet, which again faces the chamber tomorrow, is described by the Temps as "a phantom government groping for a shadow majority in the darkness."

But Premier Painleve says: "The ministry will carry on."

Lloyds advices from Ponta Delgada, Azores, says the Holland America freighter Andijk arrived there escorted by the American steamer Merchant.

Wife of Slain Man Planned Elopement

Confession Made by Newark Woman — Alleged Paramour Held Without Bail.

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 4—(A. P.)—Mrs. William J. Clark, whose husband was killed by blows from a hammer as he entered his garage in Hillside, N. J., yesterday, confessed today to Chief of Detectives Gallaton that she and Joseph Cowen, a friend of the family, had saved an elopement fund of $2,-000. The money, she said, was on deposit with the Howard Savings bank, Newark. Cowen is being held without bail in the Hillside jail.

STATE RESTS ITS CASE IN STEPHENSON MURDER TRIAL

NOBLESVILLE, Ind., Nov. 4—(AP)—The state rested its case against D. C. Stephenson, Earl Klenck and Earl Gentry, charged with murder in connection with the death of Madge Oberholtzer of Indianapolis late today.

The action came at the end of a day devoted to obtaining testimony of physicians that the girl's death was due partly to the effects of wounds suffered at the time of an alleged attack by the former Ku Klux Klan leader. Miss Oberholtzer took poison on March 15, shortly after the alleged assault, and died April 14.

Before the state completed its case, Judge Will M. Sparks ruled on admission of testimony of George Oberholtzer, the girl's father, given last Thursday and objected to by the defense. The court struck from Oberholtzer's version of the story his daughter related to him on her death bed, several sentences of their conversation to which the girl could not testify, the defense alleged, if she were present.

The court, however, left in the record Oberholtzer's quotation of his daughter as saying that Stephenson and gentry both held guns at her sides when they stopped in Indianapolis on the ride home from Hammond, and her purported quotation of Stephenson as saying to her: "I am the law in Indiana. X X."

Joseph Inman, chief defense counsel, will make his opening statement tomorrow, the defense obtained permission today to recall to the stand for further cross examination Lee Ayres, day clerk at the Indiana hotel at Hammond, who testified for the state

DEVELOPING DETAILS OF ITALIAN DEBT FUNDING

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4. (AP)—Two joint sub-committees, selected earlier in the day at a plenary session of the Italian and American war debt commissions, went to work tonight in an effort to develop the details of a funding agreement.

Minutest phases of the problem of dealing with the debt, which is approximately $2,138,543,000, were assigned to each of the two groups to facilitate the negotiations. The membership of these committees and the work they are to do, however, were not disclosed, but it was understood that they would meet not only tonight but again tomorrow, probably early in the day.

The American commission also has been called together for a conference before noon tomorrow, but no formal meeting between the two commissions has been arranged pending reports from the sub-committees.

Strict secrecy surrounded the negotiations today. In making known the decision to turn the conversations over to sub-committee consideration, under Secretary Winston of the treasury, the American commission secretary, declined to go beyond the bare announcement, and Secretary Mellon emphasized that both commissions were opposed to publication of any of the discussions until an agreement was ready for signature.

LATEST RETURNS FROM NEW YORK ELECTIONS

NEW YORK, Nov. 4. (AP)—The decisive majorities by which all four pending constitutional amendments were ratified by the voters of New York state at yesterday's election became even more apparent today. With all but a few hundred districts in the state heard from, tonight, the plurality in favor of the $100,000,000 bond issue for public improvements was nearly 145,000, while the margin of victory for the bond issue of $300,-000,000 to finance the elimination of railroad grade crossings exceeded a quarter of a million.

As delayed returns from upstate counties filtered in, however, these pluralities were reduced considerably, but not to such an extent as to make them appear in danger of defeat. Virtually all of the upstate counties in which the count was late were rural districts, where the greatest opposition to both bond issues was recorded.

The majorities for the amendments providing for reconstruction of the state government by consolidation of more than 180 existing agencies into 20 civil departments approached the 4,000,000 mark, and that for the judiciary amendment was even greater. The judiciary amendment was the only one of the four proposals which received majorities both upstate and in New York.

In many upstate districts it was impossible to obtain figures on the vote of the amendments. A late count, absence of telephone and telegraph facilities at night, coupled with the fact in many instances the result of the tabulations was sealed with the ballots, prevented access to the figures until the official canvass by the county board of elections a forthnight hence.

MATTERS LIKELY TO FIGURE IN PRESIDENTIAL MESSAGE

President Coolidge Discussed Foreign Relations With Senator Borah—Debts of France and Belgium and the Situation in China Were Considered—Anthracite Situation, Farm Relief and Reclamation Problems Are Domestic Issues That May Receive Attention.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—(AP)—President Coolidge today called on Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, for a discussion of the annual message he is to send to congress next month.

The chief executive and the chairman of the foreign relations committee were closeted for more than an hour and conversations ranged over a wide field of foreign relations as well as domestic problems.

Foreign debts, particularly those of France and Belgium, the situation in China, and Russian affairs formed the main topics of discussion in the foreign field, while the anthracite situation, farm relief and reclamation were among the more important domestic problems taken up.

The coal situation is one about which a number of senators now in Washington have expressed considerable concern, several of whom feeling that the federal government should take a hand, in the matter, have indicated their intentions to present their views shortly to the president.

Administration officials have held hopeful that the situation, may be relieved by the use of anthracite substitutes but they have found a growing obstacle in the steadily mounting prices for these fuels. As a result they are now surveying the situation with a view to determining what steps may be taken to furnish relief.

HINTS OF ELECTION CONTESTS IN KANSAS CITY

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 4—Hints of narrow margins separating candidates in Kansas City's most closely contested election in years came today from supporters of the two groups of candidates, headed by Mayor Albert L. Beach, republican, and Ben Jaudon, democrat and city treasurer.

Mayor Beach won the mayoralty contest from Jaudon, according to unofficial returns, by a margin of 428 votes, while three of the four Jaudon group of candidates for councilmen at large were elected. Two Jaudon candidates and two Beach candidates for district councilmen were elected.

Supporters of both groups of candidates, said the official canvass of votes would be awaited before any action was taken. The Beach group supporters declared they were not willing to concede the election of George Goldman, who led L. R. Jewell by 273 votes for councilman at large on the unofficial returns, if Goldman's lead be sustained it will give the democrats preponderant influence in the council.

Only two of 25 bond proposals received the necessary majorities. These provide $1,200,000 each for extension of the fire department and the city hospital. The proposals defeated aggregated more than $24,000,000.

ASKS MORE STATISTICS FOR REVISION OF TAXES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4. (AP)—Declaring to make the maximum possible reduction in taxes, the house ways and means committee today asked the treasury, which has suggested a limit of $300,000,000, to present additional data on probable government expenses and receipts for the next fiscal year so it can determine for itself how far to go in cutting levies.

This was the committee's first move when it started work today on the actual preparation of a tax reduction bill after more than two weeks of public hearings.

While Secretary Mellon proposed that the government's annual income be reduced by not more than $300,-000,000, committee members feel it may be possible on the basis of late estimates to go beyond this figure. President Coolidge inclines to a similar view.

All of the 25 members of the committee were present today at the first of its executive sessions, and indications were renewed that representatives of both parties would work together to draft a non-partisan measure in time for presentation when Congress convenes Dec. 7.

Under a program of procedure approved today, the committee will include the income taxes after setting its goal for total reduction.

COMPETITION EXPECTED ON INTERNATIONAL FINANCING

NEW YORK, Nov. 4—(A. P.)—Renewed competition between London and New York for international financing is expected by local bankers to follow the removal of Great Britain's embargo on foreign loans which has been in effect since the restoration of the gold standard last spring.

Immediate effects of yesterday's announcement by Chancellor of the Exchequer Churchill were seen in reports that London bankers were considering several important foreign loans, including advances to Cuba, the German potash industry, the city of Warsaw and other prospective borrowers. Some of the rumors were branded merely as "feelers," but bankers conceded that the reopening of the London market would enable other countries to get better terms and would likely reduce the interest rates on foreign loans floated here, many of which have been on a 7 or 8 per cent basis in recent years.

The lifting fo the London embargo, it was held, should relieve pressure on the New York money market, tending to lower rates for time and call funds, and at the same time cause a tightening of money conditions in London.

WOOD IS TO CONTEST HIS WIFE'S SUIT FOR DIVORCE

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(AP) — Osborne C. Wood, son of Governor-General Leonard Wood of the Philippine Islands, announced tonight before leaving for Wilmington, Del., that he would fight his wife's suit for divorce, scheduled to be heard in that city. He previously had intimated he might not contest the action.

On a visit to Wilmington Monday the day the action was to be called, Wood obtained postponement of the suit until later in the month.

He said at that time that he had not decided upon any other action save to arrange, should the divorce be granted, that he should have the privilege of seeing his two children "at reasonable intervals."

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE 13 TO CONVENE IN NEW YORK TODAY

CHICAGO, Nov. 4. (AP)—The "enforcement crisis" convention of the Anti-Saloon league, its greatest since the 1913 convention which launched the national prohibition drive, opens here tomorrow to take stock of the dry enforcement campaign and devise new strategy for the support of federal dry forces.

Leaders of the official and civilian dry forces of the nation will study the situation, define the new Goal of the league and prepare for the "hardest fought and most significant battle it has ever entered, to make the bootlegger and the moonshiner who existed before and beside the old time saloon, as much of a national curiosity as a retail liquor dealer's license."

Gen. Lincoln C. Andrews, official head of the dry forces, as assistant secretary of the treasury, A. J. Volstead, father of the prohibition law, Admiral Billard, commandant of the Coast Guard; Senator Sheppard of Texas, who introduced the resolution in Congress for the 18th amendment; Coach F. H. Yost of the University of Michigan; Federal Judge George W. McClintic of West Virginia and many other public officials, besides the leaders of the league and the W. C. T. U., are scattered through the five day program of the convention.

The state and district superintendents meet tomorrow to report on their own district campaigns and elect national officers. Bishop Thomas Nicholson of the Methodist Episcopal church opens the general sessions tomorrow night with his annual address.

CELEBRATED ANNIVERSARY OF ITALO-AUSTRIAN ARMISTICE

ROME, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Italy celebrated today the seventh anniversary of the Italo-Austrian armistice, and Premier Mussolini before an audience which packed Constanza opera-house, declared that the gates to Italy's future greatness were in the process of being opened by fascism as the directing agency.

"I have not yet arrived at the Utopian point where I believe in a durable peace," Mussolini said. "I participate, Italy participates, the Italian government participates, naturally, with absolute sincerity in all attempts to stabilize peace, but the next day after the greatest peace event in recent times cannon thundered in Macedonia and thundered also along the shore of the Mediterranean.

"I do not exclude the possibility that history tomorrow may take a different course from that of yesterday, but while awaiting this miracle we must have a powerful and respected army, an adequate navy and aviation which dominates the skies."

PRIESTS ESCAPED FROM BANDITS IN CHINA

OSSINING, N. Y., Nov. 4—Two Catholic priests, sent from the Mary Knoll seminary here two years ago to China for missionary work, have made their escape from bandits who held them captive for six days, they cabled tonight from Hong Kong where they were taken by a United States navy gunboat.

The Reverend Thomas O'Melia and the Reverend Otto Rauschenbach were in charge of a parish on St. John's Island near Hong Kong. A few days ago they returned from a journey to their mission and found it occupied by Chinese bandits who made them prisoners. They escaped and fled to Pekking whence a gunboat took them to the international city. There they enabled the Reverend James Walsh of Ossining, head of the Catholic foreign mission society of America.

The Mary Knoll seminary trains American priests for foreign missionary work.

HEARING BEFORE TROLLEY ARBITRATION BOARD

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 4—Arthur Sturgis of Washington, an expert of the government's bureau of labor statistics, was the first and only witness heard by the trolley arbitration board, which opened its session here today for the purpose of determining whether the conductors and motormen employed by the Connecticut company should receive an increase or cut in wages. Compensation Commissioner Kleiner presided over the meeting. The other two members of the board are Attorney Joseph Berry of Hartford, for the Connecticut company and Attorney James Vahey, of Boston, of Boston, for the trolleymen. Officials of the Connecticut company and the state officers of the trolleymen's union were in attendance. Professor George D. Watrous represents the company.

N. Y. STOCK EXCHANGE TO EXTEND TICKER FACILITIES

NEW YORK, Nov. 4—Plans of the New York stock exchange to extend its ticker facilities to the Pacific coast and to Florida were motivating factors in its recent decision to raise seats $3,000,000 by the sale of twenty-five new seats, it developed today when a fight over the proposal was carried to an open debate.

WILLIMANTIC

Possessing a warrant issued by Boston authorities, Chief of Police Allan McArthur placed under arrest Wednesday, Mrs. Clarissa Moore, 40, charged with abandoning her five minor children, Florence, Stanley, Frederick William and George Moore. Chief McArthur received a letter from Boston a few days ago, stating that the negligent mother was believed to be in this vicinity. She deserted her children October 5. The next step was the finding of a clue through an envelope containing the postmark, of "Windham Center". The woman had written to Florence, her oldest child, but the contents of the letter gave no intimation of where it was written. A woman answering the description of Mrs. Moore was found to be employed at the Windham Inn. The Boston police were notified and upon her arrest Mrs. Moore was turned over to Officers John Bostwick and Daniel O'Hara of Station 12, Boston. The Moore woman had nothing to say when apprehended other than that she was a widow and found that the task of supporting five children was a hardship.

The case of John Romanoff vs. Lesa Sabins and Elijah Sabins of Canterbury was settled by compromise and the action withdrawn, after testimony from both sides had been taken during the larger part of the session of the Windham County superior court in this city Wednesday. The case involves the leasing of a farm, furnishings and farm implements from the defendants one year ago. The furniture and miscellaneous articles were to have been purchased and the plaintiff alleged that practically nothing of this nature had been left on the place when he arrived from New York city to take possession of the farm. He charged that the defendants had removed practically everything and he brought suit to recover the value of the furniture. The plaintiff occupied the stand during the forenoon and enumerated the number of beds, chairs, tables and farm and dairy implements and their estimated worth. The plaintiff's attorney also pointed out a weakness of the lease, the contract for which was signed by Mrs. Romanoff during her husband's absence. Romanoff was represented by Attorney Harry E. Bach of Danielson.

Following recess for luncheon the testimony for the defense was taken when Elijah Sabins was on the stand for the larger part of the afternoon. His counsel was Attorneys William A. Kirk and Samuel B. Harvey. Sabins sought to establish in his testimony that he had not removed any of the articles of furniture or farming implements which it was agreed would remain on the place. He asserted that but very few of the implements were of any appreciable value, most of them being well-used pieces. Most of the furniture came in the same category. He had left five bedrooms equipped with beds and bedding and bureaus and the living room had been left untouched. The testimony was completed at four o'clock when Judge Edwin C. Dickenson recommended that the attorneys retire and if possible arrange some form of compromise. This was done and at 4:15 court resumed and Attorney Bach announced that the recommendation had been carried out and an agreement reached.

The case of William S. Chandler vs. Charles Lavalley, a suit for damages of $2,500 was continued until Thursday by Judge Dickenson when it was made known that Attorney J. J. Desmond for the defendant was engaged in the New London county superior court. The plaintiff alleges that he was a passenger in an automobile driven by defendant November 26, 1924 when the machine, which it is alleged was traveling at an excessive rate of speed left the curve on the highway between Attawaugan and Putnam Heights and crashed into an embankment, damaging the car and painfully injuring plaintiff.

Court adjourned at 4:30 o'clock until this (Thursday) morning at ten o'clock. It is believed that the case of Haskel Rosen vs. James E. Randall will be taken up at that time.

State Assembly officers were entertained at the meeting of Violet Rebekah Lodge, No. 87, I. O. O. F., held Tuesday evening at Odd Fellows hall with a turkey dinner. Mrs. Minnie E. Mathieu was chairman of the dinner committee and Mrs. Sadie Thompson was in charge of the dining hall. At the conclusion of an entertainment program, Mrs. Emma C. Wilson of Stamford, president of the state Rebekah assembly, was presented a gold piece. Other assembly officers present were: Elizabeth T. Watrous of Glastonbury, vice president; Louise Holmes of Jewett City, district deputy and Mary E. Lovell of this city, past president. Fred L. Avery, district deputy grand master was also a guest. Over eighty were in attendance. Mrs. Gertrude Mathieu had charge of the entertainment program, during which the Imperial Male quartet sang and Everet Shippee was heard in violin solos. The Mathieu twins pleased with a violin and saxophone duet and Mrs. Charles H. Beebe gave one of her delightful readings. The Wilson sisters received much applause for a piano and violin duet. Miss L. Monica McKeon sang several soprano solos. The Cudworth sisters with vocal numbers and the Mathieu twins in dancing and song numbers concluded the program.

A joint recital by Miss Harriet Allen, pianist and Thomas Wall, baritone, was given at the meeting of the Woman's club Tuesday afternoon. The artists are Bridgeport residents and were introduced by Mrs. Carl R. Alford, club president. Miss Allen first gave a talk on The Federation of Music clubs in which she explained the activities of a young people's musical club in Bridgeport, which has grown from twelve to sixty-five members and is highly successful from every standpoint. Among the numbers rendered in the classical program was Schubert's "The Wanderer," which gave Mr. Wall an excellent opportunity to demonstrate his beautifully placed and resonant voice. His interpretive and dramatic conception as well as the quality of voice and poise which he possesses, has led all who have heard him to prophecy a brilliant future for the young artist. Miss Allen played "Castilian Dance" and "Under the Trees," and responded to an encore.

Miss Susan A. Payne, 77, died at her home in South Windham Wednesday morning. She was born in Lebanon, July 23, 1847, a daughter of Nathan C. and Amy Gawle Payne. She leaves two sisters, Mrs. Sarah N. Sweet of Suffield and Mrs. Anna Young of Hartford and a number of nieces and nephews, including A. C. Sweet, with whom she resided.

The annual inspection of Augustus C. Tyler Camp No. 8, United States War Veterans is to be held at the G. A. R. Hall this (Thursday) evening by District Inspector Edward J. Lynch of Thompsonville, a former resident of this city. He will be accompanied by State Commander Silva of Hartford, Past Commanders Martin Laubscher of Rockville and Frank F. Fenton of this city, State Inspector J. J. Connors of Rockville and others. Friday evening the officers will go to Danielson to participate in the inspection of members and camp property of the post in that place.

Joseph, seven-year-old son of Frank and Rose Silvergio, died at the home of his parents, 174 Mansfield avenue early Wednesday morning, from pneumonia.

Due to an unaccountable delay in the arrival of additional supply of buttons to be distributed among the school children, the Old Ironsides campaign being conducted in this city by Louise No. 1311, D. P. O. E., has been extended. The result of the forced extension has proven advantageous as it has given more time for the idea to spread and competitive contribution has developed among the schools. Windham High school's quota of $35 was collected in full Wednesday by Exalted Ruler Albert J. Fournier and Grand E. Loisell who then presented a beautiful framed reproduction of Old Ironsides to session Room 9 in charge of Miss Catherine Wheeler. Competition at the school was between the sixteen session rooms and for a time Room 25, consisting of 62 older pupils held the lead, Room 9, at the eleventh hour the teacher, Miss Wheeler deposited a sum which brought Room 9, 12 cents in the lead.

Whether they be of the idle rich or all poor class, a pretty accurate conception of the number of unemployed in the city can be derived from a count of the number of spectators who stand hour by hour and watch the working of a huge steam shovel at the site of the new Community theatre. The work is worth watching and gives some conception of the 20th century methods of speedy construction. By actual count 28 men spent at least a total of four hours at the spot Wednesday and over one hundred came and went.

Dr. L. C. Dunn, professor of genetics at Connecticut Agricultural college, Storrs, was the speaker at the regular weekly meeting and luncheon of the Willimantic Exchange club held in the Y. M. C. A. Wednesday. His subject was on "Genetics." He was introduced by Professor Sherman P. Hollister. President Dr. C. E. Simonds was in charge of the meeting which was well attended. The club voted to hold regular weekly meetings in the future at 6:15 o'clock in the evening instead of at noon, for the convenience of the members.

The W. F. M. E. of the Methodist church met at the church parlors in the afternoon with Mrs. Ada I. Burlingham presiding. The devotional service was from Angelus. The feature of the program was an interesting report by Mrs. Arthur E. Morrill, auxiliary delegate to the New England branch of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the M. E. church held in Portsmouth, N. H., October 13, 14th and 15th.

Engine Company No. 1 responded to two still alarms, Wednesday forenoon. One was for a refuse fire on Mansfield avenue at 4:40 o'clock. Thirty-nine gallons of chemicals were used. The second was at 11:20 o'clock for a grass fire at 1705 West Main street on property of Mrs. Arnold Potter. Three gallons of chemicals and the forestry pump were used.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Gallup of South Voluntown were visitors Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Congdon.

A novelty dance was held in Grange hall Saturday evening.

Many grangers from here attended a special meeting of Quinebaug Pomona at Canterbury Saturday when the fifth degree was conferred on a large class. An interesting program was given in the afternoon.

Harold Burke spent the week end with his family here.

The spooks, in proper regalia, were out in full force Saturday evening to celebrate Hallowe'en.

The True Blue club gave a Harvest Supper and entertainment in the vestry Saturday evening which was largely attended.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Gallup and daughter Shirley visited Mrs. Byron Gallup Sunday. Other callers were Arthur Gallup and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hoskins and children.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Slocum of Westerly, spent Wednesday at their cottage here.

John P. Tanner's faithful old driving horse died Monday.

EAST WOODSTOCK

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Potter and Harry Townsend motored to Middletown last week one day, visiting Rev. and Mrs. Frank C. Potter.

Mrs. F. A. Jordan, Mrs. L. H. Sinderman, Mrs. Everett E. May, Mrs. F. C. Johnstone, Mrs. Adelaid Merritt, Mrs. E. R. Rollins, Misses Blanche Stoutenbury and Rilla Child and Mrs. Asa Scanlon are attending the state convention of the League of Women Voters in Hartford this week.

The union social held last Friday evening was a success, over 300 attending. A delicious supper was served and the program by the North and Hill parishes was much enjoyed. Mrs. J. E. Aldrich, Mrs. L. H. Linderman and Mrs. A. E. Dodge were hostesses.

Misses Elizabeth McMillan and Margaret Mould of Edinburgh, Scotland, are guests of Mrs. J. E. Aldrich, the former being the niece whom she had never seen. They arrived in New York on the Caledonia Tuesday, the steamer being a day late owing to heavy seas.

PLAINFIELD

Mrs. Herbert Smith of the New Village who went to New Bedford to care for her mother a few weeks ago, is ill and if able to, will return to Plainfield this week. Mrs. Smith's mother died recently, and the effect has made her ill.

While returning from Danielson at 10 o'clock Monday night, William Alexander of Plainfield met the front end of an awfully large deer, so large that Alexander thought it a cow. The deer jumped off a bank in front of the Dyer house, between Danielson and Wauregan, into the left front fender of the automobile driven by Mr. Alexander. The matter was at once reported to the state police and the game warden at Putnam. The animal died a few minutes after being hit, and was taken to Wauregan, to await the orders of Game Warden Letters, of Putnam.

Two automobiles left Plainfield Tuesday for Florida. Frank Bernier and Ernest Hebert went to Miami, in one car, and Arthur Holmes, Charles Seney and James Belvelle left for Orlando in another machine.

Funeral services for Clarence Francis were held in the Congregational church, Central Village, Rev. G. Leon Wells officiated. The burial ritual of Protection lodge, I. O. O. F. was conducted by Grand Noble Carl Apperman and Acting Chaplain Rev. William C. Prentiss. The bearers were Frank Davis, Elmer Phillips, Ernest Wilde, Carl Opperman, William Thompson, and Ernest Dawley. Burial was in Evergreen cemetery, Central Village. Mr. Francis died while on sick leave from the torpedo station at Newport, where he was first class torpedo inspector.

The degree team from Protection lodge, I. O. O. F. went to Danielson, Tuesday night to confer the degree on new candidates of that lodge. Many visitors from Plainfield and Central Village attended the meeting.

Five delinquent taxpayers were before Judge George L. Torrey at the town court, and were ordered to pay all taxes in arrears, besides court costs, of $8.80 each. Five others were summoned to appear, but were able to produce receipts of taxes to date, 80 were released. Those delinquent were: George Brelsford, Jr., and Albert Bousquet of Plainfield, George and Anna Winsor, of Central Village and George Bessette, of Moosup. This is the start of a clean-up of those who are backward in paying taxes and many others will be brought to court, as the list is published.

Their wooden wedding was celebrated, with a party and reception, by Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Walker of Third street last night, and many useful gifts were presented the couple during the evening. Many out of town guests were present including Mr. and Mrs. John Jenks and son of Fall River, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bates, New Bedford, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Belanger and son, New Haven and Mr. and Mrs. James Seward of Baltic. A chicken pie supper was served.

Miss Annie L. Tillinghast has been appointed assistant director at the Community house and began her duties Tuesday. Miss Tillinghast will supervise the activities of women and girls, due to the increased demands upon Director Dissinger in the work for men and boys.

What every salesman knows

FREQUENT personal contact with his customers is the salesman's best business-builder.

Once the confidence of his trade is won, his problem is mainly how to call on them often enough to care for all their wants and hold their custom. What he really needs is some up-to-date magic carpet which will take him over his territory twice as often without doubling his expense account.

Every salesman knows how valuable these more frequent calls would be.

A good many salesmen, and sales managers too, right here in Connecticut, have learned how easily toll telephone calls will maintain this profitable personal contact.

Sooner or later, every salesman will find it out.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

At Abington Wednesday the death of Melvin Eugene Fisher, 52, for well toward half a century a resident of Danielson, occurred. Well past the allotted three score years and ten of life, Mr. Fisher, who was exceptionally active until well after his 70th birthday, so much so as to attract admiring comment, had been an almost helpless invalid for a number of years. His death occurred almost exactly two weeks after that of his daughter, Mrs. Grace Fisher Danielson, wife of Willard S. Danielson.

Mr. Fisher was born in Woodstock, May 21, 1843, a son of Lucien B. and Emily Howard Fisher. In his early years he became a carpenter and followed this occupation throughout the major part of his active years. He was engaged in Danielson as a contractor and builder and enjoyed the reputation of being among the most skilled of the county's wood-workers and of being painstakingly particular in his personal work and of all operations carried out under his supervision. There was never lack of demand for his services until the passing years made it necessary for him to retire from active work.

It was recalled here Wednesday that Mr. Fisher rode a bicycle at 75 with as much zest as a youth in his teens, and there came a day when he had his automobile and operated it with the skill and care characteristic of every good and responsible driver.

Mr. Fisher leaves no relatives nearer than his son-in-law and cousins. [illegible] was taken in charge at Abington by A. H. Wood and by him conveyed to his undertaking rooms in Danielson.

There are many and peculiar angles to the coincident with the announcement that Danielson is to lose its trolley service comes another announcement that Oneco is to be brought within the electrically lighted zones of this corner of the state. Thus is on the verge of being able to throw away its kerosene lamps for a more modern form of lighting, while it hardly pauses to consider what the passing of its electric car service will mean in the sweep of progress.

It was made known here Wednesday that the Danielson and Plainfield Gas and Electric company, supplying light and power to a number of towns and many communities in this area is to reach into a new field by building a line from a point in Moosup near the Andrews mills out of the route leading to Sterling Hill and into Oneco. The company already has the assurance that at least 50 patrons will subscribe to its service as soon as it is installed, and in all probability there will be many more.

This projected line is only one of a number of extensions to be built by the D. and P. Gas and Electric company in towns of its territory in the near future. These extensions are indicative of the manner in which the gas and power company, a subsidiary of the Eastern Connecticut Power company with headquarters at Norwich, is developing its field. Its activities the past few years has been an example of alertness in seeking and making opportunities for business and many hundreds have benefitted therefrom.

Danielson, being concerned about communities from which it draws business, especially so if they be within the town of Killingly, will no doubt concern itself with the matter of providing regular transportation facilities between the borough and East Killingly, which is to lose its trolley service and obtain nothing in return, at least insofar as the memorandum of the Public Utilities commission requires the Connecticut company to operate busses between the two places. It is possible that the Connecticut company might see fit to maintain a bus service between Danielson and East Killingly. But Wednesday there seemed to be a feeling up in East Killingly that the place was to be left without regular communication with Danielson. It is known that the Connecticut company has no present intention of operating busses between Danielson and East Killingly. It has found the route so unprofitable for trolley service that it finds no warrant to venture with busses.

None of this being true, Danielson still has an interest in seeing that some regular service is provided. Possibly the matter may work itself out [illegible] it can be conceived that some individual will venture into the field and undertake to establish a service. It would not be amazing to see this happen in view of the great scramble that is on just now for bus line franchises.

No definite date has been set for taking off the trolley cars through Danielson and substituting busses. Some time necessarily must elapse for the Connecticut company to perfect its bus line organization between Norwich and North Grosvenordale, and in the meantime the trolleys will continue to operate. There is a possibility that the trolleys will be taken off this month—perhaps toward the end of the month—but as late as Wednesday afternoon no date for the change in service had been decided upon.

Wednesday rated like another Indian summer day. While it was being appreciated for its comforts by thousands, it was being employed as ideal weather for rush work on certain big outdoor projects now under way in this territory and which it is hoped to complete before real cold weather arrives.

Eight men who are to rebuild walls and do other late fall work at the Gaston homestead in South Killingly have arrived in Danielson and are staying at a hotel. The Gaston place at South Killingly has been in the family for many years. William A. Gaston of the Shawmut National bank of Bostno and a director of the Windham County National bank, at Danielson, is a member of the family.

The largest attendance at the armory in a long time for a whist and dance, gathered there Tuesday evening, for an event of the kind arranged by the Girls' club and the Service battery. A hope chest was awarded Mrs. Moses Berthiaume of Dayville. At the whist, first honors for the men were won by Hugh Carragher, second by Clifford Withey, consolation by Albert Redman. For the ladies, Mrs. Severien Meunier won first, Mrs. Robert M. Tyrell second, the consolation going to Jeanette Gendreau.

George Cook, who has been employed at the Shepard Hill farm of W. S. Brown near Central Village since June 1, is leaving in a few days to spend the winter in the south. This has been Mr. Cook's custom for many years.

Rev. F. T. Ledwith, M. S., who has been engaged in mission work for months, spent Wednesday in Danielson, prior to going to Hartford.

PLOW OVER 150 YEARS OLD OWNED BY J. CARL WITTER

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 4—J. Carl Witter has come into possession of an ancient plow. This implement of agriculture presents itself in this modern day as an interesting object of study for those who are only acquainted with modern and efficient agricultural machinery and equipment. The plow is at least 150 years of age. It is entirely of hand-hewed oak and hand-wrought iron. The only metal parts are the plow point and the cutter, and these are attached to the plow with wooden pegs. Another evidence that people really worked back in the days when this plow was in service, not merely talked about working.

MRS. PRESTON B. SIBLEY DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 4—Mrs. Kate B. Sibley, 83, widow of Preston B. Sibley, for years a sheriff of Windham county, died here just before midnight Tuesday. Mrs. Sibley had been in failing health for a number of years.

Mrs. Sibley was born in Springfield, Mass., August 21, 1842, a daughter of Samuel and Almena Maria Bulkley Noble Wesley. Her father also was a native of Springfield, born April 16, 1810. He was an expert machinist and for years was in the employ of the Colt Fire Arms company of Hartford. His association with Colonel Colt of the Colt company eventually led to their going to England, where they engaged in the manufacture of guns. He tired of England and, returning to this country, died in New York shortly after his arrival from abroad.

Mrs. Kate B. Sibley and Sheriff Sibley, who was one of the best known residents of this county in the past generation, were married January 2, 1862, in Chaplin. Sheriff and Mrs. Sibley became the parents of three children, all born in Eastford, where the Sibley family lived for many years. They are Lewis Preston Sibley, Frederick Samuel Sibley, and Mrs. Mary Maria Sibley Loomis.

The family lived in Eastford for years. It was in this town that Mr. Sibley's father, a descendant of one of New England's oldest families, had located and thrived with his family. It was in that town that Sheriff Sibley was born in 1840. Mr. Sibley who later was to hold various positions of responsibility in county and state, was engaged as a carpenter in his early years. In 1881 Mr. and Mrs. Sibley moved to Brooklyn, where Mr. Sibley was in charge of the county jail, an appointment he held until 1895. In the meantime he had been re-appointed a deputy sheriff, a place he had filled for years and was made sheriff of the county in 1898. He was repeatedly appointed to this place and was filling the position when his death occurred in Danielson, January 7, 1914. Mr. Sibley had been seriously injured while boarding a trolley car in Danielson five days previous to his death, while going about in discharge of the duties of his office.

Mrs. Sibley leaves two sons, Lewis P., who is in Sydney, Australia, Frederick S., vice-president of the Rhode Island Hospital Trust company of Providence, a daughter, Mrs. Mary M. Sibley Loomis of Northampton.

GOVERNOR TO INSPECT STATE POLICE BARRACKS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 4—Governor John H. Trumbull, members of the State Police commission and Supt. Robert T. Hurley of the state police will come to Danielson Thursday to inspect the state police barracks on North Main street, the personnel and equipment. The inspection is much after the manner of a military inspection and is conducted periodically. It will be the governor's first visit to Danielson since he has been the state's chief executive.

PUTNAM

John McArdle, proprietor of the Motor Tire Service company, has acquired from Sam Smith, former proprietor of the City Hotel, the block now occupied by the Motor Tire company and the City Fish Market. The block was formerly known as Music Block, and is one that was partially destroyed by fire a few months ago. Mr. McArdle already has a gang of workmen improving his newly acquired property. The long addition in the rear, built long ago for a bowling alley and where the recent fire did the most damage, is to be torn down. The second story, occupied as tenements, is to be renovated and repaired and the front of the building will also undergo many changes.

Robert Bruce, a student at North-eastern university at Boston, has been spending a few days with his parents on School street.

Elbert Kinney and his sister, Miss Emma Kinney were in Washington and attended the national council of congregational churches. At Washington they met their sister, Mrs. Beard, whose husband is president of Foochow college in China. Mrs. Beard is leaving for China to meet her husband.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter N. King were recent visitors at New Haven.

Miss Ruth Sweet, a student nurse at a hospital in Providence has been the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Sweet at Putnam Heights.

In accordance with an order issued Tuesday by the public utilities commission the Connecticut company will discontinue 38.25 miles of electric trolley service in eastern Connecticut and substitute bus service therefore. This is the line from Norwich to North Grosvenordale which runs through Putnam, Danielson, Central Village and other towns. Inquiries at the executive offices of the Connecticut company elicited the further information that the time at which the changes will be made from trolleys to buses depends entirely upon the delivery of the buses. Offers have been placed with firms which manufacture the finest type of motor buses but the Connecticut company official said that he did not even wish to fix an approximate date as to when they would be put in service.

He added further that while the schedule of the new method of transportation had not been decided on he thought it would be practically the same as the trolley schedule—one car each way every hour. The statement in a dispatch sent out from Hartford that local trolley service would be continued in Norwich and Putnam is incorrect in so far as it relates to Putnam. When the trolley service is discontinued between Norwich and North Grosvenordale, that will mark the date of the running of the last trolley through Putnam.

Harry Davis, a student at Dartmouth college, has been at his home in the city, and in company with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Schmanska of Walnut street went to the Dartmouth-Brown game in Providence.

Another accident was reported near the Children's Home. The cars driven by Charles W. Dowe of Woodstock and George K. Robbins of Springfield, Mass., came together. Both cars were turned over on their sides, but no passengers injured.

King J. Bogardus, who recently resigned as an instructor in the machine shop of the Putnam Trade school, has gone to Taunton, Mass., where he has a position. His family will remain in Putnam for the present.

Rev. S. M. Donnelly of North Grosvenordale has gone to Mississippi to visit relatives.

Dr. F. E. Wilcox of Willimantic has been spending several days with his mother, Mrs. Chester Wilcox of Woodstock.

John H. Moss was in Boston Wednesday.

Mrs. B. Haviland of Baltouville, who has been the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Justin S. Greene of Center street, has returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. John P. Grosvenor of Pomfret are entertaining Mrs. Grosvenor's mother, Mrs. Harry Barrows, and Miss Blanche Daggett of North Attleboro.

Mrs. Henry Sanford has returned to her home in New York after a stay in Pomfret.

Mrs. D. Crawford Clark, Mrs. Samuel Bragdon and Mrs. Thorne have gone to their home in New York after several weeks' stay at the South cottage of the Ben Grosvenor Inn, Pomfret.

Among the recent visitors at the Ben Grosvenor Inn were Mr. and Mrs. John Cabot, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Herrick of New York, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Pell of Tuxedo, Mrs. Donald Carr, Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Sammis, New York; Dr. and Mrs. F. K. Smith, Warren, Ohio; Mrs. George Switzer, Mrs. Bowden and Mrs. Marshall, Brooklyn, N. Y.; F. S. Overton, New Jersey, and Mr. and Mrs. Lee Haggin of Lexington, Kentucky.

PUBLIC NURSING COMMITTEE FORMULATES STATEMENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 4.—The women of Putnam who have given time and effort and contributed in other substantial ways to make the public health nursing service of the Red Cross a success, regret the agitation that has resulted from the resignation of Miss Lessard as nurse and the publication of her letter.

They do not feel that there have been any assertions made that call for an answer, nor do they think that this very desirable branch of the Red Cross work would be helped by a public discussion of the question. In the statement prepared for the press, moderate and dignified in tone, they express their belief that the citizens of Putnam will be satisfied to leave the settlement of the matter in the hands of the two committees, of the local chapter and of the chairman, George W. Baker. Some of the women are members of both committees.

The nursing service committee consists of Mrs. E. C. Morse, Miss Ellen M. Wheelock, Miss Clara Larned, Mrs. A. V. Frost, Miss Jennie Willis, Mrs. N. B. Burton.

The executive committee consists of George W. Baker, chairman of the chapter; Miss Katherine Byrne, Mrs. Dorothy Bartlett, Miss Emma Roberts, Miss Ellen M. Wheelock, Mrs. E. C. Morse, Miss Edith Brown.

At a joint meeting of these committees the following statement was formulated in regard to the resignation of Miss Cecelia Lessard as public health nurse of Putnam.

"The committee in charge of the nursing service, the members of which were appointed two years ago, has held its meeting regularly with Miss Lessard present at every meeting; they have heard her reports, granted every request that was possible and in every way tried to be an aid to her.

"Realizing that the efficiency of this very important work was being impaired, the committees after due deliberation, and after consultation with Miss Margaret E. Stack, state director of public health nursing, unanimously decided that for the welfare of the service it was very desirable that a change be made, and Miss Lessard was given an opportunity to resign.

"The committee has endeavored to keep in mind the purpose for which it was appointed, namely, to supervise the nursing service and to conscientiously and wisely dispense the Red Cross funds in so far a this service was concerned. Miss Lessard's resignation was acted upon by the executive board of the chapter at a special meeting at which all of the above named members were present. It was decided that no useful purpose would be served by attempting to go into the numerous details which resulted in this action; they believe that the people of Putnam will be satisfied in leaving this matter to the judgment of the joint committees.

"There was but one dissenting vote to this decision."

STAFFORD SPRINGS

Lucius Squires and Oscar Hughes of East Willington were before the borough court Tuesday morning, each charge with assault and breach of the peace. A fine of $6 and costs in each case amounting to $15.85 was imposed by Judge Heald, who also tacked on a jail sentence of 15 days for each, which he suspended during the good behavior of the accused. Squires and Hughes got into an argument at the Squires home over domestic affairs and this resulted in each one pitching in to the other. Hughes showed an abrasion on his cheek and a badly discolored eye and claimed that Squires struck him with an axe. Squires denied this but admitted striking Hughes when the latter butted into his family affairs.

NORWICH SPEAKER HEARD AT SOCIAL WORK CONFERENCE

(Special to The Bulletin)

STAFFORD SPRINGS, Nov. 4.—The regional conference of social work held in the club rooms of the Business Men's association yesterday afternoon and evening was largely attended and those in charge of the affair express themselves as well pleased at the results. The meetings were sponsored by the Current Events club and were attended by people of all denominations. Rev. Matthew J. Judge, director of the Diocesan Bureau of Social Service, presided at the afternoon meeting and introduced the speakers. The remarks of the speakers had to do principally with children and how to prevent them from going wrong. Mrs. Theodocia Rees, president of the Current Events club, gave the address of welcome, which was cleverly responded to by Mrs. Frank A. Mitchell of Norwich, president of the state conference of Welfare Workers. Mrs. Percy T. Walden, president of the state Child Welfare association, spoke of What the Truant Office Can Do to Help the Child. Mrs. Caroline de F. Fenniman, superintendent of Long Lane Farm, told of the work at that institution and what the correctional institutions in general can do. E. W. Duvall, superinendent of the Children's Community Center, New Haven Orphan Asylum, told what the mental examiner could do. Charles E. Dow, state commissioner of child welfare, stated that it was not only safe to adopt a child, but advisable to do so. Mrs. Rosemary Anderson of New London, in a 15-minute address told of how the unmarried mother and her child should behave. At the evening session B. P. Cooley of Stafford Springs presided. The subjects discussed were "Social Work for the Run-Down Family," by Miss Margaret F. Byington, secretary of the Central Council of Social Agencies; "The Juvenile Court," by Judge George H. Day, of the Hartford juvenile court, and "The Situation in Connecticut in Relation to the Feeble Minded," by Dr. Harry B. Ballou, of Mansfield State Training school. Dr. Ballou showed a number of stereopticon views of the training school and the work which is being carried on there. Ralph Barrows, executive secretary of the State Children's Aid society, conducted a question box.

OXFORD VOICE WORST VICE OF BRITISH STAGE, ERVINE SAYS

LONDON, Nov. 4—(A. P.)—The Oxford voice, "that lamentable thing that is worse than Oxford trousers," is the worst vice on the English stage today, in the opinion of St. John Ervine, dramatic critic and playwright. This voice, he said, was more revolting than the Cockney accent.

Swinging to comment on the American stage, Ervine declared Boston was a town where the poorest plays got the largest audiences and the best plays the least, while he described Chicago as one of the worst places in America for theatre production.

He has just returned from extensive travel.

AN INABILITY TO KILL A MAN FIRST GENEVA DRIVER'S TEST

GENEVA, Nov. 4—(A. P.)—If one hopes to get a license to drive an automobile in Geneva you must first of all be unable to kill a man.

The police examiner plants himself stoically in the middle of some unfrequented thoroughfare and orders the candidate for a license to drive swiftly down upon him with the injunction to stop and stop only when the front rim of the car touch the waistband of the waiting official. Many a woman and yes, many a man, their nerves shattered, fail in this feature of the driving test.

This two Geneva examiners have developed into crack dodgers and acrobats. They have to be if they want to keep their jobs—alive.

CHEWING TOBACCO AND CLIMATE HELP SQUAW ATTAIN AGE OF 106

EUREKA, Cal., Nov. 1.—(AP)—Plug chewing tobacco and California's climate were given as the explanation of healthy old age by "Aunt Fanny," a Hoopa Indian, 106 years old. Aunt Fanny has chewed tobacco for a century and found it an aid to digestion.

Aunt Fanny recently became a convert to christianity. Despite her years she walks several miles every day.

Illiterate Mayors Found

PARIS, Oct. 9.—At government offices in Paris which have to deal with local administrative affairs, it is not unusual to find official documents on which space for the mayor's signature is filled by a cross with the regulation phrase: "States he cannot write."

These illiterate mayors belong mostly to small and remote villages where it is difficult to find anyone to assume the duties of local government at small pay.

Protect "Last of Grizzlies"

VISALIA, Cal., Oct. 31.—The bear known in this region as "the last of the grizzlies," roaming the Tulare county mountains, is not to be made the target of cattlemen if the efforts of the American Academy of science are successful. Members of the organization have offered to pay for any depredations which the bear may inflict on livestock, believing that it is the only grizzly left in the California mountains.

Bill Would Abolish Death Penalty

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Nov. 4. (AP)—A bill to abolish the death penalty will be presented to the next session of the legislature by the state cabinet.

The measure would substitute imprisonment for hanging in cases of convicted murderers, the sentence varying in severity in accordance with the circumstances of the crime.

It's unwise to judge a man by the criticism of his enemies. Only his friends can properly denounce him.

Women Who Age

All welcome to this test

By Edna Wallace Hopper

At a grandmother's age, I keep my youthful bloom and contours. The thousands who see me daily on the stage and elsewhere know that I look it.

That is due to factors science made for me, and one is my White Youth Clay.

This is a new-type clay, white, refined and dainty. It is nothing like the crude and muddy clays so many have employed.

It combines two clays with other needed factors. The clays are clean and white. This is a dainty application, and the final result of 20 years of scientific study.

White Youth Clay purges the skin of all that clogs and mars it. It removes the causes of blackheads and blemishes. It draws the blood to the skin to nourish and revive it. The result is a rosy afterglow which amazes and delights.

It combats all lines and wrinkles, reduces enlarged pores. Many women seem to drop ten years with a single application.

Clay is a beauty essential. No woman can look her best without it, or keep her youth. In all the ages none have found a beauty help to compare with clay.

Now clay is made inviting. It is made to combine added helps. Whatever other clay you may have tried, you owe yourself a test of this new type.

Edna Wallace Hopper's White Youth Clay is supplied by all druggists and toilet counters at 50c and $1. Send coupon for trial tube. Let it show what it does.

For Trial Tube

Mail this today to Edna Wallace Hopper, 535 Lake Shore Drive, Chicago. Enclose 10c for postage and packing. I want to try White Youth Clay. 16

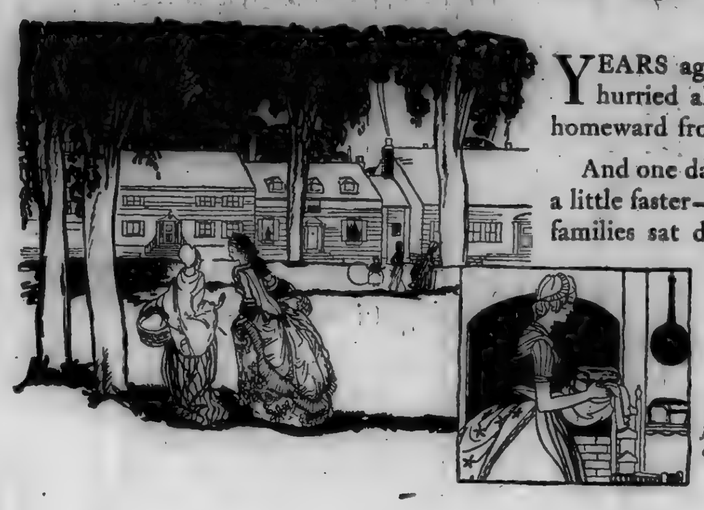
Once a week the fragrance of freshly baked bread hung over the village



YEARS ago busy New England housewives hurried along the shaded village streets—homeward from market.

And one day each week they seemed to walk a little faster—baking day! Once a week, their families sat down in the evening to a treat of fresh bread! Now every town in New England and Westchester can have a crisp crusted, creamy loaf—baked fresh twice every day.

Your great-grandmother baked fresh bread for her family just once a week!

Today—a richer loaf baked fresh twice a day . . .

SIX bakers in six neighboring New England towns wanted to give modern housewives a perfect bread. Richer, more satisfying even than the traditional bread of their grandmothers.

All their years of experience were combined, and all their baking secrets shared, to create White Rose. Now this ideal loaf delights more than 300,000 fine housewives.

Baked fresh twice a day and rushed in motors to your grocer. Order White Rose today.

WHY—

you will like White Rose

Firm, crisp crust . . . Soft, firm texture . . . Cuts without crumbling . . . Toasts an even, delicious brown . . . So rich it keeps fresh for days . . . The wholesomeness that children need . . . The wrapper with the checked pattern, like a fresh, clean tea towel.

Too Tired For Housework? Beware of Chronic Fatigue

Thousands of tired, nervous, run-down women would be surprised to learn that in most cases their fatigue, nervousness, headaches, backache, etc., are due not to daily housework, but to the fact that they are really suffering from—chronic fatigue.

Chronic fatigue is entirely different from the ordinary "healthy" fatigue you feel after a good long walk. Chronic fatigue comes from within. Your organs and muscles have become debilitated due to lack of sufficient organic iron in your blood.

To conquer chronic fatigue you must strengthen your system by restoring this organic iron to your blood. But don't take the older mineral iron medicines which many doctors now say do little good. Take organic iron—Nuxated Iron—which is like the iron in your blood and like that in spinach and lentils. Unlike ordinary mineral iron, it will not injure the teeth or disturb the stomach but is promptly assimilated.

Take Nuxated Iron for just two weeks and you'll be astonished how much stronger and more energetic you feel. Money back if not improved. At all good druggists.

ELECTION RESULTS

While the people of New York grew sick and tired of the Hylan regime and have done much complaining about conditions which existed there, they have failed to take advantage of the opportunity to make a thorough housecleaning. They have raised their voices against Hylan and Hylan has been dumped, but they have ignored the fact that Hylan was a Tammany product and such policies as he did must forth and such things as he did must of necessity react upon Tammany. They have elected as mayor for the next four years Senator Walker, but he is just as thoroughly a Tammany man as Mayor Hylan ever was and it can be expected that he will respond to the strings that are pulled in Tammany hall. There is a change in its representative but Tammany is just as thoroughly in control.

In Boston there is a different situation. There the conditions under the democrats was not satisfactory and though republicans have held it but twice in a quarter of a century Candidate Nichols wins out because it was possible for the voters to give their support and feel assured that there would be confidence in such an administration as he would head. He was given the advantage of the division in the opposition, but it appears that the city will reap the real benefit of it.

Likewise New Haven goes back to republican control after a long period. Here the division in the ranks of the democrats appears to have been greater than that in the republican, and there was also a demand on the part of the voters in general that the city be taken out of the conditions into which it had been carried by recent administrations.

In most instances the elections were based upon local conditions rather than national politics. New Jersey's gubernatorial contest was a fight between the wets and the drys while issues along similar lines were raised in several of the municipal and some of the state elections.

MANY OTHERS DO IT

There are those who are unwilling to trust their savings to others, so much so that they hide it in various places about the house for others to find and remove or for the flames to seek up in case of fire. And there are those who take such few precautions in the safeguarding of their earnings that they flow through their fingers like water and into the hands of the swindlers in short order. The wisdom of properly safeguarding funds at all times cannot be too strongly emphasized.

It was not long ago that the treasury department at Washington received from a woman in California a quantity of currency which had been recently burned. Fortunately there was enough of the bills left so that the treasury could redeem them and it did so by forwarding a check for over $5,000.

This woman had picked the oven of her cook stove as the place for hoarding her money. This was unknown to her children, who, without her knowledge, kindled a fire in the stove. Happily the situation was discovered before the bills had been completely destroyed, but there are many similar instances where the outcome was not so fortunate. It was more good fortune rather than good judgment that prevented that woman from mourning the loss of $1,000, a sum altogether too large to be hidden about for any length of time in any one of the many nooks that might be selected about a house.

There are too many safe savings banks these days for any such chances to be taken with hard earned money, or in fact funds of any kind. Lessons of this character should serve as a sufficient warning to those who are disposed to bank under such a false notion of security and cause them to realize what risks they are actually running and how much more liable they are to lose by such methods, to say nothing of the sacrifice they make in having their money remain idle when it might much better be placed at interest in some safe institution of investment. There seem to be good reasons for believing that the California woman will not use the oven for her home bank in the future.

DEALING WITH RUSSIA

Getting Russian trade has been the objective of various nations since the close of the war. Special efforts have been put forth by the British in this direction. They have entered into agreements and made sacrifices which were expected to gain them favor. While they may not have obtained all that was expected, it is probable that their efforts have met with certain rewards. If they hadn't undertaken such stimulation there's the possibility that the trade would have gone elsewhere. Just where it is impossible to say.

Looking at the report which has been given out by the soviet government, it seems that this country fared even better than Great Britain in the exports to Russia. We have entered into no trade agreements and have not recognized the soviet government. In fact we have made it clear that we would not do anything of the kind until Russia did certain things. Nevertheless we sold goods to Russia in the first nine months of this year amounting to $70,000,000. This was greater than the business done with Great Britain by two million, while Germany's exports to Russia reached only $60,000,000.

It is to be realized that those who have been doing business with soviet Russia have been doing so in full recognition of the existing situation and the chances involved. Even the British are furnishing goods after those who have made an investigation of conditions in that country have pronounced the situation there an economic bubble.

One reason for urging recognition of soviet Russia by this country has been the matter of encouraging trade with that country. As matters stand it does not appear to be necessary to take such a step, if there was any real inclination in that direction. It is a good bit of business which is being done by soviet Russia here because we have the goods it wants and it cannot obtain the same, or what it wants elsewhere, and as long as Russia pays its bills there's reason to believe that it can get all the goods it requires.

RESTS WITH BUTLER

Although it was reported, following the announcement of the decision by President Coolidge that General Butler must return to the marines the first of January, that he would abide by the decision as a good soldier, another report has it that he has not as yet reached a decision as to what he will do.

It is of course possible for General Butler to do only one thing and remain a member of the marines. That is to comply as he has been quoted as saying he would do. It is, however, entirely possible for him to remain in Philadelphia as director of public safety for as long as they are willing to keep him, but if he does that he must resign from the marines.

Thus the only decision which he has to make under the circumstances is whether he is ready to give up his military career for politics. That he is getting more in the Philadelphia post than in the marines is highly probable. But he must realize that holding such a political job is decidedly uncertain. He may be there today and gone tomorrow, or he may be there for a sufficiently long time to fully recompense him for sacrificing his place in the marines.

He has had full opportunity for noting what is required of the person filling a political office. He had encountered this in positive terms during his stay in Philadelphia. There is no reason to expect that he could get any different response or results as a private individual than he has while serving as a military official loaned by the government. Whether he stays or goes rests with General Butler and he has knowledge enough of the two jobs to reach a decision that will best suit his wishes.

PERSIA'S CHANGE

Persia is undergoing the throes of political changes. Just where it will stop and what it will actually result in is not clearly indicated at the present time, by the action of the national assembly, through an almost unanimous vote, the Kajar dynasty has been terminated and Sultan Ahmed Mirza deposed. This doesn't necessitate any flight on the part of the ruler for he is not in Persia and has been making his headquarters in France for several years. There is apparently been attractions for him other than in Persia, although he has kept turned back the generous allowances which have been regularly forwarded to him. He is now another of those rulers without a country.

Interest now centers on what Persia is going to do for a government. Whether Reza Khan is going to be king or president may require some little time to determine. He has had his hand on the helm while the young ruler has been enjoying himself in Europe and he knows what is required under the situation. He was the natural choice under the circumstances.

Persia has been endeavoring to straighten out its financial situation. For several years it has been getting the advice of Americans and in view of the fact that such services were recently contracted for for another period two years it is not improbable that they will be continued, though with the changes everything connected with the old government may go.

Persia is a country of large resources. Its problem is to bring about a proper development of them. There seems to be a good chance that the change will prove of advantage to the country unless unforseen conditions develop.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The busses continue to overtake and sidetrack the electric cars.

But for the weather the coal strike would be getting little or no attention.

The man on the corner says: If prosperity lasts 100 years there will not be many of us left to complain when it's over.

Now there will be a scramble to get the job which General Butler has been filling for two years, but Butler has set a pace which few will be able to follow.

The return of New Haven to the republican column shows a determination to get away from the practices of the past few years under democratic control.

The test of 4.4 beer in Canada shows how difficult it is going to be to keep down the alcoholic content should beer ever be sanctioned again as a beverage.

If the miner and operator are waiting for the coal consumer to holler loud enough before coming to an agreement and fixing a permanently higher price for coal, the consumer can do no better than utter a defy and stock up on substitutes.

SUMMER THINGS

"I've been reading an article in a magazine about the need of fresh things in summer," said the housewife to the grocer one morning. "I suppose I have grown careless and have followed too closely my winter habit of using canned things. Today I want fresh vegetables and fruit for my family. I notice that the doctors are declaring that all sorts of very dreadful things happen to people who do not eat enough fresh stuff. I never happened to think much about it before, I suppose because my mother has been doing the buying. Now she's away on a visit and I have the great responsibility. It is a responsibility, too, isn't it, to keep your family well and happy, especially in summer? Have you nice asparagus?"

"Yes, ma'am," said the grocer eagerly. "It's very good today and I am sure you'll be much pleased with it. Shall I send you three bunches?"

"Mercy me!" cried the housewife. "Is that the price of it on that card? Gracious, no! I can't take any today. Why, do you know that if I ordered enough for our family to have a small taste all around it would cost about a dollar. I shall have to be content with some juicy tomatoes. Are those the best you have? They look anaemic."

"It's the unseasonable weather we've had," apologized the grocer. "It has been hard on everything and everybody, you know, with the quick drops of temperature and all that, ma'am. Do you think you'd like about four pounds?"

"I am very glad you have prices on everything," sighed the housewife. "For if you didn't have I'd be ordering things I have no business with. Goodness, I couldn't afford tomatoes at that rate! How about celery today?"

"We weren't able to get any celery, ma'am," declared the grocer. "We have a nice line of strawberries at 45 cents a quart."

"No thank you," said the housewife. "Not at that rate. And I see that if I bought enough of the other berries to go around my household I'd have to pay you a dollar sixty for that alone. How about peas this morning?"

"Superfine!" cried the grocer, rubbing his hands. "Here they are in this basket. Did you ever see any better- Three or four pounds today, yes, ma'am?"

"Not any at all," exclaimed the housewife. "I don't want to put my entire day's money into peas! How about beans? Those look very nice over there, but I can't see the price. For goodness sake! Not no beans today. I might try some nice melons. Show me some, please."

"The best we've ever had at this season of the year, madam," said the grocer. "Nice and large and juicy and fine. Shall we say fifteen of them and perhaps a couple of grape fruit as well?"

"Not unless they are to be a gift."

Today's Anniversaries

1494—Hans Sachs, the early German meistersinger who gave Goethe his outline for "Faust," born at Nuremberg. Died there, Jan. 19, 1576.

1924—Henry Cabot Lodge, United States senator from Massachusetts, suffered a stroke of apoplexy.

Stories That Recall Others

Not Accountable

There are friends of a certain young woman who will never get over telling of the time they accompanied her to another city on a shopping trip. They separated for a time in order to see their errands done more quickly as it was raining. Imagine the surprise of one when she came across the other headed for the elevator with her umbrella up. She had been to the jewelry and leather goods counter without realizing that she was carrying the umbrella over her head.

Corn, Not Bananas

Betty, age three and a half, was busy watching a man unloading kindlings next door. Presently she called to her grandmother to come quick and see what the man was doing with his horses. Grandma, on asking her what he was doing to them, received the reply: "He's feeding them bananas and he's not taking the peelings off, either."

Grandma, never having heard of horses eating bananas, went to the window to see this unusual sight. They were peacefully eating an ear of corn.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Dr. William Oxley Thompson, who retires from the presidency of the Ohio State university today on reaching his 70th year, is a noted educator who in the course of his busy career has found time to lend his aid to many movements for the public welfare. He began his career, after graduation from Muskingum college, as a student of theology at the Western Theological Seminary. Leaving this school, he entered the ministry of the Presbyterian denomination and held pastorates in Iowa and Colorado until 1891, when he was called to the presidency of Miami college. On the basis of the record there made, during an eight-year term, he was called to the presidency of the State university in 1899, and he has steadily grown to be one of the most forceful and influential individuals among the educators who administer State universities.

Today's Birthdays

Viscount Leverhulme, the great British oil magnate who started in life as a poor boy, born 73 years ago today.

William O. Thompson, the retiring president of Ohio State university, born at Cambridge, O., 70 years ago today.

Eugene V. Debs, several times the nominee of the Socialist party for President, born at Terre Haute, Ind., 70 years ago today.

Nicholas Longworth, speaker-elect of the Sixty-ninth Congress, born in Cincinnati, 56 years ago today.

Ida M. Tarbell, noted writer and lecturer, born in Erie county, Pa., 68 years ago today.

laughed the housewife grimly. "Melons for our circle would cost as much as a whole meal used to in old days. I remember that the article I read said that we ought to have a half melon apiece every morning for breakfast and I also recollect that those doctors said we all should eat grape fruit as often as possible. I might try lemons for lemonade tastes good in hot weather, but they seem to have gone up with all the rest. It strikes me as rather odd that a front around here should praise California things cost such a lot, but I suppose I don't understand the ways of agriculture. I remember that I saw artichokes and egg plant on sale in the winter, but there doesn't seem to be any of either just now. Perhaps it is just as well, for they'd be likely too."

"Perhaps you'd like some potatoes, ma'am," suggested the grocer. "Or a couple of pounds of butter or a loaf or so of bread this morning."

"I'll take a can of peas," said the housewife firmly. "And a can of beans and a can of asparagus tips and a can of sweet potatoes. I am going to write a letter to the man who wrote that article and suggest to him that he doesn't know what he's talking about. If he wants housewives to be too busy with the can opener, as he says, let him get our husbands' salaries raised. As for those doctors, I'd like to invite them to my house for dinner and see if they can tell the difference by taste between fresh and canned peas. Oh yes, and you might put in a can of that excellent grape fruit, too. That's all today."—Chicago News.

NEW BOOKS

Dyke's Automobile Encyclopedia. By A. L. Dyke. Cloth, 1249 pages, 4300 illustrations. 44th edition, with index. Published by The Goodheart-Wilcox Co., Inc., Chicago. Price $6

This is the first revision of this important book since 1922. The entire scheme of the book is to make the most technical subjects relating to the automobile and trouble connected therewith appear simple and easily mastered. It was always a most valuable volume, but some of the new subjects added, in addition to colored chairs, are: Late ignition systems including tests of all leading coils and adjustments of interrupters, checking and timing ignition systems, etc; ignition spark, what is the color of a good spark; the corona and nucleus of a spark, flame propagation and its relation to good spark; interrupter points, platinum vs. tungsten; balloon tires; Borg & Beck clutch adjustments and repairs revised; constant-potential battery charging, how it differs from the constant-current method; electric horn adjustments and repairs; Skinner fuel and oil rectifier, principle and action; Franklin carburetor, explaining the electric vaporizer, gas heater, air cleaner, etc; gasoline gauges, principle of construction and operation and adjustments; Stewart vacuum fuel-feed system (this subject has been greatly simplified with new illustrations showing the principle of action and adjustments and repairs); oil-vac gasoline fuel-feed system principle and adjustments; how to study the mechanical construction of a car, with questions for the student; vibration damper and balancer; Louvre covers, four-wheel brakes, automatic radiator shutters, principle of operation and adjustments; overhauling a car, inspection before and after painting; parking a car in a city street, etc., rear-axle gears and how to tell; Ricardo cylinder head, principle of; S. A. E. standard gear shifts; shock absorbers, friction, pneumatic, auxiliary spring, hydraulic; Watson stabilators, principle of action and adjustments; shop equipment and importance of proper equipment; specifications (1925) of trucks, tractors and passenger cars, engine vibration, its relation to balancer; vibration, torsional and periodic; Smith chronotorm, with several new illustrations explaining the principle of the compensating jet type, adjusting, etc. Many other subjects too numerous to mention.

The Children's Bible. Selections translated and arranged by Henry A. Sherman and Charles Foster Kent. Cloth, large 8 vo, 419 pages, illustrated. Published by Charles Scribner's Sons. Popular edition, $1.75.

These selections from the Bible itself are put into such clear and simple English that the child reader will understand the truths portrayed. It is not merely a book of Bible stories re-told.

The arrangement of the story material will particularly meet with the approval of those for whom it is planned. The child will become familiar with divine classics of all literature and know, for himself, and for all time, these marvelous stories which have been told and retold for two thousand years to successive generations of children.

This is such a volume as will cause many to recognize it as just what has long been desired. Many will appreciate that it is what they had longed for themselves, and thus can understand the reception it will get from those for whom it is really intended.

In these stories from both the Old and New testaments there is the text of the Bible itself arranged in the language of the child, but not in words of one syllable, and admirably meets the demands of parents and educators alike.

Roosevelt and the Spoilsmen. By William Dudley Foulke. Paper, 103 pages. Published by National Civil Service Reform League, New York.

In this booklet Mr. Foulke gives a comprehensive history of the part played by Theodore Roosevelt in the civil reform movement from the time he was elected a member of the New York legislature through his term as president. Interesting episodes are given of his fight with the spoilsmen during his term as United States civil service commissioner under President Harrison and Cleveland, and later as president of the United States.

MACHINE WILL HERALD COMING OF EARTHQUAKE

Dr. J. Shida, seismologist at the Kyoto imperial university, has invented a machine to herald the coming of an earthquake by means of sounds a few seconds ahead of its actual occurrence. The apparatus consists of a pendulum that registers slight vibrations prior to an earthquake and makes sounds by coming in contact with a coil. The sounds are magnified by means of an amplifier. The strength or weakness of the impending quake may be determined from the audibility of the sounds. Dr. Shida says that a disastrous earthquake usually occurs about seven seconds after a slight tremor which is not felt by a human body, and therefore, people in possession of this apparatus will have time to get outside of their houses before the disaster falls. But they must "make it snappy."

Old Age Pays Respects

BRAINTREE, Scotland, Nov. 4. (AP)—At the funeral of Joseph Smith, a member of the Royal Council, who died at 78, were his mother-in-law, aged 92, two brothers aged 86 and 72, respectively, and one sister, aged 84.

Nanny Had an Adventure of Her Own.

Safety first is life's great law
For those in dread of tooth and claw.
—Danny Meadow Mouse

Nanny Meadow Mouse had been almost as frightened as Danny. You know, she had seen all that had happened. When Black Pussy had jumped the first time Nanny had wanted to squeal right out. She had been almost as sure that Danny would be caught as Black Pussy had been. When Black Pussy sprang the second time Nanny had had no hope at all. She couldn't see how Black Pussy could possibly miss Danny a second time. She shut her eyes so as not to see Black Pussy pick up Danny's limp little form in her teeth. She kept them shut as long as she could, which wasn't long at all. She just had to see what was going on. The instant she opened them she knew that Danny had escaped, though how she hadn't the least idea at first. Black Pussy's tail was twitching angrily, and Black Pussy herself was working at an old fallen limb. Then Nanny guessed that there was a hole in it and that Danny was inside, safe and sound.

Now, all this time Nanny had been so intent on Danny's troubles that she had forgotten to watch out for trouble for herself. That is something that no little person in the Green Meadows or in the Green Forest can ever afford to do. Nanny found this out now to her sorrow.

Just what made Nanny look up she doesn't know to this day. I guess it must have been a good fairy, don't you? Anyway, she did look up, and it is a good thing for Nanny and for this story that she did. If she hadn't looked up just when she did there would have been nothing left of either Nanny or this story. She looked up to see claws reaching for her. She dodged sidewise. Had she jumped straight ahead she would have been caught. But she dodged to the side and the claws of Killy the Sparrow Hawk missed her. Killy checked himself and in a moment was up in the air again, ready to swoop down more at Nanny. His sharp little eyes saw her running through the grass, and he hovered over her and then dropped. Again he missed. This was because Nanny had kept her eyes on him and was ready for him. She had had experience and she knew how to dodge. Three times Nanny dodged. Of course, in dodging she couldn't keep track of where she was going, and it just happened that this third time brought her over near Black Pussy. Black Pussy heard Killy's shrill voice and looked up just in time to see Killy make the third attempt to catch Nanny. Black Pussy didn't see Nanny. All she saw was Killy drop down into the grass.

Now Black Pussy had just as soon have a nice bird dinner as a nice mouse dinner. Killy the Sparrow Hawk was so near that Black Pussy couldn't resist the temptation to run swiftly toward him in hope that she would be quick enough to catch him before he was fairly in the air again. But it was a vain hope. Killy saw Black Pussy and you should have heard him shriek at her. He hovered over her, only a little way up, shrieking and scolding fiercely. Pussy glared up at him and lashed her tail, and all the time Nanny Meadow Mouse was making her short legs work as they seldom had worked before. Straight as an arrow for the point where Danny Meadow Mouse had disappeared. She knew that there must be safety there. She knew that might be a hiding place. Sure enough, there was. She darted through the little hole which had meant safety for Danny.

"Danny!" she squeaked. "Danny, oh Danny!" and raced along inside that hollow limb.

"Nanny!" squeaked Danny joyously. A moment later two little noses were being rubbed together, which is the Meadow Mouse way of kissing.

"I knew you'd come," cried Danny.

"I knew you'd, well," cried Nanny, and then they rubbed noses again.

The next story: "In Jimmy Skunks Footsteps."

From Small Beginnings

Thomas E. Watson, a Congressman

Thomas E. Watson of Georgia, who died not so long ago, was nominated for the position of vice-president of the United States. He was one of the most distinguished members of his party, and a national figure. He was, in all respects, a self-made man, a representative type of American achievement.

There was a time in his boyhood when the world looked very black to "Tom" Watson. He had worked and saved money in order to go to college. He had entered a Georgia university and had attacked his studies with such energy that he won high standing in all his classes, and was looked upon as one of the most brilliant members of the freshman class. He had visions of further achievement and of a career. Then came the awakening to the fact that he lacked the money sufficient to pay his expenses in college, and that his people needed his help.

Reluctantly "Tom" put aside his books, left college, and went back to the farm from which he had come. On that farm in his boyhood he had worked hard doing all the arduous work that a "hired" man usually does. His father had merely rented the farm, and it was hard work for the family to find money enough to pay the slight rent; to support themselves, and to put aside even a small amount for the proverbial "rainy day." Young Thomas had inherited ambition to be something worth while, and so he had read and studied in the intervals of work, preparing himself for college. His disappointment at having to give up his plans was great.

After the boy had worked for a while helping his rather sickly father, he conceived the idea that he could do more for the family if he were to teach. With great difficulty he found a place, earned a very small amount and gave practically all of it to his people. Meanwhile, in the course of his teaching, he did what he had done while performing farm work—he studied, this time for the profession of a lawyer. He passed his examinations, was admitted to the bar, and won success. His ability as a public speaker brought him into public favor. He was sent first to the Georgia legislature and then to Congress. There "Tom" became a national figure, noted for power and personality. He was nominated for the vice-presidency but was defeated. His faithfulness to his father, and his faithfulness to his ideals, were alike characteristic of the man.

Concerning the Freckle

Researches have shown a surprising co-incidence between the location of the freckles and of the points representing the thermic sense in the skin. The freckle may be a biologic defensive process to protect the nerve terminal, at a specially vulnerable point, by an extra pigmentation.

Super-Broadcaster

A new 100-kilowatt station is under construction at Herzogstand, Bavaria, which will enable crystal set owners to hear the programs throughout all Germany, says Scientific American. This will be the most powerful broadcaster in the world. The second largest German broadcaster will be Koenigswusterhausen, rated at 50 kilowatts.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Untagged Dogs in Lebanon

Mr. Editor: There was a short notice in your paper of what took place here two weeks ago regarding untagged dogs. I beg you to add this information and perhaps someone may be kind enough to advise us.

It seemed to me there were more than 25, in fact it was stated 50 or us had been subpoenaed, arrested.

There were just three American born in that crowd, all the rest were foreign born.

Not one of us knew he or she was committing a crime, as we saw our American neighbors do the same and thought nothing of it. When we had paid our license we considered the tag much like a brass check received at a coat room.

Even today some of our American neighbors have neither collar nor tag on their dogs, but of course the Americ[illegible] dog warden won't hurt them.

I was supposed to have been warned too, but somehow it was not done, so that I can state what I saw. There was a woman, mother of five children, husband in city to earn living for his family because he could not do it on his farm; a father of 8 who does not know how they may be fed and clothed, and all of them the most inoffensive persons. Everyone was too busy farming it. They were chosen as victims, and treated like criminals. Such is the justice in the town of Lebanon.

To be sure we all know now, but how were we to know that we were violating a law? Is there no provision made to instruct the owners of dogs what the laws are in regard to them?

I hope others may profit by our experience, for it is outrageous to say the least, to have to pay $14.50 because the dog which is either in your house or yard, as all these people's dogs were, does not wear his collar and tag.

I am told in the towns of Connecticut dogs without tags are taken by the dog catcher, when found in the street.

Why is the farmer forced to appear in court which takes a lot of time and pay for the torture?

Why this discrimination against the farmer, and especially against the foreign born? Is there not justice for him?

These people were not hunters nor trappers; they needed the dogs for protection. Who was hurt by the omission?

ONE FOR FAIR PLAY.

Leonard's Bridge, Nov. 3, 1925.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

THE MATTERHORN

Rumors that the famous Matterhorn of Switzerland is "moving", published in Germany recently, seem to indicate only that that stony spire is keeping up its age-old habit of sending down rock slides, according to a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"That the Matterhorn (or Mont Cervin, as French-speaking Swiss call it) is slowly wasting away, has been known for a long time, to the sadness of those mountain-lovers who look far into the future," says the bulletin. "But there is reassurance in the thought that it will live in its present shape for a few more geologic minutes—that is for several thousand calendar years.

"The lower slopes of the Matterhorn are of softer rock than its upper portion; and while the higher section yields few fragments to the continual onslaught of weather and gravity, the supporting section is robbed of hundreds, and sometimes thousands of tons of material a day in fine, sunny, thawing weather. The mechanism of destruction is the release of 'trigger' rocks by the sinking of moisture into crevices; its freezing and expansion, so forcing the rock fragments from their beds; and the subsequent thawing, which lets the fragments slip down the cliff or rock slope. The 'trigger' rock dislodges other pieces of rock, some of them of considerable size, and these in turn may jar loose boulders. Soon the first flying rock has grown into a huge avalanche of stones, ice, and snow, which thunders downward until checked by the flatter slopes, built through the ages by similar changes, although in most cases more slowly.

"Now and then, when exceptional weather conditions favor it, an avalanche on the Matterhorn may grow to huge proportions with a momentum which sweeps its flying missiles over the lower slopes and out to the valley floors used for pasturage. Several such far-wandering slides have come down the Italian side of the mountain during the past summer, and these are supposed to be responsible for the German rumors of a 'moving' Matterhorn.

"The falling boulders of the Matterhorn have caused some fatalities and many narrow escapes. Each season some climbers must flatten themselves against the cliffs while small rocks whiz by with the speed and the rasping sound of rifle bullets, or great boulders bound from shoulder to shoulder, sometimes missing the heads of the mountaineers by only a foot or so. Many of the falling fragments are gathered into regular paths by funnellike depressions in the face of the mountain. One of the most valuable services of the guides is their knowledge of these dangerous couloirs and their additional knowledge of the weather conditions and times of day for the safest crossing.

"Most Matterhorn ascents are made from the Swiss side with Zermatt the starting point, though the climb from Breuil, in Italy, is rated the greater feat. The Italian-Swiss boundary runs over the crest of the mountain. Zermatt grew from a village to a respectable little town largely because of the rise in popularity of the Matterhorn and the consequent influx of those who wished to look upon it in its various moods, and those who wished to scale it. The town is also the center from which many less difficult climbs are made. On its one main street hotels are almost as numerous as shops. The latter are well stocked with mountaineering outfits. A few stores will supposite one of the leading hotels is 'Guides' Row.' On it guides out of employment sit until patrons engage their services. Housing, outfitting and guiding climbers are Zermatt's three leading industries.

"The Matterhorn is one of the most dangerous of the Alpine peaks to climb, and if weather conditions are not right, one of the most difficult. Long after many other famous heights of the Alps were scaled the Matterhorn remained unvanquished, and by 1860 it was rated unattainable. It was first climbed by a party of four Englishmen and three guides on July 14, 1865. It was a tragic attainment. On the way down three of the climbers and one guide, tied together, fell over a 4,000-foot precipice to their deaths. Only the breaking of the rope saved the lives of one climber and the two other guides.

"Day by day in warm weather the Matterhorn continues to shower down a part of itself. Already the hard upper pyramids, over a bit in places where the softer rock below has wasted away. Some day—how many thousands of years hence it is useless to guess—the supporting rock will give way, geologists say, and the huge top, weighing millions of tons, will topple over with one of the most tremendous crashes ever heard by the ear of man."

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

SAVED FRIEND FROM HOSPITAL

Mrs. Heckman Decided to Try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Note Results—

Council Bluffs, Iowa.—"I had pains in my back and sides and headaches, so that I could not do my work. Once in a while I would be sick a week. A friend told me that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had kept her out of the hospital, so I thought I would try it, as I had tried a number of other medicines. Now I feel like a different person and am telling my friends about the Vegetable Compound helping me, hoping they will let it help them, too."—Mrs. ETHEL HECKMAN, Box 21, R. F. D. IN WESTERLY HOSPITAL AFTER STRUCK BY AUTO

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Nov. 4—Police Sergeant Michael Curtin was called tonight soon after 9.30 o'clock to accompany William Dean of 7 Stetson street, Norwich, to the Westerly hospital with an unconscious and injured man who had been struck by an automobile on the Stonington-Westerly road near the Anguilla road. The man was placed in Dean's automobile by Stonington police to be taken to the hospital. At the hospital Dr. John Champlin was called and found that the man had a bone broken in his right leg, a bad cut through the bone on the head with possible fracture, cuts on his hand and injury to his stomach with possibility of internal injuries for which an X-ray will be taken Thursday. Recovering consciousness the injured man gave his name as Charles Payne, living with a sister in Stonington, and understood to be a seafaring man.

Inquiry from Patrolman Vernon A. Burdick of Pawcatuck showed that he had been called to the vicinity of the Anguilla road soon after 9 o'clock where it was reported that a man was jumping in the road of automobiles and raising his hands above his head. When the police officer reached the scene he saw the man struck by Arthur E. MacArtney, a traveling salesman for the Interstate Furniture company of Providence, R. I., who was driving his machine towards Westerly. The man was dragged a distance of 30 feet and picked up and put into the Norman man's car to be taken to the hospital. No blame is attached to the Providence salesman as no less than two previous automobilists have complained of the man getting in their way. Officer Ostman of Stonington was engaged to make an inquiry on Stonington dock to make certain of the man's identity.

"CUPID AND CALORIES" GIVEN BY YANTIC PLAYERS

One of the finest plays ever given by the Girls' Friendly society of Grace Episcopal church, Yantic, was presented before a large audience in the First Congregational chapel, Norwich Town, on Wednesday evening. This three act comedy "Cupid and Calories" portrays the living room in the "Betsy Ross House." Following is the cast of characters: Miss Isabella Lightbody, Mrs. Howard Sterry; Natalie Winslow, Miss Lilly Smith; Bernice Horner (Bunny), Miss Phyllis Irvine; Valeta Claridge, Miss Dorothy Harvey; Margaret Lye, Miss Florence Congdon; Jean Trainor, Miss Marion Gibbs; Hannah Moody, Miss Lois Manning; Lois Lovett (Spud), Miss Marjorie Harvey; Miss Watts (Watty), Miss Rose Matassa, Philippa Graydon, Miss Mabel Erickson; Hortense, Miss Gladys Briggs; Sudsy, Miss Estella Kilroy.

Previous to the play, Miss Bernice Church favored with piano selections. Between the acts, Mrs. Howard Sterry and Miss Lois Manning entertained with a number of vocal solos, Miss Dorothy Harvey playing the piano accompaniments for Mrs. Sterry and Miss Marjory Merry playing for Miss Manning.

During the evening Miss Catherine Brown and Miss Edna Hastedt, dispensed home-made candy. Mrs. Howard Bishop was in charge of the play, assisted by Mrs. Ellis Bentley, the branch secretary of the Girls' Friendly society. This company of energetic young women, received much praise for their fine works, this being only one of several plays given by them in the past few years, each time being most successful.

The play Wednesday evening was under the auspices of the Girls' Friendly society, in conjunction with the Young Peoples Christian Endeavor society, of the First Congregational church, the proceeds to be equally divided. This is the second production this season.

ACTOR AND SINGER ENTERTAIN ROTARY CLUB

Wednesday's meeting of the Norwich Rotary club was featured by an interesting talk by Robert LaSueur of the Richard Mansfield Players. Mr. LaSueur explained the object of the new organization of players headed by Mrs. Richard Mansfield in giving to the American public the best in the theatrical world. He spoke of the high ideals that underlie the movement and also spoke of the common link that binds the business world with the artistic.

Lewis M. Young was the five minute speaker of the day and took for his topic, The Leniency of the Courts. He spoke of the various organized bands of criminals and how in many cases when a member had been captured they were given light sentences by the courts. His talk was very interesting and contained much of interest as truth.

Another pleasing feature of the program were the two solos by Henry J. LaFontaine, who recently returned from studying abroad. Mr. Fontaine was in fine voice and the result of his study were clearly shown in the remarkable quality and range.

In the absence of President J. Nelson Weymouth, Vice President Edwin A. Harris presided and Grosvenor Ely acted as song leader.

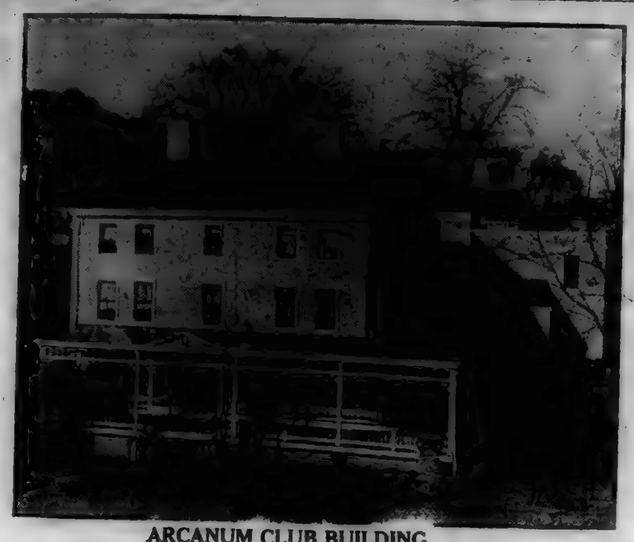
GRACE CHURCH AUXILIARY STARTS YEAR'S WORK

The November meeting of the Woman's auxiliary of Grace Episcopal church, Yantic, was held Tuesday evening, at the home of Mrs. Mary Lynes, of Bliss Place, with a large attendance. During the very interesting business session, which was presided over by the president, Mrs. Charles Burbeck, sewing material was distributed for the winter's work. When garments are completed, they will be sent in the early spring to Hoffman's St. Mary's mission at Tennessee.

It was voted to hold a supper and informal time at the parish house some evening next week, when husbands and men friends of the auxiliary will be special guests.

Mrs. May Lynes is chairman of the supper and will be assisted by other members.

At the close of the meeting Tuesday evening, the hostess served sandwiches, cake and cocoa.



ARCANUM CLUB BUILDING

ARCANUM CLUB CELEBRATES ITS FIRST HALF CENTURY OF HISTORY

The Arcanum club observed the fiftieth milestone in its history Wednesday evening with a banquet and entertainment program in the club hall. Fully 150 members sat down for the banquet which was served about 6:30 o'clock with the following menu:

Oyster cocktail, chicken pie, mashed potatoes, mashed turnips, celery, olives, cranberry sauce, rolls, apple pie, ice cream, coffee, cigars.

President Clarence A. Spear, toastmaster of the evening presented Charles B. Lee, a charter member, and first president of the club, who gave a very interesting talk on the early history of the club. In his talk Mr. Lee said:

Club's Early History

In 1873-4 a group of young boys, who had passed through the knickerbocker age of grammar school together, were taking a course in the Norwich Free academy. Among these boys was William A. Slater. There were not then as many athletic asso-

CHARLES B. LEE
(First President of the Arcanum Club)

clations as they had in later years. The Young Men's Christian association had not been thought of, even. This group of boys took up playing billiards. Part of them played at Mr. Slater's home on Broadway, whose father had furnished him a billiard table. The rest of the group played upon a table owned by Gen. Hurland and a few gentlemen in the building since removed by fire or otherwise at "Harland's" corner." The boys were allowed the use of the latter table days and the men used it evenings.

In 1875 young Slater and the majority of this group graduated and went to the different colleges. Two of these boys, living down town, very much felt the loss of the pastime. In this city then there was a strong prejudice against young men playing billiards, owing to the fact that billiards and drinking and gambling went together.

There were but four places open to the public, one being the hotel with billiards and bar in the same room; Foster's billiard hall on Main street, up stairs where Bourigan's furniture store is, a popular drinking and gambling place on Water street, and the other in the building now occupied by Sellas Spa on Franklin square.

Two of these boys met, Jones and Lee by name, and drew up a list of 20 names that they considered eligible to form an organization, having for its purpose the purchasing of a billiard table, hiring a room to be used for club purposes, each boy taking 10 of the names. In a few days they found they had the unlucky number of 13 pledged.

The first meeting, I find by early records, which I will read to you, is dated Austin block, Nov. 4, 1875. The 11 following names assembled: Charles B. Lee, David R. Jones, William C. Walker, George H. Leete, Walter D. Harris, Frederick A. Byrnes, William E. Bidwell, Charles E. Hilton, George B. Parker, N. C. Breckenridge, J. Arthur Allen.

The record further says: "Subject under consideration was Clubs." J. A. Allen was temporary chairman and C. B. Lee temporary secretary. The result of this meeting was a permanent organization.

They elected by ballot Charles B. Lee, president; W. C. Walker, vice president, and J. Arthur Allen, secretary and treasurer. The executive committee to have full charge and power, C. B. Lee, David R. Jones and George H. Leete. This meeting adjourned subject to the call of the president to hear a report on constitution, by-laws and name.

On Nov. 8 I find these same 11 boys met in the Austin block in a room that had been leased them, and listened to a report of the executive committee on constitution and by-laws, subject a name for the club, and to hear report of committee on finance. The result of this meeting showed that it would cost $125 per year for rent. Two rooms, over F. A. Wells & Co.'s clothing store, in the rear of building, to be secured, and estimate given of amount of gas to be used per month, etc. It was then voted to circulate a book for signatures to by-laws and try to get 10 additional names. The secretary was instructed to collect $2 from each person signing these by-laws, this being a guarantee fund for the starting of the organization.

On Nov. 16 a meeting was held in J. H. Kelley's store that was a shoe store in the building at the corner of Bath and Franklin streets, then owned by William H. Shields and occupied as a restaurant. The records of this meeting show 12 names. We had gained one in two weeks. The reason my reading this record of Nov. 16 is to show two things. First, how the club was named; second, the three foundation stones were laid at that meeting that has been the life of the whole organization. The following new rules and laws were recommended and adopted:

Article 1: The use of intoxicating liquors of any description in the club rooms is prohibited.

Article 2: No gambling or betting will be allowed.

Article 3: Billiard playing or the playing of any games of chance in the club room Sunday is prohibited.

The records of this meeting are signed J. A. Allen, secretary, B. C. I was well aware that the club was quite old, but B. C. does not mean the age or term of great age. Thereby hangs a tale.

At that meeting the club was to be called "The Buckingham club," and Mr. Allen signing it secretary, B. C., means he was the secretary of the Buckingham club. Later the naming of the club brought sharp discussion. One of the records shows, after debating an hour or more, the vote stood 5 to 5 on the name of "Buckingham club," named after Gov. William A. Buckingham, the president casting his vote deciding it. This, however, was not satisfactory, and at a later meeting the name "Lafayette Foster club" was proposed. "Ancho" was another name, "Sub Rosa," "Eutofin" and "Chelsea," finally "Arcanum." This name was first mentioned by J. Arthur Allen, the secretary. Its definition in the dictionary is "a secret," although we cannot say, after adopting it, that we called ourselves a secret organization, but the name was euphonious and broke the deadlock between Buckingham and Foster.

In this connection let me add, a club modeled after ours in Meriden some years later, was called "The Arcanum, Junior." This had no connection with the Royal Arcanum Insurance society, which has branches all over this country, for we were some 10 or 15 years in advance of that organization.

The record of a meeting of Dec. 6, 1875, shows that we were in our own rented room, and Mr. Tibbits, Mr. Gifford, J. W. Gilbert, Charles D. Noyes and one or two others who are at present members of the club had joined us. The record does not show we had reached our dream of 20 names. On Dec. 13 we held a meeting and acted on our first list of names proposed for membership. Among those are Charles S. Holbrook, our popular town clerk of today, and George E. Elliott, who are still members.

Looking back now at this point, of the first 10 names of that November meeting, 1 had four died in later years. One became assistant superintendent of the Norwich and Worcester road when it was running independent, and was afterward transferred to the same position of the Old Colony division of Massachusetts. One occupied the position of acting superintendent of the New London Northern railroad for many years, before it was absorbed by the Vermont Central. One is now postmaster of a flourishing community. One has been the general manager of the Tuxedo or Country club, just out of New York city, which consisted of beautiful parks and cottages of the many millionaires. Five of them removed from the city and are now on your honorary list, including Mr. Allen, who became of the leading business men of New London, and the speaker has been from the date of that meeting down to now a constant active member.

The first finances that I find on record were the collection of the $2 each from 20 members, making a fund of $40. The records show that the chairman of the executive committee was instructed to purchase a stove, two tables, unpainted, one-half ton of coal before Saturday night, and 12 unpainted chairs at a sum not to exceed $40. These were the first assets of the organization.

The second expenditure was authorized Dec. 6. The chairman of the executive committee reported that a second-hand billiard table could be purchased from Mr. Burdick, who then owned the building, fixtures and furniture of the Foster billiard hall, at $50, cash down and the sum of $10 paid monthly until $150 additional was paid. I have a vivid recollection of that, and it was the longest 15 months I have ever remembered.

The executive committee were instructed to purchase this table, and have it put in their room. The club for two or three months flourished by the use of the table and furniture, but we were soon confronted by a condition. A room on the floor above us was rented, in fact, the same room that had been loaned us for organization, for a sideboard or key club, where liquors were to be sold, and the members going in and out with their keys at their pleasure. This, much to our surprise, was occupied by many prominent business men of the city. They had an entrance in common with us, through the Main street door and stairways, and soon placed us in bad repute. In fact, some of our last 10 members were peremptorily told by their employers that they must either leave the club or their positions in the bank. This caused us to move immediately. We moved to rooms in the third story of the Williams building, opposite the Wauregan house, on Main street, now occupied as the main entrance to the Boston store.

I will not weary you with the details of the next few years, only with a few facts of our financial distress. In moving to that building we were obliged to take larger and more rooms in order to secure the rent, and that necessitated additional furnishings. You can imagine the chagrin of three young boys asking for credit of old Deacon Leavitt, who ran the dry goods store where the Boston store is, and he called our attention to the fact that we were not of age, had no finances and no legal responsibilities. We abandoned at that time any thought of credit.

Our next embarrassment was upon application to the superintendent of the old gas company, Ogden Gilmore, a blunt old fellow, that many of you remember, and he catechised us in regard to our financial affairs. We pleaded guilty to the fact that we had no money, owned a second-hand billiard table—which he said was worse than fifth-hand—and owed many months' instalment on that. The result of our talk is summed up very quickly. He said, if you are not going to have a sideboard or sell liquor you must pay your gas bill in advance, and this, gentlemen, is the basis and reason why you pay your dues one-quarter in advance, and have for 50 years.

We managed, however, to finance in a peculiar way. We had been joined by some men, who were of age and had employment. Among one of our friends, was a clerk in a bank. He made a proposition to the cashier for us, that we make a note, all indorsing it, thereby raising funds. In this manner we raised sufficient money to add to our furnishings. It is true this note was renewed many times, and a note was finally written on a larger piece of paper, so we could get additional room for more indorsements.

Right here let me say, that our treasurer, Mr. Allen, held us together financially many times. His account at the end of the month was generally balanced by "cash due the treasurer, $21, $26 and $48" I find on the records. Had it not been for his persistency in loaning funds to pay our bills we would have been bankrupt. He became president in 1877 and for a number of years we compelled him to hold that position.

I will rapidly pass over a few years.

STATE MILK PRODUCERS ENDORSE RADIO COURSE

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Nov. 4—Officers of the Connecticut Milk Producers' association here much pleased with the efforts of Connecticut Agricultural college to give a radio-correspondence course in dairy farming, according to word received here today from Clifford E. Hough, the association's general manager.

Commenting on this radio-correspondence course, the first of its kind to be given in the country, Mr. Hough spoke as follows: "It seems to me that this is a very progressive step, and this course on dairy farming can be made of great value to the dairy farmers who will avail themselves of the opportunities it will offer. There are thousands of dairymen in this state who have not had the benefit of any scientific training in the principles of dairying. There are also many who are engaged in dairying who have had only a little practical experience.

"Officers of the Connecticut Milk Producer's association are convinced that the successful dairymen of the future will be only those men who utilize the scientific knowledge that has been accumulated in connection with the dairy business and who make practical applications of that knowledge in the conduct of their business.

"The days of 'hit or miss guesswork' methods in agriculture are disappearing and any dairy farmers who fail, or refuse to avail themselves of scientific knowledge in producing and marketing dairy product will do better to take up some occupation requiring less skill and less investment than is now necessary in conducting a profitable dairy farm."

Using station WCAC at Storrs, lectures covering some topic of importance in dairy business, are broadcasted every Monday night. Printed copies of these lectures are also sent by mail to those enrolled, enabling them to keep a permanent record of the course.

The lectures are given by members of the State college staff.

COLONIAL CLUB STARTS ANOTHER PINOCHLE SERIES

In the second round of play in the pinochle tournament of the Colonial club which was started Tuesday evening Harwood, Gifford and Higgins got away to a flying start, all securing scores over the 8,000 mark. Standings after the play are as follows:

Given Miscellaneous Shower

A miscellaneous shower was given last week at the home of Mrs. Walter Mellor at 41 Boswell avenue, formerly Miss Edith Firth of Baltic. About twenty guests composed of her girl friends from her home town surprised her.

The bride received numerous gifts, including cut glass, silver, linen, pyrex etc. A large box was presented Mrs Mellor which proved to be entertainment during the process of opening the many small but useful gifts it contained.

A luncheon was served during the evening by Mrs. Mellor assisted by Mrs. Albert Judd and Mrs. Grant Bush.

After luncheon an entertainment was enjoyed consisting of toe dancing by Bella Allard, daughter of Mrs W. Whitmarsh of Boswell avenue. Solos and duets by Mrs. Grant Bush, Miss Lillian Barnes, Annie Zapf, Phillis Bell and Mrs. Robert Tefft.

PROGRESSIVE MISSIONARY CLUB'S THIRTIETH BIRTHDAY

The 30th anniversary of the Progressive Missionary Club of the Central Baptist church was celebrated Wednesday afternoon by a meeting in the lecture room, 35 being present. The president of the club, Mrs. John E. Post called the meeting to order and led in the devotional exercises. Scripture reading and a hymn preceded the roll call and reports by the secretary, Mrs. John H. Ford and the treasurer, Mrs. Albert T. Utley.

Mrs. Ford then read a summary of the accomplishments of the club during its first ten years, Mrs. Utley continued with an account of the five years following; Mrs. George W. Hamilton carried the historical record along from the fifteenth to the thirtieth year and Mrs. Ford concluded the account.

A silver offering taken amounted to $33. During a social half hour there were piano selections by Mrs. Frank L. Arnold, two pleasing readings by Mrs. Herbert Case and Mrs. Olive A. Potter was heard in several enjoyable songs.

When the members sat at a prettily decorated table for supper, a big birthday cake holding 30 candles was cut by Mrs. Post after the singing of "Bless Be the Tie That Binds" and when grace had been said by Rev. Dr. David A. Pitt, the pastor, Mrs. Pitt gave an interesting talk along the lines of work carried on by the club during its thirty years of activity.

COMMITTEES ANNOUNCED FOR WEST END ASSOCIATION

Committees which had been chosen by a board of control were announced by President C. E. Carpenter at the meeting of the West End Community association Tuesday evening at the Elizabeth Street school. They were the following: Welfare, M. L. Bergstresser; skating pond, Fred B. Oat, John D McWilliams; dues and new members Miss Nina Perry and William E. La Rochelle; improvement, Miss Lucy A. Murphy and Carl E. Krause; entertainment, Mrs. Frank I. Royce, Dr. Solomon, C. W. Parsons. All committees made reports.

A proposal to change the regular meeting night to the third Monday in the month was put over for action until after the first of the year.

A talk of much interest was given out on the packing industry by Herbert C. Adams, local manager for Swift & Co., and a rising vote of thanks was passed to the speaker.

The evening closed with an excellent entertainment programme arranged for and carried out under the direction of Miss Lucy A. Murphy and Miss Nina Perry, with community singing between the acts on the stage.

OZIAS DODGE MEMORIAL AT SLATER HALL NOV. 8TH

A public memorial to Ozias Dodge, for 27 years a resident of Norwich, is being arranged for Monday evening next, at Converse Art Gallery, Slater Hall. Mr. Dodge was for a long time curator of Slater Museum and afterwards did valued work in carrying out the plan of re-forestation of Mohegan Park, as well as in other lines.

A number of prominent speakers will pay tribute to his usefulness as a citizen, his public-spirited activities, his gifts as an artist and will endeavor to sum up his service to the town of his adoption.

It will be a special privilege for the residents of Norwich and vicinity to have the opportunity of seeing a collection of Mr. Dodge's etchings—about 50 in all—and about 25 of his paintings, which are to be hung in Converse Art Gallery in connection with the memorial exercises.

One of the speakers coming to Norwich to do his part in expressing appreciation of Mr. Dodge and his faithful work is the State Forester.

The exercises are being arranged by Norwich Art association.

BRENNAN-LEONARD ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

At a meeting Tuesday evening of a sewing club of which she is a member, Miss Mary M. Brennan, of 176 Prospect Street announced her engagement to M. Frank Leonard, of 206 Hickory street. Mr. Leonard is in business on Franklin street.

The evening was spent in a social way and Miss Brennan received many good wishes from her friends in the club. Mr. Leonard has been receiving the congratulations of acquaintances since the engagement has been made known.

Becomes Violently Insane

Henry C. Marx became suddenly violently insane at his home at 40 Forest street, Wednesday morning and police help was summoned. Officer Charles Smith, with the motor patrol wagon and Officers John O'Neil, Luke Illley, and Bernard Keenan responded to the call, but when they arrived at the house Marx had left. He was found on West Main street at one of the bridges over the Yantic river where he had held up a motor truck and was ordering the driver to get out and let him take charge of the truck. Marx was brought to police headquarters and from there sent to the Norwich state hospital by First Selectman W. S. Murray upon temporary commitment papers made out by Dr. F. J. Harper.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

Miss Louise Fuller sailed from New York Wednesday, to join her sister, Miss Margaret Fuller in Paris.

Miss Kate Ayerigg, who has been the guest of her nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Roy Robbins, has returned to Stamford.

The Sewing Club met Monday afternoon with Mrs. Robert C. Johnson, of Broad street. The members voted to send a dainty remembrance box to Mrs. W. Russell Baird.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Jones and daughter Elizabeth of South Willington, who have closed their summer residence at Neptune Park for the season, are to leave soon for Miami.

Wednesday afternoon, from 4.30 to 5.30, Charles J. Dyer invited a few of her friends to meet Mrs. Richard Mansfield and some of her players at his home on Sachem street. Tea was served very informally but delightfully. Mrs. Mansfield greatly appreciating Mr. Dyer's hospitable intent. Among others who welcomed her were Gen. William A. Aiken, Miss Jane McG. Aiken, Mrs. Robert W. Perkins, Mrs. John Dexter Hall, Miss Huggles and the Misses Trumbull.

TRADITION FORMS BACKGROUNDS IN MANY OF SATURDAY'S FOOTBALL GAMES

NEW YORK, Nov. 4—(By the A. P.)—Traditions that form a major part of the background of football rivalries have full away this week on many gridirons, but particularly at Palmer stadium, where Princeton and Harvard, foes over nearly a half century, meet in the first of the "big three" tests.

With Yale alone of the old triumvirate standing out prominently in the music for eastern honors this fall, the "big three" series will not influence the general rating of teams to any marked extent but it is always a classic of the gridiron when these old rivals get together. There will be no lack of color or pageantism this Saturday, in spite of the fact that it is something of an off-year for both Harvard and Princeton.

The Tiger and the Crimson both have tasted bitter pills so far, the former tied by the Navy and licked by Colgate while the Cambridge forces bowed to Holy Cross and Dartmouth. Princeton is somewhat of a favorite but the margin, if any, is slight. Harvard, perhaps, has been pointing for this game above all, for Crimson has a vivid memory of the 24-0 rout at its expense in Cambridge last November.

Harvard and Princeton have not been steady rivals since they first met in 1877. There was a long hiatus from 1896 to 1911, but since then, except for the war years, the battle has been an annual affair. Since the war Princeton has held the upper hand, with three victories, one defeat and two ties, but before that there was a string of five straight Harvard triumphs.

While it is the oldest of this Saturday's rivalries, the Harvard-Princeton renewal is in reality one of a number of contests that date their inception back a quarter of a century and more.

Columbia and New York University for instance, first met in 1883, though they have had only twelve games since then, of which the Lions have won nine. This week, Columbia is a heavy favorite to add a tenth victory to her list.

Wesleyan and Williams, rivals since 1882, stage the second tussle of the "little three" series with neither up to standards of former years. Neither has scored a victory in the last four weeks, Amherst has already beaten Wesleyan and needs only Williams' scalp to win the triumvirate's crown.

The Cornell-Dartmouth feud at Hanover, the most important battle of the day from the viewpoint of its effect upon eastern championship claims was started in 1909. There have been eight contests, evenly divided, since then, so that the Red and Green will have another incentive for which to battle.

Washington & Jefferson's clash with Pittsburgh brings together another brace of outstanding elevens in a traditional struggle. Started in 1897, figuring through the basis of their defeat of Lafayette, which conquered Pittsburgh, the presidents are favorites but on the other hand, Pitt conquered Carnegie, which held W. & J. to a scoreless tie.

In other prominent games of the week, Bowdoin and Maine have a background to their rivalry that goes back many years, while Holy Cross and Fordham, both boasting unbeaten records as they prepare to clash at the pole grounds, date their struggles back to 1901.

PROCEEDS OF AGGIE GAME FOR CHARITY

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Nov. 4.—An arrangement somewhat out of the ordinary will take place in connection with the Connecticut Aggie-New Hampshire football game to be played at Manchester, N. H., next Saturday. Proceeds of the contest, other than the actual expenses and guarantees to the two elevens participating, will be turned over to two worthy causes, the District Nurses' association, and the New Hampshire Tuberculosis association.

The game has been arranged by the Cigar Makers' Union of Manchester, N. H., as a means of helping two of the city's worthiest charities, which explains why the Aggies will meet the Granite staters at Manchester instead of Durham, as in the past.

This year will be the fourth that the Cigar Makers' union has sponsored a college football game at Manchester. Each year the city has turned out in full force to see the contest and support the causes for which the game is staged. It is expected that this year's battle between the Aggies and the Granite staters will shatter all previous records for attendance.

Of further interest in connection with this game is the bearing it will have on the standing of the teams in the New England conference. New Hampshire ranks with the Massachusetts Aggies as being the best of the conference teams, but in order to retain that ranking the Granite staters will have to decisively turn back Coach Dole's charges Saturday.

Connecticut is definitely out of the conference race, having dropped games to both Maine and Massachusetts Aggies. For all this, however, the Storrs team will go to New Hampshire feeling that it has an even chance of taking the game, in which event the Massachusetts Aggies will have a clear claim to conference honors.

New Hampshire defeated Tufts last week by a 9-6 score. A week earlier the Aggies defeated the same team 7-6. Connecticut lost two sure touchdowns through fumbles deep in Tufts territory and at no time did the Jumbos threaten the Aggies' goal line. While comparative scores are dangerous to tamper with, it is difficult to see where New Hampshire has any appreciable edge on the Aggies in the approaching contest. Both elevens have been pointing for this game and it should be a close one.

Anticipating a thrusting running attack at the tackles and through the line, Coach Dole gave his forward wall a long scrimmage drill this afternoon. The first team backfield and the second team line worked together against Dole's first team line. Nothing but line running plays were used, with most of the thrusts massing on the tackles. This is what is expected from the Granite staters and the workout this afternoon gave the line a good idea of what it will have to stop. This work was preceded by a dummy scrimmage and a long session of signal practice.

FIFTEEN TEAMS WILL START IN GARDEN RACE

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Fifteen teams will start the first six-day bicycle race in the new Madison Square Garden at midnight, November 28, and several foreign riders are expected to appear. Those who participated in the Chicago grind just ended will rest for a week before resuming training.

Bobby Walthour, Jr., son of the Georgia phantom of the early century has assured the New York management that he will be present in an effort to gain his third successive victory.

INDOOR BASEBALL LEAGUE IS FORMED AT Y. M. C. A.

Some real fun and good sport is within reach of the younger baseball fans of the city through the formation of an indoor baseball league which is now being organized at the Y. M. C. A. and all boys in Norwich between the ages of 11 to 16 are invited to join in the fun, whether they are members of the association or not.

Already a number of teams have entered and Physical Director Fritz would like to hear from various groups about the city who would like to enter teams. Boys may also apply individually and an effort will be made to place them on teams.

The league will consist of two sections known as the Nationals and Americans and at the close of the schedule there is to be a "worlds series" providing all goes well. The games are to begin just as soon as enough teams are enrolled and the committee in charge of the league with the Y physical director will be gym leaders Howard Ludlow, William Krohn and Philip Plante. All boys and groups wishing to enter the league should register at the "Y" at once.

SLATTERY IS PUT ON INVOLUNTARY SICK LIST

NEW YORK, Nov 4—(A. P.)—Jimmy Slattery of Buffalo was placed on the state athletic commission's involuntary sick list today when he notified the commission that he would be unable to fulfill a contract to meet Jack Perlstein in a 15-round match at Syracuse, next Friday. The commission notified Slattery to take a 60 day vacation to get in condition for future engagements.

The benching of the colorful lightheavyweight will defer the second installment of the Shade-Slattery feud which Tex Rickard is planning for an early show at the New Madison Square Garden. Under the sick ban Slattery will be ineligible to fight in this state before January 4, 1926.

William Ames of Clifton, Mass., who was suspended indefinitely together with his entire stable including Frank Moody, Tommy Milligan and Wee Willie Woods, English boxers, was reinstated following word from Massachusetts that similar action had been taken there. Ames was first suspended in the Bay state for the violation of a verbal agreement with the state athletic commission and the ban became automatically effective in this state.

Moody was given 30 day sick leave with the understanding that he fulfill a contract to fight for the Broadway arena in Brooklyn before boxing elsewhere.

Jerry Williams of Albany, who was suspended September 1 for fouling Carl Courtney at the Collar City A. C. in Troy, August 24, was reinstated.

Permission was given to the Arena A. C. of Syracuse to holdan exhibition November 18 instead of the regular March meeting, November 11.

MACFARLANE TO DIRECT $3,000,000 GOLF COURSE

NEW YORK, Nov. 4—(A. P.)—Willie MacFarlane, national open golf champion, goes forth to Florida in a few weeks to direct a $3,000,000 course.

Along with him will travel scores of the well known professions of the metropolitan area, bent upon collecting the fruits of their labors which long have been denied, for only in the past few years has there been lucrative winter employment for instructors.

MacFarlane has an exceptional opportunity to realize upon the title that he gained after a thrilling battle with Bobby Jones at Worcester, Mass., last June.

Other professionals had gathered large sums of money in exhibition after victories in national championships, but illness and injury attacked the 1925 victor even while he fought for the title.

MacDonald Smith, who has gained four titles this season, including the western open and the north and south, has not accepted any of several offers made from Florida clubs, so far as known, but he is expected to enter many of the southern tournaments this winter.

APPLICATIONS FOR YALE AND HARVARD GAME CUT

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 4—(A. P.)—Announcement was made by the Yale Athletic association tonight that the capacity of Soldiers' field at Cambridge, where the annual Yale-Harvard football game will be played on November 21, had been greatly over-subscribed. Because of this shortage of seats, the association has been forced to cut a number of Yale applications from two tickets to one. Soldiers' field will accommodate 55,000 persons.

It was decided to cut applications rather than to cancel many of them so that the policy of giving every Yale alumnus an opportunity to see the game could be continued. Applications of the most recent classes, 1924 and 1925, have been cut, the association feeling that the younger classes would have ample time in the future to procure their full allotment of tickets.

TWO YALE PLAYERS RECEIVE SLIGHT INJURIES

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 4—(A. P.)—Two regulars on the Yale football team were injured this afternoon in the only scrimmage the coaches plan to give the Eli team before the Maryland game Saturday. Dan Allen, fullback, injured his hand, but an examination showed that the injury was not serious and that he would be able to start the game Saturday. An earlier injury to his hand kept him out of the Penn game two weeks ago. Guy Richards, right guard, injured his shoulder today and was replaced by Dick Wortham. The coaches report that Richard's injury is not serious.

The Yale coaches announced tonight that the regular team would start the game against Maryland Saturday but that most of the substitute material will be given an opportunity to get into action during the afternoon.

WHO WILL SELECT THIS YEAR'S ALL-AMERICAN TEAM?

CHICAGO, Nov. 4—(A. P.)—Who shall select this year's All-American football team to replace that of the late Walter Camp, is a question being agitated here.

It is admitted that there are a dozen well qualified critics who will supply lists, but none will have behind the mthe tradition and more or less recognited authority of the Camp selections.

The Chicago Herald and Examiner today makes two suggestions editorially. One is that the All-Americans now out of college vote in a new group each year. The newspaper calls the plan interesting, but cumbersome.

DEMPSEY EXPECTS BOUT TO GO THROUGH ALL RIGHT

SAN ANTONIO, Texas., Nov. 4—Jack Dempsey, heavyweight boxing champion, declared here tonight that he expected his proposed bout with Harry Wills, negro challenger, to go through under the management of Floyd Fitzsimmons, Michigan City, Indian, promoter, with whom he had signed a contract.

Dempsey scffed at reports that the Fitzsimmons contract would be scrapped, saying the way for a reconciliation with Jack Kearns, his deposed manager. He also declared positively that the Wills bout would not be staged in New York.

The champion arrived here tonight by automobile from Laredo, Texas, following exhibition bouts in Mexico City and Monterey, Mexico. He plans to leave for Los Angeles tomorrow.

"You can say for me that my fight with Wills is going through," said Dempsey with positiveness. "I don't know anything about these reports, and that's the reason I'm hurrying back to Los Angeles. I am going to get into communication with Floyd Fitzsimmons at once. I have no fear that he will not be able to put the fight across and I have no doubt that it will take place in Indiana."

When told that the reports started with an announcement by Rob Roy Benton his press agent and counsellor, that he would quit Dempsey, the champion stated that Benton has not been with him for three years. "He only worked in and out for me" said Dempsey, who seemed not to attach much importance to what Benton said.

He laughed at the report that Tex Rickard saw signs of a reconciliation between himself and Jack Kearns and a possibility of staging the fight in New York.

Of all reports he has heard so far, Dempsey said the most logical are those emanating from Ray Cannon, his attorney and Andrew C. Weisburg, head of the South Bend syndicate which is financing the Dempsey-Wills fight.

The champion appeared in the pink of condition.

NUTMEGS AND SPEEDBOYS PREPARING FOR BATTLE

Both the Speedboys and the Nutmegs are putting in a hard week's work in preparation for their forthcoming game Sunday afternoon. The Speedboys after scoring a clean cut victory over the powerful Greeneville Tigers last Sunday seem once again headed for an Eastern Conn. championship. In order, however, to retain their title the Norwich Nutmegs, the highest scoring team in Connecticut must be defeated. Three weeks ago these two teams battled furiously for four quarters only to have the game end in a scoreless tie. Both the Nutmegs and the Speedboys have played one game since their last contest. The Speedboys defeated the Tigers 12 to 0 and the Nutmegs swamped the heaviest team in Connecticut, the Yantic A. C., by the score of 56 to 0.

Last evening the Speedboys scrubs using Nutmeg plays were unable to make one first down on the regulars. The Jewett City aggregation will use the same lineup as was sent with such great success against the Greeneville Tigers. Practice sessions have been held all this past week and the team is in the best of condition.

The Speedboys' record for the past two years is as follows:

1924

Speedboys	Opponents
28	Rovers 0
12	Nutmegs A. C. 0
6	Plainfield 6
12	Nutmegs A. C. 0
42	Plainfield 0

1925

0	Greeneville Tigers 6
0	Norwich Nutmegs 0
12	Greeneville Tigers 0

Next Sunday's game will see several college stars in the Nutmegs' lineup Men from Conn. Aggies, Rhode Island State College, Middlebury and several other colleges will be seen. Besides these several ex-pro and semi-pro players will be in the Nutmeg uniforms. These men have practiced three days this week and are in as near perfect condition as it is possible for a team to be in. The team's three coaches are working hard and have rounded out a fast team. An entire new set of signals have been taught the squad and also a number of new plays in preparation for Sunday's battle.

The following is the season record for the Nutmegs to date:

Nutmegs	Opponents
24	Warriors 0
6	West Ends 0
42	Crescent A. C. 0
0	Jewett City 0
56	Yantic A. C. 0

Mitchell Accepts Offer

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 4—(A. P.)—An offer to defend his title of junior welterweight champion of America against Mushy Callahan, Los Angeles, has been accepted by Pinky Mitchell of Milwaukee, his brother-manager Billy Mitchell announced here today. Mitchell is offered a guarantee of $15,000.

The fight will be a ten round bout to a referee's decision at Los Angeles on December 3 or 4.

GRADUATE COMMITTEES AT YALE ARE ANNOUNCED

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 4.—(AP)—The board of control of the Yale university athletic association has voted its approval to an addition of approximately an acre and a half of land to the original land offered to the city of New Haven in connection with the city's proposed plans of park development. The action was taken to facilitate the plans for improving the meadow south of Yale field.

The following graduate committees were named:

Track—A. C. Gilbert, chairman; John R. Kilpatrick, Henry G. Lapham, Charles S. Gage, A. B. Coxe, W. M. Oler, J. T. Bryan, E. S. Furniss and F. P. Heffelfinger.

Crew—F. W. Allen, chairman; John M. Goetchius, W. A. Harriman, Seth Loew, Colles Coe, Stephen Hord, J. Stillman Rockefeller, Frederick Sheffield, Blake Russell and B. M. Spock.

Baseball—Burnside Winslow, chairman; J. F. Riddell, R. W. Pond, A. M Hirsch and M. D. Aldrich.

Mr. Lapham of Boston, one of the new members of the track committee, is donor of the Lapham field house at Yale field.

FINNEGAN GETS VERDICT OVER BABE HERMAN

BOSTON, Nov. 4. (AP)—Dick (Honeyboy) Finnegan, Dorchester featherweight, won by decision from Babe Herman of California in a ten-round bout here tonight. Herman's bout with Kid Kaplan, world's featherweight champion, in New York next month was conditional upon his defeating Finnegan.

Herman fought himself out in the sixth when he floored the Dorchester boy for the count of four. When Finnegan regained his feet, Herman chased him about the ring vainly attempting to send one of his heavy punches home on a vital spot to score a knockout.

He weakened during the next three rounds, Finnegan holding him even in the seventh and outpointing him in the eight and ninth. Herman gained his second wind in the final round and again set out to knock out Finnegan. The latter, on the defensive throughout the round, made him miss often.

Finnegan gained a commanding lead in the early rounds. He outpointed Herman in the first and second by a wide margin but lost the third, in the fourth Finnegan slowed up the fast moving Herman by a rapid two-handed attack. A right to the face and left to the body sent Herman to the ropes in this round. Herman was the aggressor in the fifth but Finnegan made him miss often and scored on infighting.

The victor weighed in at 128 pounds and Herman was a pound less.

Johnny Brown of Newport, substituting for Eddie Williams of East Boston, knocked out Nick Quagerelli of New York, Herman's sparring partner, in the second round of the eight round semi-final.

Eight Ball Dixon of Providence gained the decision over Panama Joe Walcott in the other eight round bout and Jack Elliot of England won the decision over Battling Thierrieu of Springvale, Maine, in the first bout, one of six rounds.

PINKIE BURNS KNOCKS OUT SAXON IN NINTH

NEW LONDON, Nov. 4. (AP)—Pinkey Burns, of New London, retained his state welterweight title here tonight when he knocked out Johnny Saxon of Bridgeport in the ninth round of a scheduled 15-round bout. Burns led all the way.

Johnny Peters, of Bridgeport, won from Willie Mack, of Stamford, when the referee stopped the bout in the fifth round after warning Mack against fouling.

Steve Cutter, of Bridgeport, stopped Tiger Canto, of Bridgeport, in the second round of a six-round bout. Canto was floored and was unable to continue.

The bout between Kid De Bartlo, of Westerly, R. I., and Young Oliver, of Bridgeport, was stopped in the second round when Oliver broke the thumb on his right hand.

HUBBARD PREDICTS HARVARD WILL BEAT PRINCETON

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 4. (AP)—Charlie Hubbard, former All-American guard and member of the Harvard coaching staff, predicted that the university's football team would defeat Princeton on Saturday, speaking tonight at the pre-game mass meeting in Harvard union, attended by 1,500 enthusiastic students.

"You fellows," he said to the team which was seated on the platform, "are the physical and mental equals of Princeton's men. Your team's record is as good as Princeton's and your coaches know as much about the game as the Princeton coaching staff."

PICTURES SHOW WILSON DID NOT STEP OUTSIDE

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 4.—(AP)—The official motion pictures of the Yale-Army football game Saturday, shown at the University today, verify the referee's decision that Harry Wilson, West Point fullback, did not step outside the side line as he raced down the field for an 85-yard run that tied the score in the third period.

Many of the spectators and some of the Yale players attempted to convince the referee that Wilson had stepped over the line, a footprint just outside being pointed to as evidence

IRISH GIRLS STILL WINNING THEIR GAME

Greenwich, Nov. 4.—(AP)—The Irish girls' field hockey team defeated the Fair Chester team 11 to 0 on the West Chester Biltmore country club field here today. Miss Cummins of the visiting team was the individual star, having seven goals to her credit. Miss Gene Wure, an all-American player, did good work for the Fair Chester team.

Members of the Irish team have been entertained here by members of the Fair Chester team since Sunday.

Indoor Baseball Game

There will be an indoor baseball game at the Y. M. C. A. Friday evening at 6:30 p. m. between Flaherty's All-Stars and the Yallants Juniors, coached by C. Jackson. The line-up for Flaherty's All-Stars will be:

Murphy c, S. Ruffo 3b, D'Atri p, Flaherty 1b, Johnson ss, B. Ruffo lf, Riley 2b, Stevens cf, Vulgares rf.

Coach Jackson refused to give his line-up until a later date. Coach Jackson who is well known in Norwich is expected to have a good team on the diamond.

Tigers Practice

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 4. (AP)—Decision of Coach Bill Roper to keep his first team lineup intact against the second team today was interpreted on the campus as meaning he would send the same combination against Harvard Saturday.

Stonington and Chapman Play Friday

Stonington high and Chapman Tech clash Friday afternoon at New London at Morgan field. From previous scores Stonington has a very slight edge on Tech. Academy played Stonington a scoreless tie and then beat Chapman 14 to 13. Stonington should win by about one touchdown.

DENIALS AND DISCLOSURES BRING WILLS-DEMPSEY BOUT TO FORE AGAIN

NEW YORK, Nov. 4—(A. P.)—The Dempsey-Wills agreement for a championship battle in Indiana next year, engineered by Floyd Fitzsimmons and a South Bend syndicate but regarded with skepticism in fistic circles ever since it was drawn up jumped back into the limelight today.

In Los Angeles, Rob Roy Benton Dempsey's press agent, announced he was "quitting the Dempsey camp rather than be a party to what he declared was an impending invalidation of the Fitzsimmons contract," but there were hasty denials to this from Ray Cannon, Milwaukee attorney for Dempsey, as well as Andrew C. Weisburg, head of the South Bend syndicate.

Cannon was quoted as saying "the Dempsey-Wills bout under the direction of Floyd Fitzsimmons will take place if Fitzsimmons lives up to the letter of his contract with Dempsey," while Weisburg scoffed at the idea the proposed bout would fall through, revealing at the same time that Dempsey "is guaranteed a cool million for swapping punches" with his negro challenger.

Benton further asserted that the present contract would be invalidated in order to give Jack Kearns a chance to manage at least two more Dempsey fights before his contract with the titleholder expires next September, adding his belief that Cannon was now representing both Dempsey and Kearns. Benton offered no substantiating details for these statements.

This also met with denial from Cannon, however, while Weisburg pointed out the champion would lose a substantial forfeit if he fights anyone else before meeting Wills under the syndicate's auspices.

Meanwhile Tex Rickard professed to see signs of a reconciliation between Dempsey and Kearns which would enable the New York promoter to stage the big title battle in the Metropolitan district.

Disclosure that Paddy Mullins, manager of Wills already had received $50,000 from the Indiana syndicate and is to receive $50,000 more some time before the bout came as a surprise here. Benton's statement to this effect was confirmed in South Bend by Weisburg, although Mullins had said here he received only $25,000 as his advance guarantee.

DEMPSEY IS SUED BY LOS ANGELES NURSE

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 4—(A. P.)—Such a slippery place was the apartment house formerly jointly owned by Jack Dempsey and Jack Kearns, that Anderena F. McPhee, a nurse, yesterday brought suit for $26,700 damages against the heavyweight champion and his former manager. She alleges that the employe of Dempsey and Kearns kept the floors so slippery with soap one day that she lost her footing and received injuries that kept her abed for five months. Dempsey and Kearns recently entered into an arrangement whereby Kearns became the sole owner of the apartment house.

GRANGE SECURES TICKETS FOR A NEGRO FRIEND

URBANA, Ills., Nov. 4.—(AP)—"Red" Grange, receiving as many as 200 mash notes and letters a day, congratulating him on his gridiron achievements, never fails to answer a friend, no matter how busy he may be.

The story was told today that Grange spent nearly a half a day making a personal canvass among friends to dig up a pair of tickets for a negro whose supreme wish was that he could see "Red" perform in the Michigan-Illinois game. At the time Grange got the appeal all the 68,000 seats had been sold.

The ticket officials could not help him. That did not stop Grange. He started his canvass and wasn't thrown for a loss. He got the tickets. The negro, who attended Wheaton, Ills., high school when Grange played there, had his wish gratified.

Yale Sophomore Win

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 4. (AP)—In the annual Yale fall inter-class track meet held here today, the sophomore class won with a score of 56 points. The junior class was second with 39 and the freshmen third with 28.

Roy Beats Kramer

MONTREAL, Nov. 4. (AP)—Lee (Kid) Roy, featherweight champion of Canada, was awarded the decision over Danny Kramer, of Philadelphia in a ten round bout tonight. Roy weighed 128 1-4 and Kramer 126 1-2.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Emory Rigney, Detroit shortstop, is the latest to have his name tossed about by the trade winds. Cobb says that he will pass the shortstop along to the club making the best proposition as he plans to use Gehringer from Toronto in the infield next season.

Jess Hawley has two reasons for using a white ball in football practice at Dartmouth. The game with Cornell may go into darkness and on the other hand there may be snow in the bleak hills of Hanover.

Battling Siki, Senegalese light heavyweight, has been barred by the New Jersey boxing commission and his proposed bout with Ad Stone of Philadelphia at Newark on Thursday cancelled.

Columbia University's football team may not be the hardest to beat but it is one of the hardest to pronounce. Regulars and substitutes include Schimetitsch, Osnato, Empringham, Alkoff, Zegri, Aulick, Mananarney, Raphael, Jaeger and Kirchmeyer.

St. Stephensons college has been a victim of one-point defeats on three occasions. Bowdoin, Wesleyan and Middlebury have enjoyed 7 to 6 victories over the Poughkeepsie institution.

Sports received an event break in yesterday's elections. Jimmy Walker, father of the Empire State's boxing law, became mayor of New York city. Honus Wagner, old-time shortston star of the Pirates was defeated for sheriff in Pittsburgh.

Reports from all sections of the country indicate that the present season of intercollegiate football will eclipse all previous records in the matter of attendance. With capacious stadiums now dotting the land, gatherings of 50,000 spectators have become quite common in both the east and west.

Baseball has been tuned in for several weeks on the diamond trade mart, but can get nary a whisper. Washington denies Roger Peckinpaugh will be traded in spite of Peck's series slump, the Giants and Reds haven't yet been able to scare up a deal, while the Pirates have thus far failed to give a sign that Moore and Bigbee will be sent to San Francisco in payment for two minor league stars.

Princeton's largest football score against Yale was made in 1896, when the Tigers won, 24 to 6.

The cross-country championships of the Pacific coast conference will be staged at Moscow, Idaho, on November 7.

Art Matsu, quarterback of the William and Mary team is said to be the only Japanese playing college football in the east.

Golf teams are to be organized in each of the five high schools of Dallas, Texas, by the municipal golf commission of that city.

The Missouri- Kansas, university football games form one of the oldest continuous gridiron series in the middle West, dating from 1890.

During the first sixteen years of the Eastern intercollegiate cross-country competition Cornell won the team championship fourteen times.

The biggest football score which Yale has been able to run up against Princton is 32 points, which were made in 1890, one of the few years that Harvard triumphed over Yale in the period before the advent of the Haughton system.

The Huskel Indians, who pitch their tents at Lawrence, Kansas, on the few occasions they are home, will create a football record in the transportation field this season. Their schedule takes them 17,000 miles by rail.

New York baseball fans are talking about two memorials to Christy Mathewson. One group seeks to erect a field house and gymnasium at Bucknell college. The other is anxious to have a mounment at the Polo Grounds.

Giants and Yankees both turned covetous eyes on Bill Burwell, Indianapolis right hand pitcher. The success of Fred Fitzsimmons with the Giants boosted considerably the stock of American associations pitchers, and Burwell is even better than Fitzsimmons, according to western critics.

The Swarthmore football teams hold the unique record of crossing the Princeton goal line in nearly every contest played since 1919, which is an unusual feat, in so much as Princeton has had some of her greatest teams in that time.

Ernie Johnson, former Chicago American infielder and more recently the property of the New York Americans, comes to the St. Paul American association club next season in part payment for Shortstop Mark Koenig.

The Harvard-Princeton football game on November 7 will be the twenty-eighth time that the Crimson and Tigers have clashed on the gridiron. Of the series to date the record stands 15 victories for Princeton to 9 for Harvard, with three games tied.

Jim Mullen, Chicago promoter in New York looking for matches expresses the opinion that Chicago soon will be rivaling the metropolis as a pugilistic center. "The Windy City is certain to vote in favor of boxing next spring," he says.

Franklin field, enlarged by the addition of an upper deck this season, seems inadequate to meet the demand for seats to Saturday's football classic between Pennsylvania and Illinois. Quaker fans are already beginning to talk about a 100,000 stadium next year.

Willie Ritola, crowned ten-mile champion in mud and water at New York Saturday, has decided to go after some of the indoor records set last winter by his compatriot, Paavo Nurmi. Ritola aims at Nurmi's marks from two miles up.

The New York hockey club has finally been completed with a squad of eighteen hockey players, most of them Canadians. The outfit, including Langlois and McKinnon of the Montreal Tigers, signed Saturday, will go into training next week for the National hockey league race.

Tad Jones, Yale coach, was so gratified over the Eli team's triumph Saturday against Army that he indicated a week's rest would be given the first string players. Some of the men may even be out two weeks—until the Princeton game—these including Kline who was slightly injured Saturday.

Athletics at the University of Michigan can count on the hearty support of Dr. Robert Clarence C. Little, the new president of the Ann Arbor institution. "Pete" Little, as he was known to his fellow students, was a cracking good hurdler and shotputter when he was captain of the Harvard track team in 1910.

The National Squash Tennis association has adopted a new ball for tournament play this season. The new ball will be slower than in the past and this is expected to work to the advantage of the beginner. The fast ball, it is stated, put too big a premium upon speed and hitting power. The slower ball is expected to make the game more of a test of skill and strategy.

Since the advent of football in American colleges in 1876 there have been very few games in which neither team scored. The first occasion of the kind was in 1879, when Yale and Harvard left the field without having scored. It is true that six safeties were made in that game, but under the rules of that day a safety did not count in scoring.

Walter Johnson, the Washington pitcher, who is still regarded as one of the greatest slabbists in the game, will be in line for congratulations on November 6, the occasions being his thirty-eighth birthday anniversary. As most baseball fans know, the great Walter is a product of Kansas and still makes his home in that state. He first played professional ball in 1906 at Weiser, Idaho, where he fanned 13 batters in a single game, and blanked opponents in 57 consecutive innings. Jumping from Weiser to the major leagues is some jump, but Walter got away with it when he signed with Washington in 1907. His debut with the Senators showed him to be a real pitcher, and soon he had set up a new strike-out record for the major leagues. Johnson's salary whip has earned him a large fortune, but his friends declare he still wears the same size hat he wore in Weiser.

AMERICAN WOMEN'S MEANS OF HOME SAVING TO FRANCE

NEW YORK, Nov. 4—(A. P.)—French housewives who still do most of their household drudgery by hand will soon have a chance to study methods of American housewives who accomplish the same results with all the electrical and mechanical servants.

A "model American home" now being exhibited here will be dismantled and shipped to France to take its part in the International Exhibition of Household Appliances at the Grand Palais of Paris in December.

Electricity, although used extensively in France and available in almost any quantity, is confined almost entirely to lighting purposes.

The American exhibition, sponsored by 30 prominent manufacturers, is the result of a plea made last spring by Albert Broizat, who was sent to the United States by the French Department of Public Instruction, under whose auspices the international exhibition is to be held.

"The French people know that you Americans have mastered the art of getting your household and office work done with a minimum of human drudgery," he said, "but they do not know how you manage this. The French housewife who still does her washing, ironing, cooking, sewing, scrubbing and clearing with her own hands has much to learn from the American woman who uses little electrical servants for such work."

The interior of the model home, which in fact will be an ambassador from the American hearthside, is designed along the lines of a modest, early American home. It is a two-story, shingle frame house with ten rooms and four baths. The kitchen and laundry are likely to prove wonder spots for the French housewife.

After the Paris exhibition, the model home will be awarded to the French citizen who has made the greatest contribution to humanity in recent years as a gift from the American people. It will then be dismantled a second time and erected on a site selected by the winner.

JAPAN ENCOURAGES DOMESTIC MANUFACTURE OF RADIO GOODS

TOKYO, Nov. 4—That foreign-made radio apparatus is a luxury in Japan is the opinion of the financial authorities, who are reported to be planning the application of a luxury tax of 100 per cent. ad valorem on all imported radio goods.

At the time the Luxury law went into effect in July last year, radio in Japan was in an infant stage of development, and no consideration was given to the application of the law to radio instruments imported here from foreign countries.

With broadcasting started early this year, radio has become popular all over the country, and receivers alone are imported to the amount of 100,000 yen a month. Duties averaging from 20 to 30 per cent. have been charged.

Mr. Tomida, chief of the financial bureau of the finance department, said that "radio in Japan is not yet practical for commercial purposes, and is still a luxury. We intend to limit the importation of foreign radio goods."

RABBITS IN CASCADE MOUNTAINS PUT ON SNOWSHOES FOR WINTER

TACOMA, Wash., Nov. 4 (AP)—Rabbits in the high Cascade mountains are putting on their snowshoes for the hard winter ahead. Soon they will be able to go over the snow without difficulty, thanks to this arrangement with nature.

The creatures are called Snowshoe rabbits, sometimes known as Varying hares. Their hind feet have long, spreading toes, which in winter are covered with coarse hair, giving the rear feet fully four times the area of the fore feet. This natural snowshoe enables Mr. Rabbit to travel in snow in which the ordinary bunny would flounder.

The Snowshoe rabbit also changes color in winter. In summer he is brown to match the landscape, but in winter he becomes entirely white.

WESTERLY

Annunziato Vuono of Peckham Hollow, Bradford, was present at the council session Monday to ask of the council why the cross road from the Woody hill road to the Klondike quarry road was not a town highway, he complained that Frank A. Sullivan had a track to his quarries constructed across it. Previous to the council session, Mr. Vuono was heard to say that he would close the Woody Hill road, and had been told by Westerly highway authorities that if he did he would be arrested and lodged in jail. As Mr. Vuono warmed to his subject, Attorney Ledwidge arose to say that a lawsuit was pending over this matter of roads in the next session of the superior court and added that the last speaker "was a nuisance, source of trouble and disorder, ever since he had come to this section, and ought to be deported." "I protest," said Mr. Vuono, "what is the matter I done?" Later Highway Engineer A. L. Leon came into the council session and stated that the full membership of the Westerly Highway commission had visited the location a question and found hencoops which had been in what was claimed as being the highway so long that they had fallen in, that an orchard was also adjacent which had appeared to have been there for many years and that it was decided that the road was not a public highway unless "the legal minds of the council so decided." Mr. Vuono was allowed a few minutes to talk and produced a Westerly directory, 41 years old, which he claimed would prove his statement. It was finally decided that as the question was in the courts, the matter would be left for that decision first and that Mr. Vuono could come to the next regular council meeting if he desired. Referring to Attorney Ledwidge's previous statement concerning himself and pointing to each member of the council family in order and to the newspaper reporters he said, "I'll leave it to you, to come and 'discover' me."

It was voted to raise the pay of election officials of the last town election, inasmuch as the hours of service had been lengthened, 9 a. m. to 7 p. m., moderators and clerks $8 to $10 and supervisors, $6 to $8.

After an amount of $42.30 was voted for extra services of Town Solicitor and $7.75, the bills were voted paid as follows: Water works bills $2,009.81, sewer bills $4,058.30, poor department bills $460.26 and hospital bills and town hall, $69.41, printing and advertising $389.63, interest $100.00, street lights $947.20, dog fund $62.00 and town officers $851.00. On the end of the miscellaneous bills, to the amount of $120.-18, which bear the notation, "No funds available," the budget amount having been expended three months ago, appeared "Wall & Co., Providence, system' $285.00."

Police department bills voted were: Special officers, $72.00; autos, $3.75; motorcycle and department auto, $95.-49; traffic, $36.30, two new signals, $710.16, telegraph and telephone, $29.30 and miscellaneous, $22.86 for a total amount $1,965.86.

Councilman Fowler questioned the police bill entry "department auto", and was informed that it was an automobile left in Westerly a year and a half ago by rum runners, so it appeared that the department had "won" it, which the councilman said "explained matters."

Authorization was voted the act of Westerly Town Treasurer James M. Pendleton issuing his notes for $100,-000 dated Nov. 2, 1925 and due May 1, 1926, to the Old Colony Trust company of Boston at 3% discount for sewer construction.

Dr. Samuel C. Webster, health officer of Westerly, reported that no cases of contagious disease had been brought to his attention in the town during October, 1925.

The report of Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown showed that 22 arrests had been made during October, divided as follows: One reckless driving of automobile, four for intoxication, one side person, two insane persons, one neglect to provide, one recalling, three violent assaults, two putative fathers of children, one driving auto not having at least two powerful brakes, one auto truck not registered, one truck displaying fictitious plates, one truck plate of auto under the influence of liquor, two at a rate of speed not reasonable and proper, one inticing and inducing girl to commit unlawful sexual intercourse and one was reported as taken into custody.

Councilman Charles Fowler asked that action be taken by the Westerly town council relating to Armistice day. It was voted that by the council that Armistice day be observed in a fitting manner according to the plans of the Westerly Armistice Day committee of the veterans' associations of Westerly and the action of the Westerly Chamber of Commerce.

Belated notices were read to sessions of the Rhode Island State Board of Public Utilities, holden in Providence during October, concerning bus lines in and around Westerly.

A discussion was held concerning the numerous auto sales contracts filed in the office of the Westerly town clerk. It being the opinion of council solicitor that such contracts spread on town records, many coming from Connecticut, did not add greatly to title to automobiles.

Voted adopted by the council was "The Consolidated Ordinances of the Town of Westerly of 1905," upon which Westerly Town Solicitor John Ferguson, Jr., had expended much painstaking care and time, and in which all previous town ordinances are gathered in chapter and section from, not unlike state statute revision, and in which shape intelligent amendments could be made and traced from time to time, by referring to the chapter and section to be amended. The revision is to appear in printed form and to it will be added the special acts of the Rhode Island General Assembly, in special legislation for the town of Westerly.

Briefly, the revision is chaptered and described:

I, Compact Part of Town; II, Places of Trade, stores; III, Bathing; IV, Malicious Injury; V, Intoxication; VI, Steam Boilers; VII, Bells, their ringing; VIII, Dogs; IV, Registration of Dead, dying outside of town and brought in for burial, Reporting to Town Clerk, Information relating to deceased (Clerk Whipple stated that in cases of deceased being brought from Pawcatuck to Westerly and Westerly to Pawcatuck, over the R. I.-Conn state line there had been an absence of formalities); X, Reveling; XI, Hitching Horses to Trees; XII, Junk Fields; XIII, Harbor Master (there being a penalty added); XIV, Health, Health alone, Certain diseases, what should be done, keeping of swine, regulating vaults and cesspools (with several additions) carting of cesspool matter, Expectorating, Removal of nuisances, where sewer mains had been established; XV, Hawkers and Peddlers, selling from wagons, meats, etc. "tow cloths, excepted" (none of the councilmen could explain "tow cloth"); XVI, Fire Hazards; XVII, Stopping on Bridges; XVII, Daylight Saving; XIX, Traffic stopping and standing, right of way for fire apparatus, vehicles in motion, placing of signs and posts; XX, Highways, unlawful obstruction, bicycles in highways, awnings and signs 7 1-2 feet from sidewalks (the councilmen recommended that this be one of the first ordinances that the new council should take up for enforcement); XXI, Itinerant Venders; XXII, Zoning; XXIII, Hackney-Carriages; XXIV, Sewers, with 26 sections; XXV, Water Department, ordinances and rules for plumbers, meters, rates (some of which have been changed); XXVI, Naming of Streets and Numbering of Buildings; XXVII, Ordinances, (only such parts as have penalties are to be published); XXVIII, Revised Ordinances, Sec. 1, Take effect after ec. 1, 1925, Sec. 2, No interem between old and the passage of the new. The 28 Sections of Rules, incorporating all ordinances and placing in chapters the councilmen gave credit to Westerly Town Solicitor John Ferguson, Jr., who lost his notes when fire consumed his seashore cottage at Pleasant View.

Councilman Fowler moved the passage of the revised ordinances and it was so voted.

The councilmen then proceeded with the recount of the ballots cast Tuesday following which the councilmen, who have met for four years, took their final adjournment. The new councilmen declared elected will be sworn in and "engaged to the service of the town of Westerly," at an early date.

Beginning next week in Westerly there will be a campaign for the reinstatement of government life insurance for ex-service men, under the auspices of Westerly chapter, American Red Cross. It is planned to have an ex-service man come to Westerly from the Veterans' Bureau in Providence.

NAME OF "WESTERLY GRANITE" TO BE USED EXCLUSIVELY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, Nov. 4. — The last meeting of the Westerly town council of the past two years held in the council chamber of the Westerly town hall Wednesday morning, it being the adjourned regular council session held to wind up the council's business and to act as a returning board for the recount of ballots cast Tuesday for the new town council members and other town and district officers. In the absence of President Campbell and Councilman Morrison, Councilman O. S. Utter was named president pro tem. Other members present were Councilman Louis J. Rossi, Charles S. Fowler, John D. Nichols (the only member of the old council elected to serve on the next council for two years), Farquhar Smith and Town Solicitor J. Ferguson, Jr., and Council clerk Everett E. Whipple.

Frank A. Sullivan, producer, and representing the Westerly Granite Manufacturers and Quarry Dealers association, accompanied by Attorney A. T. L. Ledwidge, appeared before the council. Preceding the reading of a resolution, Mr. Ledwidge stated that Mr. Sullivan had taken up the work to establish the name "Westerly Granite," not merely as a trade name, but that such stone as was quarried in the vicinity of Westerly could be exclusively known as such and that dealers who obtained the benefits derived from the established quality of Westerly granite would be prohibited from using substitutes.

The resolution cited the fact that the town of Westerly, Washington county, Rhode Island, had been known for the past 75 years as the township having in its vicinity "granite of such quality, durability and fineness, capable of taking a fine finish, either hammered or polished," that it had become known for the making of memorials; that the granite was taken out deep in the earth with hardship and expense by the early discoverers and that they and their heirs had wrought for the betterment of Westerly; that exposure to elements had shown little deterioration of the stone. The priority production was accomplished before other stones entered the field; the expense attached to the process of manufacture is heavy. Evidence was not lacking that other towns were profiting by marketing stone under the name of Westerly granite, and therefore the Westerly council, as representatives of the citizens of Westerly, was urged to petition the federal trade commission, Washington, D. C., to take necessary steps to permanently restrain and prohibit the use of the word "Westerly" in the sale of any granite, not quarried within the Town of Westerly or within ten statute miles of the Town hall and court house.

Councilman Fowler asked if the Westerly granite dealers were incorporated or if Westerly granite had a registered trademark. Mr. Sullivan stated that the association was not incorporated. He had been to Washington, D. C., to see the federal trade commission, which body had asked for a priority showing of the use of the name "Westerly Granite" and that was a reason for asking the Westerly council to pass the resolution vote on motion of Councilman Smith the resolution was voted approved.

Master of Rhode Island State Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, C. Palmer Chapman, accompanied by his wife, Isabella C. Chapman, national Pomona, and Mrs. George F. Barbour, all of Avondale, left Westerly Wednesday afternoon on the Bay State express for Boston, en route to the convention of the National Grange, in Sacramento, Cal., Nov. 12 to 19. They accompanied a party of 12 Rhode Island grangers who took a grange special leaving Boston at 6 a. m. with some 175 delegates. Today (Thursday) the special will be in Niagara Falls and as the western trip is continued will visit Yellowstone National park, arriving at Sacramento Nov. 11. The return home after visiting various cities and points of interest will be down the Pacific coast of California, the delegates returning by way of Galveston and New Orleans to their New England homes after an absence of six weeks.

Many attended Tuesday in the vestry of Pawcatuck Seventh-day Baptist church the supper served at 6.30 o'clock by the officers of the Women's Aid society. Following the supper, in the church auditorium at 7.30 o'clock were shown stereopticon pictures of the Seventh-day Baptist Shanghai and Liuhe Chinese mission activities in the Far East. This was the second exhibition of the scenes, first shown at the joint meeting of the Women's Aid and S. D. B. societies in the church auditorium Oct. 4.

Sunday, Nov. 1 the Everglades express, an all-Pullman train via Hell Gate bridge from New England to Florida, Boston to Miami, made its first stop at the Westerly station at 9.30 p. m. and will continue to stop at Westerly until the end of the season. The mail car, formerly attached to the southbound federal express, making the Westerly station stop at 9.47 p. m. is now attached to the Everglades express, which not only brings but takes Westerly mail, although the Federal express continues the Westerly stop, as previous to the starting of the Florida train.

An automobile bound from Florida to Maine, in charge of a Maine deputy sheriff and aid, made a short stop in Westerly the first of the week. On the rear seat were shackled together and to the auto three automobile thieves who had stolen a car in Maine and had gone to Florida in it. There they were apprehended and together with the auto were being returned to the Pine Tree state.

CIVIC IMPROVEMENT PLANS IN KANSAS CITY ASK $27,000,000

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 4—To speed civic improvements Kansas City proposes to spend $27,000,000 within the next few years.

Voters will have an opportunity December 8 to act upon 25 bond proposals adopted by the city council.

To cope with growing traffic congestion an expenditure of $7,500,000 is proposed for opening and widening traffic ways. This is the largest single item, but other proposals bring the traffic bill up to more than $11,-000,000.

Parks and beautification would cost another $7,500,000, with more than $4,-000,000 to be spent in acquiring and beautifying the section around the union station and the Liberty memorial, which has been envisioned as a civic center.

Sign boards perched on hills overlooking the $2,000,000 memorial and union station plaza will go if the bond issue is authorized by the voters for the purchase of adjacent property.

Another proposal calls for $500,000 for a municipal auditorium.

For a municipal air field, bonds of half a million dollars would be issued and $50,000 would be added for a better tourist camp.

Another item of $1,500,000 is for the city's share of the cost of a free highway bridge across the Missouri river.

A project for a park along the Blue River would be financed by bonds totaling $1,000,000.

Foreign Wheat A Necessity

DUBLIN, Nov. 3.—(AP)—If anything happened to the Free State's foreign wheat supplies the people would be without bread for fifteen days out of sixteen, it was stated by the chairman of a farmer's conference here. The acreage under wheat has declined from half a million to a quarter of a million since 1851. The farmers said that wheat growing did not pay.

A little truth goes a long way—if it isn't stretched.

When the lure of adventure calls you—and the good old car is r'aring to be on the tour—when everything's ready to go and you reach for the wheel —have a Camel!

WHEN your car of cars is fresh primed, ready to start the tour. And early morning light has thrown its glow of enchantment over fields and roads. When far ahead lies the way to adventure's own land. Oh, lucky man, as you reach for your wheel—have a Camel!

For go as fast or as far as you will, you'll never find another traveling friend like Camel. Camel makes every fine road finer—adds the magic romance of its own friendliness to the zestful joys of travel. Camels are made of such choice tobaccos that they never tire your taste. Camels are so skilfully blended that they never leave a cigaretty after-taste. All of the joys of smoking—that's Camel contentment to millions of experienced smokers.

So as life's road opens fair ahead, waiting to be explored—at the start of the journey, or at the tour's end, light a Camel and know the mellowest fragrance, the most joyful taste ever blended into a cigarette.

Have a Camel!

Camels contain the very choicest tobaccos grown in all the world. Camels are blended by the world's most expert blenders. Nothing is too good for Camels. In the making of this one brand we concentrate the tobacco knowledge and skill of the largest organization of tobacco experts in the world. No other cigarette made is like Camels. They are the overwhelming choice of experienced smokers.

Our highest wish, if you do not yet know Camel quality, is that you try them. We invite you to compare Camels with any cigarette made at any price.

BROUGHT RELIEF AFTER 2 YEARS SUFFERING

"The makers of Tanlac will always have my warmest thanks, for I don't consider it any exaggeration to say I owe my life and present good health to Tanlac," is the striking statement of Andrew Groeschner, Bremen, Ill.

"Words simply can't express the misery I endured for 2 years from indigestion. At times gas pains would catch me around the heart and almost cut off my breath. These awful pains would last two and three hours. My nerves were all unstrung. I slept poorly and got in such a bad way that my days seemed to be shortening rapidly.

"I tried everything, but disappointment was my only reward, until I began taking Tanlac. I have been taking Tanlac off and on for a year now and feel so different that there's no room for comparison. I eat good and feel that Tanlac has given me a new lease on life."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute.

Why be handcuffed to a bottle and a spoon?

MANY women because of their peculiarly delicate structure are susceptible to constipation — there are probably some women who take more medicine than is really necessary — who are literally handcuffed to a bottle and a spoon.

A sallow skin, dull eyes, sick headache, backache, upset stomach and many other annoying disorders, can be traced back to self-poisoning, caused by constipation or an upset liver.

Beecham's Pills are a boon to women. So easy and pleasant to take, so mild but thorough in action, so free from any unpleasant after effects; they are not habit forming and are guaranteed free from calomel.

SAMUEL POKUTNY SHOOTS PARTNER AND KILLS HIMSELF AT TAFTVILLE

A note left by Samuel Pokutny, 38, of Taftville, who on Wednesday morning shot and killed Peter Pisarko, 29, his farming partner and a boarder in his home, and then committed suicide, is considered by the authorities to point towards jealousy of Pisarko as the motive for the crime.

Both men were shot in the head and near the dead body of Pokutny was this note, signed with his name; "I shoot this fellow. He break my life. Goodbye every good friend." Near Pokutny's feet was the 38 calibre magazine revolver he had used. The bullet shot into Pisarko's head lodged in the woodwork of the kitchen, while the bullet with which Pokutny killed himself came out the top of his head, went through the ceiling, the floor of the room above and lodged in a mattress. The bodies lay side by side on the floor near the door of the kitchen .The only other person in the house was the six months old child of Pokutny.

The farm is just off the Gallows hill road and it is believed that the shooting took place when Pokutny returned about 8 o'clock from his milk route, but it was not discovered until more than two hours later. About that time a sister of Mrs. Pokutny came from Franklin to visit her and when she went to the house she found it locked so that she could not get in. Going to the barn some distance off she found her sister there washing the milk bottles and told her that she could not get into the house. Mrs. Pokutny was surprised at that and when they returned to the house they found the doors locked and the curtains drawn, but they were able to get in through a window in the kitchen where they discovered the bodies.

Word was sent to the Backus hospital for the ambulance, which responded with Dr. Varney, but both men were dead when the ambulance reached the house. Constable Lucius Fenton from Norwich Town was likewise summoned and Capt. Thomas Murphy sent the patrol wagon with officers from Norwich police headquarters.

Dr. C. C. Gildersleeve, medical examiner, also visited the house and gave Undertaker G. G. Grant permission to take charge of the bodies.

Mr. and Mrs. Pokutny had been married about eleven years and had only one child. Pisarko was unmarried, but leaves two brothers, Michael and John, who were partners in the ownership of the farm with the other two men All are of Russian descent.

ARCANUM CELEBRATES FIRST HALF CENTURY

stopping only to show our hard fight against the prejudice of the public of the word "club" and "billiards." To cure this antagonism, we adopted a method of socials and receptions. We led the town on private dances, being both very successful socially and financially. We opened our rooms to receptions, inviting the friends and relatives of the members and many of their neighbors, taking particular pains to see that the clergy and their families were included in the invitations.

One story will illustrate the point I wish to bring out. During one of those receptions, we had from 300 to 400 people call in the afternoon and evening to partake of our refreshments and listen to a fine orchestra. Rev. Dr. Palmer, who was then the pastor of the Second Congregational church, with one of the deacons of that church and family, was found in our back room, looking through the closets, opening the doors and under washstands to see if there was not secretly hid away, some intoxicating liquors or loud literature. After these receptions, we found a great gain in membership.

We were soon joined by such men as Gen. William G. Ely, Stephen B. Meech, Col. C. W. Gale, Thomas H. Potter and Arthur H. Brewer, and the professional men, both lawyers and physicians, finally many bank presidents and cashiers as well as the insurance men and merchants.

We have had the president, cashier and treasurer of most of the national and savings banks of the city as members, men of the standing of E. N Gibbs, David A. Wells, John Mitchell Sr., Henry Bill, Hon. John T. Wait, Edward Chapsell, A. P. Sturtevant, Maj. Hell P. Learned and many like them.

The financing after that was much easier, and with $1,000 in our treasury the present property was purchased, mortgaged, furnished and equipped at an expenditure of about $15,000. The little band of early members paid from $24 to $36 per year for poor equipment.

There is one point I would add in closing, that we strictly held the "cold water" principle, and one due covering everything.

In later years, Col. W. C. Mowry, Mr. Brewer and myself in traveling about the state when we were on committee building Masonic Temple, were laughed at in many cities as trying to run a club without asking payment for billiards, cards or any games. In one of the administrations of later years, when I was president, I think it was in 1895-6, Col. Gale was vice president, we advocated the building of this hall and bowling alley, asking the club to permit us to mortgage it for $4,500.

We went to New Haven to investigate bowling alleys. The president of the New Haven club who had been a guest here many times in former years, asked if we were still running on one due and "cold water." We answered we were flourishing on that plan and were now about to add bowling, that we had buried seven clubs in our town since we started, four or five of them being sideboard clubs.

Principal Tirrell Speaks

Henry A. Tirrell, principal of the Norwich Free academy and a prominent member of the club, gave an interesting talk on his impressions of the club before he belonged to it. He pointed out how it was possible for a group of boys to successfully finance the Arcanum club. Mr. Tirrell emphasized the fact that the club is providing the advantages of billiards, bowling, card tables and reading room at no extra charge other than the regular dues.

Program of Vaudeville

Shortly after 8 o'clock a splendid program of songs and dances was given by Clement's Chic revue, five girls, known as the Five Steppers and all vocalists and dancers of unusual ability. Eddie Mahoney, known as Hartford's singing cop, made a hit with his crop of excellently rendered song numbers.

The Five Steppers, Gracie Harper Doris Dewey, Fritzi Dion, Joy Miller and Betty Bronson appeared in ensemble, solo and group song and dance numbers in costume that brought down the house. Featuring their program were the Nautch dance, a new number, by Doris Dewey, clog dance by Gracie Harper, cabaret number by Fritzi Dion and the dance of the Wooden Soldiers, an ensemble.

Their program opened with a Cook number, the girls appearing in neat cooks' costumes, each carrying a tray. As they concluded this dance number they reversed the trays, revealing the letters "Welcome." Their balloon number also made a hit. The girls carried large colored balloons which when punctured revealed American flags and a large "Arcanum club" which had been concealed in the balloons.

Eddie Mahoney, another of the hurdeath's stars, known as Hartford's singing policeman, appeared in uniform for his opening number, singing Peggy Malone. His other numbers included: Pal of My Cradle Days, Irish Eyes Are Smiling, Hard Boiled Rose, Hossie Keep Your Tail Up and Keep the Sun from My Eyes, Sunshine of Your Smiles, Scandal of Little Lizzie Ford and Wonderful Baby.

The arrangements for the banquet and entertainment program were made by the regular club entertainment committee, A. Chester Brown, chairman, Calvin L. Swan and Edmund S. Smith.

The banquet was prepared under the direction of Calvin L. Swan, ably assisted by Steward Fred Blanchette.

Officers of Club

Following is a list of the present officers, directors and committees of the club:

President, Clarence A. Spear; vice president, Tyler D. Guy; secretary, Frank I. Royce; treasurer, Frank A. Lathrop.

Directors—Edmund S. Smith, J. Nelson Weymouth, Harold P. Hull, A. Chester Brown, John Crowe, Charles E. Taylor, Roy D. Judd, Calvin L. Swan and Charles A. Hagberg.

Auditor—Charles D. Greenman.

House committee—Tyler D. Guy, J. Nelson Weymouth and Charles A. Hagberg.

Entertainment committee—A. Chester Brown, Edmund S. Smith and Calvin L. Swan.

Billiards — J. Nelson Weymouth, Harold P. Hull, Charles E. Taylor.

Bowling committee—John Crowe, A. Chester Brown, Roy D. Judd.

Card committee—Harold P. Hull, Calvin L. Swan, Charles E. Taylor.

Literature committee—Edmund, S. Smith, John Crowe, Charles A. Hagberg.

Membership committee—Tyler D. Guy, Charles A. Hagberg, A. Chester Brown.

The late Arthur H. Brewer, former president of the Norwich Savings society, and a foremost Norwich citizen was one of the most ardent supporters of the Arcanum club. Seventeen years ago at a "club night" celebration, the late Mr. Brewer in a talk to the membership stated that "the influence of the club has been greater and better than any other organization in the city, not one excepted."

FORTY PARDON PETITIONS WERE HEARD BY BOARD

Walter Nelson and Joseph Toscano, lifers, the former having already served nineteen years of his sentence for murder in the second degree, and the latter twenty-one years on the same charge, were pardoned unconditionally and two lifers had their sentences commuted by the State Board of pardons Monday night. Edwin B. Saunderson, who was sentenced on January 14, 1925, to from two to five years for bigamy had the minimum sentence reduced to one year, and John Marks, sentenced to from three to seven years for indecent assault, obtained commutation of the minimum sentence from three years to one year.

There were 47 petitions on the schedule when the board met at the Wethersfield prison in the morning but by the time the session ended thirty-seven cases had been withdrawn either because of non-appearance or because of a desire for postponement.

Killed Bartender

Nelson is 41 years old and is considered one of the best prisoners the institution ever housed, for in his nineteen years of confinement not a single black mark has been made against his record. Attorney William C. Hungerford of New Britain appeared for him. Nelson was convicted of murder in the second degree on April 10, 1906 for the slaying of an Ansonia bartender with a billiard cue in a saloon. He bought liquor at the saloon and loitered about the place until the bartender named Zucker was alone, when he fractured the man's skull with a cue, robbed the cash register and fled. He was captured in Derby. He pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree and was indicted for murder in the first degree. Mr. Hungerford pleaded that the prisoner be allowed to go to the home of his sister in Newark who has promised to provide for him until he can shift for himself.

Toscano killed Garina Menghi as the result of a family quarrel and was convicted on November 11, 1904, of murder in the second degree. A previous petition had been denied, but the board took favorably to the argument of Charles B. Whittlesey of New London attorney for Toscano, that the sentence was excessive because others engaged in the fight received a much lighter penalty. Bad blood had existed between Toscano and Menghi because the latter had been rejected as a suitor by a mutual friend. Toscano had maintained he shot in self-defense after Menghi had opened fire on him.

Forgiven by Wife

Sanderson with formerly a taxi driver in New York where he was married. He became intimate with a Cuban woman and moved to New Haven where they intended to marry However, they were both to wait the required five days and he married her in another state. His wife complained to State's Attorney Arnon W. Alling that she was destitute and Sanderson was extradited after his arrest in New York. Monday was his first appearance before the board and he said he had learned his lesson and that his wife, having now forgiven him, wanted him back and he wanted to return to her and help support her and their child.

John Marks was sentenced for an indecent assault on a young girl in Naugatuck in March, 1924, and it was his first appearance for a pardon. Mrs Messenger, of Naugatuck, a social service worker appeared for both Mr and Mrs. Marks, although the latter was present. Mrs. Messenger said Mr. and Mrs. Marks had been like foster parents to the little girl whose mother had neglected her and that the stories the child told about the prisoner were considered false. This case reached a dramatic point when Mrs. Marks weeping bitterly, told the board her husband was innocent, and that "he is the best and most honest husband in the world."

Howard F. Smith, former Bridgeport tax collector, who was sentenced to from three to six years for embezzlement of the city's funds, submitted his first petition Monday. He has already obtained a commutation of four months. His attorney said Smith wanted to make restitution. Assistant State's Attorney E. Earl Garlick, however, opposed a pardon on the grounds that the action of the court must not be a "mere empty gesture."

Other Hearings

Arthur M. Becker of New Britain who shot Detective Sergeant Edward Lowe of the Hartford police in the local railroad station on April 25, 1922, made his fourth appearance for a pardon. He was convicted of assault with intent to murder on June 14, 1922, and had his sentence commuted six and two-thirds months. William F. Mangan appeared for him.

Attorney Fisher made a stirring appeal for a pardon for Simon A. G. Salsbury, serving a life sentence for the murder of two neighbors. He was convicted on May 16, 1918, in New Preston. Mr. Fisher said the murder was prompted by abuse Salsbury received from two drunken neighbors who came to the house "to beat him up," after a long-standing feud. William G. Baxter, secretary of the State Prison association, paid a tribute to the man's character.

Others who sought pardons were as follows: Diratto Cabaudo, whose conviction for murder in the first degree at New London, on October 30, 1909 was changed to murder in the second degree, Joseph Menghi, sentenced from one to two years on May 6, 1925, for indecent assault, New London county.

Fairfield County

Dimitri Hristos, serving life sentence for murder in the second degree, New London county. Joseph Carcopolo, indecent assault and abuse of female child, nine to twenty years; thirty-one months commuted; convicted on Dec. 1, 1923. Joseph Caporziello, blackmail, unlawful transporting and using explosives; twelve to fifteen years; ten months commuted; sentenced September 17, 1920. Herman Krout, robbery with violence; nine to ten years; six and two-thirds months commuted; sentenced June 19, 1922. Joseph Jancki, embezzlement and theft, five to eleven years; sentenced October 3, 1922. He read a long plea himself from paper, representing himself as an innocent and pleading that he be allowed to leave the country. Albert Voight, manslaughter, ten to twelve years, five and two-thirds months commuted; Windham county: Charles H. Bishop murder in the second degree, life; sentenced December 26, 1922.

New Haven County

Dr. Joseph Spoth, who killed his wife in their summer home near Litchfield in 1924, and who is serving from ten to fifteen years, asked for his pardon, maintaining that he could not help murdering the woman, who drove him frantic. Dr. Spoth said his wife was insane.

Joseph Colombe, murder in second degree, life, convicted April 22, 1908. Giuseppe Martino, murder in the second degree, life, convicted April 10, 1906. Luigi Lanzillo, his ninth appearance, murder in second degree, life, convicted June 29, 1917.

George E. O'Connell, burglary while armed, twelve to sixteen years, seven months commuted; convicted, April 27 1922. John Groos, third petition, theft in Branford in 1922, six to ten years convicted October 11, 1922. Antonio Raiano, manslaughter five to eight years, six months commuted; convicted, October 31, 1922. Edward E. Horton, indecent assault, two to four years, five and two-thirds months commuted; convicted January 3, 1922. William F. Rainsford, robbery while armed, five to eight years, five months commuted; convicted April 4, 1923. Harly Stewart, theft of motor vehicle, two to four years, four months commuted; convicted, October 16, 1923 Biago Gargano, robbery with abuse, four and one half to five years, four months commuted; convicted October 18, 1923. Michael Pattorg, carnal knowledge, five to eight years; convicted October 29, 1924. Joseph Simeoli, unlawful transportation of liquor one year and eleven months to two years; convicted January 14, 1925. William Stewart, statutory burglary in day time, two to four years; convicted April 16, 1925.

Vincenzo Sansivero, twelfth time murder in second degree, life; convicted January 30, 1903. Charles Bassett, eleventh time, murder in second degree, life; convicted December 22, 1926; Michael Carpinelli, ninth time, murder in second degree, life; convicted December 8, 1907. Michael Carpinelli, ninth time, murder in second degree, life; convicted December 8, 1907.

Hartford County

Emil Fraiter, ninth time, manslaughter, life; convicted October 9, 1906. George Evanoff, third time, manslaughter, in New Britain, ten to fifteen years, eleven months commuted; convicted June 2, 1920. Tony Astoish, theft of $4,000 in New Britain, one to three years; convicted December 29, 1924. Otto G. Nass, 23 yearas old, escape from jail, one to two years, twenty-five days' commutation.

PENSION EXAMINING BOARD MEETS AND ORGANIZES

The November meeting of the county pension examining board was held Wednesday morning, at the office of Dr. Lester E. Walker in the Thayer building. The newly appointed member of the board Dr. J. H. Allen was present.

The board organized, with Dr. Walker president and Dr. Allen secretary. The other member of the board is Dr. Chas. F. Conndon, of Mystic.

Although four applicants had filed notice of appearance, only one, a Spanish-American war veteran, from Putnam, was on hand to take the examination.

The change in the membership of the board was the result of the recent death of Dr. Edward H. Linnell of Norwich, for many years secretary of the organization.

LOUIS OLBRYS, NEW LONDON, DIES-INJURED IN MOTORCYCLE CRASH

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 4—Louis Olbrys, 19 Richards street, died at Lawrence Memorial hospital this morning. His death was the result of injuries sustained last Sunday afternoon when the motorcycle he was operating and upon which John Leitkowski Jr., 17 St. 22 Lincoln court, was a passenger was in collision with an automobile owned and driven by Matthew J. O'Brien, Groton, the accident occurring on Tanner street, Groton. Death resulted from general blood poisoning. O'Brien was taken into custody by State Police Officer Schweigert this afternoon and is held in bail of $5,000 on a technical charge of manslaughter. Olbrys and Leitkowski had been enjoying a ride through the country. About five o'clock in the afternoon their cycle was in collision with the O'Brien automobile, the crash causing both Olbrys and Leitkowski to sustain compound fractures of the left leg. Olbrys' fracture brought about decomposition and Monday night it became necessary to remove the leg near the knee joint. His condition gradually became worse and his death occurred about nine o'clock this forenoon. Leitkowski's condition was reported this afternoon at the institution as being favorable. Olbrys did not possess a license to operate a motorcycle, although he did at one time, but that privilege was denied him a year ago by Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel.

The police court today cleared up the last of the nineteen liquor law violation cases that came to it through the activities of John McCarthy, who was hired by the state police to ferret out and prosecute the violators of the law that Mr. Volstead was instrumental in having incorporated in the constitution of the United States and into the laws of the forty-eight states. The last case was that against Arthur Messer. He declared from the start that he was not guilty as alleged and he and his witness and attorney succeeded in convincing the court that he was innocent in the eyes of the law. McCarthy was a failure in his work because he did not go about it in the right way chiefly, and perhaps in another respect he was not the right sort of character to undertake it. Of all the cases he brought to the court in only one, beside those in which pleas of guilty were entered, did he secure a conviction. Today McCarthy was not in court as a witness if indeed he was within reach. The state police were the witnesses today. They told of calling at Messer premises and taking possession of liquors they found, with corks, labels, etc. Too, also seized a 25-gallon cask of wine. Messer set up as a defense and submitted his application to make wine and the permission granted him some three or four years ago to proceed to produce the home-made product of the grape. He held that the wine seized was what the revenue department of the state gave him the permission to make and have. He was allowed today of possessing that wine to sell. The decision was that he was not guilty. Now it remains not Messer to prove that he had renewals of the permission originally given to him to determine whether he shall recover what was seized. The bottles of wine seized, Messer proved, was wine and some he mint that was seized when he resided on Main street and which the court ordered returned to him at the time as having been bought prior to the enactment of the prohibition law. The liquor he was again restored to Messer. The testimony then narrowed down to whether Messer was in the possession of alcohol for the purpose of sale. He made the claim that he was suffering from rheumatism, that the less than a gallon of alcohol he possessed was for bathing purposes and that he used it on the advice of Drs. Lena and Gaffi. He then to those who desired to buy, a note from physicians for a few years and that he had been subjected to X-rays in their treatment. Suspicion was cast upon his story by the fact that Mrs. Messer dumped the contents of the half gallon measure into a sink when the state police entered. The officers succeeded in scooping up about half a pint of the "silky" and showed it to the court. But that was not regarded as evidence that Messer had the stuff for sale. No evidence was produced in denial of the claim that Messer made that he was using the alcohol as a remedy for rheumatism. He admitted ownership of the corks, etc., and declared that he was a seller of Frederick Fabricant, who acquired business that was recognized by the law as legitimate. The complaint alleged that Messer sold liquor to McCarthy, but John did not appear to tell about his purchase. In the other cases he testified that some fellow he took along with him and who has not shown up in any of the cases called, was the purchaser.

Katherine Poulard, a young girl who has been a restaurant attendant in New London, made the acquaintance of John Paul Kern, a sailor of the submarine base. Their friendship became such that the attention of Policewoman Jane Cassidy was attracted to them. She kept the pair under observation and learned that they went to a house on Bank street. There the girl had a room and there, when Mrs. Cassidy entered, she found Miss Poulard in bed with Kern, fully dressed sitting beside her. The pair were arrested as lascivious persons and were presented in court today. The girl protested her innocence and declared that there was no greater intimacy between them than was disclosed when Mrs. Cassidy entered. She said her home was in Glens Falls, N. Y., and that she would return there if she was allowed to do so. Judge Prince was of the opinion that there was some truth in what she said, but he was not convinced that a girl who will tolerate a man in her bedroom under the circumstances attending this case was a fit person to be at liberty here. He decided that she should leave the city by night or go to the House of the Good Shepherd at Hartford tomorrow. He made other inquiry as to the health of the girl and then became K. H. Silk company, corner of Hempstead and Home streets, several days ago, has associated himself with the Fournier Laundry company, of which Simon Shifreen is the proprietor, and today the property was transferred to the Fournier Laundry company.

The Union Bank & Trust company and George T. and Nancy Brown, trustees of the will of Edward T. Brown, have sold a house and lot on Crescent street to William H. and Blanche L. Goldie.

Elmer E. and Annie M. Kennerson have sold a parcel of land on the easterly side of Crystal avenue to Joseph and Antonette Ribicki.

Minnie E. Lewis has sold to Charles E. and Fannie L. Lacey a tract of land on Mohegan avenue.

Joseph Francoeur, 29 Golden street, and Miss Agnes Finn, daughter of Peter Finn, 18 Golden street, were married this morning at 7 o'clock in St. Mary's Star of the Sea church the nuptial mass being celebrated by Rev. Raymond O'Callahan in the presence of relatives and friends. John Welch, was the best man and Miss Helen Finn, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Francoeur left for a wedding trip and upon their return to New London will reside at 29 Golden street.

William J. Curtin, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Curtin of 235 Connecticut avenue and Miss Mary E. Satti, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Satti, 777 Bank street were married this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Joseph's church. The nuptial mass was celebrated by Rev. William C. Fitzsimmons in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends. Edward Kelley was best man, and Miss Margaret H. Brogan of Providence, attended the bride. During the service, Mrs. James McGinnen and Edward F. Murray sang. A breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents, following the church ceremony, after which Mr. and Mrs. Curtin left for a wedding trip. They will make their home at 777 Bank street. Mr. Curtin is employed at the New London post office as parcel post clerk.

Governor John H. Trumbull will come to New London tomorrow and during the day he will go to Groton and visit the state police barracks, the visit of the governor being in the course of his annual inspection of the state police barracks throughout the state.

The Crowley club held its annual banquet at the Mohican hotel this evening with a large attendance of members.

One of the police officers on duty this evening expressed the opinion that there were automobiles of an estimated value of $200,000, parked about the principal streets of the city tonight. Where they all come from or how the owners can support them to the extent that they are owned the officer could not say.

CITY HAS BOY PROBLEM DIFFICULT TO SOLVE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 4—The boy problem is one this city must solve and solve right for daily the youngsters are committing offenses that are close to if not actually in the domain of crimes.

This evening three lads of ages varying from 13 to 15, got into the automobile of Samuel Robinson, which was parked at the Robinson place of business and started the engine. They finally went down the hill with the machine beyond control. They were observed by Carl Sweezy, dog warden, who yelled at them. They jumped from the machine and ran to escape him, but they were seen by others, their names were ascertained and they were taken into custody later by Officer Philipeno. At the police station they admitted their offense and were put in the custody of Probation Officer Mansfield for presentation in the juvenile court Saturday.

MOTHER AT 16 CAUSE OF EX-SOLDIER'S ARREST

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 4—Irving Bottomley of Station 14, Waterford, an employe at Fort Wright in civilian capacity, was arrested this evening as he came from the Fisher's Island boat and held for fornication with Edith N. Pennery, a young girl of 16, whose home is in Leominster, Mass. The couple came here some time ago and the girl gave birth to a baby at Lawrence hospital.

Bottomley met her at Leominster when he came out of the world war and there they became very intimate. He brought her to New London after he obtained employment at Fort Wright. Bottomley took the girl to Lawrence hospital where he told the story to the matron and instructed that every care should be given to the girl, with him as the party responsible for the payment of any expense incurred.

The baby was born, but at Leominster the stepfather of the girl complained to the police and a warrant was issued for Bottomley and sent to this city for service. Bottomley expresses a desire to marry the girl and she wants him for her husband; but she is under age and her stepfather, assuming that he is her guardian, will not consent to the marriage. It is probable that when the parties are presented in court their desire to marry will be gratified and that they will go to Fishers Island to live. Bottomley has a position there that earns him good wages and he says he will provide for the girl to the extent of his means.

WAGE OF $35 AND RAKE OFF DID NOT SATISFY LYMAN

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 4.—William Lyman was presented in the police court today charged with embezzlement of $500 from Nick Dans, the proprietor of a lunch cart located on Church street, near Main. It was represented by the prosecutor that Lyman had a position that brought him $35 a week in wages and that he was paid a commission on business above the amount that the stated wages should call for. But even that did not satisfy Lyman; he took $500 that did not belong to him and departed from the city. But Lyman came back and when he appeared he was arrested. It was represented that there was a chance of an adjustment of the case by Lyman making restitution, and to permit that the case was continued to the 2nd of December. Lyman gave a bond of $100 to insure his presence next month when the case is again called.

FATHER OF FIVE WARNED TO QUIT ABUSE OF WIFE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 4.—Charles W. Wilcox, an employe of the Collapsible Tube company on Waller street, is the father of five children. They range in age from a baby few months old to a daughter of 14. Notwithstanding this fact Wilcox is declared to have made a practice of abusing his wife. He has struck her and bruised her till she rebelled and had him arrested. He appeared in court this morning and there was told some things that he will be wise to heed. Prosecutor Hollandersky said he had no sympathy with Wilcox, but pointed out that there were children who were in no way parties to the complaint made and that their welfare induced him to ask for a continuance of the case to Monday. Wilcox was warned that if he attempted any brutality before Monday he would be registered at the county jail.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Sold on West Main Street

R. B. Mendohald of Attleboro, Mass., administrator of the estate of Mrs. May Joslyn, has sold her seven-room cottage, located at the corner of Mt. Pleasant and West Main streets to Michael F. Clohessy of this city, who will occupy it as his home.

The sale was negotiated through the real estate agency of Roan & Benton.

Lyceum Theater

Skepticism as to the quality of the play or the cast has been brushed aside by mention of the names of John Golden, Austin Strong, Ann Forrest, Louis D'Arclay and others concerned in the presentation of Seventh Heaven at the Lyceum, New London tonight, tomorrow and Saturday. The season's heviest advance sale forecasts a capacity audience, although good seats are still to be had.

Ann Forrest was lured from the screen for the leading role of Diane in Seventh Heaven after attaining stardom as Nona in If Winter Comes. She combines beauty and emotional power to a degree that throws a strong, clear light on her future. Mr. D'Arclay, a young Belgian with a Parisian background is also mentioned by reviewers in this connection.

The cast also includes Charles Guttenboll, W. H. Post, John W. Ransome, Isabel West, Harry Fortunato and others.

Breed Theater

"Smiling George" O'Brien hits another rung in his ladder of different screen characterizations. In The Fighting Heart, which opens on Friday at the Breed theater, the genial William Fox star portrays a role that is a wide contrast to any formerly characterized by him.

For the second time Smiling George comes under the direction of John Ford, brilliant Fox director, who made the year's screen sensation, The Iron Horse—which scored heavily for both O'Brien and Ford. George's role of Davy Brandon in The Iron Horse was the smiling young man's first leading role in the picture.

His magnificence work in that production prompted William Fox to place him under a long time contract. Since the completion of his first success, George has ascended to the peak of the screen profession, by virtue of a succession of splendid screen characters that not only called for the usual requisites of a star but for diversified histrionic talent, coupled with superb physical strength.

From the typical outdoor role in The Iron Horse, George was hurled into a "dressed-up" part—that of sophisticated man of the world in The Man Who Came Back—and gave a fine performance.

Then came The Fighting Heart—this time a shy country lad—unwise in the ways of present day life for a part of the story, and literally hurled into the limelight through the medium of the boxing ring. Gradually the young man turns into a strong willed up-to-date youth filled with snap and energy.

All of which goes to prove that William Fox judged wisely when he selected George O'Brien for stellar roles.

Broadway Theater

A stage full of B. F. Keith vaudeville favorites opens at the Broadway theater today making this one of the excellent units of entertainment.

The Farrell Taylor trio comes to this city direct from the "big time" houses. They are a treat to see, a joy to hear with comedy, harmony and music that makes this combination exceptional.

Dean Caryl and Betty Baxter in Timely Tunes offer harmony in popular and special songs.

Cliff Johnson and Ray D. Owe Listening In, is as unique as it is good. This will give you an example of extraordinary ventriloquism.

McConnell and West are comedians first, with a great line of fast crossfire comedy.

The Aerial Clarks, Taking the Air, have something new in acrobatics.

Paint and Powder now playing at the Broadway theater for three days is one of the best productions to be turned out by that well known director, Lloyd Stromberg. It is a thrilling melodrama of the type which has won so much popularity recently. A splendid cast portrays the characters in this story including Elaine Hammerstein, Theodore Von Eltz, John Sainpolis, Stuart Holmes, Dorelys Perdue, Russell Simpson, and Pat Hartigan.

Don't forget, tonight is prize night and tomorrow night is Clock Night.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Ica Kremer, Folk Song Interpreter

Ica Kremer, that petite international balladist, who comes to the Broadway theatre for a concert on Monday November 16, started her musical career as a grand opera singer, and was one of the high road to success when she tired of it and went on the concert stage. Unlike so many artists who have to be surrounded by masses of highly colored scenery, a chorus, conductor and huge orchestra, she found that for her the highest degree of art lay alone within the artist.

Since giving up opera she has devoted her entire time to the folk songs and ballads of many nations. Her career in Europe has been one marvellous success. For a new comer to these shores, it is doubtful if any stranger has so won the hearts of the people in so short a time.

Last season, her first in America, she sang forty concerts, six in Carnegie hall in New York, four in Chicago and two in Boston. Detroit, Milwaukee, Toronto, Cleveland, Etc.

Palace Theatre

Merchants Nite tonight at The Palace. Many valuable presents and five acts of Paramount vaudeville featuring the six Soratos, the sensational European act that has been featured all over the Keith time. A picture that set the entire motion picture world talking, featuring Rex The King of Wild Horses. This is Hal Roach's latest offering that was featured at the Capitol in New York and received unanimous praise from all the New York dailies.

Rex, who acquitted himself so nobly in "The King of Wild Horses" last year, is again to be seen on the screen. Hal Roach, producer of that film sensation and the proud owner of the wild horse he saved from an outlaw's death, tamed, trained and made a motion picture star of, has written "Black Cyclone" to fit the marvelous talents of the horse.

"Black Cyclone" is a story of the Wild Lands, where herds of wild horses roam the hills and plains. Rex is first seen as a mothless colt who is driven out of the herd of the Killer, a hideously-spotted and fiendishly tempered stallion who has never been vanquished in battle. When Rex reaches full growth he is a magnificent creature and seeks and wins a mate. She is one day captured by the killer, who defeats Rex in battle.

A natural enemy of Rex—king of all wild horses—is man, but Rex was to know the worth of a man's friendship. Hell's Hole quicksands are about to claim him as another victim when he is saved by a cowboy, who has been forced to hide in the hills to avoid the vengeance of a bad man who is out for Jim's life because he was the lucky man to win Jane Logan's love. Rex repays his debt to the cowboy by killing a cougar that was about to spring on the man while he slept. He also saves Lady from a wolf pack that trails her when she effects an escape from the Killer's herd.

The big climax comes when the bad man, in pursuit of Jane, shoots Jim's horse from under him. Seeing his master's predicament, Rex offers his broad, mane back, which Jim had several times tried, disastrously, to mount. But now Rex was docile and willing to bear this burden. Like the wind he swoops across the sagebrush plain—no horse in the world could have kept ahead of that demon—that black cyclone! Then, when he sees Jim winning in his hand-to-hand fight with the bad man, Rex rushes off to beat off the Killer, who has found Lady and come to claim her. For the first time in his mean life, the Killer is defeated!

Quinn Williams, Kathleen Collins and Christian Frank play the only human roles in "Black Cyclone," which is primarily the story of the life and love of a wild horse. The entire picture was photographed in Nevada; with no two sequences having the same background. Fred Wood Jackman, director of "The King of Wild Horses," also directed "Black Cyclone."

OLD FORT PULASKI IS ONLY SEMBLANCE OF FORMER GLORY

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 5, (AP)—Hearing their dump sides above the widespreading green marshes, the mouldy brick walls of old Fort Pulaski present but a semblance of their former glory.

Guarding the mouth of the Savannah river, the fort which was once regarded as well-nigh impregnable, is now but a shell. A wild tangle of brambles and bushes has grown up in the court yard; dark pits of stagnant, snake-infested water take the place of the clean cistern of yesteryear, and the deep moat has become choked with debris.

Citizens here have started a movement to persuade the government to turn the fort over to the city, in order that it may be restored. It is planned to make the fort easily accessible to visitors by the construction of a new pier over the marsh between the fort and river.

Visiting the fort now is a matter of difficulty. After a long row in a boat, one reaches the north side of the channel and lands at a rickety wharf leading to the fort. The entrance is across a wooden bridge of modern construction. Heavy bolts stud the doors, which hang idle.

A scene of desolation is inside. Weeds and underbrush choke the courtyard, while a few struggling peach trees, planted during the occupancy of the fortress, intermingle with the brush.

Although the dungeon may now be entered with safety, the hum of thousands of mosquitos warns the visitor of their presence. The parapet is mounted by a flight of gigantic stairs. From it one is given a view of the marshes which surround the fort for miles in three directions, while to the east is the open sea.

Placements for the big guns are situated on the parapet. The old, heavy weapons were at one time hoisted by means of rude derricks made of stout planks and block and tackle. The gun chambers served as sleeping and living quarters for the men. Long ago the ancient cannon were removed to arsenals.

Fort Pulaski was named for Brigadier General Count Casimir Pulaski, Polish nobleman, who fell in the defense of Savannah during the American Revolution. At the time of its construction, the fort could withstand any type of cannon ball fired against it, but during the siege of February, 1862, rifled cannon made a number of breaches in the walls.

LINCOLN'S NAME ADOPTED BY ILLINOIS CITY BEFORE FAME

LINCOLN, Ill., Nov. 1.—Of the 24 cities in the United States which bear the name of Lincoln, this city alone took the name during the lifetime of Abraham Lincoln, and when he knew no fame, historians here say. He christened this city with two watermelons.

When the railroad which later became the Chicago and Alton was laid through Illinois in 1872, Robert Latham, Virgil Hickox and John D. Gillett all famous pioneers of Illinois purchased a section of land adjacent to the railroad right of way, as a prospective town site and county seat.

They were personal friends of Lincoln who was a traveling circuit lawyer. He was their legal advisor in the location of the proposed town. In Lincoln's office in Springfield on August 24, 1853, the pioneers discussed a name for the proposed town. One of the proprietors said:

"Let's name the town for Abe and call it Lincoln."

The others agreed. Lincoln's usual modest humor then rose to the occasion and he said:

"All right, boys, go ahead—but I think you are making a mistake. Nothing named Lincoln, as far as I know ever amounted to much."

Five days after the new town was named, a sale of lots occurred on the new town site at which the future president attended. At the noon hour Lincoln purchased two watermelons at a Vendor's booth. With a melon under each arm, he called the proprietors of the new town to the proposed court house square, cut the two melons in half. He gave a half to each proprietor and retained a half himself, with the remark:

"We will now proceed to christen the new town."

OUTDOOR MOVIE SCENE SPOILED BY REAL ESTATE SUBDIVIDORS

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 4. (AP)—Real estate subdividors are spoiling some of filmdom's choicest and least expensive "sets."

Only a few years ago hills within walking distance of the studios furnished an excellent background for western thrillers, in which the sheriff's posse chased gunmen into fastnesses of canyons apparently 75 miles from a railroad. These hills are now so criss-crossed with residential streets as to be worthless for "wild west" work.

For a time a quaint sea coast village on the ocean near Santa Monica furnished convenient Old World atmosphere for the company that built it, but today it is forgotten in the crush of modern beach cottages mushrooming its site.

Now comes word that a stretch of magnificent sand dunes on the coast north of here much photographed during the recent vogue of desert sheik films, has been acquired by a syndicate for subdivision as a new beach resort. Cameramen in search of Arabia and Sahara will have to go farther afield.

Spend One-third on Movies

PARIS, Nov. 4.—Patrons of the "Seventh art"—as the French call the cinema—contributed one-third of the entire amount spent in 1924 by the theatre-going public of Paris to the movies. The box offices in this big and more cinema houses in the capital and suburbs last year took in 100,500,000 francs.

AUCTION

WITTER BROS. Auctioneers
AUCTION NOTICE
Office 42 Main St., Danielson, Conn.
Ice Harvesting Plant and Business For Sale by Auction
Tuesday, Nov. 17, 1925, at 1 o'clock, P. M. sharp (rain or shine). By order of the owner we will sell at public sale on the above date the ice harvesting plant now owned and operated by Dr. Frank A. Evans and located at the southern extremity of the Main St. in the Village and Town of Plainfield, Conn., which is on the state highway leading from New London, Conn., to Worcester, Mass. The property to be sold represents an original investment of $10,000 and consists of 9 acres of land, 5 acres of which is flowed by never failing ice pond, 2 nearly new, up-to-date ice houses built with the rest of sawdusble material, size 50x80 ft., and 20 feet high, equipped with endless chain planer and new 10 horse power electric motor. (Private electric line.) The retail end of the business commands a yearly supply of approximately 2,500 tons of ice all sold to the best of customers and the route starts across the highway from the house (No competition.)
Terms: $500 in cash immediately after the sale at which time further conditions will be given. This is a high class proposition. The location is ideal, and is being sold solely on account of ill health. Don't over look it.
Immediately after the above sale the following property will be sold: 1 first class Hudson Super Six sedan like new, 3 ice wagons, 1 team wagon, 1 pair of good mules, pair of harnesses, ice plows, saws, pike poles, chisels, etc.
Sale rain or shine.
FRANK A. EVANS.
Plainfield, Conn. Owner

RECORD SALES OF STOCKS

NEW YORK, Nov. 4—(By the A. P.)—Breaking all records for volume since the famous three million share session, which followed the "leak" on the Wilson peace note in December, 1916, today's stock market moved irregularly higher under the leadership of U. S. Steel common, which recorded the rare feat of moving up over 5 points on [illegible] in 1-4 the highest price since 1917 on total transactions of [illegible] shares. The day's total sales were 2,801,600 shares, or 99,000 shares above the previous high record established on Oct. 15, 1916.

Wall street was inclined to attribute the spectacular advances in high priced industrial stocks to the prospects of stock dividends, resulting from the investigation by the internal revenue bureau of the undistributed surpluses of these corporations. Speculative belief that a way would be found to tax these undistributed assets leads to the stock dividend theory. Bullish enthusiasm also was created by the lowering of call money rates, further reports of business expansion, rumors of increased and extra dividends and steadily increasing public participation in the speculative movement, as reflected in the enormous increase in odd lot orders.

Motors set the pace in the early trading but the advance in those issues was checked by profit-taking and bear selling, and speculative interest on the long side spread to the steels, equipments, oils, tobaccos, public utilities and specialties. Rails failed to participate in the advance as extensively as the industrials although Atlantic Coast Line, Seaboard Air Line, "Nickel Plate" and Lehigh Valley and Lake Erie common and preferred broke through to new maximum prices for the year.

Du Pont scored a spectacular advance of 21 points by touching a new high record at 244 3-4. American Chicle, Commercial Solvents, American Linseed, International Combustion Engineering, Loose-Wiles Biscuit, Second preferred, Sloss Sheffield Steel, United Cigar Stores and Youngstown Sheet & Tube all moved up 3 1-2 to nearly 10 points to new peak prices.

Public Utilities also presented several outstanding points of strength. Pacific Gas and Electric was run up over 5 points to a new high record at 137 1-8; Philadelphia company advanced over 4 points to a new top at 64 1-4 and Brooklyn Union Gas advanced over 2 points to a new peak at 96 7-8.

Erratic movements took place in the motor group although General Motors, which is Original common, Dodge Brothers A and Hupp attained new maximum quotations. Hudson opened 1 point higher at 137, advanced to 138, broke to 130 and then rallied to 136. Mack Trucks duplicated its high record at 242 and then slipped back to 235 3-4, off 9 3-4. Chrysler broke five points to 245 and while it showed a small fractional loss after having sold above par, there were several weak spots. Loose Wiles Biscuit 14 points lower at 125 after having touched a new top at 150. Commercial Investments A and B, Federal Mining and Smelting, New York Shipbuilding, Standard Milling, United Drug and U. S. Realty closed about 3 to 6 points lower.

Call money renewed at 5 per cent. and then dropped to 4 1-2 as interior banks returned funds that had been withdrawn to meet November 1 requirements. Time money and commercial paper rates held steady.

Weakness of French francs, which broke nearly 15 points to a new low record for the year around 4.00 cents, featured the foreign exchange market. Demand sterling was slightly firmer around $4.84 3-8. Japanese yen showed a further advance at 41 7-8 cents in reflection of the reported shipment of gold from that country to the United States. Italian, Belgian and other continental currencies showed narrow and irregular changes.

GREENEVILLE

The Woman's Auxiliary of St. Andrew's Episcopal church met in the guild room Tuesday evening with a large attendance. The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. William Mabrey, and the secretary's and treasurer's reports were read and accepted. It was voted to hold a meeting in the evening in the guild room during the winter. This (Thursday) afternoon the Woman's Guild will meet with Mrs Howard Gordon on Sosweh avenue.

FREEDOM OR BONDAGE BIBLE STUDY TOPIC

Real interest was manifested at the weekly Bible class for men at the local Young Men's Christian association Wednesday evening. The scripture passages were taken from the eighth chapter of the gospel of John The study and discussion brought out the following points: The feast of the tabernacles was being held. In the temple courts many were discussing Jesus and then as now opinions differed concerning Jesus; some thought him a genuine good man, while others considered him an imposter. Everybody wondered why he had not appeared at the feast, when suddenly on the outskirts of the crowd there was a commotion and the word was passed "there he is." Jesus began to speak, and excitement soon developed Jesus always seems to have captured the interest of the crowd when he began to speak; he must have had a wonderful personality. To the question "what constitutes an attractive personality?" a number of answers were given as follows: Positive qualities, one's manner, one's sincerity, and especially one who is continually serving others becomes a pleasing personality. Jesus is the light of the world in many ways he enlightens; he leads; he saves; whoever walks with him walks in the light. His teachings are ideal and his life measured up fully to his teachings. Freedom is the opposite of slavery or bondage. Any man who follows most closely the leadership of Jesus Christ has the greatest freedom. Some men are slaves to their business, to a certain hobby or to a questionable habit. Many men have absolutely the wrong conception of freedom, such as the escaped convict recently shot and killed, the bootlegger, the drunkard, etc., etc. Any man who uses his freedom to the harm of others is guilty of wrong. When Jesus told the Jews that if they followed they would be free; they resented it, as this statement intimated that they were in bondage; they felt that they were the chosen people, the upper class, the aristocrats on that day; they were Abraham's seed. Jesus practically told them that they did not manifest the spirit of Abraham, but rather they had the spirit of the devil; he made the definite statement that whoever committed sin is the servant of sin. There is no slavery like the slavery of sin. No man can successfully master his own life; he will find himself mastered at last. No man has a right to do as he pleases unless he pleases to do that which is absolutely right. Every man should be willing to sacrifice what he calls "his personal rights" for the good of others. Plato said "Dream not of freedom while under the mastery of your own desires." No one committing deeds of wickedness can be free.

Westerly Installing Officer

The installation of officers of Lady Strathcona lodge, Daughters of Scotia, took place Wednesday night at the meeting held in Odd Fellows' hall, Groton. Mrs. Jean Greenman, deputy, of Westerly, was assisted by her suite from Westerly.

Feel Splendid! Nicest Laxative, "Cascarets" 10c

Don't stay headachy, dizzy, bilious, constipated, sick!

One or two pleasant candy-like "Cascarets" taken any time will mildly stimulate your liver and start your bowels. Then you will both look and feel clean, sweet and refreshed. Your head will be clear, stomach sweet, tongue pink and your skin rosy.

Because "Cascarets" never gripe or sicken, it has become the largest selling laxative in the world.

NURSES HOME AT BACKUS HOSPITAL

OVER 1,000 VISITORS INSPECT NURSES' HOME AT BACKUS HOSPITAL

The new nurses' home of the W. W. Backus hospital, for which over 7,000 people of Norwich and vicinity and friends of the hospital from out of town made contributions totaling $279,000, was open for public inspection Wednesday afternoon and evening from 3 to 5 o'clock and from 8 to 10 o'clock, during which time hundreds of people visited the beautiful residence for the nurses.

There was a feeling of satisfaction on the part of every visitor on inspecting the new home for it is one in which they could properly take pride. The nurses themselves take pride in their new quarters and through the spirit of co-operation of friends of the hospital the institution is now able to offer its student nurses a home superior to many in the country.

The homelike aspect of the new home was the first thing noticed as one visited the various rooms, the work of the committees in charge of arranging the furnishings and lighting fixtures having been supplemented by the work of mothers of the nurses now at the hospital. Homelike bits of embroidery, a picture here and there, and other touches of a woman's hand were quickly noticed and these finishing touches are not only appreciated by the nurses, but by the officials of the hospital as well. Everything possible has been done to make the new home attractive and comfortable for those who are to reside there during their training period and to this end the committee in charge of the work have made efforts which have already proven their work.

Much credit for the manner in which the home is furnished is due to the work of Mrs. Robert W. Perkins and Mrs. Edmund W. Perkins, who had complete charge of this work. They also had charge of the electrical fixtures which went into the home and these are most attractive, being conveniently arranged. The flower committee, with Mrs. Joseph P. Cummings as chairman, with Mrs. Robert W. Perkins and Mrs. Edmund W. Perkins, assisted by Otto Ernst of Uncasville had arranged a most beautiful display of floral decorations for the opening day In the reception room two large ferns added to the attractive appearance of the room. These are permanent gifts to the home, made possible through the courtesy of the United Church hospital committee and Mr. and Mrs. Wallace S. Allis.

Gifts to Hospital

Among the most recent gifts received by the home were two dozen pure wool blankets, the gift of the Farnsworth Mills, Inc., of Central Village; forty-six Thermos bottles, the gift of the American Thermos Bottle company of this city, one for each nurse; and an Underwood typewriter, the gift of the Underwood Typewriter company, to be permanently placed in the nurses' reference library.

The hospital was also grateful to the management of the Wauregan hotel for the loan of punch bowls, glasses and ladles for serving of the refreshments at the reception.

One of the most striking features of the new home is the modern plumbing and heating system installed by Williams Brothers. The heating system is that of high pressure reduced for distribution, while the hot water for the home is furnished by the Whitlock storage tank heater, where the pressure is reduced to three pounds of steam, this furnishing hot water for the entire home.

Musical Programme

During the afternoon and evening delightful musical programs were rendered, the afternoon program being by the Guile duo, Miss Lucille and George Guile, piano and violin, while that of the evening was rendered by Swahn's orchestra, the services being contributed. The program for the afternoon was as follows:

Alabamy Bound	De Sylva
When You and I Were Seventeen	Kahn
Follow the Swallow	Henderson
After the Ball	Harris
Yearning Just for You	Irving Berlin
Honest and Truly	Fred Rose
Big Boy	Milton Ager
Alla	Anita Owen
West of the Great Divide	Ernest Ball
June Night (Fox Trot)	Abel Boer
All Alone	Irving Berlin
It Had to Be You	Isham Jones
I Don't Care What You Used to Be, I Know What You Are Today	McHugh
Sonya	Fisher
The Pal That I Loved Stole the Gal That I Loved	Pease
Old Familiar Faces	Edwards
Song of Love	Shubert
Linger Awhile (Fox Trot)	Rose

The evening program by Swahn's orchestra was also one of merit, the numbers being as follows:

March—The NC-6	Bigelow
Overture—Light Cavalry	Suppe
Popular Hits—Itro, Yearning, Waiting for the Moon, Alone at Last, etc.	Irving Berlin
Waltz—Old Timers	Lake
Operatic Selection—The Only Girl	Herbert
Fox Trot—Brown Eyes Why so Blue	Meyer
Popular Waltz—Let Me Call You Sweetheart	Arr. by Colby
Song—O Sole Mio	Capua
March—Stars and Stripes	Sousa

The reception committee for the occasion was a representative one comprising the following officials and residents interested in the welfare of the institution: Henry A. Tirrell, president of the executive committee, F. Leon Hutchins, superintendent of the hospital; Miss Kathleen A. Dowd, R. N., principal of training school; Mrs. Robert W. Perkins and Mrs. Edmund W. Perkins of the interior decorations committee; Mrs. Perry Raymond, president of the Nurses' Alumnae association; James L. Case, general chairman of the drive which raised the money for the new residence; Mrs. Walter M. Lester, president of the Women's auxiliary, and ten ladies from the Women's auxiliary.

Assisting the reception committees were the following in the afternoon:

First floor—Mrs. Alexander H. Abbott, Mrs. Frank D. Ricketson and Mrs. Richard Snow.

Second floor—Mrs. C. C. Gildersleeve and Mrs. Harold G. Gildersleeve.

Third floor—Mrs. E. La Rue Bliven, and Mrs Charles A. Saxton.

In the evening those assisting were:

First floor—Mrs. Walter T Camp, and Mrs. Frederick T. Sayles

Second floor—Mrs. J. Edward Driscoll and Mrs. James L. Crawford.

Third floor—Mrs. William H. Dawley and Mrs. Arthur H. Lathrop.

Assisting in the dining room during the afternoon were Miss Katherine Kent, Miss Anna Ey, Mrs. Archibald Mitchell, 4th, and Mrs. Earl Mathewson, and during the evening Mrs. Harry Higgins, Mrs. Witter K. Tingley, Mrs. Harrison Gray and Mrs. William A. Pitcher carried out the same work.

Official Staff

The official staff at the hospital comprises: F. Leon Hutchins, superintendent; Dr. Fred L. Harney, resident house physician; Miss Abbie H. Carley, bacteriologist; Miss Kathleen A. Dowd, R. N., principal training school; Miss Anna May Gorton, R. N., floor supervisor, Miss Ruth Morgan, R. N., operating room supervisor, Mrs. Ruth E. Raymond, R. N., instructress of nurses; Miss Margaret Neville, R. N., night supervisor; Miss Sally Weeks, dietitian; Miss Lovellna Worsard, R. N., supervisor of semi-private floor, and Miss Dorothy Scott, R. N., supervisor of private floor, Mrs. George M Long, house mother.

Henry A. Tirrell is president of the executive committee; Oliver L. Johnson, vice president; Frank L. Woodward, treasurer, and Wallace S. Allis, secretary pro tem.

The student nurses in training at the hospital include the following:

Misses Olive Jackson, Florence Whitehead, Maud E. Eller, Leona Berthaume, Phyllis Mae Harvey, Grace I. Mahoney, Mary A. Burdick, Sigrid C. Aston, Margaret T. Laynch, Julia C. Savage, Lydia H. Bjurstrom, Ethelilia Smith, Dorothy Doolittle, Dorothy Turner, Mabel W. McKinley, Adelaide G. Christman, Marion L. Dodge, Blanch B. Freeman, Catherine Davis, Adelle G. Spenard, Sarah E. Botham, Amity Haddad, Marguerite K. Sutthill, Dorothy Thorpe, Sarah Harrison, Ruth Baywood McKinley, Ellen D. Powers, Ruth E. Hopkins, Bertha A. Pozenna, Florence E. Wright, Bessie Greenstein, Emma Mulleur.

The official medical staff of the hospital met in regular session during the morning, Wednesday, and after the transaction of business a tour of inspection was made through the nurse's home, all members expressing a high opinion regarding the homelike appearance and the manner in which the home had been furnished for use by the nurses in training.

GAVE FAREWELL SURPRISE TO REV. ARTHUR C. ADAMS

On Saturday evening the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Adams, East Great Plains, was the scene of a very happy surprise and farewell party for Rev. Arthur C. Adams who sailed at midnight Tuesday for New York on his way to Johannesberg. A gathering of 50 or more friends and relatives, a large number from New Haven joined their cheery voices in wishing the traveler bon voyage. The home was attractively decorated with autumn and Hallowe'en colors and the glow of candles and Jack-o-Lanterns. Many were the fine and useful gifts stored in a yellow pumpkin, and later opened, ranging from rose scented bath salts to a finely equipped emergency medical kit. Much credit for the happy event was due to Mrs. Alfred Card and Mrs. William E. Lathrop, sisters of the traveler, who had planned the evening's entertainment. Prof. Frank T. Maples greatly delighted those present by selections of humor and wit. Lavish and bountiful refreshments followed a happy hour of stunts and games. A large packet of ship telegrams was given over to Mr. Adams to read on board ship. He sails on the S S. Mauretania, and will leave Southampton Nov. 13 on the S S Kenilworth Castle for Cape Town whence the journey will be completed by rail 1,000 miles inland to Johannesburg, Natal, South Africa.

Hallowe'en Masquerade

At the home of Mr and Mrs. L Smotrich a Hallowe'en masquerade was given Sunday afternoon in honor of their daughter, Evelyn Roselyn Smotrich. Twelve of her girl friends were guests. Numerous games were played and a number of piano selections were rendered. The dining room was decorated in Hallowe'en colors and candy, fruit, cake and hot chocolate were served.

MANUFACTURERS' ASSOCIATION TO HAVE PROMINENT SPEAKERS

For the first time in its history the Manufacturers' association of Connecticut will this year follow its annual meeting afternoon business session with a dinner and evening program at New Haven on Nov. 18. This has been arranged because the organization has secured two speakers of national importance, namely Secretary of Labor James J. Davis and Senator Hiram Bingham.

Connecticut manufacturers have a very deep interest in the operation of the present immigration law which Secretary Davis will discuss, from a background of more intimate knowledge of what the outcome of the present situation will be than could any other one person. Senator Bingham as members of the association already know, has been a member of the President's aircraft board and will recount his personal impressions of the hearings, including many features not previously brought out in accounts of the testimony.

Sessions will open with a luncheon at 12.30 to be followed by the business session which will include addresses by Professor Fred R. Fairchild of Yale university on "The Present Tax Situation"; by President Hubbard on "Coordination of Transportation Agencies"; and by a well-known speaker on an industrial relations subject to be announced within the next few days. Immediately following these addresses will come the report of the president and the chairmen of committees, and the election of officers and directors. The meeting will then adjourn to be followed by the dinner at 6.30 at which Governor Trumbull will preside and Secretary Davis and Senator Bingham will speak.

SHOW 28 NAMES ON SUSPENDED DRIVERS' LIST

The weekly list of Connecticut operators whose licenses have been suspended for one year for driving while under the influence of liquor was given out Wednesday at the state motor vehicle department as a part of the effort to reduce this highway menace. There are 28 names on the list. The cases of four have been appealed The department statement advised people to notify the department or the police in case they should see any of the suspended drivers operating motor vehicles. The following is the list:

Fred C. Beaulle, Plainfield; Louis Belat, Waterbury; William Cairncross, Hartford; Dominick Calve, Noroton; William J. Casey, Hartford; P. F. Chamberlain, Broadbrook; Edward P Crane, Waterville; Albert Dodus, Bridgeport; Alexander Gasek, Glastonbury; Justin M. Horton, Middletown; Carl Johansson, Jersey City, N. Y.; H. N. Keating, Hartford; Fred Larson, New Britain; Frank Lattimer, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Jessie Lewis, Farmington; Theodore Logrot, Torrington George A. Ryan, Enfield; Earl Tucker, New Britain; Frank Weinlandt, Stamford; Alfonso Williams, New Haven.

WILL RECEIVE CERTIFICATES FOR TEACHER TRAINING

At the Thursday evening family gathering of the Central Baptist church certificates are to be awarded Benjamin W. Covey, Mrs. W. H. Covbelle Harbeck, Mrs. Nancy Kromer, Miss Mamie Madio, Miss Amie March, Miss Beatrice Smith, and Mrs. Milton Terry in recognition of their completion of all the work in connection with the classes they attended during the teacher training institute.

The discussion of "The Lord's Day" which proved so interesting on Sunday is to continued in a more informal way on Thursday evening, and the roll-call will be continued, names of all members beginning with M, N, O and P through "Pettis" will be called.

A hundred and thirty attended last week's meeting and an even larger attendance is anticipated this week.

Enjoyable Hallowe'en Party

Monday evening about 30 friends of Arthur Disco assembled in his very prettily decorated barn for a Hallowe'en party.

The evening was pleasantly spent in games and stunts. An exhibition of the Charleston and Harvard hop was charmingly done by Miss Jennie Pedace and Meddy Dugas. A vocal selection was rendered by Miss Catherine Driscoll, and others to entertain were Geno Tombori, Arthur Disco and Miss Madeline Fitzgerald. Refreshments were served under the able direction of the Misses Rinella and Enos Eccleston.

State Money to Towns

The sum of $122,840.85 was sent to 19 towns in the state Wednesday by the state highway department to reimburse them for expenditures they had made in anticipation of financial aid from the state. Through error the state highway department had announced the figure as $41,283.13.

"First in government, first in education, first in mercy." This modest claim on behalf of the Jamestown colony was made in one of the papers accompanying the presentation of the chronicles of America motion picture Monday evening in the college gymnasium. According to the writer of this paper, a student in the American history course which these movies are supplementing, the representative assembly which met at Jamestown on April 19, 1619, was the first held in the English-American colonies. Likewise a university and also a hospital established soon afterward a short distance from the Jamestown settlement at Henricus, have an equally good claim to priority. And besides claiming to be first in government, first in education, and first in mercy, Jamestown can claim the first marriage. A laborer by the name of John Laydon fell in love with Anne Burras, the maid of Mistress Forest. They were married in the fall of the second year of the Jamestown settlement.

In those old colonial days, according to this undergraduate historian the Puritans were not the only ones who were harsh in their treatment of offenders. When Dale became governor of Jamestown, he instituted very stern, almost barbarous measures to keep the colonies in good order and to promote prosperity. Any husbandman, builder, or baker found idle was publicity whipped. Tradesmen neglecting their work were sent to the galleys. A bodkin was thrust through the tongue of anyone heard swearing. For what we would consider slight crimes men were chained to trees and left to starve or were flogged to death. Church attendance was compulsory. One absence was punished by a fine, a second by a larger fine and one month's imprisonment; the third absence merited a still larger fine plus imprisonment for a year and a day. Most people preferred to go to the church.

Miss Julia Warner is the guest of Miss Agnes Leahy of Norwich, assistant in Psychology.

A very entertaining Hallow'en masquerade was given the students by President Marshall on Saturday evening in the gymnasium, which was appropriately decorated, and orchestra furnished the music for dancing. During the evening a most amusing playlet was presented entitled "Kissing Goes by Savor." Miss Ruth McCaslin and Miss Marjorie Lloyd, both of Cleveland, Ohio, comprised the cast. Refreshments of cider, apples and doughnuts were served.

The members of the faculty present were President Benjamin T. Marshall, Dean Benedict, Dr. and Mrs. Wells, Dr. and Mrs. Erb, Dr. D. D. Lieb, Dr. Lawrence, Dr. James, Mr. and Mrs. Bauer, and Miss Fairchild.

The college delegates for the annual Women's Intercollegiate Student Government association conference which is to be held at Wellesley college on November 14, 15, and 16, were recently appointed. Florence Hopper was elected general representative of the Student body, Theodosia Hewlett as president of the College Student Government association automatically became a delegate. Miss Hewlett was a junior representative last year Since Helen Hood was elected secretary of the association last year at the conference she is also a representative. The delegates will stay at one of the student dormitories which will be vacated for them by the Wellesley students during the conference. Ten meals will also be served them at his dormitory.

Haile Club Hallowe'en

A very enjoyable Hallowe'en party preceded by a supper was held at the Haile club this week with a large attendance. For the supper the tables were most attractive in their decorations of orange and black with place cards and favors.

The menu consisted of baked beans cold meats, salads, rolls, doughnuts pumpkin pie, coffee and cider.

The balance of the evening was devoted to Hallowe'en stunts.

The committee in charge was Miss Annie McNamara, chairman; Mrs Louis L. Gotthelf and, Mrs. William Everett Corey.

FAITH TRUMBULL CHAPTER HAD INTERESTING PROGRAM

With the regent, Mrs. William H. Dawley, presiding, the regular business meeting of Faith Trumbull chapter, D. A. R., was held Wednesday afternoon at the Community house Church street. The secretary, Mrs. William E. Elliott read the minutes of the last meeting and they were accepted as read. The treasurer, Mrs. Albert S. Comstock rendered a report covering the financial transactions of the month and the report was accepted. It was reported by the registrar that the number of members in the chapter totals 167.

The museum committee reported that the museum has been closed for the winter. A pledge for $100 has recently been received for the new museum.

The committee on patriotic education, through Mrs. Charles L. Stewart, chairman, asked for gifts for a box to be sent to Ellis Island, to provide work for women in the detention room. Articles needed include muslin, canton flannel, cotton dress materials, by the bolt or pieces of a yard or more, stamped embroideries with the necessary cottons or silks, thread sciasors, needles and thimbles.

The ways and means committee reported on the plans for the coming entertainment at Slater Hall and asked the support of the chapter members in making the attendance a large one.

Mrs. Harry H. Pettis, chairman of the magazine committee, reported that the committee is about to make a special effort to increase the subscription list.

The regent spoke of the following recommendation from the board of management: that the chapter accept its quota, $7.50, for two consecutive years, in a full scholarship of $300 for a student at the American International College, Springfield, Mass. Each chapter in Connecticut is asked to take a definite share in this scholarship that Connecticut may have as her own one fully trained worker among the foreign born. The recommendation was adopted.

The historian, Mrs. George A. Ashbey, had charge of the programme for the afternoon, the music being in charge of Miss AAnnie E. Vaughn, who rendered the transcription of the Old Oaken Bucket by Ryder. Reports of the state annual meeting at New Britain were given by Mrs. A. N. H. Vaughn and Miss Susan L. Gallup.

Grandma's Pantry and Mine was the topic of the programme. This contrasted old time housekeeping with the modern housekeeping methods. Mrs. Harriet S. Blackmar read a paper on the old fashioned kitchen and Mrs. Ashbey a paper on the modern kitchen.

The hostesses were Mrs. C. Eugene Saunders, chairman, Mrs. Edwin Colt, Mrs. Louis M. Crandall, Mrs. Alexander Durie, Mrs. J. M. Powers, Miss Belle Lumis, Mrs. Henry H. Pettis, Mrs. Richard B. Tracy, Mrs. C. Newcomb Kinney, Mrs. Charles S. Holbrook and Mrs. Louis H. Geer.

PIMPLY? WELL, DON'T BE

People Notice It. Drive Them Off with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color.

Dr Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take one or two nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c and 30c.

WILL BE RESIDENT OF ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI

Mrs. Mary Lee Buckley, accompanied by her daughter, Catherine Lee Buckley of 350 Broad street, leaves this (Wednesday) morning for St. Louis, Mo., to take up her residence there, her husband, James T. Buckley having been appointed to take charge of the St. Louis branch of the Massachusetts Bonding and Insurance company of Boston.

Mrs. Buckley is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Lee of 39 Cliff street and, with the exception of a few years when she taught school at Waterbury, has spent all her life in Norwich and her many friends will regret that she is leaving the city to make her future home in the west. For several months past, Mrs. Buckley has been on the staff of the state welfare bureau as assistant to Miss Irma Hutaler who is in charge of this district.

CLUB MEMBERS HONOR MEMORY OF O. O. PALMER

At the recent annual meeting of the O. O. Palmer camp at Canterbury, the members appointed Alva Cote and John Wilson to place a wreath on the grave in Maplewood cemetery of their departed friend, Oscar O. Palmer, who passed away about a year ago.

In connection with the annual meeting there was the usual good dinner served by Chef Auger of New Haven.

GERALD CHAPMAN LOSES FIGHT FOR LIFE EXECUTION OF MURDERER SET FOR DEC. 3

State Supreme Court Finds There Was No Error in Decision of Lower Court Convicting the Notorious Gunman of the Murder of Patrolman James Skelly in New Britain on October 12, 1924—Many Characters of the Underworld Figured in the Trial of Chapman.

BRIDGEPORT, Nov. 5—(A. P.)—Gerald Chapman, notorious bandit, lost his fight for his life today when the state supreme court in a decision handed down here, held that there was no error in the decision of the lower court convicting him of the murder of a New Britain policeman in October 12, 1924. The date for his execution has been set for December 3 in the state prison at Wethersfield.

Chapman was convicted in superior court in Hartford last spring and was sentenced to be hanged in June. An appeal was taken to the higher court and a reprieve was granted by Governor John H. Trumbull pending action on the appeal.

Arguments on the appeal were heard by the supreme court of errors at the October session in Hartford and the decision, written by Chief Justice Wheeler was filed today.

Patrolman James Skelly, of the New Britain police department was killed when he and two other officers surprised Chapman attempting to blow a safe in a department store in that city. Chapman, fighting his way down a flight of stairs, shot and killed the policeman and made his escape. A nation-wide hunt for the bandit followed and he was arrested in Muncie, Ind., in January 13, 1925.

Chapman was brought back to Connecticut after having been taken to Atlanta, where he was wanted for escaping from the penitentiary following a sensational mail robbery in New York. The trial was opened at the March criminal term in Hartford and after a sensational and hard fought legal battle, Chapman was found guilty.

Scores of witnesses from all parts of the country were brought to Hartford and police officers from many cities testified to the parts the accused had played in a series of crimes that gave him the title of the "super-bandit."

Many characters of the underworld figured in the trial, the name of "Blackie" Anderson, bandit, who was shot and killed in a small Michigan town a few days ago, playing an important part in the evidence.

The state brought out in the trial that Chapman, together with Walter Sheam of Springfield, Mass., came to Connecticut on October 11, 1924, after passing several days in the Massachusetts city. The pair, it was held, stopped in New Britain on that day and visited two department stores. On the train to New Britain, according to the evidence brought out by the state, Chapman talked with Shean about blowing safes, saying he "landed on a Peter" occasionally to make a little money in addition to his bootlegging operations and suggested that it did not take long to do the work. "Landing on a Peter," it was explained in court, meant blowing a safe.

The couple passed the night of October 11, 1924, at an inn in Meriden, and the proprietor and employes of that institution were important witnesses in the case built up by the State against the bandit. Chapman and Shean left the inn early Sunday morning, Oct. 12. Arriving in New Britain, they went to the Davidson and Leventhal Department store.

Shean stepped out of the actual safe-blowing picture soon after their arrival at the store, declaring that "this is too dangerous for me." He returned to the automobile which the couple left near the store, evidence at the trial showed, taking with him money that had been given him by Chapman and an automatic revolver.

An hour after Chapman and Shean arrived at the store, information that burglars were at work in the store reached police headquarters and several officers, including Patrolman Skelly, were sent to the scene. Shean was found near the automobile outside the store and was placed under arrest and three policemen then entered the store.

They found Chapman at work preparatory to blowing the safe by the use of nitro-glycerine. Surprised by the police officers, Chapman pulled his gun from his pocket and began firing. One of the bullets hit Patrolman Skelly in the abdomen and he fell to the floor mortally wounded. He died about three hours later in the New Britain General hospital.

No shots were fired by the officers. After Chapman had shot the patrolman, he dashed for the front door which had been previously prepared for a quick escape by the moving of a screw from the lock. Chapman was next seen in Muncie when officers captured him in the street.

Shean was taken to police headquarters where he told the authorities his companion was a man named Miller. The rooms in the Cooley hotel in Springfield were searched and several articles belonging to the accused were found. The storeroom of the Shean Advertising company in Springfield also was searched, and many things belonging to Chapman were seized.

The defense at the trial was an alibi. Chapman's counsel offered evidence to prove that Chapman was not in New Britain on the morning of the murder and was not with Shean. It was claimed by the defense that Chapman went to a furniture store in Holyoke, Mass., between 2:15 and 2:45 o'clock on the afternoon of October 11, 1924 going from Springfield to Holyoke and returning by interurban trolley. It was claimed that he left Springfield for New York by train at about 6 o'clock on the afternoon of October 11, thereafter going to Brooklyn, N. Y., and was in a stationery store between 4 and 5 o'clock that night and was seen here by one Chastian, a fellow convict at the Atlanta penitentiary, and was with Chastian until 2 a. m. Sunday morning, October 12.

The accused, it was held by the state, did not offer any evidence, to show his whereabouts from 2 a. m. Sunday morning Oct. 12 until January 13, 1925, when he was captured, it was brought out by the state.

Grounds for Chapman claimed many errors in its appeal from the verdict of Judge Newell Jennings in the superior court. It was claimed that Judge Newell Jennings erred in charging the jury as follows:

"I do not desire to misquote the evidence, and my recollection is that the accused did not tell as where he was in the morning in question but desires you to believe from the evidence introduced that he was not in New Britain."

Another error assigned to the court in its charge to the jury was the following: "I have already intimated to you that in my view of the evidence only two verdicts are possible, not guilty or guilty of murder in the first degree."

The appeal set out that the court erred in denying Chapman's motion to set aside the verdict; it erred in allowing irrelevant and immaterial testimony to go before the jury on the promise that the state's attorney would connect it up with the issue in the case; it erred in allowing the introduction of evidence tending to show the commission of crimes other than that with which he was charged.

It was claimed by the defense that reversible error did exist "because the objects urged upon the jury were unfair and prejudicial and were adapted to, and did influence the minds of the jurors against the accused, and did prejudice the jurors against him, the accused."

The court erred in failing to charge the jury, it was set out by the defense in the appeal, that "the court's estimate as to the weight and value of evidence should not be substituted for that of the jury's.

Further causes of error were assigned to the alleged prejudicial atmosphere created by the prosecution, and the admission by the court of testimony given by many of the state's witnesses.

The supreme court decision holding no errors occurred in the sensational trial in the lower court was written by Chief Justice George W. Wheeler of Bridgeport, and all of the justices concurred.

"The result of our consideration and reflection has led us to the fixed opinion," says the Wheeler decision in one place, "that the verdict reached by the jury was the only verdict which reasoning minds could reasonably have reached upon this evidence. Seldom is a charge of this character so completely and conclusively proven."

CHAPMAN RECEIVED THE NEWS CALMY

HARTFORD, Nov. 5 (AP)—Warden H. S. W. Scott notified Gerald Chapman tonight that the supreme court of errors had decided against him and that, as matters stood, he would have to hang in exactly four weeks. The condemned murderer received the news calmly, saying resignedly "Twas no more than I expected." He made no other comment.

"BUYING PANIC" ON THE PARIS STOCK EXCHANGE

PARIS, Nov. 5—(AP)—"A buying Panic" is the manner in which the overworked brokers are describing the busiest working day the Paris Exchange has known since the armistice. Despite continued tumbling of the franc, the Paris bourse is riding the crest of the wave of paper prosperity. More transactions were recorded today than ever before, and at 10 o'clock tonight brokers' clerks were still untangling the mass of buying orders handled during the trading hours.

Sterling is quoted at 124, while the dollar jumped to 25.40 upon receipt of the New York opening price of 25.95 for 100 francs.

With the franc collapsing, buyers are turning their attention to foreign stocks and royal Dutch, Mexican Eagle, Shell and other oil shares are particularly in demand. Rio Tinto and DeBeers mines were other investments sought, the transactions being for the most part outright buying, not on margin.

The bank of France statement showing an increase in circulation close to 1,500,000,000 francs and a similar increase in advances by the bank to the state came just at the busiest moment of the trading and gave an added impetus to the purchase of foreign securities. The general opinion here, however, is that the Paris bourse will not try to emulate New York. The bull movement reached the turning point in a feverish atmosphere at closing, many speculators taking their profits.

"CRISIS" CONVENTION OF THE ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—(AP)—A review of the progress of prohibition in the United States, and a survey, of plans to make it more effective began tonight at the Chicago temple in the "enforcement crisis" convention of the anti-saloon league. All aspects of the enforcement situation were to be covered by surveys from congressmen, federal and local officials and judges religious leaders, editors and representatives of the anti-saloon league.

The opening was devoted to the addresses of Bishop Thomas Nicholson of Detroit, president of the league and Miss Anna Gordon, president of its sister organization, the W. T. C. U. and the report of F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the league.

Tomorrow the convention pauses for a memorial to those killed in action in the war on alcohol, the prohibition officers and local officials killed in line of duty. The convention will also hear tomorrow the report of a congressional committee, to be presented to congress this winter, on their investigation of the enforcement situation in the United States and the Status of modification legislation, and conditions throughout Canada.

HORSES CAUSE ACCIDENTS NEAR PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Nov. 5.—(AP)—The horse, whose passing from the highways has long been heralded, is still alive and kicking in the vicinity of Portsmouth. The score of accidents resulting in cases at the Portsmouth hospital in the past two days is 5 to 0 in favor of the horse. Two men have been brought to the hospital after having been kicked by horses. A third patient was injured when his team ran away and rolled him and his cart down a bank. All of the accidents occurred in Maine, close to Portsmouth, but just over the state line.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Body of King Tut Uncovered

CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 5.—(AP)—The body of King Tut-Ankh-Amen has been uncovered, a communique issued in Arabic by the ministry of works announces. Tut-Ankh-Amen's tomb was reopened October 12 in the presence of Egyptian officials. The lid of the first sarophagus was lifted, revealing another, on which lay linen coverings and bouquets. These were removed, revealing a work of unexampled beauty. This second sarophagus bore an effigy of the god Osiris, decorated from head to foot and embellished with multi-colored pieces of glass.

SENATOR WHEELER ASKS DISMISSAL OF INDICTMENT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Dismissal of the indictment returned against him here charging conspiracy to defraud the government in connection with oil prospecting permits in Montana, was asked of the District of Columbia supreme court today by Senator Burton K. Wheeler, democrat, of that state.

The principal ground for the request is that the former prosecutor of the Senate, Daugherty investigating committee was acquitted by a jury in the federal court in Montana on a charge based n an allegation of the same set o facts as is contained in the District of Columbia indictment, which was returned prior to the trial in Montana.

Besides this plea of former acquittal, Senator Wheeler, through his counsel, Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, and Charles A. Douglas, filed a demurrer to the indictment, alleging that the District of Columbia courts have no jurisdiction over the offense charged.

Arguments on the plea and demurrer probably will be heard the last part of this month. Should either the plea or the demurrer be sustained, the prosecution of the Montana senator here probably would be dropped. If both the plea and demurrer should be overruled, it would not follow that a trial would be held immediately, as Senator Wheeler still could avail himself of a plea in abatement, charging irregularities in obtaining the indictment.

FRENCH PARLIAMENT IS UNITED ON SYRIAN AFFAIR

PARIS, Nov. 5.—(AP)—The Syrian situation suddenly sprung upon the unsuspecting Painleve cabinet by the parties of the right and centre in the chamber of deputies today in the form of a demand for immediate discussion of the "grave events in that country," merely had the effect of rallying and gave it an opportunity to score what will probably be the greatest parliamentary success of its career.

Premier Painleve refused to discuss the situation until the arrival in Paris of General Sarrail, high commissioner in Syria, who has been recalled, and made it a question of confidence. He was unheid in the chamber 400 to 30.

The chamber fixed November 20 as the date for the Syrian debate. General Sarrail himself will then appear before the parliamentary committees. M. Painleve once more gave the official figures of the 10 month losses in Syria since France accepted the league of nations mandate. He admitted that France had lost 6,622 men, killed, dead or wounded or illness, or missing, but he produced figures designed to show that nearly 70 per cent., of the losses occurred under the governments of the conservatives and right parties.

The losses for the period of General Sarrail's tenure of office, which was practically under fire, were 624 from January 1, 1925 to October 15. The losses since that date were not given in detail.

POLICE SAVED MUSSOLINI FROM ASSASSIN'S BULLET

ROME, Nov. 5—A week of nation-wide fascist exultation over the success of the fascist regime in restoring Italy's power and unity, was brought to a dramatic conclusion today with the official revelation that Benito Mussolini, the premier, had been saved from an assassin's bullet by a timely police coup yesterday morning.

A carefully planned conspiracy to murder fascist Italy's dictator was laid bare by the police on the morrow of the premier's prediction of further fascist successes and exactly one week after his announcement of the permanency of his government.

Mussolini was to have been shot down, the police say, by Tito Zaniboni, a former Unitarian Socialist deputy, as he stood at the balcony of Chigi palace reviewing the parade of fascisti celebrating the anniversary of the victory over Austria. This act it was charged, was to be the culmination of a several weeks' old conspiracy engendered by a group of socialists and freemasons, but the police stepped in early yesterday with the simultaneous arrest in Rome of Zaniboni and his secretary Signor Quaglia, editor of Il Popolo and in Turin of a prominent freemason, the retired General Luigi Capello, who was on the point of leaving for abroad.

YALE PLANS DEVELOPMENT OF ITS NATIONAL PRESERVE

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 5. (AP)—Yale is planning extensive development of its new 200-acre national preserve west of the Yale bowl, it was announced today by Dean Henry S. Graves of the Yale forestry school. Preservation of the native plant life and animal life of this region will have a prominent part in the program as to make the project useful to the departments of forestry, botany and zoology, as well as to the community at large.

"Generally speaking," Dean Graves said, "we intend to keep the preserve as far as possible in its natural condition. The tract already has a great variety of plant life, more than 300 species of plants having been found aside from the grasses."

Plans also are being made, the dean said, to develop the preserve as a sanctuary for birds. The tract is located on one of the cross ridges, a location most favorable for catching migration of birds. Certain portions of the area will be handled with a view to furnishing feeding and breeding places.

Reaching Agreement on Italian War Debt

Terms Probably the Most Liberal Granted by the United States Thus Far.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Substantial progress was made today toward a funding agreement covering Italy's war debt. At the same time reports were current in congressional circles that a tentative agreement was imminent.

One of the two joint sub-committees, named at yesterday's joint session of the negotiators, concluded its work last night, but the other put in practically all of today in its effort to find solution for one or two troublesome problems, the nature of which was held confidential. The latter group will renew its conferences tomorrow to consider fresh calculations undertaken tonight by experts.

While the policy of strict secrecy on which both commissions decided at the outset prevented a public statement tonight on the progress of the negotiations, information which leaked through gave rise to the belief that a definite understanding on Italy's capacity to pay had been reached. The report was that the basis thus reached between the negotiators had not been far below the original American calculations. To observers, it appeared probable that such terms as are accorded Italy may be below the terms of the Belgian settlement, thus far the most liberal granted by the United States.

The sub committee which met today included in its membership both Secretary Mellon and Count Volpi, the Italian finance minister the subjects under consideration required such an unusual apount of statistical and actuarial work that, with the inability of several members on each side to speak the language of the other, the conversations were considerably retarded. The members, however, emphasized that complete harmony prevailed within the committee room. President Coolidge probably will hear of the progress of the negotiations at the regular cabinet meeting tomorrow. At the request of the treasury secretary, the reassembling of the sub-committee tomorrow was put over until noon so he would be free to attend the cabinet session.

FOUR JURORS SELECTED FOR MACRI MURDER TRIAL

LITCHFIELD, Nov. 5. (AP)—Three talesmen today joined William J. Hunt of Bethlehem as jurymen for the second trial of Olympia Macri, 24, of New Haven, for shooting John Bagnano, in that city, on February 26, which opened in the Litchfield county superior court here three days ago.

The first day produced Mr. Hunt, 66, a farmer; the second was fruitless and this morning three of six veniremen examined were chosen. The session this afternoon brought only challenges by counsel or "you're excused" from Judge George E. Hinman.

The three accepted today are John R Davey, 60, retired shoe dealer, of Torrington; Frank J. Harrison, 50, of Sharon, a carpenter and Mott Darling, 74, farmer of Kent.

Although a new panel will be drawn tomorrow, it is not expected that those comprising it will be called for examination before the second or third day of next week. Twenty-four of the first panel of 128 have not as yet appeared in court, either for examination or to be given a chance to make excuses for being exempt from service on the jury. There are a like number yet to be examined, who have already been once in court.

SAYS AMERICAN WOMEN ARE LOSING THEIR BEAUTY

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 4.—(AP)—American women are losing their beauty and intelligence will be next to go as beauty and intelligence go together, Albert E. Wiggam, biologist and author of New York told the Wisconsin Teachers' association today.

The expression "beautiful but dumb," as applied to women, is nonsense he said. A thousand beautiful women have more intelligence than a thousand homely women, he declared, adding that there are exceptions "Both ways."

"The more intelligent, beautiful women are allowing the less intelligent and less beautiful to have nearly all the children. If it keeps up the next generation will be both homely and dumb," Mr. Wiggam said.

He asserted it takes three college women to produce one baby and that during the same time one homely scrubwoman with little education will produce two or three. Only about half of America's college women ever marry and the average college bred married woman has but two children, he added.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

Work was pressed for a settlement of the Italian debt.

To Provide Semi-Soft Coal For New England

Operators Are in a Position to Supply Good Substitute For Anthracite Coal.

BOSTON, Nov. 5—(AP)—Plans for the invasion of New England by the producers of West Virginia semi-bituminous smokeless coal were discussed today by a special committee which met here preparatory to the monthly meeting tomorrow of the smokeless coal operators' association of West Virginia. Committee members said the plan included establishment of a service department to teach New Englanders the use of the fuel.

The work of the committee, it was said, was the preparation of a set of resolutions to be presented to the membership of the association tomorrow. Spokesmen for the operators said they were now in a position to offer to New England a sufficient supply of smokeless coal to supplant the anthracite coal, upon which this section of the country has been depending for years as a domestic fuel. One handican has just been removed, they said, by the action of the interstate commerce commission in ordering the establishment of competitive all-rail rates from the West Virginia coal fields to New England effective from October 16.

The committee was made up of Holy stover of Chicago, Chairman; William B. Ord, Landgraff, W. Va.; Robert H. Gross, Boston; O. L. Alexander, New York, and E. E. White Glen White, W. Va.; E. J. McVann of Washington, secretary and counsel of the association, assisted the committee.

PROSPECTS OF CIVIL WAR MAY AFFECT PEKING

PEKING, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Prospects of civil war directly affecting Peking were revived today when it was reported on good authority that recent attempts to arrange co-operation between the North China leaders, especially General Feng Yu-Hsiang and Marshal Chang Tso-Lin, to maintain peace have failed.

Unusual activity in the rival camps has given rise to rumors of an impending coup by one side or the other to gain control of the capital.

However, Marshall Wu Pei-Fu, leader of the Yangtze alliance, appears, appears to be having a hard time financing his venture, and he is also embarrassed by the fact that General Yueh Wei-Chun, Governor of Honan province, occupying a pivotal position, has not yet announced which side he favors. General Hsiao Yao-Nan, Governor of Hupeh, is likewise temporizing and adding to the uncertainty of Marshal Wu's position.

Dispatches from Hankow say that the Wu Pei-Fu head-quarters is besieged by office seekers, and that divided cliques are engaged in lively intrigue.

FORMER NAVAL MAN ON TRIAL FOR MURDER OF HIS WIFE

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Nov. 5.—(AP)—Thomas M. Mannion, Jr., former naval man on trial here for the murder of his wife April 24 last, took the stand in his own defense today and testified that the woman had committed suicide with his razor rather than face a separation. Mannion and other witnesses told the court that Mrs Mannion was in nervous condition, because she was soon to become a mother.

Mannion said he had met his wife, from whom he had been separated some months, while she was wheeling their child along to road in a baby carriage. He was on his way to have his razor honed, he said. His wife proposed a walk on Little Harbor road and must have taken the razor from his pocket while they were together. Mannion testified that she had walked off a short distance and slashed her throat twice. Her last words were "forgive me Tommy," he said.

The evidence of Mannion and three other witnesses regarding Mrs. Mannion's nervous condition, was heard in a small court room with the public excluded.

COMEDIAN TINNEY WILL CONTEST ALIMONY CLAIM

NEW YORK, Nov. 5. (AP)—The divorce suit of Mrs. Frank Tinney, wife of the former Broadway comedian whose escapades with Imogene ("Bubbles") Wilson recently startled the Rialto, was begun today before Supreme Court Justice Riegelman in Mineola. Counsel for Tinney announced he would not contest the suit as far as custody of his son Frank, 7, was concerned, but that the comedian would fight bitterly the claim for $750 monthly alimony asked by his wife.

One of the witnesses today testified that Tinney was living in a hotel at Newcastle-on-Tyne, England, with a tall blonde known as "Bubbles." The witness testified Tinney and "Bubbles" were registered as man and wife.

"At no time during our conversation," testified George A. Hopkins Tinney's counsel "was Tinney sober" He fixed Tinney's income as about $500 a week. Another witness said Tinney made $1,500 a week from one booking in England and from $1,000 to $1,500 additional by appearing at night clubs.

HOUSE COMMITTEE VOTES INCOME TAX REDUCTIONS

To Recommend Reduction of Maximum Surtax Rate From 40 to 20 Per Cent.—Would Increase Personal Exemptions From $1,000 to $1,500 For Single Persons and From $2,500 to $3,000 For Married Persons—Such Change Would Remove More Than 1,000,000 Individuals From the Federal Income Tax List—First Day of Tax Cutting Was Estimated to Have Taken More Than $200,000,000 From Annual Revenue.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5—Removal of more than 1,000,000 individuals from the federal income tax roll by increasing exemptions, and widespread reductions in these levies were voted today by the house ways and means committee, as the first actual step in its preparation of a new revenue bill. The income tax exemption figures agreed upon were $1,500 for single persons and $3,500 for heads of families, compared with $1,000 and $2,500 respectively in the present law.

Other changes decided upon included:

Reduction of the maximum surtax rate from 40 to 20 per cent.

Reduction of the normal rates from 2 to 1 1-2 per cent. on the first $4,000 of taxable income from 4 to 3 per cent., on the next $4,000 and from 6 to 5 per cent. on the remainder.

Increase in the age limit for the $400 exemption allowance for dependents from 18 to 21 years in cases where children are in school.

Retention of the present 25 per cent. reduction in the tax when applied to earned incomes of $10,000 or less also was decided upon by the committee.

This first day of tax cutting by the committee was estimated to have taken more than $200,000,000 off the government's annual revenue, subject of course, to the approval of congress, and was more extensive than the reduction program advanced by Secretary Mellon because of the increased exemptions.

The 20 per cent. surtax maximum, however, was the figure suggested by the secretary, and the committee's normal rates followed in the main the treasury program, which previously announced intentions of members of the two groups to work out a non-partisan measure.

The committee next will consider the corporation tax. No change in this was proposed by Secretary Mellon, but many requests for repeal of the tax of $1 on each $1,000 of capital stock have been made, and Mr. Mellon told the committee he had "no serious objection" if this were done and the corporation levy, now 12 1-2 per cent., correspondingly increased.

Retaining the 25 per cent. "earned income allowance, the committee also ran counter to the recommendations of the treasury, which described it as "very difficult" to administer.

The maximum surtax of 20 per cent would be made to apply on income in excess of $100,000. The graduated scale of surtax rates on the income under this amount is to be worked out by a sub-committee. Chairman Green expressed the opinion that the surtaxes, beginning at one per cent. would not apply to incomes lower than $16,000. The present surtax rates start at $10,000, advance to 37 per cent. at $100,000 and reach 40 per cent. at $200,000.

Chairman Green, meeting the wishes of the committee, would not announce the vote on any of the changes, many of which he said were approved viva voce. The fact that members of both parties participated in the meetings today and will continue to do so, however, was taken to mean that votes were not along party lines, but were in accord with previously announced intentions of members of the two groups to work out a non-partisan measure.

The committee next will consider the corporation tax. No change in this was proposed by Secretary Mellon, but many requests for repeal of the tax of $1 on each $1,000 of capital stock have been made, and Mr. Mellon told the committee he had "no serious objection" if this were done and the corporation levy, now 12 1-2 per cent., correspondingly increased.

Early in its deliberations today the committee, after consulting Director Lord of the budget on probable reductions in the government's expenditures decided to adopt the $300,000,000 figure as the approximate limit of its reductions, and "with less than $200,000,000 of this accounted for in the income tax revisions, and many proposals pending for reduction of the excise taxes, it appeared unlikely that the committee would favor the treasury proposal for repeal of the inheritance levy, which yields $100,000,000 annually. Some modification of this tax, however, is expected.

While one of the principal recommendations of Secretary Mellon—that for reduction of the minimum surtax to 20 per cent.—was approved by the committee, it also adopted in a measure a similarly important point among the suggestions advanced by Rep. Garner, Texas, ranking democrat, on the committee—the increase in exemption, which the treasury head opposed. In retaining the 25 per cent. "earned income allowance, the committee also ran counter to the recommendations of the treasury, which described it as "very difficult" to administer.

The maximum surtax of 20 per cent would be made to apply on income in excess of $100,000. The graduated scale of surtax rates on the income under this amount is to be worked out by a sub-committee. Chairman Green expressed the opinion that the surtaxes, beginning at one per cent. would not apply to incomes lower than $16,000. The present surtax rates start at $10,000, advance to 37 per cent. at $100,000 and reach 40 per cent. at $200,000.

Chairman Green, meeting the wishes of the committee, would not announce the vote on any of the changes, many of which he said were approved viva voce. The fact that members of both parties participated in the meetings today and will continue to do so, however, was taken to mean that votes were not along party lines, but were in accord with previously announced intentions of members of the two groups to work out a non-partisan measure.

The committee next will consider the corporation tax. No change in this was proposed by Secretary Mellon, but many requests for repeal of the tax of $1 on each $1,000 of capital stock have been made, and Mr. Mellon told the committee he had "no serious objection" if this were done and the corporation levy, now 12 1-2 per cent., correspondingly increased.

HELD AS MATERIAL WITNESS FOR MURDER OF HER HUSBAND

HILLSIDE, N. J., Nov. 5.—(AP)—Mrs. William J. Clark, whose husband died Tuesday after having been struck down with a hammer in his garage, tonight was taken to the county jail at Elizabeth as a material witness in the slaying.

Joseph Cowen, her confessed admirer, who has been questioned by Hillside police, also was taken to Elizabeth.

Mrs. Clark was taken to the police station immediately after the burial of her husband today and was questioned from 3 p. m. until 6:15.

Earlier in the day police announced that a discrepancy had been discovered in Cowen's account of his whereabouts early Tuesday at the time Clark was struck down.

Cowen's family today retained John W. McGeehan, Jr., of Newark as counsel, and the removal of Mrs. Clark and Cowen took place after a conference between Prosecutor David of Union and McGeehan.

McGeehan, on leaving Hillside, said that no formal charge had been preferred against his client.

Clark was buried in Evergreen cemetery with Klan ceremonies.

SITUATION IS CALM ON THE GRECO-BULGARIAN BORDER

Geneva, Nov. 5.—(AP)—A telegram received by the league of nations from the powers' military attaches sent to investigate the situation on the Greco-Bulgarian border says that complete calm reigns and that normal life has been resumed on both sides of the frontier. The telegram was sent from Demirhissar.

The message says that on the Greek side of the frontier a considerable body of troops had left already for Saloniki and that the Greek artillery is to follow. On the Bulgarian side all the troops are on their way to their usual garrisons except two small detachments which remain to restore confidence among the population.

ARABS HAVE JOINED IN REVOLT AGAINST FRENCH

LONDON, Nov. 5. (AP)—A special despatch from Bagdad reports that the Arabs between Damascus and Homs have joined in the revolt against the French. Armenian refugees are being armed against the rebels.

Some of the Syrian leaders are endeavoring to obtain aid from the Moslem world and to induce the league of nations to hold an inquiry into the whole situation.

The feeling against General Sarrail's policy is running high among the Moslems and Christians; even his execution as a murderer is being agitated by the extremists.

U. S. COMMERCIAL AVIATION NOT EQUAL TO FOREIGN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Despite that the United States has the most favorable conditions for developing commercial aviation, it is being far outstripped in this field by other nations, a special committee of engineering and business experts today informed the commerce department.

Reporting on a special survey undertaken by the department and the American engineering council, the committee recomended immediate enactment by congress of a civil aviation law, which would apply to aeronauts approximately the same conditions and services that the government now provides for water navigators. It has also urged the prompt establishment of definite public and private programs concerning aircraft development.

No direct subsidy should be given aviation, the committee held but the government should establish routes and airports and carry on fundamental aircraft research, while leaving manufacturing to private industry. Lower insurance rates covering air transportation also were advocated in the report, which set forth as a primary objective, the development of commercial aviation as an economic service.

J. Walter Drake, assistant secretary of commerce, acted as chairman of the committee, upon which organizations of industrial and of mechanical engineer were represented.

PRICE OF FRENCH FRANC CONTINUES TO DECLINE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5—(AP)—Uneasiness over the unsettled political and financial situation in France today caused heavy selling of French francs, sending the rate tumbling about 13 points to 3.88 cents, a low record unequalled since the "foreign offensive" drove the price down to 3.42 cents in the spring of 1924. On its downward flight the franc sold below the Italian lira which was quoted at 3.93 cents. Some buying support developed late in the day, holding the price around 3.82 cents.

The feeble resistance offered by the French currency to today's selling attack indicated that the exchange was without the support of credit established for the French government by J. P. Morgan & Company, Shortly before his retirement, Finance Minister Caillaux threatened to make use of these funds but with the reorganization of the cabinet, it is believed, that this program was allowed to lapse.

13-YEAR-OLD GIRL TO COOK ONE MEAL AT WHITE HOUSE

MONTPELIER Vt. Nov. 5.—(AP)—Leona, 13 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Baldwin, East Montpelier, left for Washington tonight to become a White House cook—for one meal. A Vermont turkey raised n the Baldwin farm, has been sent to Washington and next Saturday Leona, assisted by 19 other girls, will prepare a turkey dinner to President and Mrs. Coolidge.

SEVEN BANDITS GET $10,000 PAYROLL IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Nov. 5—(A. P.)—Awaiting the departure of the armored car in which a $10,000 payroll had been delivered several armed men this afternoon held up the office staff of the Colwell Steamboat company at Pier 57, North River, and escaped with the money.

DRY LEADERS DISAPPROVE ATTITUDE OF PRESIDENT COOLIDGE ON PROHIBITION

NEW YORK, Nov. 5 (AP)—Twenty leaders of the dry forces, meeting at the Prince George Hotel today, expressed in turn their disapproval of the attitude on prohibition shown by President Coolidge, Secretary Mellon, Governor Smith, Senator Walker, the mayor-elect of New York, and the republican leaders in New York State.

Oliver W. Stewart, president of the flying squadron foundation of Indianapolis, who presided, admonished the speakers to speak from the heart."

Dr. E. O. Dinwiddie, superintendent of the national temperance bureau in Washington, said that President Coolidge could have complete enforcement of prohibition simply by demanding it.

The attack on Secretary Mellon was launched by Dr. Clarence True Wilson, general secretary of the board of temperance of the Methodist Episcopal church.

"We must recognize from the start," he said, "that a liquor dealer is at the head of prohibition enforcement in this country. We are now at a crisis.

Mrs. Ella A. Boole of New York, a worker in the W. C. T. U. said, "everyone knows Senator Walker is leader of the liquor interests."

Declaring he was glad Walker was elected because the Republican candidates "were even less desirable," the Rev. Dr. D. A. Poling of the Marble Collegiate church, New York, attacked the Republican party leaders for "playing fast and loose with the prohibition issue."

The conference then voted to ban reporters from the afternoon session when Lincoln C. Andrews, assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of prohibition, addressed them.

WILLIMANTIC

All stores and business establishments in Willimantic will be closed Armistice day, Wednesday, November 11, according to a vote taken at the meeting of the Willimantic Business Men's association held in the chamber of commerce auditorium Thursday morning. This return to unanimous support is paying deference to the memory of the World War heroes and the significance of Armistice day, is accepted with enthusiasm throughout the community. Last year the stores were closed or opened at will, most of the merchants locking up the doors at noon.

The annual election took place. J. Francis Keon was elected president, succeeding T. Frank Cunningham. Other officers are: Nelson A. Daniels, vice president and Robert A. Newton, secretary-treasurer.

A committee was appointed to cooperate with the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company and other agencies in providing more attractive street decorations during the coming holidays. This committee consists of: John F. Ahern, Ralph U. Wolmer, Nelson A. Daniels, Charles M. Thompson and T. Frank Cunningham with the publicity sub-committee, Harry N. Bigelard and Gerard E. Loisell. This new feature of extra festive lighting and decorations during the holiday season incited applause and promises to be a great attraction to people of the community and residents of surrounding towns.

Haskel Rosen of this city was given judgment to recover $243.03 with costs from James E. Randall, of Mansfield, in satisfaction of a balance for the amount on a bill of $360 for six cows sold the defendant April 4, 1924, at the session of the superior court held in this city Thursday. The case was the only one heard during the day and had been continued from Wednesday.

None of the three cases assigned for Thursday came to trial. The case of Frederick E. Payne vs. Oscar F. Arnio was put over for re-assignment. It was announced that the case of David P. Ahern vs. Cassius A. Barstow in which the plaintiff sought to recover an alleged balance of $286.67 due on contract work, had been settled out of court. The attorneys in the case were Harry S. Gaucher for the plaintiff and W. A. King for the defendant.

The case of Kosma Dubine vs. John Stancask, et al, was re-assigned for Thursday, November 12. Attorney T. J. Kelley, appearing for the defendants stated that his client was employed out of town and that he wished for a continuance until arrangements could be made to have him come here.

Considerable evidence was taken in the case of Haskel Rosen vs. James E. Randall. Randall opened a dairy farm at Scotland in April 1924. In December 1924 he sold out what was left of his stock because the business was a decided failure. He said that the project had failed because of the poor stock which he had purchased from Rosen. He made no denial that he owed Rosen a balance on the stock but pointed out that several of the cows died on his hands from tuberculosis. He alleged misrepresentation of the stock by Rosen and said that the deal was in no way a profitable one to him. He estimated that as a result of the deal with Rosen he lost $500 in having to give up the Scotland farm. For some time since then he has been superintendent of the F. W. Morrow dairy farm at Morrow in the town of Mansfield.

Rosen testified to the sale of the six cows to Randall for a total of $360 with $20 to bind the bargain and the balance to be paid in certain amounts. The conditional bill of sale was drawn up by Attorney H. S. Gaucher. On August 4, the last payment was made leaving a balance due to $243.30. He stated that the cows were as he represented them and Randall expressed no dissatisfaction.

In further testimony Randall stated that one of the cows was a Guernsey which had cost him $100 and which had to be killed by Dr. B. K. Dow when it became very ill. This took place after the matter had been reported to the commissioner of domestic animals. Two Ayrshire cows had cost $60 and $35 respectively. The first died about the middle of August from tuberculosis. The second was guaranteed to calve, but failed to do so. He spent $10 for grain to fatten this cow and later sold the animal for $20. There were also two Jersey cows. One cost $45 and the other $35. The first one had a cough which was pronounced from the beginning of his ownership and was a loss to him. He later sold the second Jersey for $15. When Rosen sold him the sixth cow, a Holstein for $85, he pronounced it O. K. and guaranteed it to calve in short time after the purchase in April. It did not calve until July 1 and it coughed so badly that he sold it for $25.

Roland Randall, son of defendant, testified that the deal occasioned a bad to his father and that Rosen would not make good his representations regarding the herd.

Witnesses heard for the defense were: Morris Glaubinger, W. L. Cleveland, Patrick Sayer, Alonso Warren, Frank Marceau, Wallie Andrecolowski and Louis Roy. All of the witnesses testified that the cows sold to Randall were in sound condition. The attorneys, S. E. Harvey for the plaintiff and W. A. King for the defense agreed not to argue the case and Judge Dickinson rendered judgment for the plaintiff to recover with costs.

GEORGE N. PICHE DIES— WAS A NATIVE OF BALTIC

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 5—George N. Piche, 57, who was believed to be recovering from the effects of inhaling carbon monoxide ejected from his Ford coupe on which he was working, Tuesday night in a closed garage, died at the home of Fortuna Joslie, 66 Jackson street at 3:30 o'clock Thursday morning. Medical Examiner Dr. Louis L. Mason pronounced death due to carbon monoxide poisoning. This is the only fatality of such a nature ever known to have occurred in Willimantic, Tuesday evening. Mr. Piche was seen to enter his garage on Summer street, just off South Park street. Shortly before ten o'clock he had not reappeared and Charles E. Smith, a neighbor went to the garage. When he opened the doors he was confronted with a cloud of smoke. The motor of the machine was running. Mr. Piche was found seated limply on the seat of the car. He was removed from the garage and Russell Hewes notified the police, while others called a doctor. He had rallied Wednesday and relatives felt practically assured of his recovery.

Mr. Piche was born in Baltic, June, 1868, a son of Jeremie and E. St. Onge Piche. He leaves two brothers, William and Joseph Piche and a sister, Mrs. Joseph Handfield all of this city and several nieces and nephews. The body was removed from the Joslie home to the home of Joseph Handfield, 28 Monticello street.

GULDEN'S NEW SALADDRESSING MUSTARD

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

This, it appears, is the open season on hunters. Joseph Cristina, partner in a business enterprise here, complained to the state police that he was deliberately shot at late Wednesday afternoon, while he was crossing fields to the east of Broad street. He supplied the information as to the identity of the man who pumped bullets at him as though he had been unprotected game and declared the man yelled to aim "I got your dog and I'll yet you." It later proved that he did not "get" the dog.

This affair has caused a furore in the ranks of the hunters. There have been various reactions. One hunter said this is not the first time that similar shooting has been done in the territory referred to, and he was inclined to "have the law" on the shooter. Others were not so conservative. "If he ever shoots at me he'll be so damned busy ducking buck shot in about two seconds thereafter that he may get a different view point of shooting at people," declared another hunter, who is of the type to back up what he says.

All of this is cited as indicative of how the hunters have been stirred up by the Cristina incident. Up to early Thursday afternoon no formal complain against the man alleged to have done the shooting had been filed, Prosecuting Attorney Arthur G. Bill said.

One may be expected, however. Court action is regarded as the best way to bring an end to promiscuous shooting at people. A two-man battle might be interesting, but no more legal than pot-shooting on the part of one. There is ample legal machinery to curb reckless use of firearms, especially if that recklessness develop into something more serious than an attempt to frighten people.

Tomorrow (Saturday) the Civic federation will make its annual Tag day effort in Danielson. This is not an innovation. It has become a fixed event for each fall season.

The passing years have served to impress an ever-increasing multitude with the exceptional value of the Civic federation's health service to Danielson and surrounding communities. This health service is made possible and continous largely through the contributions that come in each year on Tag day. In fact, the Tag day receipts are essential to its continuance.

Last year the Tag day receipts were in the neighborhood of $600. It is hoped this figure may be surpassed in Saturday's giving. There is need that it should be, for each year lays a heavier burden of demand upon the resources of the visiting nurses service.

No lengthy appeal for support of the Civic federation Tag day should be necessary in this community. Its record of service to humanity should be sufficient to bring it ample funds. No organization here approximates or attempts to approximate, the service it renders.

Recalling its monthly clinics, free to all sufferers with pulmonary troubles and the opportunity of examination by and advice from an eminent specialist, recalling the house to house visits of its nurse, bringing expert attention and comfort and consolation to the suffering, one should not need urging to give liberally to the Tag day fund.

What you give will make possible the continuance of a great work of mercy. Money cannot be given for a better purpose.

Funeral services for Melvin E. Fisher will be held at his home on Hutchins street this (Friday) afternoon at 2 o'clock.—adv.

There's a change in the statute relative to the collection of personal taxes in Connecticut that brings the matter up for consideration by many people in the immediate future. Heretofore, these taxes have been payable in February. The last legislature changed that arrangement. Personal taxes are now due and payable on November 15.

Attorney Louis A. Wolsard, special tax collector in Killingly, said Thursday that he will begin the collection of these taxes on November 30, and will continue with the work until December 31. Attorney Wolsard has prepared a list of times and places where he may be seen for the payment of personal taxes. On indicated dates he is to be at Attawaugan, Ballouville, Goodyear, Dayville and East Killingly. Pineville also is in the list of places he will visit. At other times he will be available at his office here.

There is no reason why married women, prospective brides and all other women interested in the culinary art should not learn a great deal about this particular branch if they so desire. A free course in cooking has been arranged by the Danielson and Plainfield Gas and Electric company. A lesson is to be given each week from November 17 to December 29. The course is to be conducted by Miss Sylvia Wheelock of Putnam, a graduate expert and capable demonstrator and instructor. There being no charge whatever connected with attendance upon the course, there will be little excuse for any woman who wishes to spend a little time and effort to win of those who are alleged to turn out a place removed from the the list biscuits that would pass muster as window weights or pie crust having greater resistance than bullet-proof glass. The free cooking course will be comprehensive, practical and, withall, strictly modern.

A hot chimney fire—a threatening one—called out the fire department Thursday morning. The blaze was at what is known as the Thomas Day house, owned by Mrs. William Myers, on Mechanic street. The chimney was belching flame and threatening to do serious damage to the dwelling when the firemen went to work. Chemicals were used to extinguish the fire. The damage to the property was practically nothing.

A number from Danielson attended a dance given at Brooklyn on Wednesday evening.

This week having been without storms up to Thursday night, steady progress has been made on state road work being done between this place and Elmville.

Busses to be used through this territory in place of trolley cars are being painted and made ready at New Haven.

CLAIM PHOENIX DIRECTOR WAS NAMED ILLEGALLY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 6—Incident to the appointment, a week ago, of a temporary receiver for the Phoenix Building company in the person of Irving W. Davis, it became known Thursday—known outside the circle of stockholders—that it is held by that minority group of stockholders in whose behalf the temporary receivership was obtained that the board of directors named at the annual meeting of the corporation in September were illegally elected.

The minority stockholders claim that the legally elected board of directors consists of Fannie G. Paine, Attorney Mahlon H. Geissler, Mrs. Grace Wheatley, Charles L. Torrey, Frances P. Palmer (Mystic), Susan B. Smith, Arthur G. Bill.

On the other hand, the contention of the majority stockholders is that the board of directors named at the September meeting consists of E. W. Scott, Jr., L. F. Smith, Attorney Charles L. Torrey, Grace B. Wheatley, F. W. Smith and W. R. Scott.

At the September stockholders' meeting, it is claimed by the minority stockholders, E. W. Scott, Jr., cast 257 votes, representing that number of shares of stock, endorsed as being voted by the estate of E. W. Scott. Mrs. Camilla K. Scott cast 20 additional votes for what may be regarded as the majority stockholders' list of directors. At this meet L. W. Davis, holding proxies for Mrs. Fannie G. Paine aged Attorney Arthur G. Bill cast a total of 108 votes, representing that many shares of stock for the minority stockholders' list of directors-to-be.

The claim of the minority stockholders is that no stock of the Phoenix Building company is held in the name of the Estate of E. W. Scott, and that no stock has been so held for several years, and, further, that E. W. Scott, Jr., had no proxy authorizing him to vote this stock. Therefore, they contend, the 257 for Mr. Scott's list of directors could not be legally counted and that only the 20 shares voted by Mrs. Camille K Scott had standing against the 108 shares of stock voted for the minority list of directors.

Holding that the minority stockholders' list of directors was elected at the meeting, this list of directors has a meeting scheduled for November 14 to elect officers, these to replace offices elected in September by the majority stockholders, directors.

PUTNAM

At the November meeting of the physicians of Putnam and vicinity held at the Day Kimball hospital, tribute was paid to Dr. John Bryden Kent of Putnam, who is soon to retire from the practice of medicine and is to make his home with his son, Dr. James M. Kent at Larchmont, N. Y.

There were 23 doctors present, including Dr. White of Willimantic, president of the State Medical society. After an elaborate turkey dinner, Dr. Overlock, the toastmaster, spoke of the long and useful life of Dr. Kent, both as a physician and a citizen. To have practiced more than half a century in one town and to have retained the respect and affection of its people is a remarkable record, probably not equalled in New England, he declared.

He spoke of their long friendship and of his appreciation of the high ideals that Dr. Kent had always adhered to in the practice of his profession. Dr. White, Dr. Guild, Dr. Judson and Dr. Lamarche all paid similar tribute.

In his reply Dr. Kent expressed his appreciation of the honor paid him, said that he was giving up the active life with regret, and that he would always retain the pleasantest memories of his associates and with the Windham County physicians.

Since 1913 Dr. Kent has been president of the medical staff of the Day Kimball hospital. His resignation was accepted and Dr. Burroughs was elected to succeed him.

The physicians present were: Drs. Judson, Burroughs, Todd, Tanner and Perreault of Danielson, Drs. Simonds, White, Guild and Laura E. Hills of Willimantic, Dr Downing of Moosup, Dr. Gardner of Central Village, Drs. Kent, Overlock, Perry, Bullard, Murphy, Lamarche and Phillips of Putnam, Dr. Pike of Woodstock and Dr. Paine of Thompson.

The November meeting of Elizabeth Porter Putnam chapter, D. A. R. is to be held Monday afternon in Odd Fellows' hall. The speaker will be Frank W. Barber, formerly supervisor of the Rural Schools, now located at Middletown, Conn. His subject will be "Making a Disposition." Mrs. Harriet Cropp and Mrs. Walter W. Wheaton will sing.

The local stores will close at 11 o'clock next Wednesday morning for the balance of the day, in honor of Armistice day and the dedication of the new bridge.

Putnam Odd Fellows went to Danelson this week where they joined with the members of the Danielson Lodge, also with the lodge from Central Village in conferring the second degree on fourteen candidates, eight of them being from Putnam. After the work a social was held. Next Thursday Putnam Odd Fellows will be guests of Granite Lodge, No. 83, of Pascoag, R. I.

On Armistice day, Israel Putnam lodge will have more than 200 in the line of the parade and will keep open house for out of town Odd Fellows.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Dutton of Attleboro, Mass., have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Carpenter of South Main street.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur S. Hardy have closed their home at Woodstock for the winter and will leave soon for California.

The amounts contributed by the different schools to the Old Ironsides fund were as follows:

Putnam High school $23.65; Israel Putnam school $26.63; Smith Street school $6.46; Sawyer district school $2.12; Putnam Heights school $1.50; East Putnam school 75c, total $60.91. Ten essays were submitted in the competition.

Mrs. Ada Clark Alvord, 74, widow of John Alvord, who died at Manchester, Conn., was born in Pomfret and spent her younger days there.

The meeting of Putnam Aerie Order of Eagles was held in Eagles hall on Providence street Thursday evening, November 5 at 8 o'clock. State officers will be present and every member is urged to attend this meeting as plans for Armistice Day must be completed.

The artist Ernest Haskell, killed when his automobile overturned as he was returning to his home at Phoenixburg, at West Point, from New York where he had gone to arrange for a winter exhibition of his paintings, was born in Woodstock, but had made his summer home at West Point for the past fifteen years.

In honor of the birthday of Rev. Charles F. Bedard, St. Mary's parochial school had no afternoon session Tuesday. The children held special exercises.

Mrs. Ann Joslin of East Thompson, 82, is at the Day Kimball hospital with a broken hip, caused by a fall a few days ago.

A. F. Trinder, head of the State Trade school was here Thursday. He thinks the school building here should be enlarged to take care of the long waiting list of those who want to take some of the courses.

The final meeting of the Citizens' committee in charge of the Memorial Bridge dedication will be held this (Friday) evening, at the chamber of commerce rooms.

Radio fans who tune in on Station WEAFF Tuesday will hear Wesley Howard, brother of Byron Howard of this city. Mr. Howard has sung in many concerts in Connecticut especially in Hartford. He was for years a member of the first tenor section of the Hartford Choral Club and was one of the soloists at a concert given at the Foot Guard hall in Hartford last April. He has a rich tenor voice and sings in the male quartette and in the mixed sextette.

Mr. Howard visited his brother the past summer and is well known to many people in the city. He now lives in New York.

FIRE CHIEF AND OTHERS OPPOSE SIX-CAR GARAGE

The meeting of the City Council Wednesday evening was the last one that will be held prior to the biennial election December 7th, the first Monday in December when a mayor, alderman-at-large and two aldermen from each of the four wards will be elected.

All members were present at the meeting at which Mayor Victor Chapdelaine presided. The feature of the meeting was the spirited discussion over the proposed location of a six-car garage in a residential district. The application for a building permit was made by Henry L. Converse who wishes to erect such a structure at No. 60 School street. The granting of the permit was opposed by two residents and property holders of the neighborhood. C. D. Sharpe objected to a six-car garage being located in a residential section, because of its unsightliness, the additional fire hazard that it would create, and the depreciation of the value of houses in the adjacent neighborhood. The size of the proposed building, said Mr. Sharpe, would bring it within ten feet of a tenement.

In answering Mr. Sharpe, plans of the building were submitted by Mr. Converse who said they were designed to make it attractive looking. The lower part he said would be of cement blocks and the top part covered by asbestos sheathing.

Ralph G. Thurston, chief engineer of the fire department was called on for his views. He was opposed to the location of garages in such close proximity to dwellings. He reminded the council that he had advocated the adoption of a building code for a long time, and that would be one of the things that would not be permitted. He said that there was too much laxity here in permitting the erection of buildings which increased the fire hazard, and that inspection of conditions was not as critical as it should be. The matter of granting the permit was left to the highway committee.

Other building permits referred to the highway committee with power to act were: Two story residence on Pleasant street (the rectory of St. Philip's church), a two story garage at 129 Walnut street, the permit asked for by Joseph Tetreault, a two car garage on Buck street, asked, for by Eugene Gagne, a two-car garage at Walnut and Barber streets asked for by A. Benoit, and a two-car garage at 15 Wilkinson street, asked for by William Reardon.

Captain of Police William J. Jarvis reported 20 arrests for October for the following causes: Drunkenness, 17; violation of motor laws, 1; non-support, 1; larceny, 1. Four paid fines and costs amounting to $228.52. Ten were committed to jail, three to the probation officer, one was bound over and three were given over to other officers.

Alderman Ames, chairman of the light committee, reported the need of one light on Gilman street. A motion authorizing the placing of this light was passed. The same committee is to report to the council on the lighting of Pomfret street as the result of a petition for better lighting received from residents and others interested, stating that with the lack of sidewalks improper lighting made this street dangerous.

Upon motoin of Alderman-at-large Richard, Mayor Chapdelaine appointed Alderman Richard, Rogers, Dubois, Ames and Carroll a committee to attend, if found necessary, the hearing on the application for bus permits, to be held by the public utilities commission at Hartford.

The city council was invited to take place in the reviewing stand Armistice Day.

TRANSPORTATION CHANGES

Slowly but surely radical changes are being made in the methods of public transportation. The change has been gradually taking place for a number of years and it is becoming more and more noticeable. According to figures given out by the American Electric Railway association there were 16 railways operating busses in 1921 but last September there were 149 lines operating a total of 4452 motor busses and it might have been added that the number is steadily increasing.

These statistics are for the entire country. What is going on in one section is taking place elsewhere, or bound to come sooner or later. It is cheaper to operate busses than it is to maintain a trolley line with its expensive overhead and it is being found by the railroads that the same situation holds true. The busses are not only replacing the trolleys but in many instances are being operated in place of many short line railroads.

The many petitions for the establishment of bus lines in this state is indicative of the movement. Where cars were being put down, what seems like only a few years ago they are now being abandoned and junked. There is a fewer number dependent upon such public transportation since the day of the automobile and it is necessary for those in the transportation business to cut expenses in every way possible to continue to furnish the service that the public still requires.

This part of the state has witnessed the disappearance of various trolley lines. It has also had a chance to appreciate the wisdom displayed by others in deciding some years ago against certain projected lines. Except in cities the days of the electric lines are numbered and in the cities when it comes to additional service into new territory it can be expected that it will be furnished by bus instead of through an extension of trolley lines.

We are witnessing quite as radical a change today as took place some years ago when the old horse-cars and later the trolleys succeeded to the business of the horse drawn bus lines.

CRIMINAL CARELESSNESS

Shocking was that crossing accident in a Georgia town where a busload of school children was driven in front of a train resulting in the killing of many and the injuring of others.

These children were daily taken to and from school. It was the custom of the driver to cross the railroad track and it is to be supposed that he was normal to the extent of knowing that such places are extremely dangerous.

Apparently it was his custom to have one of the children go ahead and see if any train was coming, and this precaution as the result of a knowledge of danger was apparently being taken on the day of the fatality. At least the child was sent forward, but the bus was not stopped to await his signal. Just why such an effort to ascertain if the road was clear should have been made without waiting to learn the result of the investigation is hard to understand. But inasmuch as the one sent ahead to look was killed, when the bus was struck, it would appear that either the advice given was incorrect or else the bus had failed to stop.

The result was that it became necessary to record a deplorable and unnecessary crossing horror. To say that there was a freight which obscured the sight of the users of the crossing is necessary to say that the common principles of safety, where such a human cargo was involved, were not employed. The presence of such a train should have been cause for additional vigilance. If it had been the practice to be careful there at all, the standing freight called for even greater care that day. It is one thing to be willing to take chances where only the life of the driver is at stake, but when it comes to acting in such a manner when there are the lives of many others involved it is nothing short of criminal carelessness.

There is no question but what there are many crossings which need to be eliminated and more which should have some form of signal but that should not justify the disregard of due care of such places by those who follow the danger and what the penalty may be if safety is disregarded.

THE COMPTROLLER GENERAL

The comptroller general of the United States was vested by congress with unusual authority. He was given broad powers and it was intended that he should act as a check upon practices which were conducive to waste regarding the finances of the country. He was expected to maintain a close check upon the expenditures.

Clearly it is an office which might easily be administered in one manner by one individual and in another by someone else. Much depends upon the manner in which the duties of the office are interpreted. John R. McCarl was named to the office and his term is for 15 years, which means that unless there is cause for removal he can be expected to have his influence felt over a long term of years and not be subjected to interruptions and changes just because administrations might change.

Comptroller McCarl has taken his responsibilities seriously. He has placed interpretations upon the job given him which have aroused considerable opposition. But being a power unto himself he has remained adamant and it must be said he hasn't tried to duck anything. The result has been that appeals have been taken in three instances at least to the courts in an effort to find out whether it was the intention and right of congress to confer upon him the authority which he maintained it had.

By decisions rendered he has been upheld in two instances but the decision in the third case was adverse. In this adverse decision the court declared that he could not cut the wages of any government officer, that such authority rests with congress and that the exercise of such authority as he undertook would have made him stand in the position of being judge, jury and executioner. According to the court, his interpretation of authority gave him more power than congress or the Constitution conferred upon the president.

The question of what is expected of the comptroller and how far his authority extends according to the desires of congress bids fair to come up for a clearer definition at the coming session.

CHILDREN AND FIRES

The finding of the body of a five year old child in the street at Athol, Mass., charred from head to foot tells the tragic story of what threatens many others in playing with fire or about bonfires.

There was an attempt on the part of the child to burn leaves or to play in a fire where leaves were being burned. If it was a case of starting the fire she had experienced no difficulty. Her trouble came when the flames caught her clothing and she was powerless to check them. Burns which resulted in her death were the result.

Like the frequent reports of automobile accidents, drowning accidents, shooting cases while playing with firearms and many other instances with fatal outcomes like skating on thin ice or climbing to places of danger, this Athol case illustrates the importance of keeping children out of harm's way. It calls for a continual insistence upon the need of care on the part of children. It is not enough for parents to expect one warning to be sufficient for all time. There are some who think that the only way to teach their children to swim is to throw them overboard and make them take care of themselves. Such treatment may succeed in some cases. There are undoubtedly many who can lay claim to having been the victim under such conditions, but it cannot be said to be a policy which most people would adopt or one which ought to be generally applied.

Playing with fire has resulted in too many instances in quick and terrible consequences and every instance should serve as a glaring example of what ought not to be. It is the season of the year when many should bear this case in mind.

FRANCE'S DUTY

France has plenty of problems to wrestle with without having the situation in Syria added to them. It has acted promptly in recalling General Sarrail and the effect of that will not be lost. But it still faces the necessity of overcoming the disturbed state of affairs and reestablishing peace and good feeling where a troublesome condition now prevails. France is experiencing serious difficulty with its mandates in both Morocco and Syria at the same time.

Whether the situation at Damascus was as bad as painted, it unquestionably is serious enough and there appears to be no certainty that the French have the unruly element sufficiently well in hand to have others feel that there will be adequate protection furnished to the nationals of other countries.

The shelling of Damascus was done in order to frighten the rioting and rebelling tribesmen. That they should have been allowed to get into a section of the city where they found sympathy and encouragement indicates the seriousness of the situation. Drastic measures may have been required but it was a case of going too far, and it is inevitable that it should be brought up now that protests had been made some months ago about the manner in which the high commissioner in Syria was directing affairs.

However much France might like to escape this new and bothersome situation it must give to it its most careful attention. It must make the best of the situation and hasten to make up for the bad judgment displayed by its representative in that mandated territory.

EDITORIAL NOTES

There were many entries in the also ran class in the Boston election.

Whether the candidate wins or loses he invariably has an explanation.

No one will berate November if it condescends to show a bit of leniency weatherwise to the coal consuming public.

Even now there are probably those who are kicking themselves for not having gone to the polls Tuesday and helped to do things differently.

There are probably those who only await the suggestion to start a public subscription to give "Dutch" Anderson a big and auspicious funeral.

Some one exclaims that there's no such thing a as popular tax. Perhaps not, but from the way in which taxation is pushed up in Norwich it cannot be considered unpopular.

THE BLIND SPOT

"You can't tell a girl who's real from the girl who's a silly goose," sighed the young college instructor feelingly. "I thought at one time that I could size 'em up pretty well, but I'll be jiggered if I know where I'm at these days."

"You're learning as you grow older," his roommate encouraged him. "If you live long enough you may come to the conclusion that it's a waste of so-called brains to worry about them at all."

"That's all very well for you, now you're engaged to a girl like Alice," said the young instructor. "But I am still wandering around looking for a home, and it makes me crazy to note the sort we get introduced to."

"What, may I ask, has happened to you lately?" inquired the sympathetic roommate. "It seems to me it was only a short while ago that you were raving over that quiet Miss What's-her-name you met at Prexy's. As I remember you hadn't enough adjectives to describe her, then."

"She's just the trouble," said the young instructor with another and deeper sigh. "You see, I've thought a lot about this getting married business and I decided long ago that I'd have to be very careful about the sort of girl I married. I don't intend to remain an instructor all my days and I might even rise to be a president of a small college if I had the right kind of wife—you know—gracious and all that and well-dressed."

"The well-dressed part will depend on your salary, I'll bet," said the sympathetic roommate, "unless you pick out a rich girl."

"Oh, I should never do that!" exclaimed the young instructor. "I may be careful to an extreme, but I'm not mercenary, I hope. It was only that after I had met this girl I began to take notes on the sort she seemed to be, and the more I saw of her the more certain I was that she would be a perfect wife for a college professor, a great help in his rise in the profession."

"I suppose I went about it the wrong way," said the sympathetic roommate mockingly. "I wasn't thinking about getting married at all and then I met Alice and I stopped thinking about anything but what she thought of me. I couldn't rest until I found out where I stood and that's all there was to it. I see now that I should have inquired into all her ideas and manners and been extremely sensible about it. However, it's too late."

"I guess you are poking fun at me," said the young instructor. "And I suppose I deserve it in a measure, but the truth is there wasn't much of a joke about it to me, just hard work. You see, I watched everything she did, the table manners she had, the way she treated servants at the cafe, the way she spoke to salespersons, the kindness she had for animals and old people and how she recited in class. I managed, with a good deal of work, to study her in all sorts of situations without her knowing there was a soul noticing her.

"Why, I even asked agents how she treated them when they asked her to buy books or subscribe to magazines, and that sort of thing.

"I asked one of the girls who knows her a lot of questions about what she was like when alone with girls and, believe me, the sendoff that girl gave her was a wonder.

"I was very discreet about my inquiries, of course, and she never dreamed that I was asking for any particular reason, I told her I was thinking of writing a thesis on the modern woman and I liked to study different types of girls for that reason."

"You certainly were thorough," laughed the sympathetic roommate. "I can't see how you fell down on a single thing. What went wrong?"

"Something I never thought of," groaned the young instructor. "It never entered my head. When I finally decided that she was quite all right for almost any position to which I might rise, I asked her to marry me, and she almost took my breath away by her answer. She said she liked me all right, but she was going to be married to a farmer on a ranch away out west. What do you think about that?"—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Save George Washington's Boyhood Home

Mr. Editor: Why this rich and patriotic country allows Washington's boyhood home to languish in obscurity, is a cause for wonder. Especially now when the approaching 200th anniversary of Washington's birth brings to the fore anything pertaining to the Father of His Country.

Last winter I found Washington's boyhood home, "Pine Grove farm," on the Rappahannock River near Fredericksburg, Va. George Washington was taken there when only about 4 years old, from his birthplace at Wakefield, Va. At Pine Grove, George's father died when George was only 11. Mary Washington lived there 39 years. There the Washington children grew up. George himself dwelt there till he was about 19. For many years he owned this farm, the only Washington property today still in private hands.

Centers of great interest at Pine Grove are the pasture where George killed his mother's scrub colt; the old ferryhouse still standing; the original brick foundations of the Washington home, the spring where George drank as a boy; the ancient survey-office where he studied for Lord Fairfax's employ; the spot where he threw the dollar across the river; and most important of all, a scion of the original and immortal cherry-tree. Enough of value, surely, so that any other civilized country would make such a place a national shrine.

J. B. Colbert, owner of the farm—which he operates as a dairy—claims that birds eat cherries from his other trees, but never touch any from the George Washington cherry-tree. As a historical curio, this tree surpasses almost anything I have ever seen. The whole farm is rich in lore and reminiscence of Washington. It lies on the famous "King's highway," Washington from Washington city to Wakefield, the birthplace. The centennial committee is now planning to make this highway a 60-foot concrete tourist route, to be called the George Washington Memorial road. This road passes directly throughout the farm. Strange, that nothing is done to preserve and restore the farm, itself! Cows and pigs still wander free over acres made sacred by intimate association with George Washington's boyhood and youth.

The whole place is of intense interest to all patriots and lovers of history. Why some promoter does not see its immense value as a show-place, or why some patriotic individual or society does not make it a national shrine, is a profound mystery.

The venerable buildings used by Washington should be saved and restored. They are rotting away, and are in constant danger of fire. In this patriotic and immensely wealthy country, it is a sad fact that George Washington's boyhood home is allowed thus to languish neglected and forsaken. Can nothing be done about it?

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Dr. Henry Suzzallo, in whose honor a banquet is to be given in Seattle tonight to celebrate the completion of his tenth year as president of the University of Washington, is 50 years old and a native of California. He began his career as a student in the California State Normal school and Stanford University, continued it at the Teachers college of Columbia University, New York city, and then went back to California to hold many positions in the schools as principal, inspector, lecturer at normal schools and at teachers' conferences, including instruction at Columbia University, at Yale, and at the University of California. In 1925 he accepted his present post, and has won a place in the State of Washington and in the Pacific Northwest that makes him one of the leaders in civic life in a region of vast potentiality for national wealth and democratic idealism.

From Small Beginnings

Charles H. Parkhurst, the Great Preacher

One of the New York city clergymen who has most sincerely wished to do good for the city, and who has most boldly attacked evil wherever he has found it, is Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst. That man who took his character and his life in his hands and investigated the evil conditions of the great metropolis during its worst days, and thereby led to great reforms, is a self-made man.

Dr. Parkhurst was born in New England, in a home where learning and character were both respected. His father was a man of good education and a teacher. The family was not rich, and every member of the household had to play a helpful part. By teaching and by occasional work on farms in the busy haying seasons, Dr. Parkhurst's father was able to give his son a good start in the schools, but there came a time when the boy had to go to work as a clerk in a store. There he worked faithfully for two years, and then set about raising a college education. At the age of 24 he gained his degree from Amherst college, and again looked about him for work. For four years he acted as head of the Amherst High school, at that time a small village institution. He did excellent work, studied a little abroad and moved to a higher teaching position. After some years of teaching he studied further in German universities and then left the teaching profession for the ministry.

His powerful preaching in his first pulpit in Massachusetts made for him a reputation that led to his coming to New York City at the age of 38. As pastor of the Madison Square Presbyterian Church he at once attracted attention. He attacked wrong so fearlessly that he was made president of the Society for the Prevention of Crime. With unusual courage and skill in the collecting of evidence, he exposed much political corruption and made his work lead to a legislative investigation of the New York city police department. His revelations were such that they led to the reorganization of the police department and to the defeat of the Tammany Hall ticket in 1894.

In the years that followed, Dr. Parkhurst has continued to uphold right living. He has written frequently for daily papers, and has made himself a great power for good. His boyhood training in hard work has led to a life of hard work, fearlessly carried on.

Stories That Recall Others

Didn't Make Much Difference

Two hunters boarded the trolley and took seats opposite an observant patron. They were noticeable "likkered" and the heat of the car made them drowsy. Suddenly one roused and turned to his companion:

"Shim, is this the 5:30 'r the 7:30 car, d' y'r suppose?"

A moment's pause. The companion and wisely said:

"Musht be."

Washington Pie

He was extremely fond of Washington pie, which is in reality, a sort of layer cake with a sugared frosting and a separating the two layers, a whipped cream concoction, vanilla flavored.

When the time came he ordered a cut of the pie. When the waiter brought it to him he immediately ordered him to take it back because the pie had a chocolate separator.

"Why that isn't 'Washington pie,'" said the man.

"It is so," replied the waiter.

"Don't contradict me," said the connoisseur, "I know 'Washington pie' when I see it."

"But I tell you it is 'Washington pie,'" said the waiter.

"Well I don't want 'Booker T.'" said the man. "Take it back and bring me 'George.'"

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

GARDA

Evidence that the Italian Lake Garda had developed a tide recently mystified the natives and tourists frequenting this famous body of water. At regular intervals a rise and fall of more than a foot was registered. Investigation disclosed that the difference in level was probably caused by gaseous springs in the bottom of the lake, because as the tide receded great portions of the surface were covered with fine bubbles.

"To those who know it, however, Garda is a lake of many moods," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society. "It is as changeable and varied as the wealth of subtropical vegetation that clothes its encircling mountains and valleys. Twice a day, with more regularity than the lake steamers, comes the refreshing 'ora,' or lake breeze, ruffling the cobalt blue of the waters and tempering the heat of the sun. Sometimes storms whip the surface into whitecapped rollers and Garda is as rough as the sea.

"Most of the yearly host of visitors, however, carry back with them indelible visions of a great inland sea set in a background of enchanting beauty. The southern shores are flat and low, sloping easily back from the water line to the sunbaked and fertile valley of the Po. As the lake narrows toward the north, first the Alpine hills, and then the higher spurs of the Alps fold in upon it. The upper reaches are like a Norwegian fiord, with precipitous cliffs and deep, quiet waters.

"Garda is Italy's largest lake and, with the exception of Geneva and Constance, is unsurpassed in size in the Alpine region. It is about 32 miles long, but varies in width from 3 miles to 11 miles, being gourd-shaped with a long narrow neck running into the outposts of the Tyrolese Alps.

"In many respects it is more like a small inland sea than a lake. Its deep blue coloring is like that of the Mediterranean and, unlike its sister Lombardian lakes, it has real sailboats with two masts, their brown and yellow sails contrasting prettily with the blue water and the green background of the hills. Over the surface of Garda hangs a heavy haze at times, confirming the resemblance to the sea. In the winter months gulls enliven the water front with their sharp cries.

"Lake Garda was once an important link in the trade route between Verona and Trent, but the construction of the railroad up the nearby and more direct Adige valley has left the lake again the quiet dwelling place of beauty of which poets, even as far back as Roman days, have sung. Garda has shared with Como the attention of poets and writers of every age.

"For many years two flags ruled its waves, the northern tip and the city of Riva lying in Austria, Garda was thus a sort of debatable region of romance, where Latin and Teuton touched elbows, and the picturesque gunboats of the customs officers waged an unceasing war against more picturesque smugglers. Since the World war the lake and the surrounding country have been Italian.

"Today lemons, citrons, olives, oranges and grapes share with tourists the honor of being the principal 'industry.' Along the sheltered west shore, or Riviera as it is called, the lemon plantations scale the steep slopes of the hillsides, backed by stone walls for protection against the chilling winter winds. Tall, fragrant laurel trees, and gloomy cypress and pine, mix their foliage with sub-tropical palms, yuccas, magnolias and aloes, while the plateaus above are streaked with barbaric reds and yellows—truly a paradise for the naturalist and the artist.

"No less colorful and interesting are the many little towns that border the lake. Salo, the main port on the west coast, runs riot in color. The houses are painted to look like wallpaper. The pinks, greens, yellows, and blues of the walls and the inevitable red tile roofs of these swallow-like homes perched on the hillsides can only be matched by the fringes of family washings, in as many colors, that flutter in the breeze at the water front.

"Nearly at the head of the lake is the little village of Limone, which, it might reasonably be supposed, was so named because of its large production of lemons. The story is really the reverse, for it is said that the fruit derived its name from this little town, being the first place they were grown in Europe. Riva, at the northern tip, is set in the pit of a towering amphitheater of mountains and is the principal tourist resort. Nearby, at Torbole, Goethe wrote the first of his 'Iphigenie' in 1786. Since that time the district has been a favorite winter resort for wealthy Germans and Austrians.

"Running boldly into the center of the southern part of the lake is the narrow peninsula of Sirmione, once a resort of wealthy Romans. A short distance south of the lake is the Tower of San Martino, a lofty stone memorial which commands a sweeping view of the great southern end. It commemorates the victory of the French and Italians over Austria, at Solferino in 1859.

"At the effluent, the southeast corner, is Peschiera, with extensive ancient fortifications. The city, once a corner of the celebrated Austrian 'quadrilateral,' has always been important in a military and strategic sense. Along its waterfront are many gondola-like boats, showing the lingering influence of the time when this was part of the great maritime republic of Venice.

"Tides or changes or level in fresh-water lakes are not unusual. A phenomenon has been observed on Lake Geneva, and on other lakes also, which is known in Switzerland as 'Seiches.' These are fluctuations in the level of the water and are caused by sudden alteration in the atmospheric pressure. 'Seiches' runs both longitudinally and transversely, and the highest on record is said to be six feet."

A motorist, finding a woman's handbag on the road near Blackburn, England, opened it in search of an address. His investigation uncovered one live frog, one set of false teeth, three stuffed cats, one powder puff, 33 cigarettes, one mascot dog, three Japanese rings, seven lace handkerchiefs and one French copper coin.

Sleep Adds Years to Your Life

Now Preparation Gives it to You

The most wearing-out process which could afflict a person is that which is caused by lack of sleep. Fitful, insufficient slumber tears the nervous system to pieces and causes much of the weakness, irritability and susceptibility to disease which is often blamed on other causes.

Lack of sleep ages one, destroys beauty and certainly shortens your life. And yet it is so easy to have the deep refreshing slumber of childhood.

A sleep that will make you feel like a new person and add five years to your life—a slumber that will banish the "blues" and give you the strong, healthy nerves which mean a sunshiny, cheerful outlook on life. And you can get all these benefits from a new, harmless, easy-to-take preparation called Neurs.

Neurs contains no opiates or habit-forming drugs. The results from the use of Neurs have been so remarkable, however, that it is now dispensed by Lee & Osgood Co. and druggists everywhere with a guarantee to return the small cost if you are not pleased and delighted with the results from the use of the very first package. Get a good night's sleep tonight by taking Neurs today.

FUNERALS

Mrs. John R. Bowman

Thursday morning at 8:30 the funeral of Mrs. John R. Bowman was held from her home, No. 25 Greene avenue. At 9 o'clock in St. Patrick's church, the rector, Rt. Rev. M. H. May was celebrant of a solemn requiem mass, Rev. Felix J. O'Neill, of Stafford Springs being deacon, Rev. John J. Reilly sub-deacon and Rev. Myles P. Galvin master-of-ceremonies.

The honorary bearers who were neighbors and intimate friends, stood in open ranks as the body was borne into the church by the active bearers, Frank L. Farrell, M. J. Cosgoran, John R. Turrant, Dr. John W. Callahan and Charles W. Cassidy of Norwich, and Dr. Frank M. Dunn, of New London. The honorary bearers were Henry H. Gallup, Michael C. Higgins, Alexander Jordan, William P. McGarry, Courtland Whitehead, Richard M. Powers, and John W. Burke of Norwich, James Smith and Clarence Palmer of Willimantic.

In the large assemblage at the church among others were the members of Sigma Sorority of Norwich Free Academy, the majority of the young ladies being pupils of Miss Alma M. Bowman.

The music of the mass was by Henry J. LaFontaine, who among other interludes gave "Abide With Me" with the chimes.

Mr. Fontaine, with Roderick F. Sullivan and Frank R. Murdy sang the Gregorian mass. At the offertory Mr. Sullivan sang "Pie, Jesu," and following the final absolution Mr. Fontaine gave "When Evening Comes," the beautiful composition, words and music of Rev. Felix J. O'Neill, of Stafford Springs, the deacon of the mass. The waiting hymn, by Frank R. Murdy was Marston's "Thy Will be Done."

Monsignor May gave the final absolution, Father Galvin reading in English the epistle of the mass for the dead, which had earlier been sung in Latin I. The asalonians 4.13-27 and the gospel, John II, 21-27, also the collect and prayers.

Burial was in the Seamons family plot in Yantic cemetery, where Monsignor May blessed the grave and read the committal prayers and psalms. Rev. Father O'Neill joining in the responses. A pall of rosebuds chrysanthemums and ferns covered the casket.

Friends and relatives were in attendance from New Haven, Waterbury, Willimantic, New London, and other cities. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Shea & Burke.

Byron H. Evans

Funeral services for Byron Howard Evans, were held Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock, from his late home 24 Court street. In the very large attendance were out of town relatives from Boston, Worcester, Bridgeport, Windham and New London. A large delegation of Norwich undertakers was also present, each firm being represented by one or more members. Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the United Congregational church, officiated. A profusion of beautiful floral pieces bore silent testimony of the esteem in which Mr. Evans was held by his many friends and fellow associates. The bearers were his brother-in-law, Adrian Vander Pyl of Worcester, and these close friends, George G. Grant, of Taftville, Arthur F. Wyman, Edward Crowell, Herbert W. Gallup, and Arad Manning.

Burial was in the family plot in Yantic cemetery, where Rev. Mr. Abbott conducted the committal service. The Henry Allen and Son Co., with which Mr. Evans had been associated for a number of years, was in charge of the arrangements.

Mrs. Charles H. Leffingwell

Funeral services for Mrs. Charles H. Leffingwell were held Thursday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from the parlors of Church and Allen, 15 Main street, many relatives and friends attending. The floral tributes were most numerous and beautiful.

The service was conducted by Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the Central Baptist church, who also conducted the committal service at the grave in Yantic cemetery. Friends were bearers.

Mrs. Effie E. Dewey

Final tribute to the memory of Mrs. Effie E. Dewey was paid by relatives and friends Thursday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock, when funeral services were held at the home of her sister, Mrs. C. E. Stark of 103 Cliff street. The floral tributes were testimonials of estate from her many friends.

Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the Central Baptist church, conducted the service. Burial was in Maplewood cemetery, where the committal service was read by Rev. Dr. Pitt. The bearers were Guy B. Dolbeare, P. Austin Linton, Chief George Linton, of the Norwich police department; Edward Jewett, Edward T. Messinger and Ernest Nickerson. Arrangements were by Henry Allen & Son company.

AUTO STRUCK WAGON ON NORWICH-WESTERLY ROAD

While driving towards this city on the Norwich-Westerly road Thursday night Ernest Zachae of 17 Pratt street ran into a farmer's wagon with his automobile and his machine then left the road and ran off a bank.

PLEAS TAKEN IN CASES BEFORE CRIMINAL COMMON PLEAS

Twenty-four cases were disposed of before Judge Charles B. Waller in the court of common pleas which opened its criminal term in New London Thursday. The court recessed until Tuesday when it will again convene there with a jury for trials scheduled.

The case of the state against Mrs. Antoinette Alfiero of New London, which has been pending for more than a year since she was convicted for a violation of the liquor law, was nolled upon the recommendation of Prosecuting Attorney Charles B. Whittlesey.

A continuance was granted in the case of Andrew Clendenning of Norwich, charged with violation of the liquor law, the defendant not being able to be present.

Bozrah Case Nolled

In the case of Samuel Sherbinski of Bozrah, charged with breach of the peace, Prosecuting Attorney Whittlesey said that the case had been continued for some time and recommended that in view of the fact that there had been no further trouble in the affair, which resulted from a neighborhood row, it be nolled. The court so ordered.

The case of Joseph Zdancewics of Norwich, charged with non-support, was continued, Attorney Whittlesey stating that the accused was now paying his wife weekly sums and divorce proceedings were pending.

A continuance was also granted in the case of William S. Young, charged with violating the motor vehicle law. The case is pending in the superior court.

The case of Fred W. Wenzel, charged with non-support, was nolled upon recommendation of the prosecuting attorney.

Bonds were called in the case of John D. Anderson of Lyme, charged with a violation of the motor vehicle law. Walter Havens was surety on the bond and the case was settled for $100.

The case of James Barry, charged with breach of the peace, was nolled on the payment of $41.80. Barry, who is from this city, recived a fine of $25 in the lower court.

A nolle was entered in the case of Jerry Bonney, charged with intoxication and breach of the peace. The prosecuting attorney said that a physician had claimed that Bonney at the time was not intoxicated.

Protest Too Strong Against Officer

The case of Victoria Burba, of Colchester, was nolled on the payment of $10. According to the prosecuting attorney, the woman, who was charged with resisting an officer, did not seriously resist but protested a little too strongly when a constable, who attached certain property at her home, was obliged to attach a horse and wagon which she was about to use.

Joseph Bulska of Norwich received a fine of $50 and costs on a charge of receiving stolen goods. A similar charge which was placed against his wife, Ann, was nolled. Prosecuting Attorney Whittlesey said that in the lower court the accused was fined $25 and given 30 days in jail but then it was alleged that cloth to the value of $145 had been stolen from the United States Finishing Co. Since, according to the prosecutor, but $20 worth of cloth could be traced to the accused.

A nolle was entered upon the payment of $66.51, in the case of William Clark of Salem, charged with violating the motor vehicle law. It was brought out that the accused was driving a motor truck for a concern in Hartford, when he was arrested charged with reckless driving. He was found guilty in a justice court and fined $50 and costs.

The case of Alexandris Haddad, of this city, was nolled on payment of $10. He was charged with breach of the peace.

Is Fined $100.

George Cyr of Lisbon was fined $100, charged with violation of the motor vehicle law. The prosecuting attorney stated that Cyr was operating under the influence of liquor when arrested and was given the same fine in the lower court. It was brought out that the man had been but slightly under the influence and knew what he was doing. The attorney for the accused stated that a physician had declared his client not under the influence, although he had previously taken one drink.

A nolle was entered in the case of Angus McNeil of Norwich, charged with non-support when the prosecutor said that the man and his wife were now living together.

The case of Ruby Parker, charged with violating the dog law, wherein her dog had been caught without a license, was nolled when it was brought out that the dog was registered.

Pokutny Was Suicide

The case of Sam Pokutny of Taftville was nolled. Pokutny, who was charged with assault, Wednesday killed Joseph Pisarko and then shot himself.

A fine of $100 and 10 days in jail was meted out to George Chermerinski of Colchester charged with violation of the liquor law on Aug. 15.

The case of Vincent Jones of North Stonington, charged with breach of the peace, was nolled. The cases of Leonard Main and Leonard R. Main of the same place charged with the same offense were also nolled. The three charges grew out of an encounter which followed a dispute over a certain right of way on land of Jones. It was stated by the prosecutor, and the nolles were recommended because the three accused are about to have the matter decided in a civil case.

Nolled on Payment

The case of Anton Meuglen, charged with violation of the motor vehicle law was nolled upon the payment of $25.

John H. Quinn of New London, charged with transporting and with selling liquor pleaded not guilty on both counts and elected to be tried by a jury.

Stanley Stephanski of East Lyme pleaded not guilty to violating the dog law, wherein he was alleged to have owned a dog over six months old which was not licensed. He elected to be tried by the court.

ROUND TABLE MEETINGS OF SPECIAL INTEREST

Members of Norwich Round Table are finding this winter's program especially interesting.

The opening meeting, held at the country home of Edward H. Carpenter at Lebanon, gave a good indication of the pleasure in store for members as the season advances.

At the second meeting, held at Norwich Town chapel, the hostesses were Miss Jennie L. Congdon and Miss Bessie Grandi and at this gathering, also, the exercises were very pleasing.

The third meeting was at home of Mrs. George L. Carey and Miss Fisher, 63 Williams street, a feature being two scholarly papers by Rev. Allen Shaw Bush, of Gales Ferry and Rev. A. N. Foster, pastor of the Church of the Good Shepherd, the topic treated being "Modern Government."

The roll call was on living American statemen, the quotations being apt and clever. Mrs. H. S. Blackmar gave the book review, of the Life of Lincoln. The musical portion of the evening included the skilled interpretation of Horatio Parker's music, by Miss Caroline Freeman of Gales Ferry, also several delightful solos sung by Arthur R. Blackledge, which were greatly appreciated by his listeners.

FIRE ON ROOF AT MAPLE STREET HOUSE

A bell alarm and two telephone calls gave the fire department a busy day Thursday. The first call was a bell alarm about noon from box 15, rung in by Orrin Hertz, for a fire in the house at No. 12 Maple street owned by Thomas McMahon and occupied by Clarence E. Swain. The fire was on the roof and it is thought was caused by a cigarette or cigar dropped there by men who had just finished work on the chimney.

The flames ate their way through a portion of the roof into a blind attic which made it a hard fire to get at. One bedroom was practically gutted by the fire. Two lines of hose were laid and the blaze extinguished after a hard fight. The damage amounted to several hundred dollars.

At 12.38 o'clock a telephone call was received for a bad grass fire on a lot in the rear of Pare street. The fire was extinguished with brooms and water tanks.

At 2.11 o'clock another telephone call was received for a fire on the same lot. The blaze proved to be a grass fire which was extinguished without any loss.

INVITED TO CHURCH FOR ARMISTICE SUNDAY

At a meeting attended by 160 members of the Central Baptist church held Thursday evening a cordial invitation was extended to the American Legion including the Woman's auxiliary and the Veterans of Foreign wars to attend the Armistice day Sunday service in the church in the evening at 7:30 o'clock. A section of the church will be reserved for these organizations. A feature of the service will be an address by Mrs. Nathan Gilman, president of the Bozrahville council of Catholic Women, who will tell her audience what the Jewish women are doing to interest her race in the world court. The speaker will be introduced by Max Hanover.

CATHOLIC WOMEN'S CLUB HOLDS MONTHLY MEETING

The regular monthly meeting of the Catholic Women's club was held Thursday afternoon in the Ladies of Columbus rooms. Owing to the recent death of a relative of the president, Mrs. Daniel Mcgillicuddy, she was unable to attend the meeting so that Mrs. Nelson Disco, vice-president, conducted the business. The regular monthly business was transacted, and arrangements for the December Christmas sale was completed.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Maurice Kelly and Mrs. Thomas O'Rourke.

TWO MEN HURT WHEN AUTOMOBILE TURNS OVER ON CURVE IN LISBON

Waino Lehtiaen, No. 88 North street Greenwich, and Earl Leino of Norwich avenue Taftville, both Finlanders, miraculously escaped death when the Dodge touring car in which they were riding upset in Lisbon, while rounding a dangerous curve near the Newent church at an alleged high rate of speed about 12.15 o'clock this morning. The machine bore Connecticut markers, N-9916 and after the accident a set of New York number plates was found inside the wrecked car.

The driver and his passenger were headed towards Norwich and while rounding the long curve about 100 feet north of the Newent church, the driver evidently lost control of the car. Marks in the road showed that the driver had started to set his brakes about 100 feet from the spot where the car swerved from the road, over a slight embankment and upset in the yard of a farm house. The machine turning completely around and then turned over on its left side.

Both the driver and his passenger were thrown from the machine, one of the men, evidently the driver being pinned down by the running board. The other man was thrown free from the wrecked car. Neighbors and others who happened along freed the pinned man and laid him on the car seat while awaiting the arrival of the ambulance, a hurry telephone call having been sent in to the Backus hospital. The ambulance arrived shortly after the accident and the injured men were taken to the hospital.

In the overturned machine were found a set of New York state markers, 1925 issues. The numbers on the New York markers were 2V-2890. No registration, either Connecticut or New York could be located in the machine.

A 30 gallon barrel, evidently containing cider, was thrown out of the machine and the contents spilled in the yard. The barrel was evidently in the tonneau of the car. The top of the machine was folded back which fact probably saved the two men from being crushed to death.

All four tires on the car were found intact. The left side of the machine suffered considerable damage, the running board and mudguards being smashed. The windshield was smashed and the steering gear was evidently put out of commission. Those who saw the machine a few minutes after the accident found that the emergency brake had not been set, this giving rise to the theory that the machine was moving so rapidly that the driver did not have time to set the brake before the car swerved from the road.

The state police at the Groton police barracks were notified of the accident.

The driver and his passenger were headed towards Norwich and while rounding the long curve about 100 feet north of the Newent church, the driver evidently lost control of the car. Marks in the road showed that the driver had started to set his brakes about 100 feet from the spot where the car swerved from the road, over a slight embankment and upset in the yard of a farm house. The machine turning completely around and then turned over on its left side.

Lehtiaen is thought to have been the driver as an operator's license bearing the name of Waino Lehtiaen, No. 88 North street, Greenwich, was found in his clothing at the hospital. His injuries consisted principally of a badly sprained ankle. It was at first thought that his leg had been broken.

Leino objected to receiving treatment at the hospital and became so unruly that an officer was requested from police headquarters to take the man in charge. He was sent after and given a ride to police headquarters where he gave his name as Earl Leino, exhibited a New York state driver's license, said he was living on Norwich avenue, and that he was employed by the Texas company in this city.

His left eye was entirely closed and he had a large lump on the left side of his face. Otherwise he was apparently uninjured. As he displayed no signs of intoxication he was allowed to go after being questioned by the police. Although the lump on the side of his face was bad enough to warrant hospital treatment for the average man, Leino said it was "nothing" and that he had received a worse lump than that from Bill Brenpan.

He said that when Bill Brennan, the pugilist whom Jack Dempsey knocked out, hit him he didn't know anything for three days. He claims to have been a flier in the World war and also to have been a motorcycle policeman in Finland 15 years ago and exhibited what was purported to be a Finnish operator's license. He disclaimed any knowledge of a barrel having been in the machine when it upset.

DIPHTHERIA CARRIERS ARE FOUND AMONG CHILDREN

Eighteen diphtheria carriers have been found recently in a Connecticut town by cultures taken among school children on account of the presence of diphtheria in the school. In reporting these carriers the health officer makes the following comment:

"Ten of these 18 cases reported were carriers one year ago. I find a pathological condition in either nose or throat such as enlarged tonsils, adenoids or deflected septum or other nasal obstruction."

This is in accord with what has long been known concerning diphtheria carriers, namely that persons who are carriers often have some diseased condition of the nose or throat that may favor the growth there of diphtheria germs. It appears that about the only effective treatment for the diphtheria carrier state is treatment directed to clearing up any diseased conditions that may be found in the nose or throat. From the information furnished by this local health office it would appear worth while to provide proper treatment for a diseased condition of the nose or throat or any child who becomes a diphtheria carrier in order that such child may not be so likely to become a carrier again at a later date.

OBITUARY

Miss Anna Gertrude Driscoll

The death of Miss Anna Gertrude Driscoll, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Driscoll of 45 Uncas street, occurred Wednesday night at the Hartford hospital following an operation for appendicitis performed last Saturday.

Miss Driscoll was born in Norwich August 22, 1889. She received her education in local schools and for many years was one of the popular clerks at the Porteous & Mitchell company. She was a member of St. Patrick's parish and was an active worker in the Catholic Ladies of Columbus and Children of Mary society. She was a young woman of pleasing character devoted to her family and friends, and in her death her family has sustained a severe loss and her friends a loving companion.

Surviving besides her parents are three brothers, Thomas J. Driscoll of Norwich, Rev. Alfred Driscoll of St. Augustine church, Bridgeport; and Dr. Jerome J. Driscoll of St. Francis hospital, Hartford, and three sisters, Sadie A. Marguerite E. and Catherine, all of Norwich.

Mrs. Frederick Dombroski

The life of Mrs. Anna Dombroski widow of Frederick Dombrowski came to a peaceful close at 12 n. m. Thursday at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Macht of Occum.

She was born in Berlin, Germany, July 29, 1852. In Berlin April 17, 1875 she was married to Frederick Dombrowski. To this union nine children were born, seven of whom are still living. Mrs. Fred Smith and Mrs. Christopher Smith of Hartford, Mrs. John Macht of Occum, Mrs. Clara Swanson of New London, the Misses Henrietta and Elsie Dombrowski of Norwich and William Dombrowski of Bridgeport. She is also survived by one sister, Mrs. Louis Eckert of Hartford and eight grandchildren. In November 1875, she came to this country making her home in Norwich for a few years, but for 43 years she resided in Preston until last July when she went to live with her daughter in Occum.

Mrs. Dombrowski was a loving mother much devoted to her family and home. She was a kind and sympathetic neighbor, always manifesting a cheerful disposition. She was a member of the German Lutheran church for 43 years and, at one time a member of the Ladies' Aid. She was beloved by a host of friends who are deeply grieved to learn of her death.

Will Speak to Insurance Agents

With the completion of 162 consecutive weeks on the state honor roll of the life insurance company by which he is employed without missing a single week in writing from one to eleven applications for a volume of from one to seventy thousand dollars of paid for and delivered business each week Louis M. Crandall has already beaten his 1924 state leadership record of over $300,000 worth of written and paid for business.

Mr. Crandall still leads the state with his company and stands sixth in the United States to date this year. This coming Saturday he is to address the convention of New England mutual agents in Hartford at the Hartford Golf club, where members of the home office are to be the guests. Mr. Crandall will talk about winning policy holders' co-operation and its relation to the million dollar club, started in Norwich during the past year. He secured his listing on the state honor roll this week by writing a $5,000 application at his home, where he has been confined with the grippe for the past three days.

AMERICAN EDUCATION WEEK IS SET FOR THIS MONTH

The week of November 16 to 22 has been set aside as American Education week. This, under the adspices of national educational associations, is for the purpose of focusing attention on those institutions which have a part to play in human progress and build up strong community ties.

First and foremost is the constitution of the United States loyalty to which promotes unity of purpose among its varied nationalities which weave the structure of American life. The part that school and church play in molding human character and directing the course of human endeavor will be dwelt upon at length. While conservation of national resources, backed up by personal thrift, closely linked virtues, are worthy of the attention to be given to them.

Saturday, November 21 has been designated "Community and Health Day." This points to the fact that health is now recognized as one of the fundamentals of home and society, and as such forms an integral part of national and community life. As proof of this may be noted the "health movements" which have gained impetus during the last decade, and have already assumed importance in the sum of health endeavor. Among these may be mentioned the child health movement, which was guided into being during the world war by the United States Children's Bureau. This aimed to improve the health of the pre-school child, that period between infancy and school life, both of which had already received much attention.

Statistics in regard to child health gave convincing evidence of the need for health work in this field and has resulted in the spread of health centers in rural and urban communities where mothers may bring their children for expert health advice. This phase of the work is still growing and even the most isolated communities are now receiving its benefits through the ingenious method of "rolling" the health center to their very doors by means of specially fitted trucks, automobiles or cars, as shown by the reports of certain states west and south.

It is interesting to note that this focusing of attention on the pre-school child has helped to speed up health work at all other periods, even among the adults. While it is still the purpose to lay a strong health foundation in those first five years of life through every means available—education of the mother in the home, stimulation of the child's own interest in establishing mental and physical health habits, and in making sound the body through correction of physical defects—health education has made rapid strides in school and community circles. Health has entered into the school room as a new subject. At first it was admitted as any strange child would be, and given a separate place in the curriculum. But it has gradually invaded all parts of school life and now has become a living force in the school room. So rapidly has this movement grown, that children are learning to think in terms of health. It is constantly before them for most school subjects have borrowed their illustrations from the field of health, and thus have interpreted health into the daily lives of the children.

The health education movement does not stop with the school, however. It is now being called to the attention of adults that if they will take stock of their own health assets, by means of a yearly health examination and learn to adjust themselves to healthful rules of life they may not only live more fully during their life time, but may actually lengthen their life period.

SETTLEMENT IN SUIT OVER BOY'S INJURIES

The $2,000 damage suit against police sergeant Daniel McGillicuddy of the city of Bristol for injuries to Thomas B. Shea, eight-year-old son of John J. Shea, the newsdealer of this city, which was assigned for trial in the superior court here Thursday was settled without trial. Attorneys were in conference most of the morning and finally stated to the court that an agreement had been reached.

The boy was injured Nov. 7, 1923, when he was about to cross the street on Laurel hill avenue and was struck by the car driven by the police sergeant who was taking a prisoner to the inebriate farm at Brewster's Neck. The boy suffered a fractured skull and other severe injuries.

Attorney T. J. Desmond appeared for the plaintiff's side and Brown and James represented the defendant.

MOTOR TRUCK BURNS ON QUAKER HILL ROAD

The three ton truck of Michael Doyle of New London is a total loss and Fred H. Brooks of that city, the driver, narrowly escaped serious injury when in going down a hill on a dirt road back of Quaken Hill at 9 o'clock Thursday morning the gasoline tank exploded as the result of fire, a moment after the driver had stopped the truck and leaped out.

The truck was loaded with cordwood. The driver ran to the nearest farmhouse and summoned the Thomas Hose company from New London, which responded too late however to save the truck. Backfiring was given as the cause of the blaze.

GAS in Stomach Hurts the Heart

Thousands of Cases of Heart Failure Are Caused by Acute Indigestion, Says Medical Writer

Gas pressure from sour, acid, upset stomach is not only nauseating and highly uncomfortable but some day it may prove fatal!

When your meals are followed by bloating, a feeling of fullness or pressure, shortness of breath and pains around the heart, you may be sure that the acid condition of your stomach is producing a GAS that is pushing upwards and crowding your heart. That's the reason for the shortness of breath and sharp, shooting pains.

Whether young or old, the presence of stomach gas is truly serious and should always be given prompt and careful attention.

To quickly banish gas, cleanse and sweeten the stomach, neutralize the acidity—nothing is better than the daily or "as needed" use of ordinary Bisurated Magnesia. It gives almost instant relief.

Any good druggist can supply Bisurated Magnesia, in powder or tablet form, at very small cost—but be sure you get BISURATED Magnesia—recommended by Doctors and Druggists throughout the civilized world for more than 13 years.

DARTMOUTH-CORNELL GAME APPEARS TO BE FEATURE OF SATURDAY'S GAMES

NEW YORK, Nov. 5—With the opening becoming more potent as the season winds itself into its climax, eastern intercollegiate football championship contenders are beginning to feel the pressure beneath the seats of the mighty.

Traditional and intersectional rivals vie on the gridiron Saturday in a series of contests which is expected to reduce the ranks of the undefeated and elevate the survivors to a high plane in the quest for the mythical title.

Up in the bleak hills of New Hampshire a scene will be enacted by two traditional and undefeated rivals which will likely aid in focusing the titular light more clearly. Cornell, conqueror of Columbia, Williams and Rutgers, meets the mighty green machine in Dartmouth, survivor in struggles with Harvard and Brown.

Another page for the drama of football will be written over the white lines of the polo grounds in New York when undefeated Holy Cross enters the lists against bewanquished Fordham.

Thirteen college elevens in the east have come through the season's play so far, undefeated. Only three of these, Syracuse, Colgate and Penn Military Academy, appear probable victors in Saturday's contests.

The Orange, defender of the only unscreened goal line in the east, entertains a middle western opponent in Ohio Wesleyan. Colgate, conqueror of Princeton and the Michigan Aggies, faces Providence college while Penn Military Academy, one of the mightiest of the smaller outfits takes on Susquehanna.

Outside of the Dartmouth-Cornell and Holy Cross-Fordham struggle there are plenty of thrills in the making for those who see such contests as that of Boston college with West Virginia; Penn State against Notre Dame and the clash of the Yale bulldog with Maryland.

The second of the season's three battles within the realm of football's "little three" will be played at Middletown, Conn., with Wesleyan and Williams as contenders. The outcome here is a toss-up with Williams a slight favorite on the basis of comparative score figures.

Pittsburgh and Washington and Jefferson furnish one of the main thrills for western Pennsylvania, with the spot-light in that area also on Penn State's intersectional clash with Notre Dame. The Presidents will aid the Panther's in dedicating the new $2,000,000 stadium at the University of Pittsburgh.

Stoddker's Notre Dame team, routed by the Army, found itself after this parade of the cadets and succeeded in bowling over opposition in the middle west and the south. As a result of the 18-6 victory of the Horsemen over Georgia Tech last week and Georgia Tech's 16-7 victory over the Nittany Lions at State College earlier in the season, The South Benders will enter the game decided favorites.

The Syracuse-Ohio Wesleyan encounter also holds high intersectional interest, for the Orange, though a strong favorite, is preparing for strong opposition. It will be Syracuse's last important test before the annual tussle with Colgate and the Orange is anxious to enter that classic with an undefeated record.

Princeton and Harvard compete in the first of the classics involving the "big three" in Palmer Memorial stadium at Princeton, with the Tigers a slight favorite over the Crimson. But past performances reveal that favoritism plays little part in this traditional struggle. Harvard was the favorite last fall but was clawed by the Tigers to the tune of 24-0.

Brown and Boston University meet at Providence in a game which is expected to answer several questions which have perplexed the rule-makers for a decade. Orthodox rules of football will be discarded to some extent in this contest and the length of the game will be determined by the number of plays, allowing 40 to a quarter, instead of the regular 15 minute periods.

BULKELEY MANAGER SAYS WINDHAM HAS BEEN BEATEN

Sports Editor,

In your paper, there recently appeared a Windham High school football schedule stating that they had not been beaten in the last three years. This is an error. Last fall in their last game of the season they were beaten by Drury High school, of North Adams, Mass.

Last year they did not want to play Bulkeley. This year, apparently, they do not wish to either. After repeated offers to a Thanksgiving day game with a guarantee twice as large as they would receive any where else, they have not so much as said a word. This offer is still open should they desire to accept it.

Respectfully yours,

Mgr. B. H. S Football Team

LURES OF PROFESSIONALISM CATCH MANY SIMON PURES

NEW YORK, Nov. 5—(By the A. P.)—The lures of professionalism in the modern era of high-pressure athletics are becoming harder to resist than ever before among the amateur talent.

The ethics or advantages involved may be a subject for debate but it is a fact that opportunities are widening for the amateur talent.

Professional football, now being carried out on a larger scale than ever before, furnishes one of the most interesting examples of the "amateur to pro" trend. The gridiron sport always has been considered strictly amateur, chiefly for the reason that stars lose their main incentive to achievement when they leave college ranks and game from the carshot of under-graduate cheers. But the list of former all-American players now wearing professional moleskins is impressive and perhaps an indication that the game may be put on a firm basis, affording the general public an attraction denied it so far as college games are concerned because of the ticket monopoly by "grads" and "old grads."

Many of this fall's outstanding stars probably will be offered lucrative professional berths to be the most sought-after of all. In fact there are some reports that the famous Illinois ace already has been approached with a record contract but it is certain he would give no consideration to this until after he hangs up his uniform at Illinois.

Such former All-Americans of record years as Walter Koppisch, Lynn Bomar, Century Milstead, Swede Lindstrom, Harry Stuhldreher and Charley Berry all are in professional ranks this season.

The tempting attractions of professionalism also have cut heavily into the ranks of women swimming stars. The leading mermaids of America's last two Olympic teams now have forsaken amateur ranks with the decision of Aileen Riggin and Gertrude Ederle this week to accept posts as instructors in Florida. They have followed the footsteps of Ethelda Bleibtrey and Helen Wainwright.

Golf and tennis reflect similar signs of the times, although here the movement is not so marked. Even so, there have been reports that Bobby Jones, two time amateur king, has been approached with professional offers, despite the Atlanta star's firm intention of remaining a simon-pure. Big Bill Tilden too, was linked with rumors of a professional career at the time the controversy with the United States Lawn Tennis association when the player writer question was at its height.

Tilden led a fight that established his right to continue writing without jeopardizing his amateur standing so that the sixteen national champion, though remaining an amateur in competition, still is able to profit indirectly from his playing fame, along with Vincent Richards and a number of other court stars.

No amateur athlete in history probably has withstood any more pressure to turn professional than Paavo Nurmi, the phantom Finn who burned up the boards and cinders of this country early in the year. From various sources it was estimated that Nurmi was offered approximately a quarter of a million dollars to forsake the simon-pure trail. As a matter of fact, Paavo might have accepted some of these, such as writing offers, without jeopardizing his amateur standing but he declined them all with characteristic stoicism.

Hockey, basketball, boxing and wrestling are other sports in which the drift of amateur stars from colleges or clubs to professional ranks has been conspicuous. Just now, with the launching of the re-organized National Jockey club, amateur ranks are being hard hit because of the attractive offers extended to them by the "pro" outfits.

CHAPMAN TECH CONFIDENT OF BEATING STONINGTON TODAY

At 2.45 today at Morgan park, New London, Chapman Tech will play the game that will definitely decide whether the New London school has a chance at the league title or not. If Tech loses today's game its chances at the title are gone completely. Even winning the game will not secure the championship but will be only the beginning. Tech has never lost a game to Stonington since the two schools started playing each other and does not intend to lose this year after winning one game.

The Tech lineup for the contest has not been definitely announced. Last week the team started the game with an altered lineup. Everts had been taken out of quarter and Morris Brown put in, and Borges had been substituted for White at tackle. Either of these men may start this week's game but it is probable that Everts will be in his regular place at quarter. Concerning the tackles, either may play in the right tackle, and it is almost certain that Skinner will be in the left side of the line.

The ends will be chosen from among Montgomery, Aquillo and Sacchazello, with Aquillo and Montgomery likely to start. The guards have been the same all season, Caron at right and Knox at left, but Phillips and Woodworth are ready to be substituted. The center position is one of the sure ones on the team with Kopp in possession. The two halfbacks will likely be John Brown and Captain Kennanberg. The fullback will probably be Miller with Hewitt as sub. The Stonington lineup is expected to be the same as it was in the last game when Tech won, 7-0.

STUDENTS HOLD ENTHUSIASTIC RALLY AT ACADEMY

Practically the entire student body and also the faculty of the Academy turned out this afternoon for the first football rally of the season. Hopes are running high at the Academy for a victory Saturday over Bulkeley, and the students made the rally an enthusiastic one. Principal Tirrell, Mr Case, Mr. Congdon and Coach Whitney all gave short talks that the students cheered lustily. Following this a number of school songs were sung and the members of the team were individually cheered.

Yesterday afternoon Coach Whitney sent the varsity through a long dummy scrimmage. The team looks better now than it has at any time this season. It is doubtful if the first team will start the game in view of Bulkeley's recognized weakness. From the record of the team from down the river to date the N. F. A. seconds ought to be able to beat them. Bulkeley has won but one game to date this season and that from a team that is probably the weakest in the state. The local boys are confident that they will have little trouble and expect to win by a decisive score.

BULKELEY BEING GROOMED FOR ACADEMY GAME

NEW LONDON, Nov. 5.—The Bulkeley eleven is about set for the N. F. A. team. Coach Canty has been putting the team through hard scrimmage practice, kicking practice and signal drill in preparation for the game. The regular line is intact, with the exception of Captain Davis. Donohue is passing back the pigskin. Wilson and Lubchansky, two 200 pounders, are holding down the guards. Schwartz and McCue, hard players and sure tacklers, are filling the tackle berths and Grey and Brown complete the line at ends. Grey does most of the kicking for Bulkeley and Brown understands the fine points of the game. This line is working hard and promises to be an obstacle in the way of the Norwich advances.

The backfield is uncertain. The team is playing with a vim and fight in practice and promises to turn back the Red and White. The formations slip off fine and the first team runs wild through the second in practice. The whole team is keyed up for the annual battle and predicts a well-earned victory.

HARVARD SQUAD LEAVES FOR BATTLE WITH PRINCETON

BOSTON, Nov. 5, (AP)—The Harvard football squad, numbering 43 men, left here today for Princeton, N. J., on the Merchants limited for the game with the Tiger eleven next Saturday. Coach Bob Fisher, his staff of assistants and trainer Eddie Farrell were in charge of the party. The men had instructions to walk briskly from the Grand Central station in New York for the Vanderbilt hotel, taxicabs being taboo.

Signal practice was held on Soldiers field in Cambridge this afternoon. A parade of undergraduates led by the Harvard band arrived in time to cheer the team in front of the locker building. The squad was expected to reach Princeton tomorrow in time for brief afternoon practice.

NUTMEGS WILL HOLD FINAL PRACTICE TONIGHT

The Nutmeg A. C. football team will hold their final practice, weather permitting this (Friday) evening at 7.30 sharp. The drill will be held at Chelsea Parade. The feeling among the local boys is that they will return from Jewett City Sunday evening with the game safely tucked away. If the boys play with any of the form that they have shown in practice they surely will win Saturday's game.

For Sunday's game the Nutmegs will rely on the following men: Kelly, Carlin, Butts, Pallocha, Grover, Hagberg Sullivan, Brush, MacLaren, (Capt.) F. McGrath, C. McGrath, Williams, Chase, Billy Conefey, Ludlow, Herberts, Boldrighline, Burnes, Marchand, Lasch, Sadinsky, Harris, R. Graing, local favorite, will be at his regular post. Steinman, Jones and N. E. Body. The last named is reputed to be a triple threat star from the wilds of Canada and is expected to give the Speedboys a busy afternoon Sunday when the Nutmegs invade Jewett City. Besides these men a number of college stars will also probably be in the Nutmeg's lineup.

MICHIGAN AND GRANGE HOLD CENTER OF WESTERN STAGE

CHICAGO, Nov. 5—(A. P.)—Michigan's uncrossed goal and "Red" Grange, the goal crosser, divide interest of midwest fans as teams taper off their practice for Saturday's games. The efforts of the Wolverines to keep the top in the Big Ten title race are taking the shape of changes in the line-up for the northwestern meeting in Soldiers field, Chicago. An entirely new backfield is being tried out, with Staman replacing "Battering Bu" Molenda and Herenstein and Miller supplanting Gilbert and Gregory.

Benny Osterbaan, with Benny Friedman, quarterback, one of Michigan's stellar lights, may be replaced at end by Grube. Northwesterns counts on two aces, Captain Tie Lowry and Leland (Tiny) Lewis, sophomore halfback and star kicker. The Purple's last appearance in the municipal stadium was against Notre Dame last year when startling things resulted and they are anxious to repeat history."

"Red" Grange, the Illini untamed terror, is being primed for the greatest effort of his career against Chicago. Prospects are that a wet field will be the scene of the clash in Urbana. But as "Red" did his best on a muddy field against Pennsylvania, the forecast causes less gloom than in former times.

The Staggmen, with their standing as an undefeated title contender at stake, are being imbued with the spirit of fight by the caustic tongue of "Old Man" Stagg, who has been content heretofore to take small scores and hold opponents to smaller.

The Harmon Brothers, Leo and Doyle, of Wisconsin, are the bugaboo of Iowa, which plans a special entertainment for them. Both the Hawks and Badgers are handicapped by inclement weather and rainy day tactics are being stressed.

Captain Larry Marks is regarded as Indiana's mainstay for the Ohio state game. The Buckeyes have been scored on only by Iowa in the conference campaign.

Backfield shifts are part of Purdue's rehearsal for Franklin. Minnesota is trying Jack O'Brien, former end, in the backfield and may start him there against Butler.

Rockenbus eradicated over-confidence from Notre Dame. Harry O'Boyle and Francis Cody, performing well in practice, may figure largely in the game against Penn state at State college, Pa.

AGGIES HAVE STIFF WORKOUT FOR N. H. AGGIES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Conn., Nov. 5—Coach Sumner Dole, Manager John Kuhl and a squad of twenty Connecticut Aggie football players will leave for Manchester, N. H., tomorrow, where on Saturday they will clash with the rugged University of New Hampshire eleven.

It is one of the objective games of the year for both teams, and the contest shapes up as one of the best among the smaller New England colleges for the day.

Coach Dole has shifted his lineup slightly this week. Captain Brink, now fully recovered from his shoulder injury will be back in his old position at end. Daly, will return to the center of the line from end. Lorentzen, who filled Daly's place at center may be started at right guard, though Dole is undecided between him and Johnson, who has been showing well in that position. Fitzsimman, end, Nanfeldt and Zollin, tackles, and Bitgood, guard, will all be in their respective positions.

Behind the line, Dole will probably use the same quartet that started against Manhattan last week. In this event, Schofield will call signals, with Filmer and Moreland at the halves, and Makofski at full. Eddy, sophomore halfback has been confined to the infirmary by sickness this week, though he was working out with the squad this afternoon. He will make the trip with the team tomorrow, and if in condition will doubtless get a chance to perform against the Granite Staters. Logan, who has been showing well at end was sent to the infirmary today, and it is feared that an attack of the grippe may prevent him from going to New Hampshire. In this event, reserve material for the wings will be lacking.

Others who will make the trip to Manchester include Johnson, Hohn, Baker, Longo and McAllister in the line, and Donovan and Allard in the backfield.

Another long workout was held in the Aggie camp this afternoon, and unless the squad arrives in Manchester early enough tomorrow afternoon to practice, it will be the final preparation for Saturday's contest.

Coach Dole put his kickers through a long drill, devoted a half hour to forward passing, held a long dummy scrimmage, and wound up the session with a signal drill. During this time, the varsity second team scrimmaged the freshman second team.

CANTER RULING FAVORITE FOR TODAY'S RACE

BALTIMORE, Nov. 5—(A. P.)—The best juveniles in training on local tracks are named for the Futurity, Maryland's richest two-year-old stake, to be run tomorrow at Pimlick track. Seventeen are named to face the barrier for the $40,000 mile.

J. E. Griffith's Canter appeared the public choice tonight. Preliminary odds on Canter were named as 2-1.

With the added purse and entry fees, the race will be worth $69,860, with $61,380 to the winner.

Basketball Rules Meeting

NEW YORK, Nov. 5—(A. P.)—The annual meeting for the interpretation of the new basketball rules under the auspices of the joint rules committee of the A. A. U. Y. M. C. A. and National Collegiate A. A., will be held at the Hotel Astor, November 24.

Sectional meetings for the interpretation of the rules will be held in Boston, Philadelphia and other parts of the country.

Speedboys Accept Challenge

The Jewett City Speedboys will play the Greeneville Tigers at Ashland park Nov. 22 for the last and deciding game of the series. The Speedboys will give Greeneville 40 per cent. of the gross receipts. All officials for that game will be secured at C. A. C. As Greeneville has no regulation home field it is hoped that this will be acceptable. Please accept or decline this invitation as soon as possible so that complete arrangements can be made.

RUMORS THAT PIPP AND WARD MAY BE TRADED FOR CHARLIE JAMIESON

CLEVELAND, Nov. 5—(A. P.)—Reports in New York that Wally Pipp and Aaron Ward of the Yankees may come to Cleveland for Outfielder Charley Jamieson were called "absolutely ridiculous" by E. S. Barnard, president of the Indians tonight.

The Indians have made no offer to New York for Pipp and Ward and "don't expect to," Barnard said. He denied that Jamieson is trading material.

FOREIGN CRITICS RECOGNIZE AMERICAN TENNIS SUPREMACY

NEW YORK, Nov. 5—(A. P.)—There seems to be no doubt in the minds of foreign tennis critics of the supremacy of America's "Big Four"—Tilden, Johnston, Richards and Williams—who kept the Davis cup safely at home this year for the sixth straight season.

These four are among the first five in the ranking of the world's first ten players by Maxime Lanet, tennis critic of L'Auto of Paris, as they also were in the ratings of A. Wallis Myers, British authority.

The only important difference between the two is that Lanet placed Lacoste of France third, while Myers put Richards in that position.

Comparisons of the two selections follows:

By A. Wallis Myers	By Maxime Lanet
W. T. Tilden, U. S. No. 1	W. T. Tilden
W. M. Johnston, U. S. No. 2	W. M. Johnston
Vincent Richards, U. S. No. 3	Ren Lacoste
Rene LaCoste, Fr. No. 4	Vincent Richards

MANY RUMORS OF TRADES IN BIG LEAGUES CURRENT

NEW YORK, Nov. 5—(A. P.)—Baseball rumors today carried Wally Pipp and Aaron Ward, first and second basemen of the New York Yankees, to Cleveland in a deal which may bring about Charley Jamieson's presence in New York another season, in spite of Tris Speaker's recently expressed determination to make no trades.

"Peewee" Wanninger, who succeeded Everett Scott at shortstop early last summer, is slated to go elsewhere, according to reports.

Confirmation here, if such is to be obtained, must await the return to this city on Monday of Ed Barrow, business manager of the club and a huntsman of parts, he has been seeking big game, but not baseball players.

The rumors, however, hold water, for Tony Lazerre is destined to appear in the shortfield another year with Mark Koenig at second base while Lou Gehrig, former Columbia university star who played with Hartford in the Eastern league for two seasons, undoubtedly will return to first base, where he made an exceptional impression in the Yankee debacle which has just become history.

Emory Rigney of Detroit, a shortstop known to be in the market, is said to be under the eyes of Yankee officials with prospects that he will fill a utility role. Rigney's hitting this season, fell under .250 but it is believed that a change of climate will help him immensely.

X-RAY SHOWS HARRIS' FINGER NOT FRACTURED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5, (AP)—An X-ray taken today of the middle finger on the throwing hand of Stanley Harris, manager of the Washington baseball club, disclosed no fracture of the bone, said Dr. Edward P. Larkin, who made the examination.

Harris' finger was injured more than six weeks ago when he was spiked during a game. Although he participated in the world series, failure of the wound to yield to treatment caused rumors that it might stiffen and affect Harris' playing. These were refuted today by Dr. Larkin.

ROPER STRESSES DEFENSIVE TACTICS AGAINST HARVARD

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 5—(A. P.)—For the first time this week Coach Roper in getting the Tigers ready for Saturday's Harvard game, stressed defensive tactics.

After a preliminary signal drill he sent the team which will face Harvard against a second team well versed in the tactics of Saturday's opponents.

The Harvard team will arrive tomorrow morning and will be given an opportunity to accustom themselves to the gridiron in Palmer stadium tomorrow afternoon. The Tigers will have their final practice tomorrow on University field.

FINNEGAN READY FOR BOUT IN WATERBURY

WATERBURY, Nov. 5. (AP)—Dan Carroll, manager of Dick (Honeyboy) Finnegan, Boston featherweight boxer, who last night defeated Babe Herman, of California, in Boston, today notified promoter George F. Mulligan of this city that he stood ready to go through with his verbal agreement to have Finnegan appear in a bout in this city on Nov. 13. He reported that Finnegan came out of his bout with Herman in fine shape. Mulligan is attempting to secure a high class opponent for Finnegan.

SPORTING NOTES

(By The Associated Press)

Supporters of Michigan's football team contend that Colonel Mitchell is right when he asserts that the navy can be wrecked by a good air attack.

The recent inter-league series between Louisville and San Francisco was a financial "bust." The umpires made more money than the players. Each of the Colonels received $175, while the returns for the Seals was 234 apiece. Umpires Casey and Chill collected $500 each.

Tex Rickard was so worried about the final touches to the new Madison Square Garden that he called a conference of contractors yesterday. All assured him that the building would be ready for the six-day bicycle riders Nov. 28.

An embryonic "Red" Grange was uncovered at New York university in a Freshman game against Irving school on election day in Roberts, a quarterback. During the afternoon he scored six times on runs of 70, 62, 52, 18 and 15 yards. The N. Y. U. Freshmen won, 114 to 6.

Michigan sports writers assert that Benny Friedman, quarterback of the Yost-coached eleven which swamped the Navy, in the greatest forward passer of all time—greater than Sprakkiegs of Brown, Dorais of Notre Dame, Pritchard of the Army and Muller of California.

Eight players already have been signed for the 1926 baseball season by the Brooklyn Dodgers. Six are pitchers, Osborne, Ehrhardt, Brown, Cantrell, McGraw and Elliott. Infielder Morgan and outfielder Hutson also have entered the fold.

Word come from England that Harold Hilton, former British and American golf champion, has urged upon the royal and ancient the adoption of the steel shaft. Hilton contends that the hickory supply in America is vanishing and that the steel gives no player no advantage over wooden shafts.

Hilton also is author of the statement that Archie Compson carried the burden of defending British golf laurels against the invasion of Americans, Compson has registered the low average in the British Isles this season.

Gene Tunney, American light heavyweight boxing champion, is reported to have selected the following list of men he would be willing to oppose: Harry Wills, Young Stribling, Paul Berlenbach, Jimmy Maloney, Tom Gibbons, Jack Sharkey, Sully Montgomery, Mike McTigue, Eddie Huffman and Ad Stone.

H. Y. Barrow, president of the Metropolitan Golf association, has been renominated along with the officials of the past year and the list will be placed before the annual meeting in New York Dec. 8.

Yale's annual party at Nick Roberts barn in Montclair, N. J., will take place Dec. 5, with Captain Johnny Joss and Coach Tad Jones as guests of honor.

HYDRO-ELECTRIC PROJECT FOR ANDROSCOGGIN RIVER

NEW YORK, Nov. 5—Plans for a $5,000,000 hydro-electric project on the Androscoggin river for the Central Maines Power company, as part of an extensive program of hydro-electric power site development in New England, were announced here today by the newly formed investment company which was organized to unify the New England interests of the middle West Utilities company.

The Androscoggin dam will be 2700 feet long and 50 feet high, holding back a billion cubic feet of water in a lake which will extend up the river over nine miles being a mile wide in some places. Three 9,000 horse power units will be installed with provision made for a fourth, making the maximum capacity 36,000 horse power. The dam will be completed in 1927.

The first step in the inter-connection of the power units in northern New England has been taken with the awarding of a contract to a Manchester, N. H. company, to build the first of a string of five plants in the vicinity of Hillsboro, N. H. It is estimated that this project will cost $3,000,000 and that it will take five years to complete it.

OBITUARY

Rev. Chauncey Marvin Cady

STRATFORD, Nov. 5.—(AP) — Rev. Chauncey Marvin Cady, seventy-one, retired missionary and university professor, who spent many years in China and Japan, died at his residence here today after a short illness.

Rev. Mr. Cady went to China and Japan as a missionary for the A. B. C. F. M., the American board foreign missions commission, and while in the Orient became a professor of English at the Doshisha university of the imperial Japanese government college at Kyota, Japan. Coming of missionary parents, he dedicated his life to missionary work, doing everything in his power to cement cordial relations between the United States and Japan, not only while he was engaged in his missionary and teaching work in the island empire, but after his return to this country.

Most Feared And Sought Man Of England

KEYSTONE VIEW CO.—NEW YORK

Leopold C. M. S. Amery, present Dominion Secretary, who for more than two years has exercised a power throughout Britain that has made itself felt by all, yet few know of this little man. He keeps himself out of the papers because he has been a paper man for 10 years. He showed his mettle in his extempore speech at Geneva, when he stated, without reference to London, that England would not be bound by her pledges to accept the League's decision on Mosul unless the Turks also "toed the line." If not for Amery, England would not be clinging to Mosul. He forced the Singapore naval project through a lukewarm Cabinet and House of Commons. It was Amery's brilliant oratory which defeated Winston Churchill's attempt this year to cut naval appropriations.

BRITISH LOAN TO THE GERMAN POTASH INDUSTRY

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Removal of the British embargo on loan flotations as cleared the way for a $50,000,000 international loan to the German potash industry, in which New York will participate, but has come too late to save for London bankers a $7,500,000 piece of financing for the Cunard line, one of Great Britain's largest shipping companies.

Cunard officials, it was learned today, have closed negotiations with Brown Brothers & Company of New York for the sale of $7,500,000 short term notes to finance a shipbuilding program.

A $50,000,000 loan for the German Potash Syndicate, negotiated by J. Henry Schroder and company, will be one of the first foreign bond issues offered in London since the lifting of the ban.

EDITION OF "JUDGE" IS EXCLUDED FROM MAILS

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—A post office department order was served today on the publishers of Judge, a comic weekly, prohibiting the use of the mails for distribution of the current issue, known as "the Parisian number." Exception was not made to the issue as a whole, the editors said, but particularly to certain articles purporting to burlesque popular French pictorial periodicals.

"The editors of Judge are at a loss to understand the basis for the department's action," declared a statement issued from the publication's executive offices. "The burlesques were prepared to show the misconception of French humor widely held in this country and, we think, are entirely free from suggestiveness and really comprise nothing but wholesome humor."

TIRED MAN SLEPT FROM MONDAY TILL THURSDAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Patrick Lamb, 65, might have equalled the record of Rip Van Winkle if the police had not interferred.

When his neighbors noticed that he was missing from his home at No. 323 Warren street, Jersey City, they called Patrolman Burgess.

The policeman knocked repeatedly at the door without an answer, then broke in.

He found Lamb lying on his bed, fully dressed and snoring. After being well shaken, the sleeper awoke and asked what day it was.

When informed that it was Thursday he thought somebody was joking him.

He had lain down for a nap Monday afternoon he said, and kept right on sleeping. He was very tired.

SWEDISH BAPTISTS IN CONFERENCE IN MERIDEN

MERIDEN, Nov. 5—(AP)—The Ministers' association of the Swedish Baptist, New York conference, began a three-day conference here this evening. Fifteen ministers representing New York, New Jersey, Delaware and Connecticut, are taking part in the discussions, which aim to promote wider interest in spiritual teachings. Among those scheduled to make addresses are: The Rev. O. W. Lindstrom, Shelton; the Rev. W. E. Valerius, Hartford; the Rev. C. Ivan Johnson, New York; Rev. Theodore Wohlstrom, New Haven, and Rev. Alex J. Peterson, New Britain.

FRENCH PRESIDENT REMAINS "NEIGHBOR GASTON" AT HOME

PARIS, Nov. 5 (AP)—Gaston Doumergue, president of France, is still "Neighbor Gaston" to his old acquaintances in his native department of Gard.

The husband of one of these old friends spent too much time and money at the village inn. "He is called Gaston, too, you know," the wife wrote to President Doumergue. "I wish you would write to him and shake him a little. Tell him that a man who has the same Christian name as yourself ought to behave better."

Mr. Doumergue is a busier man today than when he sat beside the inn fireside himself, but he obediently took up his pen and sent some good advice to the thirsty husband.

BUDDHIST PRIESTS TRAINED FOR JAPANESE SUFFRAGE CAMPAIGN

OSAKA, Japan, Nov. 5 (AP)—Three thousand Buddhist priests are being trained to take up the campaign in behalf of universal suffrage. Universal suffrage will be tried out in Japan for the first time at the next election, which may come next year.

In the training lectures are given every day by scholars and high officials in government departments. When the course is completed the priests will instruct hundreds of other priests and then the nation-wide campaign will start.

MISSIONARIES IN CHINA TEACH CHRIST AT OWN CONSEQUENCES

CHICAGO, Nov. 5 (AP)—Methodist missionaries to China go to preach the teachings of Christ and must take any physical or legal consequences.

The board of foreign missions has ruled that missionaries in foreign lands, especially in China, should not request protection of courts and powers other than those of China nor ask extra-territorial exemption because they are American citizens.

STORM WARNING ISSUED BY THE WEATHER BUREAU

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5—The weather bureau issued the following storm warning tonight:

Advisory southwest storm warnings ordered ten p. m. Atlantic City, N. J. to Eastport, Maine. Disturbance of increasing intensity over Hudson Bay moving east-northeastward will cause increasing southwest winds late tonight, becoming strong on Friday and shifting to west.

DESCRIBES ADVANCED ART AS INHUMAN; "RIMA" AS BESTIAL

LONDON, Nov. 5 (AP)—The Hon. John Collier, eminent artist, describes advanced art as ugly and inhuman. He so told the Author's Club and then flayed "Rima" the work of Jacob Epstein the sculptor.

"I have no hesitation in calling Rima a bestial figure, horribly misshapen, with enormous claw-like hands and the head and face of a microcephalous idiot. If critics met a woman like that in the street they would flee from her shrieking, but because it is done by Epstein they are almost willing to embrace her."

Turning to modern fashions, he said the mode of today, "when women's waists are halfway down their thighs," was one of the things which showed "how easily we could tolerate unwholesome distortions of the naturally beautiful form."

MAY TURN SAWDUST AND WASTE INTO NON-INFLAMMABLE BOARD

TACOMA, Wash., Nov. 5 (AP)—A synthetic board, non-inflammable and resisting heat and cold, may soon be manufactured from sawdust.

A group of lumber men here became interested in the possibilities of the product, after a demonstration proved that the synthetic board would, withstand a flame that would cut through steel. Sawdust and other mill waste are treated with chemicals and made into a pulp. The pulp then is pressed into boards of any size.

LOVING CUP TO COUNTY LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS FOR GOOD WORK

A loving cup was presented to the New London County League at the annual meeting of the Connecticut League of Women Voters which was held at Hartford Thursday. The cup was awarded for the most effective organization and work during the past year and was accepted for the county league by Mrs. Richard J. Whitham, of Groton, county president.

A resolution favoring the entrance of the United States into the world court was passed.

Miss Mary Bakeley of Hartford, for the last two years head of the citizenship department of the league, was elected state president for the coming year. Miss Bakeley succeeds Mrs. Herbert Knox Smith of Farmington. Other officers chosen were as follows:

Vice presidents, Miss Marjory Cheney, Manchester, in charge of citizenship; Mrs. Emerson R. Newell, Greenwich, in charge of finance; Mrs. Milton, West Hartford, in charge of the department of international co-operation. Mrs. N. E. Clark, Lakeville, in charge of organization in Litchfield, Hartford, Tolland and Windham counties; Mrs. Harry Wilcoxon Stratford, in charge of organization in Fairfield, New Haven, Middlesex and New London counties; secretary, Mrs. Annie D. Porritt, West Hartford; treasurer Mrs. William P. Couch, Cromwell.

About 300 women were in attendance at the state meeting. The first action taken Thursday was the decision to submit to all candidates for public office in Connecticut, whether the office be local, state or national, questionnaires on their stand on the public issues in which the league is interested. The answers to these questionnaires as given by the candidates will be published by the league. The names of candidates who neglect to answer the questionnaire, together with the questions submitted to them will also be given publication.

The greater part of the morning was given over to a discussion of the league's program and policy for the coming year.

The report of the budget committee as submitted to the convention, calls for expenditures of $16,668 for carrying on the present organization, and for $1,332 for further expansion.

Connecticut College

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Connecticut college has been very fortunate in the gifts received for its library. About half of the books have been presented from time to time by the various people interested in the college.

The library started from gifts of good size made during the first few years. These gifts included books from the Blackstone library, Bolles library, Captain Elisha Palmer library, and the H. P. Wright libraries, Henry E. Russell, A. S. Cook and Mrs. H. G. Learned also made valuable gifts.

Within the past year many bequests and gifts have been made. From the library of the late Rev. Dr. Henry Joseph Selden came about 350 books. Although these books deal with all fields of literature, the greater part is concerned with religion and theology. Among the authors may be found such well-known names as Abbott, Van Dyke, Fosdick, Bacon, Brierly, Merrill, Brown, Fairbairn, Hyde Kent, King and Inge.

The writers on economics and social subjects include Jane Addams, Greene, Tucker, Ross, Spargo and Steiner.

Among the authors of various other books are such well known names as Dana, Wallace, Drummond, Roosevelt, Howells, Oliphant, Parkman, Macauley and Carlyle.

Another large gift is the Thomas Harland library, comprising about 1,500 volumes which Mrs. Harland gave in memory of her husband. Of great value as a reference library, it is especially rich in history and biography. To mention only a few of the well known historians, it contains Froude and Gibbon, Green and Motley, Guizot, Louis Le Blanc, A Thiery, Curtius, Ilne, Freeman, Bancroft, Prescott, Henri Martin.

The biographies includes Sunond's Life of Michel Angelo, Memoirs of Dumas, correspondence of Voltaire, letters of Stevenson, and also of Lowell. There are complete sets of standard novelists, among whom are Dickens, Thackery, George Eliot, Scott, Hawthorne, Lytton and Meredith. In science we find Fiske, Lyell and Darwin.

These names do not suggest half the titles in the card catalogue that Mrs. Harland has had especially made to accompany her generous gift. This brief survey shows what a valuable nucleus it will be to the college library.

Lost year through the generosity of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Mahaffey of Boston about 150 volumes were added to the collection. Mr. Mahaffey bought these especially for the library. A few of them are general literature, but most of them, deal with home economics.

From time to time Dean W. L. Cross of Yale university, sends shipments of new books and magazines. The college is very fortunate in having received from Dr. P. T. Walden of Yale some very valuable files of chemistry periodicals. These have been bound and added to the library.

Professor H. B. Putnam of Mount Holyoke college regularly sends a number of current magazines dealing with sociology and economics.

Last year Mrs. Ira Brainard of New York city sent several hundred books of good literature to the college. Mrs. Brainerd continues to send books every little while.

The president of the board of trustees, George S. Palmer, recently gave 130 valuable volumes in the nature of rare books. They are, for the most part finely illustrated and bound on art subjects.

Other generous donors are Miss Martha J. Waterman of Glen Ridge, N. J., Mrs. S. F. Taylor of Hartford, Philip P. Wells of Middletown, Mrs. McCoskry Butt, and Mrs. S. F. Wetmore, of New York city.

Friends of Miss Constance Clapp, a senior, are glad to welcome her back to college activities after an absence of six weeks because of illness. Miss Clapp was at her home on Lincoln avenue, Norwich, recuperating.

Miss Lucy Gilman of Bozrahville, a junior, was chosen as a member of the Connecticut college press board after the short try-out allotted to upper classmen. Other upper classmen who made the organization are Miss Elizabeth Leeds of Newton, Mass., and Miss Mildred Beardsley of Oakville.

Miss Madeline Thune of the class of '28 entertained as her guest over the week-end Miss Sadie Schwartz of Perkins avenue Norwich.

Miss Dorothy Pasnick, a sophomore, made the sophomore hockey team.

Miss Emily Hopkins of Plainfield will entertain Miss Helen Brown a junior at Storrs, for the week-end of November 7.

Miss Marcia Stanton of Norwich, a freshman, attended the hallowe'en masquerade at the college last Saturday evening.

PARENTAL BLESSINGS ON PLANT-BENNETT WEDDING

Parental blessings from both sides have been showered on Philip Manwaring Plant and Miss Constance Bennett, according to the newlyweds. "Isn't it gorgeous?" asked the bride, as messages were received from her father, Arnold Bennett, the well known actor, and from Mrs. William Plant Hayward, mother of the bridegroom.

Young Plant and Miss Bennett eloped to Greenwich, this state, where they were married at 2 o'clock Tuesday morning. Since then they have been residing in New York and have not divulged when they will start their honeymoon or where their trip will take them.

Since the marriage Broadway's version has been that young Plant and his beautiful bride were faced with paternal disapproval by Mr. Plant's mother, wife of Colonel William Hayward. Plant, however, stoutly denied that his mother entertains anything but pure joy over his choice of a bride.

Constance discharged a little debt Wednesday. A chauffeur, Charles Sampson, threatened to sue her.

"She hired me to go to Los Angeles with her at $25 a week," charged Sampson, "and then left me stranded, and owing me $316 back pay. In order to get back to New York I had to borrow $50 from a friend of hers, A. C. Blumenthall, millionaire real estate man, in addition to what my mother sent me."

He visited Constance Wednesday at the Gladstone hotel where she and Phil have their love nest and collected the $316.

MADE INSPECTION AT GROTON POLICE BARRACKS

Superintendent Robert T. Hurley of the state police, accompanied by the three members of the state police commission made an inspection of the Groton barracks Thursday afternoon. The inspection was much after the fashion of a military inspection with the men lined up in dress formation.

After inspecting the personnel, the officers examined the quarters and equipment. Complete satisfaction was expressed with conditions as found at the barracks.

The organization for this district under the guidance of Sergeant Clifford Gorgas has rapidly forged to the front rank of the units about the state. Sergeant Gorgas, former Bridgeport police officer and a veteran of the state police organization has developed a fine squad of officers at the Groton barracks, officials say. The men are said to be capable, efficient and courteous and have displayed a remarkable willingness for duty.

Governor John Trumbull had planned to accompany Superintendent Hurley and the members of the state commission on their visit to Groton, but unexpected business developments made his presence in New York imperative.

MID-YEAR CONFERENCE FOR UNIVERSALISTS OF STATE

The annual mid-year conference of the Universalist churches of Connecticut will be held at New Haven on Wednesday, November 11th, and delegates from Norwich will attend. There will be both afternoon and evening sessions with the following program:

The evening service—7:45 p. m., address by Rev. George Ets, secretary of the Universalist general convention.

CONGREGATIONAL CONFERENCE IN NORWICH IN 1926

The 48th annual meeting of the Congregational churches of Connecticut which opened in Manchester on Tuesday came to a close Wednesday afternoon when the program was given over to the women. Rev. Sherrod Soule superintendent of the missionary society of Connecticut, reviewed the work of some of the great missionaries of the world, many of whom he said, came from Connecticut.

Rev. Edward Eells of the Vernon Center church made a strong plea for the old-fashioned evangelistic meetings to bring people to church and Francis A. Stanley of New Haven discussed "Studying, Working and Playing with Boys."

The conference came to a close with a vote to hold the next conference in Norwich.

SUPPER AND DANCING BY E. C. P. CO. CLUB

Members of the Eastern Connecticut Power Company club, their wives and friends to the number of over 100 enjoyed a delightful evening's entertainment Thursday at the Buckingham Memorial, the affair being the monthly social time of the club.

Activities began at 6:30 o'clock when a delightful supper was served by members of the club assisted by their wives, the menu consisting of baked beans, cold meats, potato salad, pickles, rolls, cake, coffee, cigars, cigarettes.

Following the supper a program of dancing was enjoyed until about midnight among the feature numbers being "tap" dances, which proved a big hit and caused no little merriment. The music was furnished by members of the club and friends, with Frank Russell at the piano, Raymond Young, violin, and Leslie Branca, drums. The singing of Mr. Russell was a feature of the work of the orchestra and he was applauded for his solo numbers.

The affair proved one of the most enjoyable held by the club since its organization in April and a number of new members were taken into the membership, which now numbers most of the employes of the company.

The arrangements for the evening were in the capable hands of the committee comprising Charles Hamblen, chairman, Joseph French, Lewis Hull, Albert Gesner and Miss Myrtle McCord.

Officers of the Eastern Connecticut Power company club are Vincent S. Welsh, president; Joseph Sullivan, vice president; John Casey, treasurer; Henry Gorman, financial secretary; Miss Mary E. Gray, recording secretary. Trustees of the club are Miss May Diffley, John Starr and Albert Gesner.

COURT HEARING SUIT OVER AGENT'S COMMISSION

Before Judge C. L. Avery and a jury in the superior court here Thursday afternoon, trial of the suit of John A. Moran of this city against Moses Klingon of Colchester was started and partially heard. It will be resumed next Tuesday morning.

Mr. Moran, a real estate agent, sues for $1,500 damages, claiming a commission of 3 per cent. for finding a customer for $42,500 for Mr. Klingon for his property at 33-35 Broadway, next to the Wauregan hotel, the so-called Shields property. Mr. Moran, Dr. George Thompson, and Richard Moran were witnesses for the plaintiff, who claimed that he had exclusive sale for the property and had secured Dr. George Thompson as a customer at the price of $42,500, which the plaintiff said was the price which Klingon wanted to get. Dr. Thompson, it was testified had given Mr. Moran a check for $1,000 to bind the bargain.

Klingon, the defendant, testified that he had given exclusive sale to no agent but had told all that he wanted to get $42,500 net in June 1925, the buyer to pay the agent's commission and the taxes that were due. He claimed that with Mr. Moran he had named a limit, after which "all would be off," and that the Moran customer was not secured till after that time. After that date he said his price was $45,000 and he sold the property to the Dime Savings bank at that price. It was brought out on cross-examination that he had placed a price as high as $75,000 on the property during the five years he had owned it.

The jury hearing the case is the following: Frank W. Brewster, S Clinton Rogers, Norwich; Everett P. Barnes, Henry P. Bates, Preston; Charles Latham, Griswold; Clark H. Standish, Edward H. McCall, Jr., Otto D. Fuller, Lebanon; Jabez L. Bailey, Bozrah; John Morrison, Sprague; Birdsey G. Palmer, George W. Welch, Voluntown.

Attorneys E. W. Perkins and Edward G. McKay are counsel for the defendant, Brown & James for the plaintiff.

PECKHAM TAKES LEAD IN WEST SIDE PINOCHLE

In the play of the West Side Pinochle club, Wednesday evening high score was taken by J. Jordan, with 7,575, advancing him from fourth to second place in the standing. Dr. J. T. Boynton was second high for the evening while Charles Peckham, with a score of 7,010 to 6,370 for A. Jordan, advanced to first place at the expense of the latter.

Scores made Wednesday evening were as follows: J. Jordan, 7,575; Dr. J. T. Boynton, 7,605; Dr. N. B. Lewis, 7,065; C. Peckham, 7,010; H. H. Pettis, 6,980; C. Schuler, 6,935; A. J. Bailey, 6,640; E. Peckham, 6,625; A. Jordan, 6,370; E. C. Underwood, 6,360; C. V. Pendleton, 6,130; J. A. Parker, 5,650.

Stands to date are as follows: C Peckham, 32,765; A. Jordan, 35,565; J. Jordan, 35,350; Dr. N. B. Lewis, 34,685; H. H. Pettis, 34,500; C. V. Pendleton, 34,235; C. Schuler, 34,055; E. Peckham, 33,320; A. J. Bailey, 32,840; Dr. J. T. Boynton, 32,700; E. C. Underwood, 32,090; J. A. Parker, 31,645.

Praises State Institutin.

The state commission on public welfare met at the capitol at Hartford Wednesday afternoon. Secretary Charles P. Kellogg made a report of a visit which he and Mrs. Martha H. C. Mitchell, a member of the commission, made to the Long Lane Farm school for girls at Middletown with Miss Camp, a former resident of Norwich. Miss Camp is now the assistant superintendent of a school for white girls in North Carolina which is similar to that in Middletown of which Miss Caroline F. Menniman is the superintendent. Miss Camp commended the Long Lane Farm institution and its system of management.

ARMISTICE DAY PARADE PLANNED TO START AT 2 P. M.

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Nov. 5—Final arrangements for Armistice day observance in Westerly were made at the session of the Armistice day committee, a meeting of representatives of Westerly patriotic organizations held in Merrill post rooms Thursday evening.

It was definitely decided that the parade, of which Sergeant-Major Robert Atkins is to be the marshal, will start at 2 p. m. All unaffiliated ex-service men are being invited to parade with any organization they desire and the Westerly chapter of the American Red Cross is also to be invited to place a float in the line. The march will start at Broad and Elm streets, continue into Pawcatuck and back into Westerly, up High street, down Grove avenue to the Granite street entrance of Wilcox park. At the band stand, Col. Cyril L. D. Wells, ranking officer of the 243rd R. I. Artillery, will speak. Commander George Kemp will present the flags, gifts from the American Legion, Merrill post, to some representative of the new Westerly hospital. Music for the parade will be furnished by the Westerly Kiltie band, St. Michael's Boy Scout band and Ashaway Boy Scout band.

To Trace White Race In Africa

Count Byron de Prorok, noted archaeologist, author and traveler who is now at Constantine, Algeria, at the head of the Franco-American expedition which is to make a 1,500 mile dash across the Sahara Desert to Hoggar, from where they will trace ancient trade routes and determine the origin of the strange white race of Touregs in Central Africa. All the world is awaiting the result of this expedition, as it is figured the uncovering of hidden chapters of prehistoric Africa will throw light on questions that have been bothering the scientists of today.

THE FEW

The many travel the well-paved way,
Content with the common lot,
But the few break out from the crowd about
And go where the throng will not.

The few will stand to the hazard's risk
And bend to the dreary load.
The few will try for the hilltops high
And carve for themselves a road.

The many wait till the path be known
And the way shines smooth and clear.
But the few will turn with the will to learn
To fight with the thing called fear.

The many will never desert the old
Or fashion a pathway new,
For the man who leads to the greater deeds
Comes always out of the few.

The many will sit at their ease by night
Content with the joys they see,
But the few are thrilled by the urge to build
The greater joys to be.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

SMALLER APPLE CROP THIS YEAR

The per capita consumption of apples in the United States is now about half an apple a day, says the United States department of agriculture.

The total crop this year will reach [illegible],000,000 bushels compared with 179,000,000 bushels last year. The decrease in total production, however, is partially offset by the fact that the crop is of unusually fine quality, and less than the usual proportion will go to waste or be used for manufacturing purposes. The portion known as the commercial crop will reach 20,134,000 barrels compared with 28,587,000 barrels last year. Northwestern apples are being shipped rapidly and are now reaching the peak movement. Federal inspection of apples at shipping points is also greater than last year, inspection in the northwest promising to be 50 per cent more than in any preceding season.

RED CLOVER VS. ALSIKE

Alsike sowing has greatly increased in the last few years owing to short crops of domestic red clover, and to difficulties which have been met in some sections in maintaining red clover yields.

While the importation of unadapted Italian red clover has been almost entirely stopped, and an ample supply of domestic and imported red clovers of proved hardness is assured, experiment stations have examined the merits of all clovers, recognizing that under some conditions of soil and climate other nitrogen secreting legumes may give better results. Experiments have been made by the Connecticut experiment station which are summarized in a recent bulletin analyzing the respective merits of red clover and alsike as follows:

"A larger proportion of alsike is being grown, it may be, because of its withstanding freezing, wet, and acid soils better than red clover. Alsike makes a finer hay than red, but does not yield quite as well, neither does it produce as large a second crop. It frequently lives for several years while red seldom lives for more than two years. However, it cannot be counted upon for more than two seasons. Alsike should be used exclusively on soils which are inclined to be wet but a mixture of red and alsike is best where both wet and dry conditions exist.

"Red clover has longer roots than alsike, hence it is better adapted to soils which may become droughty. It matures about two weeks earlier than either alsike clover or timothy. This is a disadvantage with mixed hay, but an advantage frequently with pure red clover as the harvesting can be started early. The larger second growth of red clover is of particular advantage as it comes at a time when moisture is badly needed."

This last factor has been particularly emphasized through the Middle West during the long dry spell of the present summer.

VALUE OF BARLEY AS FEED MERITS GREATER ACREAGE

Barley should be more widely grown in the northern and western states, advises the United States department of agriculture, saying it is sound economics to increase the barley acreage for the purpose of producing feed for livestock. Before the law prohibiting the manufacture of beer containing more than a very small percentage of alcohol was enacted the best grades of barley went to malt houses and only inferior grain remained on the farm to be fed. This prevented the farmers of the Mississippi valley from realizing its full value as a feed. Even now the quantity of feed produced per acre is not appreciated by the average farmer.

Barley is an excellent grain feed for stock, being almost equal to corn. Then, too, it competes with corn in but few places, as it is mostly grown outside the limits of profitable corn culture. It produces more pounds to the acre than oats or wheat. If necessary it can be seeded later than spring wheat and hence interferes little with the wheat acreage in the spring-wheat region. It supplies the needed grain feed necessary for the increase of livestock, which sometimes must come with diversified farming in the areas where farming is now the only enterprise.

The best lands for barley are well-drained soils that are not sandy. The best returns are obtained from early seeding. The best methods of preparation are fall plowing in the humid-spring region, disked corn ground on the Great Plains, and summer fallow in sections where the crop is winter seeded. The best method of seeding is with a drill, and the best method of harvesting is with a binder. The grain should not be threshed too close, as broken kernels lower the market value.

The best yielding varieties are Tennessee winter in the humid-weather region, Manchurian and Oderbrucker in the humid-spring region, and Coast, Hannchen, Club Marlout, White Smyrna, Chevalier, and Trebi in the semiarid region.

OF INTEREST TO BEEKEEPERS

The annual honey crop of a colony of honeybees is dependent upon a considerable number of factors, part dealing with the activities of the bees and part resulting from the various external factors influencing the secretion of nectar by the honey plants of the locality. Weather suitable for the secretion of nectar and the storing of it by the bees is one of these important factors. Although the weather is beyond the control of the beekeeper, a knowledge of the influence of weather factors upon honey crops in various parts of the country will be of great value in developing the best beekeeping regions of the United States.

To gain this knowledge it is first of all necessary to keep certain colonies under observation, recording at frequent and regular intervals the weight of each, and recording such accompanying phenomena of the weather as may reasonably be supposed to influence either the secretion of nectar or the activities of the bees. The results of making a careful record of this kind with two colonies of bees at the bee culture laboratory of the bureau of entomology, and the mathematical analysis of the records kept, are included in United States department of agriculture bulletin No. 1339, The Effect of Weather Upon the Change in Weight of a Colony of Bees during the Honey Flow, by James I. Hambleton, agriculturist in charge of the bee culture investigations of the department.

COLD-PROOF CORN COMING

Reports percolate from the department of agriculture from time to time of a revolution that is impending in corn growing through the introduction of a cold-proof corn that will mature in an average temperature for the year of 50 degrees and can withstand temperatures as low as 39 degrees. This is not a fairy story as such a corn has been found, but it remains to be seen whether it is profitable for the United States. If it is when fully tested, the corn belt will be extended to the Canadian line.

Not only one variety of this cold-proof corn but a number are under investigation. They were discovered in the highlands of the Andes in South America and brought to the department of agriculture by Fred D. Ritchey of the bureau of cereal investigation. The value of the corn will depend upon the ability to secure a good seared plant through crossing it with the most successful northern strains of American corn. The product of the cross will probably be a dwarf corn maturing in 70 days, it is predicted.

There isn't any corn to speak of that matures in less than 120 days at present. A few strains have been tried which were reputed to mature from 90 to 100 days, but they have no wide commercial distribution.

In our corn belt as it exists at present, a minimum temperature average of 55 degrees at night is about the limit with any chance of maturing a crop. The average temperature during a successful growing season is 72. In Peru and Bolivia M. Richey found corn maturing with the average minimum low temperature during the growing season 39 degrees and the average for the year 50 degrees.

The results of crosses with our corn are anxiously awaited, particularly as to the size of the ear that will result from this international marriage. If it proves practical, great areas of new corn territory will be developed in the United States.

VELVET BEANS AND COW PEAS

Velvet beans and cowpeas are attracting much attention in the southern states as fodder crops and for soil improvement. The former, formerly regarded as exclusively a southern legume, has progressed as far north as southern Illinois. The big seed houses are devoting considerable study to these two legumes with a view to determining the best varieties and establishing a reliable seed standard.

The velvet bean is comparatively a newcomer in agriculture as it was first introduced into Florida 40 years ago as an ornamental vine. Its culture as a cover and green manure crop has greatly increased in the last ten years. Until 1906, according to department of agriculture figures, only one variety of velvet bean was known in America but during recent years the department has introduced about 50 varieties and there are now numerous hybrids.

Some of the later types do not possess the velvety hairy pods of the original variety which gave this legume its name. For soil renovation the velvet bean is declared to be unexcelled in region where it flourishes. The beans in the pod are used for fattening hogs and for cattle feed.

The cowpea is more valuable for hay, being nearly equal to wheat bran in nutrition, according to the department of agriculture. The seed is rich feed but is little used because of its scarcity and high price. It also makes an excellent dish for human consumption and is considerably used in the south.

The seed is long lived and can be stored for long periods without loss of germinating quality but is attacked by weevils, so seed houses are forced to treat it with carbon bisulphid before storing, to kill off these pests and to give later treatment to keep them in check. While there are a number of varieties, only a few are recognized as of first accumulating a stock of the trade is accumulating a stock of the best sorts for distribution through careful tests and study.

Makes remarkable recovery from bad sprain

WORKS LIKE WONDER TO RELIEVE PAIN

Shoulder sprained, returns to work next day

A remarkable case of quick relief from pain and a phenomenally rapid recovery from a bad sprain is told by a stockyards worker in Davenport, Iowa.

"I was loading a quarter of beef and coming out of the cooler I slipped and sprained my shoulder. I used Sloan's Liniment and the next day I was able to go back to work. It does work like wonder to relieve pain."

This is one letter—typical of thousands received by the makers of Sloan's, that tell how sprains, bruises, lame muscles, have been helped by this wonderful liniment.

What is the secret of its marvelous effectiveness? It is the healing tide of fresh, new blood that Sloan's sends right to the place that hurts.

No need to rub. The medicine itself does the work. Quickly and surely it takes down the swelling and inflammation—drives out the pain. Get a bottle today. All druggists—35 cents.

THOMAS KEENAN FOUND DEAD—WENT TO DRIVE QUARRY OXEN

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Nov. 5—Thomas Keenan, 68, the last man to guide oxen at the local quarries, was found dead in his bed Thursday morning at his home at 150 Granite street.

Although a sufferer from asthma for a number of years, Mr. Keenan was enjoying fairly good health and yesterday worked as usual as a helper in the shed of the Smith Granite Co.

He did not complain of being ill last night, but when his wife called him at 6:30 this morning, she found that he had expired. Dr. M. H. Scanlon, medical examiner, after an examination announced that death was due to cardiac asthma.

For over 50 years, Mr. Keenan had been employed at the New England Granite works and the Smith Granite Co. For a long period he drove the oxen used to haul blocks of granite around the works, and was employed up to a year ago when the service of the animals was abandoned at the New England quarry. Since then he has been employed at Smith's.

SCHOOL SUPERVISORS MEET AT NORMAL SCHOOL

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 6—School superintendents and supervisors met in conference at the Willimantic state normal school building Thursday afternoon to observe class room instruction and the demonstration of supervision in the elementary section. About fifty were in attendance. The conference is one in a series held throughout the state this year and was in charge of F. E. Camp, state supervisor of elementary education. The meeting is devoted to discussion of the methods observed.

OLD MYSTIC

Plus Ultra class of the Baptist church met at the home of George Robinson Tuesday evening. Among the items of business was the appointing of Mrs. Alida Coit class reporter. Games were enjoyed and refreshments served. Twenty-four were present.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Baptist church met with Mrs. Charles Murdick Wednesday afternoon. Those present were Mrs. W. D. Beckwith, Mrs. Ellen Williams, Mrs. George Robinson, Mrs. Ida Norman, Mrs. Chelsea Williams, Mrs. Anna Caswell, Mrs. Sarah Crumb, Mrs. Jabez Brook, Mrs. Francis Mitchell, Mrs. Albert Burrows, Ms. Clifford Holmes. An all-day session and dinner was planned for next Wednesday.

Mary Ellen Robinson, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Robinson invited some of her friends in to celebrate her fifth birthday Tuesday. Those present were Loretta Tinker, Katherine Kinney, Edna Pierce, Donald Taylor and George Robinson.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Deriey, Rev. Lowry P. McLennen, Mrs. Ellery Dacis and Mrs. Charles Eccleston of Mystic attended the funeral of William H. Harris, a resident of Old Mystic for 68 years at Central Village chapel Tuesday afternoon. Rev. W. J. Crawford of North Uxbridge, Mass., a former pastor of Old Mystic, conducted the service and paid a fine tribute to the long and exemplary life of Mr. Harris. Burial was in Evergreen cemetery there by the side of his wife. The committal service was read by Rev. Mr. Crawford.

The United Workers of the Methodist church met Wednesday afternoon in the parish house and tied quilts.

Members of Mystic grange here attended the meeting in Mystic last evening. The third and fourth degree were conferred on a class and a harvest supper was served before the meeting.

WEST KINGSTON

The Chautauqua at Wakefield was well attended by people here. It is looked forward to each year with pleasure.

Richard Bristow, who is now working in Readville, Mass., spent Saturday night and Sunday at his home here.

Miss Elsie Crandell of Kingston spent Sunday at his home here.

Mr. and Mrs. James Johnson spent Sunday with the latter's sister at Narragansett.

Many from this village attended the supper and entertainment at Shannock Thursday evening of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Barber have moved into the Bushee tenement.

Mr. and Mrs. John Rose are visiting Mr. and Mrs. William Howard. Mrs. Rose is sister of Mrs. Howard, who has recently had an operation on her arm at a hospital in Providence.

The family recently occupying one of the Brown tenements at Usquepaugh has moved into the Beloit house.

Two of the patients of Exeter who have been at Providence hospitals have returned home, Mrs. Adelaide Smith and Mrs. Eben Slocum.

Sterry Cahoone of Slocum was a visitor with friends here Wednesday.

Many around this community are suffering from colds and sore throats.

Rev. M. Champney preached an excellent sermon Sunday evening at the West Kingston church. His subject was "Love."

E. K. Wilcox attended the Teachers' institute at Providence.

The Hallowe'en social held in the church Saturday evening was much enjoyed, Mr. Champney, the pastor, was present to help in the celebration. After games were played and the chamber of horrors passed through, there came the refreshments served to all.

Church services, held at the residence of Mrs. Abbie Cooke Sunday afternoon were fairly well attended. Mrs. Cooke is an old lady and in feeble health, but enjoys the meetings and is always glad to meet her Christian brothers and sisters.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Mumford have returned home after a visit with the latter's aunt, Miss Sarah E. Barber of Glennock.

A birthday party was given October 17th to Miss Rose Taylor, aged 14, and her brother, Clifford, aged 4. They received many gifts. Refreshments were served, and a merry evening was spent.

BOZRAH

Pie crust made with Snowdrift is rich, tender and flaky.

Good pie crust should be put together quickly and should not be overworked. That is one reason why Snowdrift makes such good pastry. It is so creamy that it is quickly and easily worked into the other ingredients.

Another reason is that Snowdrift is so good itself.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

In Jimmy Skunk's Footsteps

Independence, it is clear,
Is for him who knows no fear.
—Jimmy Skunk.

Danny and Nanny Meadow Mouse were wise enough to know when they were well off. You know they were on their way from the Green Meadows up to Farmer Brown's to spend the winter in his barn. There was no particular hurry about getting there. Winter was still some way off. So they could afford to take their time. That hollow limb in the Long Lane in which Danny and Nanny had found safety from Black Pussy the Cat was an excellent place in which to stay a while. So they decided they would stay, at least until Black Pussy had left and the way seemed clear. Black Pussy hung around the rest of that afternoon, but at last gave up and went back to Farmer Brown's house. However, she was back again the next day. You see, her nose told her that mice were in that hollow limb, and so she spent a great deal of time waiting for one of them to come out. This, of course, they were too wise to do, for they soon found out that Pussy was paying a visit there every day. "I suppose when we get up to Farmer Brown's barn we'll have to watch out for Black Pussy all the time," said Nanny.

Danny nodded. "What of it?" said he in his squeaky little voice. "It's easy enough to fool her. Cats are not half so smart as some folks think they are. I would rather have a Cat hunting me than several folks I could name. We won't have any trouble keeping out of Black Pussy's way after we once reach that barn. I never could see any use for a Cat, any way."

Danny and Nanny stayed there in the hollow limb in the Long Lane for a week. Then they decided that it was time to move along. Black Pussy still paid them a daily visit, which they didn't mind at all, but every night Reddy Fox paid them a visit, and this they did mind. Reddy had just by accident happened to sniff at the open end of that limb and had smelled them.

"We ought to move along," squeaked Lanny to Nanny, "and we would do it right away if we only knew where the next hiding place is. Unless there are good hiding places not very far apart we are going to be in danger."

"We are in danger staying right here," squeaked Nanny.

"True, my dear, quite true," replied Danny. "Still, we do not want to be rash. We'll go along just as soon as opportunity offers."

Opportunity offered that very night. Reddy Fox had paid his usual visit and finding that he could not surprise Danny and Nanny, had gone off hunting. Danny had just poked his head outside for a look around in the moonlight, when who should come along but Jimmy Skunk. Danny drew back. Jimmy didn't see him. Jimmy was ambling along up the Long Lane quite as if he had made up his mind to go somewhere in particular. "Come, Nanny," whispered Danny, and stole out behind Jimmy Skunk.

Now, you know Jimmy is a slow traveler. I mean by that he never hurries. He ambles along in the most leisurely way. This just suited Danny and Nanny Meadow Mouse. It made it easy for their short legs to keep up. They were following Jimmy Skunk. Jimmy didn't know it. Had he known it he probably would have waited for them. In fact, he might have gone to meet them. Jimmy likes a Mouse for dinner by way of change now and then. That is why Danny and Nanny didn't catch up with him. But they took pains to keep as near him as they could without being discovered by Jimmy.

But every night Reddy Fox paid them a visit, and this they did mind

Danny chuckled. It was a funny, squeaky little chuckle. "Jimmy is protecting us and doesn't know it," said he. "I don't fear any one else as long as I can keep as near to Jimmy Skunk as this. That is the beauty of being respected by everybody. Everybody who sees Jimmy keeps at a respectful distance. If Reddy Fox should happen along he would be most polite. I do hope Jimmy will keep right on going up to Farmer Brown's. We'll be sure to get there safely if he does."

So Danny and Nanny Meadow Mouse followed in the steps of Jimmy Skunk, and Jimmy knew nothing at all about it.

The next story: "Reddy's Difficult."

"My sister is awfully lucky," said one little boy to another.

"She went to a party last night where they played a game in which the men either had to kiss a girl or pay a forfeit a of box of chocolates."

"Well, how was your sister lucky?"

"She came home with 12 boxes of chocolates."—Good Hardware.

SYSTEM OF STAGE REHEARSAL ADOPTED BY MOVIE COMPANY

CULVER CITY, Cal., Nov. 5 (AP)—The precursal of the legitimate stage is being utilized by a large motion picture studio here to eliminate the experimenting, cutting, and retitling of films, a process that usually takes longer than the actual production of the picture.

The plan has partially done away with surplus footage and removed practically all the experimental phases from production, studio officials claim.

The players are sent throught careful rehearsals from the script of every scene in the play. As these are rehearsed they are timed. At the conclusion of each scene the director and star know exactly how each detail will look on the screen.

Tryouts also are applied to members of the technical staff. Electricians are sent through rehearsals by the chief cameraman, thus eliminating experimenting and tests with lights while the picture is being filmed.

SOUTHWARD TREK OF HOBOES SHOWS OLD TYPE IN FORCE

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 5 (AP)—The old-type hobo may be motorizing himself into a "flivver bo," but indications in the Southeast are that the veteran railbird is yet extant; and at this time has commenced his seasonal peregrinations southward.

Already the great vanguard is on its way. The mode of transportation is somewhat varied—some clinging to merits of the rods and blinds of the fast limited, while the mapority content themselves with the old "side-door Pullman"—better known as the box car.

From way station near and far come reports of a heavy southward trend of tramps; and from all directions. This year seems to find an unusual proportion of them with the Florida fever.

Starting in August from the far northwest, for instance, Weary Willie soon attaches a boon buddy, and before the change is made in Chicago there is a clan of several score in a single box car. By the time the itinerants reach the far south they have become almost a legion.

Vicissitudes may intervene, however, in which eventuality the small town is faced with the problem of housing a number excessively beyond the foresight of the planners of its calaboose or little jail. In this case the unwelcome are usually escorted to the town's limits and thus put to the irksome trouble of hopping the next freight.

Being of a heterogenous nature and type, the object of these perennial migratories is widely dissimilar. There is the "bad egg" type, as he is referred to by his fellow travelers. This type "hips rats" and has police records; many are wanted by the authorities and not infrequently are detained en route, mostly without gunplay; for it is a curious experience that the "hard guy" who will scold a uniform on the East Side in New York usually forgets he has a hip pocket when yanked from the rods by a lanky "hick" chief of police in Tanktown, North Carolina.

Then there is the contrast—the youngster making his first trip and just beginning to dolefully doubt he will ever break the envious record of the famous "A-No. 1."

There is the card and pool shark, with or without his "roll" secreted in his underclothes. Also the bo who's going to make his killing bringing it over from Bermuda. There is the other type who will confine his alcoholic endeavors to personal consumption. Others will work the old con game.

But the most harmless and truest to the old type species of the genuine wanderer, who only answers the call of the wanderlust, in many cases the plain home-town boy who is out to see what he can see.

EX-RULERS ENJOY EASE SULTAN FIGHTS OFF POVERTY

SAN REMO, France, Nov. 5 (AP)—Sultan Mohammed VI, the last ruler and caliph of Turkey, is struggling to maintain himself and his small household at this quiet retreat on borrowed money or on charity funds sent him by relatives and former supporters.

While other former European monarchs and nobles are living in comparative luxury in foreign lands, Mohammed VI must make repeated calls for assistance to save him and his modest retinue from poverty.

The aged Sultain recently was so hard up that he was obliged to dispense with his young sons German nurse. Soon after that he was threatened with eviction if he failed to pay his rent. Things looked black for the once wealthy and influential head of the Moslem world when his sister saved the situation by pawning a diamond ring and a rope of pearls.

Scarcely had this debt been settled when the Sultan's nephew came to Paris and squandered half the sum realized on his mother's jewels, which was said to be a million francs.

A fresh call probably will be made upon the former monarch's relatives but many of them are in as great need as the ex-Sultain himself. Prince Youssouf Izzedin, eldest son of the Sultan's predecessor Mohammed V, is in the last stages of destitution. He and his wife and two daughters are facing eviction for nonpayment of rent. Friends have started a subscription in their behalf.

The situation of the other 250 members of the Imperial family of Turkey who were driven from Constantinople is even more acute than that of the Sultan. They are scattered in different parts of Europe and live only by the charity of their friends. When they were expelled from Turkey they were allowed to take about $150. Their property was nationalized and their jewels and property confiscated. These fugitives include 35 princes and princesses of the House of Osman, three Sheiks-ul-Islam, a former Grand Vizier, many cabinet ministers, two Court Chamberlains, half a score of editors, many army and navy officers and a number of high government officials.

One of these Turkish noblemen, Djemal Bey, a former cabinet minister of the interior, finding it impossible to make a living in Europe, returned to Turkey. He surrendered to the authorities, was sent to Angora, and immediately tried for treason. He was found guilty and was executed. Many like him would like to return to their homeland rather than starve abroad, but know they will suffer the same fate, and so they continue to live in poverty in European cities.

The more energetic and practical of the number are making their living at hard manual labor. One of them, for example, works as a cook in a Turkish restaurant, a second drives a taxicab, a third peddles German-made "Persian" rugs at the Riviera resorts, another sells cheap cotton stockings on the streets, a fourth hawks bananas, another sells chestnuts on the curb, and so on.

MEXICAN WOMEN CAMPAIGN AGAINST IMMORAL POSTCARDS

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 5 (AP)—A campaign against the sale or display of immoral postcards, pictures or publications has been undertaken by the National Council of Mexican Women. Secretary of Education Puig, petitioned by the council to take action upon the ground that the youth of the country is being subjected to evil influences, expressed his sympathy with the movement and promised his governmental influence in its support.

Government inspectors have been instructed to investigate the conditions complained of by the Women's Council.

CIVIL SERVICE EMPLOYES IN CHICAGO MUST MOVE TO TOWN

CHICAGO, Nov. 5 (AP)—Home moving day for many city employes may be a political sidelight in a change of city administrations. Employes under the civil service code have been told by the corporation counsel that they should live within the city limits. As a result, hundreds of them are confronted with losing their jobs or moving their homes from the suburbs back to the city. The city's legal adviser reversed an opinion handed down under a previous administration.

Insulin Aids Growth

According to the result of observations made by Boston specialists, children suffering from diabetes gain in weight, if they are treated with insulin, in the same manner as do normal children, says the Journal of the American Medical Association. The increase in height of the diabetic child treated with insulin, though occasionally normal, is usually below that of the normal child.

Hunt Mushrooms as Pastime

AYR, Scotland, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Mushroom hunting by motorcar is the latest pastime of young people in Ayrshire. There is a bumper crop of mushrooms in the country this year and parties of young people go out before breakfast gathering them.

Although the rolling stone gathers no moss the high roller scatters a lot of it.

NEW LONDON ELKS INAUGURATE THEIR WINTER SOCIAL SEASON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 5—New London lodge of Elks held its first entertainment of the winter season this evening with a large attendance of members and visitors from nearby lodges, including a considerable delegation from Norwich. The meeting was at 8 o'clock and continued till 9 when a feast was served. This was followed with music and vaudeville entertainers from the Capitol theatre did their stunts. The evening was declared to be especially enjoyable.

Irving Bottomley appeared in the police court this morning as a fugitive from justice, but he has no intention of fleeing nor did he ever have any such idea, probably. He appears to be a country youth in love with a girl who has become a mother out of wedlock, and to be as determined to support her and her offspring as though he were wedded at the altar. The girl in the case is Edith Pennery, who, when she met Bottomley was a resident of Leominster, Mass. She made the error that thousands have made and she must pay the penalty if she does not marry Bottomley. The latter's mother resides at station 14, in Waterford, and she was in court this morning to learn what was to be done with her son. She was advised that there was a complaint against him and that it had come to the New London police from Leominster, New London was without jurisdiction, other than to arraign the young man as a fugitive and that was done. Then the case was continued to Monday that the accused may be taken back to Massachusetts, if that course is desirable. Bottomley desires that the girl become his wife and she will change her name and name her baby as soon as she is permitted to do that. She is declared to be under 15 and to have a guardian. Her stepfather is said by the police to be assuming that authority, but whether he or the girl's mother is the guardian is not known here. The stepfather opposes the marriage, but the girl's mother takes a more sensible view of things and has given her consent to the marriage.

Byron Wilkins, a Waterford contractor, today lodged complaint with the New London police because of youths destroying property at the corner of Georgianna and Broad streets, where Wilkinson is causing a dwelling to be erected.

The police twice last month informed officials of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad of the danger existing at their property on Main street, near Richards street, because of a large hole having been made in the high fence alongside the railroad tracks. Repairs to the fence have not been made so when Patrolman William Graham today made a third report of the danger spot, the matter was turned over to the city's highway department, in an endeavor to cause the removal of the source of danger.

An automobile owned and operated by Joseph H. Stevens, 83 Squire street, was in collision early this morning with an automobile, owned and operated by John R. Wall, of 17 Stony Hill, the accident occurring on Mallory Hill, Station 6, Waterford. Wall did not stop to determine the extent of damage occasioned and this afternoon he was arrested charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor and evasion of responsibility. He will be in the Waterford town court within a few days. When the two cars came together, Stevens obtained the registration of the colliding car, which was N-3624 and in making his complaint to the state police, Groton barracks, he declared that two colored men were occupants of the car and that the driver was intoxicated. Officer Whitmarsh came to New London, but he could not locate the driver of the machine. This afternoon Wall and George Wesley, the latter colored and residing at 14 John street, appeared at the police station here. Wall requested a blank to permit him to make a report of an automobile which he had suspected of being stolen when it was revealed that he was the negro being sought by Officer Whitmarsh. Wall admitted driving the car and he was held a prisoner for the state police.

The funeral of Michael J. Devine who resided at 15 Central avenue, and whose death occurred in a Brooklyn hospital Monday, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and was attended by a large assemblage. A solemn mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Alexander Wollschlaeger, with Rev. Dr. Timothy Crowley deacon, and Rev. Raymond O'Callahan sub-deacon. At the conclusion of the mass, Edward F. Murray sang "At the Foot of the Cross." The bearers were Daniel Devine and Patrick Sheehan, of this city, John Devine, Providence, Daniel Devine, Norwich, Michael Kelley, New Haven and John Shea, Westerly. Burial was in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery.

The funeral of William J. Faulkner, formerly of Niantic whose death occurred of heart trouble aboard the tug Harold of the Thames Towboat company's fleet of craft, off Cape Cod several days ago, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of Mr. Faulkner's son, Clarence Faulkner, in Niantic. The services were conducted by L. B. Grice, pastor of the Niantic Baptist church. Relatives acted as bearers. Burial was in Union cemetery, Niantic.

Funeral services for James H. Burns, former employe on Bartlett's Reef lightship, were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at 63 Washington street, Rev. Horatio J. Chase, pastor of the Montauk avenue Baptist church, officiating. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Mayor Montgomery, of Lewiston, Pa., today communicated with the New London police, making inquiry as to Tom Ziegler, who, Mayor Montgomery stated, was under arrest in this city. Ziegler is not known to the New London authorities or the state police at Groton, nor is he at the county jail.

The police early this evening received a telephone call from a woman on Home street that four New York gunmen were at the home of Philip Trafaconda, Home street, for the purpose of inflicting personal injury on Nicholas Trafaconda, or his intended bride, Rosa Faraci. Patrolmen George Laboue, Patrick Sheehan and Frank Philopena were rushed to the Home street house in the police automobile, but they did not locate the alleged gunmen. However after a search of homes of friends of the Trafaconda man and Faraci woman, Nicholas Trafaconda, Sr., and a male acquaintance were found on Pink street and taken to the police station, together with the fiancee of the youthful Trafaconda. The revelation was then made that the complainants against the elder Trafaconda and his friend had not seen a display of firearms, neither were any found on them when searched, but that the women were more fearful of harm being done than anything else. It was also made known that the elder Trafaconda had come to New London in an endeavor to break up the alliance between his son and the Faraci woman, for the father did not approve of the son's intention to marry the Faraci woman. The father also took it upon himself to take a suit case containing clothing from the Faraci woman, the case and clothing having been given the young woman by Trafaconda to keep for him. As the younger Trafaconda is of age, the father was advised to return the suitcase and contents to the woman from whom he had taken them and was warned against interfering with the woman.

Mrs. Emily Spiers is in Hartford attending the annual convention of the League of Women voters.

Mrs. William M. Caird, 203 Colman street joined her husband today in Brooklyn and in which city Mr. and Mrs. Caird will reside the remainder of the winter.

Mrs. Thomas O'Heihir of Warwick, N. Y., is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Timothy C. Sullivan, 31 Williams street.

Dr. and Mrs. Frank W. Hewes have returned to their residence on Thames street, Groton, having spent a month at the physician's camp in Strafford, Vt. Dr. Hewes spent the major portion of his recreative trip hunting and was highly successful, bagging much small game.

The addition to the Shenecossett school, Eastern Point, Groton, is rapidly nearing completion and it is believed that the rooms will be ready for occupancy before the end of the present month.

Councilor James A. May this afternoon lodged complaint with Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney because of the alleged danger existing at the structure, 46 State street, owned by Philip J. Headed and occupied as a fruit store and which is undergoing alterations to the upper part of the exterior of the building. No action, however, was taken.

Courtland Browne, special agent in the employ of the Central Vermont railroad to passes over the railroad bridge, Watch Grants Winthrop Cove last night, discovered a pair of trousers and a coat on that section of the bridge used by pedestrians. The officer delivered the clothing at the police station where they await being claimed by the owner.

Police Sergeant Patrick Murphy has resumed duty after having been two days in New York to which city he was summoned because of the death of a relative.

SIXTY GUTHRIE LOTS SOLD— HOUSE TO BE APARTMENTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 5—It is announced today that the syndicate that purchased the property of Mrs. C. S. Guthrie at the junction of Pequot avenue and Lower Boulevard has disposed of the sixty odd lots into which they cut the land. The house will be remodelled and arranged in modern apartments for which there will undoubtedly be a demand once they are constructed. That is the record for real estate sales in New London. The amount involved is very large. Mr. Guthrie constructed the house on the land according to his own ideas. It incorporated Japanese and Chinese architecture and arrangement and was a model of good taste and displayed refinement that had been acquired only by wide travel. Mr. Guthrie was then in the directory of the Standard Oil company. He died later and Mrs. Guthrie came into possession of the property. She did not care for so large an establishment and it became known that she would dispose of it. That was the beginning of the change that is to take place on lower Pequot avenue. The gentlemen interested are New Londoners and Mrs. Guthrie has an interest in the syndicate. The property will not be recognizable when the change has been completed. It will be a section of homes that will be tenanted by the owners and which will be preserved against encroachment by any one who will commercialize the place. It overlooks Long Island and Fishers' Island Sound, the Thames river and the stretch of water to the eastward and toward the south. It is an ideal spot for summer homes, but it will, it is believed be found just as desirable for all year-round residents.

GIRL KEPT AT NORWICH AFTER RIDE WITH SAILOR

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 5—Edward Reagan, sailor, stationed at the submarine base, will be turned over to the New London police within the next day or two and will then be compelled to answer to the serious charge of criminal assault upon Jessie Rush, a young girl residing with her mother on Broad street. Reagan is in custody at the base and as soon as the naval authorities receive word from the navy department at Washington, the accused will be delivered to the civil authorities. This, it is believed will be Saturday or Monday.

Reagan, it is alleged, met the Rush girl and a girl companion several weeks ago and offered to give them a ride in his car. The girls accepted the invitation and after a brief ride Reagan drove the machine to the residence of the Rush girl's friend, where the friend alighted. Instead of driving the car to the home of the Rush girl, Reagan, it is alleged drove to the outskirts of the city, where he assaulted the girl after he had removed a portion of her clothing. After having committed the alleged assault Reagan did not drive the girl home, but instead, drove the machine to Norwich, where the girl was kept in a rooming house two days. When she finally related her experience to her mother, Mrs. Rush caused the police to be notified and Reagan being located at the submarine base, a request was made upon the naval authorities to have the accused turned over to the local police. Instead, Reagan was made a prisoner on the reservation, pending the advice being received there from Washington to deliver Reagan to the local authorities.

STATE PIER YEOMAN WANTED TOO BIG RAKE-OFF

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 5—Frank Bemis Jackman, yeoman, second class, stationed at the United States Coast Guard sectional base, state pier, is under arrest there at the request of the New London police, who hold a warrant charging Jackman with the embezzlement of $510 from Morris Bernstein, proprietor of a dyeing and cleaning establishment on Bank street. He will be delivered to the civil authorities Saturday afternoon and next Monday morning he will be presented in the police court.

Jackman acted as the representative of Bernstein at the state pier where several hundred sailors and officers are stationed. It is alleged that Jackman collected funds owed Bernstein and instead of turning the money over to Bernstein, Jackman appropriated it to his own use. Bernstein discovered the defalcation yesterday and lodged complaint with Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky, who issued a warrant for Jackman's arrest. Last evening when it became known that the police were seeking Jackman, friends of the yeoman, notified him of that effect and caused him to return to the state pier, where the civil authorities would not be able to take him into custody. However, the naval authorities took Jackman into custody on a technical charge of desertion as he had overstayed his shore leave. He is being detained a prisoner at the pier until the arrival of authority from the treasury department at Washington to deliver Jackman to the police and this authority will reach here some time Saturday morning.

COMPREHENSIVE REVISION OF PUBLIC SCHOOL CURRICULUM

Five hundred school systems have entered a cooperative plan for curriculum revision, according to Edwin C. Broome, superintendent of schools for Philadelphia, writing in School Life, a publication of the department of the interior, bureau of education. The time has come for a comprehensive nation-wide revision of the curriculum, Mr. Broome says, and the department of superintendence of the National Education Association has appointed a commission to take the leadership in the movement. Not only leaders in education but laymen as well are interested, because the growing cost of education demands every possible saving of school funds, and because of the plain need of saving human energy and time by preventing waste of educational effort.

Fools ofttimes rush in where wise men would be afraid of the police.

PRACTICABLE METHOD OF TEACHING ILLITERATE ADULTS

Five million persons in the United States who are more than 10 years old can neither read nor write. To meet this situation, the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the American Legion, the National Education Association, and the United States Bureau of Education more than a year ago called a conference in Washington of persons interested in the reduction of illiteracy. Every state was represented and an intensive study was given to the solution of this national problem. An outgrowth of the conference was the appointment by the Commissioner of Education, by request of a representative committee to recommend subject matter and methods of teaching native and foreign - born adult illiterates. The work of this committee is embodied in Bulletin No. 9, 1925, Elementary Instruction of Adults, by the chairman, Charles M. Herlihy, Massachusetts state supervisor of alien education. It combines a simple and practical method of instruction in reading, writing, conversation, spelling, and simple arithmetic especially adapted to adult illiterates.

Men take opposite sides on the money question, but the majority are on the outside.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theater

The most high-geared cast of all those seen recently in pictures will arrive Sunday at the Broadway theater when Soiled comes to town for an extended run at that popular playhouse.

Heading the bill is Vivian Martin, for four years a Paramount star, since then a musical comedy star in Just Married, the Shubert attraction which played one year in New York and two years on the road.

Opposite her is Kenneth Harlan, star of The Virginian and other successful pictures without number, known as the screen's most manly leading man.

Second lead of Soiled goes to Mildred Harris (Mrs. Charlie Chaplin) whose amazing performance in The Price of a Good Time is still remembered by jaded playgoers.

In love with her is Johnnie Walker, the nation's favorite son—ever since he beat up his elder brother in Over the Hill.

In this picture he has a new mother—Mary Alden, the star of Rupert Hughes' great study of family life, The Old Nest.

Alec B. Francis who furnished the precious metal for The Gold-Diggers, again appears as a boy of 60 summers, in love with night life.

Wyndham Standing, the inimitable Robert Cain, Maude George, and James T. Mack, all famous for their unique characterizations, comprise the balance of the bill—which, it goes without saying, is eagerly awaited by movie connisseurs.

Buffalo Bill Jr., in Ridin' to Go, is the second feature. An augumented orchestra will render the music in addition to a comedy and Kinograms. Two and a half hours of show for only 25 cents.

Remember the great program today and tonight is clock night.

At the Breed

Every actor, every actress, every electrician and even every prop boy becomes a potential assistant director for John Ford, who rose to cinema fame almost over night with the William Fox special The Iron Horse, and who has just finished The Fighting Heart, which opens today at the Breed theater.

The celebrated director himself came from humble beginnings on the studio lot, and he welcomes suggestions from any of his aides, no matter how lowly their spheres of activity. Ford was content to begin at the bottom of the screen ladder, although he had a Magna cum Laude diploma from the University of Maine in his suitcase when he arrived in Hollywood.

After gaining a little preliminary experience, Ford signed a long term contract with William Fox. After he finished The Iron Horse, Fox tore up the director's old contract and the pay check mounted once more.

In The Fighting Heart, O'Brien plays the leading role and J. Farrell MacDonald in the featured character role.

Billie Dove, Diana Miller, Victor MacLaglen, Harvey Clark, Francis Powers, James Welch and Bert Woodruff fill important roles in the supporting cast.

Lyceum Theater

Seventh Heaven, second only to Lichtnin' as the greatest of John Golden's dramatic successes, will be presented at the Lyceum, New London, tonight and Saturday matinee and night. It boasts of a two years' run at the Booth theater, New York, and while entirely different from the plays of everyday American life to which Mr. Golden has devoted his producing activities, it falls safely within his formula of clean fun and gentle pathos. It was written by Austin Strong, great grand-nephew of Robert Louis Stevenson and author of Three Wise Fools, an earlier Golden success.

The cast that brings Seventh Heaven is headed by Ann Forrest, best known to picture fans for her work in If Winter Comes, Dangerous Days and other films; and Louis D'Arclay, of Mme. Rejane's repertoire company and the Theater Odeon, Paris. It is a story of the Paris slums.

VARIED FUNCTIONS OF RURAL SCHOOL SUPERVISORS

With 6 per cent of the Nation's children in rural schools, fewer than 2 per cent of the 300,000 teachers in these schools are normal graduates. Trained supervisors are, therefore, urgently needed. The field of service of this officer, as outlined in Bulletin No. 9, 1925, of the interior department, bureau of education, includes not only supervising the work of teachers and introducing better methods, but also promoting teacher and pupil reading courses, encouraging school boards to furnish adequate buildings and equipment, inaugurating health programs, and athletic, musical, and educational community meets. He acts as friend and advisor of the teacher, sees that some provision is made for the proper care and education of physically handicapped children, influences boys and girls to complete the school course, and encourages bright students to high-school and college careers.

The longer some people live the more unpopular they are with themselves.

Palace Theatre

Its Cabaret nite at the Palace tonite. Two shows for the price of one. The vaudeville this last half offers an unusual variety. Fred and Ivy Wheeler open the show with a musical novelty that is unusual. Their bittee selections are unique. Mills and Shea come to Norwich with the reputation of being show stoppers and they did not disappoint the Palace audience. Beside a clever line of comedy talk the boys are finished acrobatic dancers.

Kalman Matus & Co. offer a comedy musical skit and the girl in the act has an unusually good voice. We don't know who the company is in the act but if it is the violinist we wish that he would play at least one more selection. Nerrit and Goff which might be called the long and short of it kept the audience roaring for fifteen minutes. The make up on the little fellow would get a laugh out of anybody. The Six Soratos is in our opinion about the best acrobatic act the Palace has offered in some time. Their stunts are nothing short of amazing. Its well worth seeing.

The feature picture Rex The Black Cyclone is credit to Hal Roach its producer. Rex called the King of Wild Horses is so the press stories tell us a real wild horse who will not tolerate a saddle and only five persons have ever ridden him. We don't know how wild he is but will say that he certainly carries away the leading role in this picture that is jammed full of horse fights, suspense. Guinn Williams who rides Rex in this picture must have gotten all the thrills that its possible to get on anything that moves. The way Rex tears up and down cliffs, jumps from one boulder to another keeps the spectator on edge and we can imagine the thrill of being on his back.

PLATOON PLAN IS MORE WIDELY ACCEPTED

Ninety-nine cities in 32 states have one or more schools organized according to the work-study-play or platoon plan. Wheeling, W. Va., has nearly completed the erection and will start its first platoon school. The platoon form of school organization has just been put into effect in all the grade schools of Ellwood City, Pa., Other cities expecting to organize schools on the work-study-play plan during the coming year are Memphis, Tenn.; Eaton, Ohio; Fairmont, W. Va.; and Waltham, Mass. During the past year the department of the interior, bureau of education, has received requests from every state in the union except three for information about the platoon plan.

There are people who actually believe that their troubles interest others.

ARE YOU ONE OF THE 98%?

Recently the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., of Lynn, Mass., sent out over one hundred thousand questionnaires to women who had used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, asking if they had been helped by its use. From the replies received 98 per cent. of women, from all walks of life, answered in the affirmative, telling how they had been relieved from the various ailments for which they had taken it. Isn't this a wonderful recommendation for the efficiency of this old-fashioned root and herb medicine.

That Wonderful Quaker Flavor

Is true Scotch flavor—only QUAKER OATS has it

THE one thing to remember in buying oats is that Quaker Oats has the flavor you want. The difference is great.

Oats, originally a Scotch dish, must have a certain Scotch flavor.

There's real Scotch tang to that Quaker flavor.

No other brand has it. None successfully imitates it. It's due to exclusive Quaker milling of the finest, plumpest oats. Milling methods which took some 50 years to perfect.

Makes all the difference in the world. Quaker flavor spoils folks for ordinary brands.

Quick Quaker cooks in 3 to 5 minutes. No kitchen muss busy mornings. Faster than plain toast.

Due to Quaker milling methods, it supplies, too, the "roughage" you need to make laxatives seldom necessary.

DECLINE IN STOCK PRICES

NEW YORK, Nov. 5. (AP)—Stock prices finally succumbed to selling pressure today despite repeated attempts to speculators for the advance to maintain bullish enthusiasm by bidding up recent favorites. Closing quotations disclosed a large number of losses ranging from 1 to 6 points, interspersed with a smaller number of more moderate gains. Trading started off at a terrific pace but slowed up during the afternoon, the day's sales failing just short of 3,000,000 shares, making it the 18th consecutive two million share full session.

There was nothing in the day's news to account for the reaction, which was widely interpreted as a natural correction of a weakened technical condition resulting from recent speculative excesses in many stocks. French francs broke over 15 points to the lowest level since March, 1924, on selling inspired by the French political crisis, but this was not seriously regarded as a stock market factor.

Credit conditions continued favorable, the renewal rate on call money being lowered to 4 1-2 per cent, which rate was maintained all day. The New York Federal Reserve bank announced after the market closed that the rediscount rate was unchanged at 3 1-2 per cent. Two favorable dividend announcements also were made after the close, the Brooklyn Union Gas Co. declaring an extra, cash dividend of $5, and the Vacuum Oil Co. announcing an extra payment of $1.50 instead of the usual 50 cents extra.

Opening prices displayed a strong tone as a result of a large accumulation of overnight buying orders, apparently attracted, in part, by the widespread publicity given to yesterday's record breaking session. U. S. Steel common touched the highest price in eight years at 134 7-8 but after sold off to 133 1-8 and then rallied to 133 1-2, off 1 3-4 of the day.

Price movements in the motors were particularly confused. General Motors broke through its old high of 142 1-2 before the end of the first half hour, then sank to 141 1-3 during the late morning reaction, bounded up to another new record to 6 at 145 1-8 in the afternoon and finally eased to 144 3-8 for a net gain of 2 1-4 points on the day. Hudson opened at 135, dropped to 126 1-2 and rallied to 131 1-4, off 4 1-4. Chrysler closed five points lower at 240, after being sold to low as 237. White dropped over 7 points and Mack trucks 1.

Coppers moved upward under the leadership of American Smelting and Anaconda, each of which advanced over 2 points to new 1925 high records at 124 and 61 3-4, respectively. Federal Mining and Smelting common jumped 13 points to a new high at 52 and the preferred closed over four points higher at 85 1-8. Cerro de Pasco, Magma, Utah and Kennecott also reached new high ground.

Brooklyn Union Gas crossed 100 to a new high record for a net gain of over 2 points in apparent anticipation of the extra dividend. Among the many other issues to attain new peak prices were Crucible and Gulf States steels, Hupp motors, Du Pont, Schulte stores, United Cigar stores, Philadelphia company and International Combustion Engineering.

U. S. Realty sagged over 6 points to 172 3-4 despite the announcement of a stock split-up and an increase in the dividend. Adams Express, American Brake Shoe, American Woolen, Atlantic Coast Line, Cushman's Bakery, General Railway Signal (new stock), International Harvester, Louisville and Nashville, Ludlum Steel, "Nickel Plate," Pierce Oil preferred, Pullman, Sears Roebuck and United Drug were among the many issues to show net losses of 2 to 5 points.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Acute weakness in French francs which broke to a new 1925 low around four cents, has the feature of the irregular foreign exchange market. Demand sterling ruled slightly higher around $4.84 1-2 and Japanese yen duplicated the year's high at 42 1-8 cents.

TAFTVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Varieur have given up their house on Norwich avenue and left town.

Cards have been received from Miss Katherine Hasler, who is still in New Orleans, La., the guest of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. George Brown, stating that they have left for a several weeks' stay at Pass Christian, a fashionable summer resort up the Mississippi.

Miss Florence Lukoff and Peter Lukoff of South B street, have left town for Blackstone, Mass., where they will spend several weeks.

Rev. U. O. Bellerose, pastor of the Sacred Heart church, is en route for home, having spent several weeks in Europe and making a holy year visit to Rome.

Don't forget the big sale at Edward Adam's store this morning. Opens at 8:30 sharp.—Adv.

ACHESON SUFFRAGAN BISHOP FOR PAST TEN YEARS

Ten years ago Wednesday, Right Rev. E. Campion Acheson, assumed his duties as suffragan bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Connecticut.

At a meeting of the Connecticut Church club held Tuesday at the New Haven Lawn club, at which the bishop was a guest, Father Sills, famous headmaster at Kent school, called attention to the bishop's anniversary and congratulated him upon the success which had attended his earnest efforts in behalf of the diocese and the church, whereupon the men present paid him a grateful and unmistakable tribute.

Bishop Acheson was rector of The Church of the Holy Trinity in Middletown when the Episcopal convention assembled in Hartford elevated him to the high office. That was on June 9th, 1915. The choice was made on the fourth ballot.

Soon after he signified his willingness to accept and was consecrated at The Church of the Holy Trinity the following September 29th, after his election had been confirmed by the Standing Committee. He assumed his work in December 1 and since that time has concentrated his life and his splendid energies to the diocese.

Bishop Acheson was born in Woodstock, Ont., Canada, and graduated from Wycliffe college, Toronto, Canada, and received a master's degree from the University of New York. He was ordained in June 16, 1888, by Bishop A [illegible] of Toronto. He came to Middletown, April 17, 1892, and served as rector of Holy Trinity until elevated to the position he now occupies. At the last diocesan convention Bishop Acheson was the leading candidate for the position of coadjutor bishop, who will succeed Bishop Chauncey B. Brewster. The convention, however, failed to make a selection, and it is probable that another effort will not be made until some future date.

A PRETTY THROAT IS MOST DESIRABLE

Old-time Recipe of Buttermilk and Cream Best Preserves Whiteness Youthfulness and Beauty

One of the woes of the middle aged woman nowadays is that her throat looks lined and old when she puts on a waist with a comfortable and fashionably open neck.

The old-time recipe and still the best to keep youthful looks and ensure a clear, creamy complexion is common everyday buttermilk and cream. The simply wonderful complexions of the English is solely owing to its constant use and while the preparation of this mixture at home is messy and troublesome every woman will be glad to know that she can now obtain the ready-to-use product called "Howard's" Buttermilk Cream at any good drug store.

Few women realize that the throat is one of the greatest telltale marks of time since it very readily shows advancing years or the marks of neglect. If they would only accept these toilet hints in their behalf true light they would not hesitate to cut this out and remember to give Buttermilk Cream a trial. Lee & Osgood Co. guarantees it to give complete satisfaction or money back.

POKUTNY TALKED TO LAWYER ABOUT AN HOUR BEFORE SHOOTING

The actual motive for the double tragedy at the Pokutny farm in Taftville Wednesday morning is a mystery. Just what caused Sam Pokutny to shoot down his partner, Peter Pisarko, and then take his own life by shooting may never be known, except so far as it is indicated by the note that Pokutny left indicating jealousy of Pisarko.

However, a new angle to the double tragedy developed Thursday when it became known that Pisarko had been keeping company with a Polish girl, whom, it is said, Pokutny did not like. Pisarko, it is understood, intended to marry the girl and had said something to Pokutny about taking her to live at the Pokutny farm. This idea did not meet favor with Pokutny, and it is said the two men had some words about the matter. This was two weeks ago and at that time the men had settled the altercation between them and no reference had been made to it by them since, so far as known.

Pokutny and Pisarko were, to all intents and purposes, on friendly terms up to within an hour or so of the shooting. It developed Thursday that about 8:40 o'clock Wednesday morning, Pokutny had met his lawyer, V. P. A. Quinn, as Mr. Quinn was on the way to the city, the meeting taking place at Taftville. They discussed an assault case which last summer Mr. Pokutny had appealed to the court of common pleas from the Poquetanuck town court, and which was slated to have come up in the common pleas court at New London Thursday. Pokutny made an appointment with Mr. Quinn to meet him in the latter's office Thursday morning. At that time he was perfectly normal, showing no sign of excitement or agitation. He asked Mr. Quinn if he should have Pisarko accompany him to the lawyer's office Thursday, but Mr. Quinn told him there was no need for that. Pokutny said he hoped it would not be necessary to have Pisarko go with him as there was considerable work to be done at the farm. It was probably about an hour later that the murder and suicide occurred.

The assault case had no bearing whatever on the tragedy, for the charge against Pokutny in the Poquetanuck court grew out of some trouble that arose over the sale of a farm to a man named Tony Good by a man named Golias, Pokutny and Pisarko merely acting as agents in the sale for Golias.

After the property had been sold to Tony Good, Golias it is claimed, would not pay the commission which it is said the men had agreed upon. Their agreement called for a commission of $1,500, and Golias, it is understood, was only willing to pay $600.

Pokutny brought suit to collect the commission and garnished the money. Good had taken possession of the farm but Golias went back to the farm, as he had an agreement that he could stay there for a month.

When the month was up Good asked Golias to leave. Golias said he was going to stay until the suit over the commission had been decided. The new owner then called Pokutny to the farm to discuss the matter. Pokutny asked him why he didn't put Golias off the farm if he didn't want them there.

The story goes that Golias had heard the conversation and he asked Pokutny, if he, (Pokutny) was going to put him off. Pokutny told him he wasn't going to put him off, and then asked him why he didn't go as Good didn't want him there. Then the trouble that caused the assault charge occurred.

Mrs. Golias, it is said, threw a dish or pan at Pokutny and that Golias also threatened him. Pokutny, according to the story that was unearthed Thursday, made no attempt at assault, and backed out of the house. After the trouble at the house Golias went to his lawyer Roderick Douglass, and the upshot of the visit was that a warrant was sworn out for Pokutny's arrest and trial on an assault charge. He was presented before Justice of the Peace William B. Mitchell at Poquetanuck and the justice imposed a minimum fine of one dollar and costs on Pokutny. Then Pokutny, on advice of his counsel, appealed the fine to the court of common pleas.

SMOKERS' CHANGING TASTES WILL AFFECT CONNECTICUT

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Nov. 5—Tastes of tobacco smokers have changed, according to recent statements made here by F. J. Anderson, pathologist in charge of the Windsor sub-station of the Connecticut agricultural experiment station. Mr. Anderson has made a thorough study of tobacco growing and its related problems and in the course of his research has uncovered a number of interesting facts regarding the preferences exercised by those who smoke tobacco. In his statements here Mr. Anderson brought out that there has been a marked change from cigars to cigarettes, which in time may work to the disadvantage of the Connecticut valley tobacco industry. He also showed that there has been a marked change in the kind of cigars that the smoker likes.

"The change from cigars to cigarettes is the most important one considered," said Mr. Anderson, "government statistics show that despite the increase in population in the United States, the consumption of cigars is no greater than it was 20 years ago. Meanwhile the consumption of cigarettes has increased more than 3,000 per cent. Since the Connecticut valley produces only cigar leaf tobacco and since competition with the other cigar leaf sections is becoming keener all the time, one can easily surmise the future of our industry in Connecticut if such a tendency continues indefinitely.

"The next most important change is in the kind of cigars which the smoker likes," continued Mr. Anderson. "The most significant point here is that he used to prefer a dark colored cigar, but now he must have a light colored one. Not over five per cent of the cigar leaf we produce here —less than that in the last few years —is suitable for light wrappers. But we find it easy to produce all the dark wrappers that are needed. In the old days there was no difficulty in selling dark tobacco. In fact, the demand for black cigars was so strong they even treated the leaves with chemicals to make them blacker. But that was many years ago. Black cigars are now considered cheap and strong. As yet nobody has been able to find a chemical which will turn a dark wrapper into a light one."

ROAD CONDITIONS AND DETOURS ARE REPORTED

Road conditions and detours where construction work is under way in Eastern Connecticut are reported by the state highway department as follows:

Portland, Glastonbury-Portland road is under construction. Road is open for traffic.

East Hampton, Portland-East Hampton, road is under construction. This road has been extended from the four corners to the lake, a distance of one mile and a short detour on macadam is necessary around this mile. The rest of the road is now open but caution should be used as the shoulders are incomplete.

Glastonbury, New London turnpike is under construction but is open for traffic.

East Lyme—Shore road is open to traffic, shoulders incomplete.

Colchester-Hebron, Amston road is under construction, open to traffic, shoulders incomplete.

Killingly, Putnam-Norwich road concrete pavement is being laid, traffic is regulated by telephone.

Bozrah, Boxrah street is under construction. Open to traffic.

Norwich-Montville, Norwich-New London road is under construction. Through traffic between New London and Norwich should use road on east side of the Thames River.

Franklin, Norwich-Willimantic road is under construction. Open to traffic.

HEALTH WEEK OBSERVANCE IN NORWICH SCHOOLS

The observance of health week, which is the second week in November, will be carried out in the Norwich schools by stressing the instruction in dental health measures under the direction of Miss Helen Christ, school nurse. Talks will be given and toothbrush drills conducted. There will also be a health exhibit arranged in the window of the Plaut-Cadden store on Main street, and moving pictures will be shown in the theaters.

The woman who always wears a smile is faultlessly dressed.

NOT SCHATZMAN BULLET THAT KILLED RUM RUNNER

The startling disclosure that a state police other than William Schatzman fired the shot in East Haven which instantly snuffed out the life of Simone Rianna, a rum runner, was brought to light Wednesday. This disclosure, based on facts dug up by detectives during the past 24 hours, disposed of the several theories which were advanced during the early stages of the case.

During the early morning of Friday, Oct. 23, State Policeman Schatzman, on duty in the East Haven section, fired a shot at a fleeing rum runner. The officer himself believed that the shot took effect. But the automobile of the runner didn't stop, and was next heard from in Rhode Island where it dashed through Westerly and continued on to a hospital in Providence. The physician found that the occupant of the car, Simone Rianna, was dead.

Policeman Schatzman was grief stricken when he heard that it was his shot which had ended a human life.

The autopsy, however disclosed that while death was caused by the same kind of a bullet which state policemen use, the shot did not enter the victim's back, as would have been the case had the Schatzman shot been the one.

The fatal shot entered the body from the front and went clean through. It severed the main blood artery feeding the heart and death was instantaneous. At first it also was theorized that some other rum runners, with whom Rianna had engaged in a running fight after having gotten away from Schatzman, fired the fatal bullet.

All those official and semi-official theories and speculations were discarded when further investigation established the fact that the shot was fired from the front.

An attorney of high standing, who did not care to have his name mentioned, was authority for the statement Wednesday that another state policeman other than Schatzman fired the fatal shot, and that it was fired in East Haven and that death was instantaneous.

These disclosures bring the case within the jurisdiction of Coroner Eli Mix of New Haven, who at first could not act because there was no dead body in this state, and also because it was not known where the fatal shot was fired.

Now that it has been positively established that the shot was fired in East Haven Coroner Mix will hold an investigation. When questioned on Wednesday Mr. Mix positively refused to disclose the identity of the state policeman who fired the shot.

It was learned from another source, however, that the other state policeman, unbeknown to Schatzman, was patrolling the main road on the easterly side of East Haven at the same time.

That other officer, it was said heard the shots fired by Schatzman and stepped into the road to see what was coming, having been able to hear the roar of an automobile approaching at a very high rate of speed. It was said that the officer stepped out into the road and signalled to the approaching machine to stop. The driver paid no attention to the signal, and would have run down the officer. The policeman pointed his gun, fired and jumped out of the way. Rianna toppled over in his seat, stone dead. A companion grabbed the steering wheel and piloted the car into Rhode Island, drove through Westerly up to the hospital in Providence and disappeared.

REV. E. S. HOLLOWAY'S WIFE LEFT ESTATE OF $140,000

Ideal Pants Company Sells

The Ideal Pants Company, which for many years was located at No. 40 Thames street, has sold out the plant to Philip Gottesfeld and Jacob Weisman of Norwich who will operate the plant for the manufacture of pants. The purchasers have taken possession of the plant and expect to have it ready for operation on or about the 10th of November.

GIVES TALK TO LIONS ON LOOKING AHEAD

The weekly meeting of the Norwich Lions club was held Thursday noon at the Wauregan Hotel, President William A. Anderson presiding, while Earle Taggart officiated as song leader.

Secretary Edward Rich read a communication from the headquarters of the Norwich Boy Scouts, asking that the Lions club co-operate with them in the furnishing of additional scout masters, thus aiding in the movement to extend the Scout movement throughout the city. Lion Max Hanover also spoke regarding scouting and urged the backing of the movement and Lion Jean Keiffer offered his services as scout master.

The attendance contest prize, a handsome leather bill-fold, donated by Lion George Madden, was awarded to Lion Abner Schwartz.

Among the guests of the club for the day was Robert LeSueur, leading man of the Richard Mansfield Players, who was called upon for remarks, and told of the profession of acting, explaining that it was a link between actors and business men. His talk was heartily applauded.

The speaker for the day was Lion Jean Keiffer, whose talk on Looking Ahead gave much food for thought and was well received by the members. In part he spoke as follows:

Many interesting topics have been discussed in this club, a great majority of them bearing on the betterment of conditions for the individual through betterment of social, civic and industrial organization. In most of these, only the present or immediate future have been considered and sometimes with very little regard to more distant time. Should we not look ahead a little bit further, yes, even much further than we usually do, in order to gain a better idea of what bearing the changes we are going to make today will have, at a time when you and I will probably be forgotten?

As a rule we do not think far enough ahead. Looking ahead to many people only means looking into the near future for their own personal betterment or comfort. Other people look ahead a bit further, and try to plan for the comfort and enjoyment of life of their children. Still others, without looking further ahead, broaden their views and also take into consideration the comfort and enjoyment of life of those forming the community or nation in which they live. Lately many of us have broadened our views still more, and since the advent of the great World war International brotherhood has been a by-word. This is very good and a great step forward but it remains for us to look further ahead than we, as a rule, have been accustomed to, remembering that anything that we may undertake will have some lasting effect, however small this may be.

In order to be able to gain an idea of what lasting effect a given undertaking might have we must already have a sound opinion of all the future developments possible and probable, in the things on which this undertaking has a direct bearing. If we intend to do our best in civic, social and industrial betterment following the principles of Lionism, we should have some opinion of what will probably be the result of the forces working at present on the things on which International Lionism has a direct bearing, namely, humanity as a whole.

It would take a tremendous amount of time, and an H. G. Wells, to discuss what the future changes in the world may be. But most of us have some opinion, however hazy, of what civic, social and industrial conditions will be in two, three or four generations. It only remains for us to make this a little clearer, with logical deductions of what is possible, and especially probable to happen, from our knowledge of what is at present possible and what has been done in the past.

Probably the greatest single factor in future changes is transportation. It is a fact that in the past 50 or 100 years the tremendous developments which have taken place have paralleled the development of transportation methods. By transportation I mean both the actual moving of man and the moving of his products, especially those of the brain. The mere fact of our being here together today is a direct outcome of transportation methods. Were it not for the railroad and automobile, telephone, telegraph and mail service there would not be any Lions' International. Transportation made the last great war possible, but it will also, through the dissemination of races and ideas, make the abolishment of war possible.

We are coming to realize more and more that transportation influences every activity of man, and in looking ahead to future developments we must bear it in mind; it influences the other factors which have a place in this development. Education, religion, civic organization, laws, medicine and hygiene, even entertainment are great influences which are shaping the destiny of man. In looking ahead we must try to put all these in their proper relationship to themselves and to transportation. However, transportation methods are but the practical adaptation of scientific discoverics. So that, after all, we find science the leader of progress and our view of the future must be broad in its outline as we know not what science may do in the form of new discoveries.

In trying to get a clearer view of our hazy idea of the future we must not forget ourselves: Men. For after all is said, human nature is the thing and prompts us, at times, to destruction. It will take a long time for all men to be good men and when I say that we should look into the future to better understand what we are doing I do not mean that we should look to a time when all will be perfect, a millenium; but we should conduct ourselves today having in mind the result of our actions on a world composed of men like ourselves, with inclinations for good and bad. And may we conduct ourselves that these future men may be a little better and not quite so bad.

Tyler Stanton was announced as the five-minute speaker for next week with Dave Kerr for song leader. The meeting closed with "The Star Spangled Banner" and salute to the flag.

SCOUT LEADERS' COURSE OPENS FOR EIGHT WEEKS

The leaders training course provided by Scout Executive C. A. Benton and the leadership and training committee opened Wednesday night at Scout headquarters for eight weeks. The course is for old Scout masters and new men including assistant scout masters and patrol leaders, in fact, for any man interested in Scouting, and who desires to know more about the handling of leadership problems.

The inspirational will be given by local successful business men who realize the value of Scouting in the community and who will give us sciearer vision and courage to pursue our task in the character building and citizenship raining program.

Troop organization and management by local scout officials having a practical knowledge, actual experience and success along hese lines.

Scoutcraft by local officials, scout masters, and high grade Scouts, especially qualified to each those practical Scout qualifications.

E. V. Ross, president of the council spoke encouragingly of the work and said he felt as he saw more of Scouting that it developed the boy along physical, mental and spiritual lines. He gave an interesting account of animal tracking in company with a guide who gave him some of the lore of woodcraft and showed him how close observation and concentration unlocked the secrets of nature. So, said he, the Scout training tends to do.

F. A. Benton outlined the plan of the course and practically demonstrated the manner of conducting tenderfoot tests.

Rev. A. H. Abbott gave an inspiring address on "Scouting Objectives." In his talk he said that the function of the Scout leader is to find something of interest to some one, so that he may find a channel in which to express himself. Scouts can not be standardized; no two boys are alike, each is a separate and individual being and must be so treated. Each one has his own manner of expression, himself, and the challenge to the master is to find that something. Scouting is a great movement, because it has so many lines of activity, so many things a boy can do. The accomplishments of Boy Scouts represented by concrete work in many directions is wonderful.

Scout Master Harold Linderson of Taftville contributed to the course by describing how the patrol system worked in his troop. A Scout master for assistant Scout masters, four patrol leaders, a senior patrol leader form the ideal set up for a full troop of 32 Scouts.

No Scout Master, he said, could do the work alone. He must have help in Scout instruction, which is done by patrol leaders, and the assistant Scout master gives the examinations. The troop is strictly divided so the each patrol is instructed by itself. While the formal part of the program and the games are participated in by all Scouts in common.

His plan of having a definite program for each meeting and also for the entire eight months is responsible for his successful troop.

To the already enthusiastic group of older Scout masters present Wednesday night, it is hoped that more men will avail themselves of this course.

The meeting next Wednesday will have inspiring speakers.

TRANSPORTATION PROBLEMS FOR COMMERCE CHAMBER

Because it is felt that the biggest problem confronting Connecticut today is the transportation question, the board of directors of the Connecticut Chamber of commerce meets at the Hotel Taft, New Haven, at noon today (Friday) to determine what action or what stand the chamber should take especially in the light of the study of transportation matters that has been made by various committees of the chamber during the past four years.

The chamber directors will give especial attention to the coordination of rail, trolley, motor bus and motor truck agencies. Officers of the chamber feel that waste and duplication in transportation service should be avoided, inasmuch as the public has to pay the cost.

Various recommendations made by the chamber's transportation committee will be reviewed by the directors.

In order to have all viewpoints represented at the meeting, President E. E. Rogers of the chamber has invited the following persons to be present and give advice: Robbins B. Stoeckel, commissioner of motor vehicles of Connecticut; Patrick J. Healey, of Waterbury, president of the Connecticut Motor Stage association; Henry C. Chappell of New London, president of the Motor Truck association of Connecticut; Attorney Arthur L. Shipman of Hartford, representing the bus and truck interests; E. Kent Hubbard, president of the Manufacturers' association of Connecticut; A. F. Russell of Boston, president of the New England Transportation company; Lucius F. Storrs of New York, former president of the Connecticut company; Winthrop M. Daniels, professor of transportation at Yale university, and the members of the Chamber's transportation committee who are: E. G. Buckland of New Haven, vice president of the New York New Haven & Hartford R. R.; Le Grand Cannon of New Haven, vice president of Austin, Nichols & Co.; L. J. Carmalt, of New Haven, consulting engineer; John T. Chidsey, president The Root company, Bristol; Arthur M. Collens of Hartford, vice president Phoenix Mutual Life ins. company; Harrison B. Freeman of Hartford, attorney; John D. Hefferman of Waterbury; Coville Manufacturing Co.; Edward G. Mooney, of East Hartford, president of Hartford Despatch & Warehouse Co.; E. J. Pearson of New Haven, president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford R. R.; Samuel Russell, Jr., of Middletown and H. H. Skerrett, Jr., of Hartford Hartford manager of Packard Motor Car Co. of New York.

Advance reservations indicate that an unusually large proportion of the chamber's seventy directors will attend today's meeting. President Ernest E. Rogers of New London, treasurer of Connecticut, will preside.

RED CROSS EXTENSIVE WORK IN CONNECTICUT

The summary of the work of 41 Red Cross chapters in this state for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1925 is given as follows:

Red Cross nurses have made 23,302 visits to homes where sickness and disease threatened human life. They have inspected 13,860 school children and helped to get their defects corrected. Home hygiene and care of the sick has been taught to 193 women and girls, by which they learn personal hygiene, hygiene of the home and community, care of babies and simple nursing procedures necessary for the comfort and care of the sick in the home.

More than 5,900 ex-serice men or their families have been assisted in settling claims growing out of disabilities resulting from war service. Many ex-service men needing hospital treatment have been helped in procuring the necessary data, and placing it in correct form before the proper officials. While these claims are pending, and while the ex-service men are in hospitals, Red Cross workers see that their families do not suffer.

In many communities where the Red Cross Chapter is the only welfare agency, and where for other reasons it is advisable for it to do civilian relief work, it has given constructive help to 711 civilian families, assisting them to get back on their feet and become self-supporting.

A total of 628 people have been taught scientific methods of rescuing drowning people and resuscitating them, and have received certificates of proficiency. Over 100 others have been taught through First Aid courses, "What to do before the doctor comes."

The 67,531 school children enrolled in Junior Red Cross are building for better citizenship and international amity. With the motto, "I serve," they carry on programs of civic and social welfare.

Volunteer workers have made 1,483 garments for distribution wherever needed. They supply clothing in times of disaster, in the United States they have transcribed 90 per cent of all Braille for the blind, and they meet many other needs in their communities.

A near-thoughtless man is one who thinks only of himself.

POQUETANUCK WOMAN'S GUILD HELD ALL DAY MEETING

An all day meeting of the Woman's guild of St. James' church, Poquetanuck, was held Thursday at the home of Mrs. Mary Harris, Poquetanuck. Thirty members of the guild and invited guests sat down to a bountiful luncheon at noon. This is the second all day meeting held by the guild within a month, the other having been at the home of Mrs. C. D. Gro[illegible]. Much sewing has been accomplished at these meetings which are held in addition to the regular weekly meetings to prepare for the Christmas sale given by the guild.

In after years a man may regret the fact that he attended his own wedding.

BUS TRANSPORTATION VITAL TO NEW HAVEN RAILROAD

General Counsel Spock Tells Directors of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce of the Road's Economic Duty to Its Stockholders—Tells Why the Road Desires to Withdraw Trains Run at a Loss, Substitute Inexpensive Bus Units and Save Money—Views Expressed by Opponents of the Road.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 6.—(AP) — That the New Haven road owes an economic duty to its stockholders, who have received no dividends in a dozen years, to enter the field of bus transportation, to withdraw its trains run at a loss, substitute inexpensive bus units and save money, was the assertion of Benjamin S. Spock, the road's general counsel, who presented the road's viewpoint before the board of directors of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce here today. Representatives of the motor bus and motor truck and trolley interests also presented their views as to the recent decision of the New Haven to launch a bus program. The chamber's directors heard all viewpoints today preparatory to taking a stand on the granting of further bus franchises by the public utilities commission.

Mr. Spock stated that the "independents" became competitors of the New Haven" by paralleling most of its system and now objected to the road competing with them. He added that a number of the bus concerns now offered to sell out to the New Haven and claimed that 90 per cent of the "independents used antiquated cars. He declared that the New Haven was running many trains at an income of 15 to 25 cents a mile as against a cost to the road of over $1.25 a mile. He declared that the New Haven did not enter the bus field sooner because of the many problems confronting it, among which was the refinancing of the foreign loan of $23,000,000 last fall.

In picturing the growth of the independent bus operators, Mr. Spock pointed out that today there are 1,400 miles of bus lines in Connecticut as against 552 road miles on the New Haven. He said that ninety-four transportation bus routes paralleled the New Haven and that the public utilities commission had received 1,200 new franchise applications since 1921. Mr. Spock stated that the efficiency of the New Haven management was demonstrated by the fact that the New Haven was turned back from federal control after the war with a deficit of $64,000,000 and lacking money to pay its taxes, whereas it had since earned this deficit into a net surplus of $12,000,000. He concluded by saying that the road must have an increase in revenue or increase its rates, which officials do not want to do.

Chairman B. Freeman of Hartford, counsel for the Hartford and Springfield Street Railway company, and who operates both trolleys and buses, claimed that the purchase of Connecticut trolley systems by the New Haven road had lost $100,000,000 for the road's stockholders. He insisted that the New Haven road had nothing to fear from bus competition in the way of lost revenue if the road refrained from entering the field of bus operation. He predicted that every dollar put into bus operations in this state by the New Haven would result in a loss. He insisted that New Haven officials were displaying a panicky attitude by launching into a bus program. He felt sure that the New Haven lost ten times as much revenue from the widespread use of private automobiles as from the competition of the buses.

Mr. Freeman alleged that the New Haven had shown a preference in buying its busses from bus manufacturers which did the most business with it. Mr. Spock declared in reply that the busses purchased were made by leading manufacturers in the bus field and were widely used and noted for their efficiency. Mr. Freeman said that many bus operators claim that the New Haven is guilty of a breach of faith in entering the bus field inasmuch as they feel their certificates should protect their invested capital. In reply Mr. Spock stated that the law says that anyone can get a certificate to operate busses if he can prove "public convenience and necessity." Mr. Freeman claimed that the New Haven expects to operate its busses at a loss and that this would be a misuse of the money of the stockholders. He concluded by predicting that the New Haven would be sorry that it entered the bus field within two years.

Patrick J. Healey of Waterbury, president of the Connecticut Motor Stage association, predicted that the New Haven would have to discard its subsidiary, the Connecticut company, if it duplicated the service with its buses. He charged that the New Haven had been asleep during the last four years. He gave it as the belief of the motor bus interests that the New Haven should confine itself to long distance operations and that short haul traffic should be left in the hands of the existing busses. He said that busses were supreme for traffic the railroads were supreme for greater distances."

"We have investments and our chief interest is to protect those investments," declared Mr. Healey in opening his discussion.

According to U. K. Punderford, president of the Connecticut company, his

Evacuation of Cologne Dec. 31

PARIS, Nov. 6—The evacuation of Cologne may be an accomplished fact by December 31 A broad hint to this effect is conveyed to the German government in a note drawn up by the allied council of ambassadors today. The only condition is that the German government clear up certain points in their latest communication on the progress of disarmament in Germany which the ambassadors found somewhat vague.

BOARD OF ARBITRATION ON TROLLEYMEN'S WAGES

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 6.—(AP)—The board of arbitration which is hearing the wage dispute between the Connecticut company and its employes indicated today at the closing of the day's session here that it is hoped the presentation of evidence may be completed next Monday, and the arguments made a day or two later. Chairman Charles Kiesler said that he must be in his compensation court Tuesday to give his attention to an accumulation of business and requested both sides to speed up the proceedings.

Most of the time of the board has been taken by statistical experts. In behalf of the union men, Arthur Sturgis, federal expert, presented a mass of material bearing on the cost of living. This was followed today by statistical advice by Leslie Vickers, of New York, who has made a study of the cost of living and economics in many countries and who is present instructor at Columbia and a frequent lecturer at Yale.

Martin J. Hennessey, business agent of the trolleymen's union in Springfield, Mass., presented arguments in favor of a differential wage for the operators of one-man cars. Raymond E. Bradley, of Hartford, representing the bus drivers employed by the Connecticut company, argued for a substantial increase in wages.

The hearing was adjourned until Monday morning.

ARMISTICE IN MOTION PICTURE CONTROVERSY

HARTFORD, Nov. 6.—(AP)—The warfare between motion picture interests and the state of Connecticut over the new film tax law was ended by an armistice agreed upon at Governor Trumbull's office today.

The motion picture exchanges will be restored to Connecticut without delay, the signing of contracts will be resumed and the appeal of the supreme court of the United States to have the law declared unconstitutional will be abandoned. This much the moving picture interests agreed to. The governor on the other hand declared unequivocally that he will exercise the clemency of his office to bring about a nullification of the law in the 1925 session of the legislature, including the elimination of the censorship feature.

The agreement was reached at a conference in the executive chambers of Governor Trumbull, republican state chairman J. Henry Roraback, Charles C. Pettibone, representing the motion picture producers, Joseph M. Walsh, president of the Motion Picture Theatre owners of Connecticut, and Benedict M. Holden of counsel for the movie interests. It was the sequel of a conference at the Hotel Bond Thursday night, at which Will H. Hays, managing director of the motion picture industry of America, and Republican State Chairman J. Henry Roraback were present.

PROGRESS ON ITALIAN WAR DEBT SETTLEMENT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—(AP) — Italian and American debt commissioners made further strides today toward a funding arrangement for Italy's war debt, and they regarded the indications at the end of the day as pointing to an early settlement.

Active negotiations on the Italian obligation, however, have been put over until late Monday. The American commission wanted a free day in which to prepare for conversations with the Rumanian debt commission which arrived here tonight and will begin negotiations Monday morning.

The joint sub-committee of the American and Italian commissions headed by Secretary Mellon and Count Volpi, was occupied most of the day with consideration of the problems to which it addressed itself yesterday. While official view of the discussions in that committee was that they were still to be described as stages of negotiations, it was admitted on all sides that greater progress had been made today than yesterday.

Little was said about the Rumanian negotiations at the treasury today. That mission has come to seek a funding settlement, after its government had received several diplomatic pleas. The debt is placed by the treasury at $36,123,494 in principal and $10,380,166 in accrued interest.

FRENCH FINANCIAL PLAN NOT YET FORMULATED

PARIS, Nov. 6—(AP)—M. Painleve, French premier and minister of finance did not hand his financial plan for restoring the position of the French treasury to M. Herriot, president of the chamber of deputies, and make known its contents to the newspapers tonight, as he had intended. Instead he decided to make a further study of its text, retouching it here and there.

An official of the ministry of finance said tonight that there would be no fundamental changes in the plan as already outlined. Preliminary information is that the plan calls for a sinking fund to be served through a forty per cent increase in the taxes on all securities and a small increase in the tax on incomes. M. Painleve is declared to be hopeful of raising between sixty and sixty-five billion francs in fifteen years by this means.

DRUSE TRIBESMEN CUT THE RAILWAY NEAR DAMASCUS

LONDON, Nov. 6—An exchange telegraph dispatch from Cairo reports that the rebellious Druse tribesmen have seized Derat (Deraya) about seven miles south of Damascus. The Haifa-Damascus railway, on which Derat is situated, is said to have been cut.

The dispatch adds that there is a severe censorship on all news leaving the region.

THEFT OF $25,000 WORTH OF JEWELRY IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Nov. 6. (AP)—The theft of $25,000 worth of jewels from Mrs. Howard Chandler Christy, wife of the artist, was revealed today when Frank Gowasky, a window washer, was arraigned in Yorkville court and held, without bail for examination next Tuesday.

Planned Setting up Of an Italian Republic

Publication of Details of Conspiracy Has Aroused the People of Rome.

ROME, Nov. 6—(A. P.)—Already aroused by the thwarted plans to assassinate their premier, the people of Rome were further stirred today when it became known through a detailed report published by the usually well informed Epoca that the assassination was only a detail of a general conspiracy calling not only for the death of Mussolini and the overthrow of the Fascist government, but the fall of the House of Savoy and the setting up of an Italian republic.

The Epoca's statements are made with such apparent assurance as to indicate the newspaper is sure of its ground, although the source of its information is not made public, and there is not even a hint that it came from governmental sources.

According to the paper, Roberto Farinacci, secretary of the fascist party, was the first to learn of the existence of the plot. He gave all the information he had to the Minister of Interior Luigi Federzoni, who assumed personal direction of the plans to detect its origin and follow its developments.

From the moment the minister became aware of the plot sometime ago he ordered that all those suspected of being implicated be shadowed day and night, the paper continues, says the report the former Unitarian Socialist Deputy Zaniboni who, the police assert, was to have fired at the premier, left Montana in the company of three men. The automobile, driven by Zaniboni himself, proceeded in the direction of Rome, followed by another car occupied by detectives.

Zaniboni and his friends, who were not named, but who are said to have been identified by the police, stopped along the road a few miles from Rome. They disappeared into a thick pine grove where Zaniboni practiced for a long time shooting at a target with a specially equipped rifle, the target being placed about 100 yards away.

The practice succeeded so well, the report goes, that the others congratulated Zaniboni on his marksmanship. He then drove the car into Rome and took lodgings in an obscure rooming house near St. Peter's. He remained there for a few days, changing his appearance by various disguises.

Later it was noticed by the detectives that an accomplice of Zaniboni had the habit of meeting General Capello, who has been arrested, charged with having a part in the plot. The meeting place usually was on the Cavalleri bridge, over the Tiber, where Capello always arrived in a public cab. They usually strolled about for a few minutes, and, the Epoca says, it is supposed that General Capello handed over money to the accomplice, who returned to Zaniboni. The last time that General Capello met this man was on Tuesday, after which the general left immediately for Turin.

It was only on the eve of the Armistice day celebration that Zaniboni claimed his room in the Hotel Dragoni, which had been previously engaged by an accomplice, and in which he was arrested. Later it was learned that a room had been engaged not only in this, but in two other hotels nearby, because there was no certainty as to which balcony Premier Mussolini was to use to review the victory parade. After it was learned the premier would appear on the balcony facing the Corso, instead of the one facing the Piazza Colonna, that Zaniboni decided to occupy the Dragoni hotel room.

The semi-official Stefani agency announces that some additional persons suspected of complicity were arrested today, but does not state how many. Epoca denies the report that two plotters were arrested in Milan. The document and papers which were seized from Zaniboni's valises as well as in his apartment in Rome and the room he occupied in a hotel at Turin have been examined by police judges. Nothing, however, has been made known concerning the contents.

Premier Mussolini is continuing to receive thousands of telegrams from all parts of Italy and aboard, congratulating him on his escape. His followers are busy carrying out orders to prevent disturbances among the excited population.

PRESIDENT'S ATTITUDE ON IMMIGRATION POLICY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6—(A. P.)—The outspoken criticism of the administration's immigration policy by Commissioner Curran at New York is regarded as unfortunate by President Coolidge, but he does not regard the matter as being of prime importance and no disciplinary action is planned.

The president has heard that the labor department has forwarded to the White House a protest against Mr. Curran's utterances in opposition to the new plan for examining immigrants abroad and permitting them to land on their arrival in the United States without a stay at Ellis Island, but thus far no communication has reached the executive desk.

Instruction in Use Of Smokeless Coal

Producers of West Virginia Are to Establish a Bureau in Boston in Near Future.

BOSTON, Nov. 6—(A. P.)—The smokeless coal producers of West Virginia who are prepared to ship into New England 450,000 tons of semi-bituminous a month and, to provide educational service in introducing their product, will establish a bureau in Boston in the near future. Decision to establish the bureau was reached at the monthly meeting of the Smokeless Coal Operators' association of West Virginia, held here today.

It was made known to the association that a representative of the New England Governor's Fuel committee will appeal before Interstate Commerce Commissioner Johnston B. Campbell in New York, November 12, to request changes in conditions under which West Virginia coal may be shipped into West England.

A recent ruling which permits shipment of this coal into New England on a competitive basis allows only the shipment of prepared sizes through New York as a port of entry. The governors' committee is prepared to ask that West Virginia coal be allowed to enter through other New England gateways and "run of the mine" coal be included.

The action of the coal producers and the New England governors are the latest results of efforts being made to avert an impending coal shortage resulting from the suspension of operations in the anthracite mining industry since September 1.

Eugene C. Huttman, emergency fuel administrator of Massachusetts, told the association today that New England would need 4,000,000 tons of coal this fall and winter, congratulated the producers upon their business prospects here and warned that efforts to supplant anthracite must be accompanied by reasonable prices, if they are to be successful.

The coal operators estimated that the greatest possible shipments they could make into New England would provide fully half of the requirements of the area, providing no anthracite is available.

The bureau, which is to be opened in Boston, will be in charge of a manager and assistants who will act as demonstrators, service and trouble men. Their work will be to teach the proper methods for burning the smokeless coal, and to guard against the shipment of "inferior" coal into New England under the name of West Virginia coal. The bureau will co-operate with the governors' committee, Chamber of Commerce and Chambers of Commerce. If the plan proves successful the bureau will be made permanent and other bureaus may be established. Three Boston men have been named to superintend the opening of the bureau. It was announced that New England will be made the same price as other localities now using the West Virginia coal.

It was pointed out that efforts to provide for the shipment of the run of the mine coal would provide a product far cheaper than the prepared sizes, and which is now largely used in the middlewest for domestic purposes.

U. S. STEEL AT HIGHEST PRICE EVER QUOTED

NEW YORK, Nov. 6—(By the Associated Press)—Bullish enthusiasm in the stock market was revived today by a remarkable buying demonstration in the common stock of the U. S. Steel corporation, which soared 5 1-2 points to 138, the highest quotation ever recorded. Other so-called "Morgan industrials," such as General Motors, General Electric and Dupont also registered substantial gains, carrying the average of twenty leading industrials issues to the highest level ever recorded, but many other stocks were liquidated under cover of this buying.

Total sales were calculated by Associated Press tabulators at 2,261,400 shares, as against the nine-year record of 2,841,600 shares established on Wednesday, making it the nineteenth consecutive full session of two million shares or over. Although 612 individual issues were dealt in, nearly one-seventh of the day's entire volume of business took place in U. S. Steel common, total sales of which were 230,400 shares, and General Motors, 132,300 shares of which changed hands.

CHAUNCEY OLCOTT STILL IN CRITICAL CONDITION

ANN HARBOR, Mich., Nov. 6. (AP) —Chauncey Olcott, prominent actor, who has been critically ill in a hospital here since last Friday night, began a journey back to New York late today by train. Mrs. Olcott and two attendants accompanied Olcott, who physicians say is still in a critical condition.

Mrs. Olcott is taking her husband back to the "Lucky House" in New York city, where she nursed him back to health after he had suffered a similar attack while en route from Europe some years ago.

Never Has Progress Seemed So Swift.

Grandmother's girlhood would seem pathetically poor in comforts to us today. She never knew the convenience of electrically done housework; of time saved in cooking; of swift trips through the country by motor; of the world's best music in her home, out of the air.

A generation has changed the lives, comforts and habits of the world.

Tomorrow—new comforts, new conveniences will swiftly find their way into our lives.

The advertisements will herald their coming. Today a manufacturer will announce a new and better product. Tomorrow a million men and women will use it as an old friend.

An advertisement breaks down the barriers of distance and tells to all the world—in a day's time—the best and newest things the world has devised.

People who keep abreast with progress read The Bulletin's advertisements. Advertising is a herald of better things.

WORK BY HOUSE COMMITTEE ON THE NEW REVENUE BILL

Voted Reduction of Inheritance Tax and Repeal of the Gift Tax and Publicity of Income Tax Returns—Would Cut the Maximum Inheritance Tax Rate From 40 Per Cent. to 20 Per Cent.—Votes to Increase From $10,000 to $20,000 the Maximum Amount of Income on Which 25 Per Cent. Reduction For "Earned Income" May Be Applied.

Washington, Nov. 6—(A. P.)—Plunging ahead with consideration of the vital provisions of the new revenue bill it is preparing, the house ways and means committe today decided, among other things, to recommend repeal the provision of the present act allowing publication of income tax returns.

Other decisions reached by the committee included:

Reduction of tahe inheritance tax rates from a maximum of 40 to 20 per cent.

Repeal of the gift tax.

Retention of the present corporation and capital stock taxes.

Increase from $10,000 to $20,000 the maximum amount of income on which the 25 per cent. reduction for "earned income" may be applied.

The proposal that small corporations be allowed to file returns as partners, with consent of all stockholders, and that partnerships be permitted to file as corporations, was turned over to a sub-committee for study.

In his action with respect to inheritance taxes, the committee rejected Secretary Mellon's proposal for repeal of the levy. It then adopted a recommendation of Chairman Green to increase from 25 to 30 per cent. The credit allowed in settlement of federal inheritance taxes for payments on similar state levies, a measure designed to eliminate to a large extent the existing dual taxation of estates.

The committee's progress yesterday and today apparently disposed of the main points of controversy in the tax reduction program, and Chairman Green predicted it would be able to present to the house a "non-partisan bill with practically unanimous support" and said he confidently expected almost united action by the house on the measure.

"There have been differences over most of the points so far acted upon," Mr. Green said "but it can be said that the committee has acted in the best spirit of co-operation and I believe a bill which can truly be named non-partisan will be framed."

Changes involving a revenue reduction of about $200,000,000 annually have been approved, leaving, at least $100,000,000 more to be taken off the various excise and special taxes, which will be considered by the committee next week.

FIVE JURORS SELECTED FOR MACRI MURDER CASE

LITCHFIELD, Nov. 6.—(AP)—The end of the first week of the second trial of Olympia Macri for shooting John Bagnano in New Haven, February 26 last, found only five jurors accepted out of the 53 veniremen examined during the four day session in Litchfield county superior court here before Judge George E. Hinman.

A new panel of 100 veniremen was drawn this afternoon, only 25 of the first panel remaining to be examined. These twenty two with twelve of the new panel will be summoned for interrogation on Monday.

The jurors who have been chosen, in order are:

William J. Hunt, 66, farmer, unmarried of Bethlehem; John S. Davey, 60, retired shoe dealer, of Torrington, married, with one daughter; Frank J. Harrison 50, Clinton carpenter, married, no children; Mott Darling, 74, farmer, of Kent, twice married, six children, and, Hollis D. Griffin, 28, Litchfield, farm superintendent, married, two children.

Hunt was accepted the first day. None was chosen on Wednesday, three on Thursday, and one, Hollis D. Griffin, today.

Six jurors had been chosen by the end of the first week of the first trial which ended in a disagreement of the jury, eleven standing acquittal against for one for conviction.

The state ended the four days with two more peremptory challenges used than the defense. The count stands, state 10 and the defense 8. The first trial after the same number of days had been spent in selecting a jury found the count, state 8, defense 16.

TO CARRY GERALD CHAPMAN CASE TO FEDERAL COURTS

NEW YORK, Nov. 6—On the grond that Gerald Chapman, convicted of murder in Connecticut and sentenced to hang in December, is a prisoner of the federal government and must serve the remainder of his 25 year sentence for a New York mail robbery before the Connecticut death sentence can be executed, Frederic J. Groehl, chief counsel at Chapman's trial said today that he would carry the case to the federal courts next week. Mr. Groehl said he would apply in the United States district court at Hartford, Conn., for a writ of habeas corpus on this contention.

The attorney for the convicted mail robber and murderer declared that he believed the only way the state of Connecticut could execute Chapman would be by first obtaining a pardon from President Coolidge for the federal offense. In this event, he said, Chapman would refuse to accept the pardon.

The Connecticut supreme court yesterday upheld the conviction of Chapman for the murder of a New Britain policeman. He has been sentenced to die on the gallows on Dec. 3.

COURT SUSTAINS WILL OF THE LATE DR. F. S. BUSH

SALEM, Mass., Nov. 6. (AP))—A jury in the superior court here late today sustained the will of the late Dr. John Foster Standish Bush of Andover and found that the testator was of sound and disposing mind at the time the will was executed.

The will contested by his elder daughter, Mrs. Ella Agnes Von Szendeffey, of New York, to whom Dr. Bush left the income of $30,000 in trust, the remainder of the 100,000 estate being left outright to a younger daughter, Theoda P. Bush, a teacher in Dana Hall, a girl's preparatory school at Wellesley. Mr. Bush died in 1922 at a retreat in Hartford, Conn. He was 72 years old.

MILLER PLEADED NOT GUILTY TO CONSPIRACY INDICTMENT

NEW YORK, Nov. 6. (AP)—Colonel Thomas W. Miller, appeared in federal court today befort Judge Henry W. Goddard and pleaded not guilty to an indictment charging him with conspiracy to defraud the United States while alien property custodian.

His attorney, Robert Johnstone, contended that the deal for which Miller is indicted occurred so long ago that it is outlawed by the statute of limitations. Miller was freed under $5,000 bond. Johnstone declared that the case would consume six weeks or two months and there was a strong probability that it would be thrown out after that lengthy hearing. With the court calendars crowded, he said he was ready to argue at once a motion for a bill of particulars.

Judge Goddard recorded the plea of not guilty and said he would hear the motion on February 1. Miller may change his plea within ten days after the decision of the forthcoming motion.

Miller is accused of returning nearly $7,000,000 of sequestered assets of the American Metals company, Ltd., to alleged Swiss interests, for which service Miller, John T. King, former National Republican committeeman from Connecticut and the late Jesse W. Smith, confidant of Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney general, are alleged to have received $441,000.

TRAL OF DR. BLAZER FOR MURDER OF HIS DAUGHTER

LITTLETON, Colorado, Nov. 6—(A. P.)—In a crowded court room, tense wit excitement, Joel Stone, district attorney, today outlined the case on which the state hopes to send Dr. Harold E. Blazer to prison for life for slaying his 34-year old daughter, Hazel, the "child woman."

Stone described the victim of Blazer's act as "a human being," who was fully developed below the waist, but who possessed the limbs of a child.

He recited that on the day of the slaying, Dr. Blazer remained at home with Hazel, while Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bishop, his son-in-law and daughter, went to Denver. When they returned, he declared the house was locked and after gaining entrance through a window, they discovered the dead girl.

Dr. Blazer's first words, he declared, was to ask if they had seen anything of a "can of chloroform." A wet towel, soaked with chloroform, was found in the house, Stone declared.

The defendant sat with downcast eyes and arms folded as he heard himself branded by prosecutors attorneys as his daughter's murderer—"with the malice aforethought." Dr. B. Dennis, who performed the autopsy, gave his opinion that the girl was either poisoned or chloroformed.

HUNGARY IN A SOUND FINANCIAL CONDITION

NEWYORK, Nov. 6. (AP)—Hungary is now in a sound financial condition, Jeremiah Smith, Jr., commissioner general of the league of nations for Hungary, said today upon his arrival on the steamship Aquitania for a three months' vacation in Boston.

"The country is prospering," he said. "The national budget balanced last year, and I am certain it will balance again this year. The currency is stabilized and the economic conditions are improving. The condition is permanent and not due to any temporary or artificial causes."

Mr. Smith asserted that in his opinion the league of nations is steadily growing more powerful. Confidence in its ability to settle international issues is increasing daily, he said.

MANNION FOUND GUILTY OF MURDERING HIS WIFE

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Thomas M. Mannion, jr., former naval man, was today found guilty of murdering his wife, Helen, April 24, last, and was sentenced to life imprisonment in the state prison at Concord.

The jury returned its verdict after having been out two hours and five minutes. Sentence was pronounced by Chief Justice Oliver W. Branch. The trial, which was begun last Tuesday, was one of the shortest in the history of Rockingham county.

Mrs. Mannion was found with her throat cut. She had apparently wheeled her baby carriage some distance toward the roadside after receiving her fatal wound. The baby, uninjured at the time, has since died. Mrs. Mannion was known to have been in the company of her husband a short time before and a search was instituted. Mannion surrendered on the following night and later pleaded not guilty to the murder charge.

Mannion, in his defense, maintained that his wife had committed suicide with his razor rather than face separation. He and other witnesses said that Mrs. Mannion was soon to become a mother and was in a nervous condition.

Mannion declared that Mrs Mannion proposed a walk on the Little Harbor road and that as she walked beside him must have taken his razor from his pocket.

BUT LITTLE PROGRESS IN STEPHENSON MURDER TRIAL

MORRISVILLE, Ind., Nov. 6—Story of Madge Oberholtzer's acquaintance with D. C. Stephenson before her alleged abduction and attack were told by witnesses today in the murder trial of the former Ku Klux Klan leader and his bodyguards, Earl Gennett and Ray Kinds.

The testimony of two witnesses, over between objections by the state sought to limit it to narrow boundaries prescribed by the court, capped a session filled with variegated evidence, clashes of counsel, and alternate to tenseness and pandemonium in the court room.

After devoting much of the day to presenting an alibi for Earl Klenck, a defendant, the defense summoned Mrs. Cora Householder, who testified that she had resided with her husband near the Oberholtzer home in Indianapolis and after she and her husband were separated, he roomed at the Oberholtzer home.

When Ira Holmes, defense counsel, asked: "Did you see Madge Oberholtzer with your husband at any time?" the state was sustained in objections which ended with the woman's abrupt dismissal from the stand.

COOLIDGE FAVORABLE TO THE WORLD COURT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6—President Coolidge is hopeful that congress will act favorably at its coming session on a resolution providing for American adherence to the world court.

His views on the court, as set forth in his two messages to congress and his Memorial day address this year, are unchanged, and he is not entertaining any proposal which might alter or compromise his stand for ratification of the protocol with reserva-

NOT OPPOSED TO LOANS TO FRENCH GOVERNMENT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6—(A. P.)—The Washington government will place no obstacle in the way of French government requests for banking credits in the United States to support the franc despite the failure of the recent Franco-American debt funding negotiations.

While the administration has announced a policy of scrutinizing carefully all loans to nations which have not funded their war debt, it was disclosed at the White House that no barrier would be placed in the way of such credits as appear necessary for financial rehabilitation abroad.

The attitude of the government all along has been that each separate loan privately negotiated must be passed upon on its own merits, and that the United States was anxious to do nothing that would interfere with protection of currency situations such as that faced now by France.

President Coolidge understands that France has not utilized all of the credit she arranged with the banking house of J. P. Morgan and Company a year ago last spring for supporting the franc, and does not understand that there is any application for additional banking credit for the same purpose.

YALE ART SCHOOL STUDENT ARRESTED IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Nov. 6—Russell Beal, of Erie, Pa., a student in the Yale university art school last year, was arrested in an east side apartment today on a warrant sworn out at New Haven charging him with stealing clothing from other students at the university. Detective Sergeant William Curran of the New Haven police, who arrived here today, said that Beal had admitted the charges against him. The student was arraigned in Tombs court and arrangements were made to return him to New Haven.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 6.—The body of Guiseppe Distefano, 27, was found about 6:40 o'clock Friday morning in the rear of the home of Joseph Lariviere, on Meadow street, where he had died of a bullet wound. The dead man leaves his fiancee, Miss Rosa Guarniere, whom he was to have married Saturday morning and who was prostrated with grief upon learning of his death. He had not been seen since last Friday, October 30, following a miscellaneous shower which had been tendered the bride-elect and which he had attended. Miss Guarniere's home is in the vicinity of the location of the fatality.

Death had been caused by one or more rifle cartridges which had entered the man's throat and penetrated the roof of the mouth, lodging in the brain. Mr Lariviere noticed the body while he was eating breakfast. The man was lying face downward. Partly under his body was a .22 calibre Winchester rifle. Three empty shells had been pumped from the magazine leaving two bullets in the gun. Blood had flown from his throat and formed into a pool underneath his head and body. Near the body was a dress suit case containing a small ramrod for the rifle, which appeared to be a new one, and two boxes of .22 short bullets. A survey of the local stores failed to show that the gun had been purchased in this city.
